White elephants are, of course, albinos—and represent an abnormality. It is stretching of truth to call them "white." They are pinkish and their eyes are pink. The only four that have ever been found live at the palace in Bangkok. I have often seen them paraded about the palace grounds, but so covered with hangings and trappings that it was not easy to tell what they looked like.

The keepers of the white elephants pick up odd scales by calling their risings, which they claim are made from the hairs in the tails of their charges. Since the rings are made and sold in dozens and since there are not many hairs in an elephant's tail, it is plain that the keepers' generation is not deep enough to keep them from lying.—Charles Mayw in Asia.

POETRY

THE JOYOUS DISCOVERY

I said: What rapture it is, like to wine
Of fame from born men to the Sons of God,
Run, tumult-tuitous, 'aye, headlong, tumultuous—
Through the veins that once were like a sudden cloud
Of hop-like, tenseless flesh that meant a small
A part of heavenly plane. I heard the cries
Of Him, my soul's great passion, say
To me,
"Stretch forth thy hand"—and then I made my choice.
And so I saw the work of Him that sent Me as His Messenger to mine. The plan
So plain about five hear. Blind see.
The sure
The Lord of light and life commands. I can.
From the British Weekly.

LIVING WATERS

There are some boring like wells, green-fringed and deep
As ever summer saw,
And cool their water lay, cool and sweet—
But just come to draw.
They heard not, yet they rest in calm content.
And let the people will give;
They can be quiet with their wealth unspent,
So self-contained they live.
And there are some like springs, that bubbling burst
To follow many ways,
And run with offered cup to quench his thirst,
Where the tired traveler strays
That never see the meadows if they want
What is their joy to give—
Unasked, their lives to other lives they grant,
To self-bestowed they live.
And some is the like the ocean, deep and wide,
Wherein all waters fall
That girdles the broad earth, and draws the tide,
Feeding and bearing all;
That breeds the mists, that sends the clouds abroad,
That takes again to give—
Even the great and loving heart of God,
Whereby all love doth live.

NOTHING NEW — ONLY DIFFERENT

ALLEN'S LUNG HEALER

IS NOT A NEW REMEDY, HAVING BEEN IN USE FOR 80 YEARS

The secret of its remarkable success lies in the fact that it is composed of medicinal agents, all of vegetable origin, which have never before been combined in one remedy. It is this combination of soothing healing antiseptic tissue building and blood warming properties that makes it so effective as a throat and lung medicine. It does the work when all other remedies fail.

It will break up a cold in the head, throat or lungs. Its timely use prevents pneumonia and consumption. Contains no dope.

Submarine Cabling.

Submarine cabling is not in danger of being superseded by wireless transmission, if one may judge from the activities of cable companies since the armistice. One European company has laid ever 28,000 miles of ocean cable in the past three years, and it is believed that American companies have done as much in other parts of the sea.

Today the world is encircled by 325,000 miles of electrified ropes that carry messages from man to man. Fifty years ago there were only 8,000 nautical miles of cable. On the modern routes duplicate, triplicate and even sextuplicate cables are provided and the entire system is linked up by alternative and circuitous lines, so that if interruption occurs on one artery another may be quickly pressed into use. Land lines that links these ocean cables into one vast network constitutes the nervous system of the civilized world. There is hardly any spot on the habitable globe which cannot speedily be reached by a message over this great arterial system.

With the amazing development and perfection of wireless as a means of disseminating the world's thought, it was believed at one time that the submarine cable soon would become obsolete; but the fact is that the business of the ocean telegraph companies has increased by leaps and bounds until today there are scarcely sufficient cables to carry the enormous volume of messages sent daily across the Five oceans and under the seven seas. It is apparent there is ample room for both forms of telegraphy.

The development of the submarine cable reads almost like a romance. As in so many of the world's other modern miracles and inventions, it was an American—Cyrus W. Field—who was the pioneer in the industry. In 1854 he laid the first cable between Newfoundland and Ireland. This line was 2,500 miles long and the wire weighed one ton to the mile. The project was characterized at the time as "the boldest feat of electrical engineering ever attempted." The cable cost then were $100 for 20 words of five letters each, and $5 for every five letters extra. Today the rate for 20 words is less than $5.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Ernest E. Rice.

Word has been received in this city of the death, Thursday, January 3, in Barre, Vt., of Mrs. Grace A. (Walker) Rice, 52, wife of Ernest E. Rice, who died at her home on James street, after a short illness.

Mrs. Rice was born in East Woodstock, Conn., a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Walker. She was married to Ernest E. Rice in East Woodstock on August 28, 1895, and shortly afterwards went to Barre, Vt., with her husband, making her home in that city until her death.

Mrs. Rice was a member of the Unitarian parish and a charter member of Cradle Rock chapter, Eastern Star, of Barre, also a member of the Woman's Auxiliary to the American Legion and the Barre Woman's club. She leaves her husband and one son, Laurence V. Rice, of Barre.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the vestry of the Unitarian church, Rev. Lyman Greenman, the pastor, officiating. He paid a high tribute to Mrs. Rice who had always taken great interest in church affairs and was always ready to aid whenever called upon for any worthy cause. Burial was in Number Four cemetery, Barre Vt.

Mrs. Henry T. Arnold

Following an attack of heart disease, which was the outcome of heart trouble suffered a year ago, the life of Amelia Leith, beloved wife of Rev. Henry T. Arnold, came to a close early Saturday morning at her home at 48 Williams street. Mrs. Arnold had not been feeling well for a week but her condition was not considered serious. Friday she went among with friends and in the evening she had callers. She retired, feeling well, but about midnight she was seized with heart trouble, and death came before the doctor could arrive at the Arnold home.

Mrs. Arnold was born in Providence, February 1, 1851, and in that city in 1879 she was united in marriage with Rev. Henry T. Arnold. With her husband she had since resided in Wells, Me., Tiverton, R. I., and Plainfield, Conn., where her husband held pastorates. About 16 years ago Rev. and Mrs. Arnold came to Norwich locating in the present home on Williams street.

Mrs. Arnold had the faculty of drawing to herself many friends. This same spirit of friendliness made itself felt in every parish in which her husband served, and especially Norwich. Immediately after coming to Norwich she associated herself with Park Congregational church and entered into church work. She was active in the Sunday school, in the mission work, various church departments, and only a month ago resigned as president of the Woman's Federation of the church.

Her whole interest was not confined to church work for Mrs. Arnold took an interest in everything that was good. At the time of her death she was president of the United Workers of Norwich, and as head of that organization had worked untiringly, her one hope being that she might live to see the building of the new Sheltering Arms home.

In her death Norwich loses one of its foremost women, one whose example has inspired others to follow closely in her footsteps. Her influence for good will long be felt in this community.

Mrs. Arnold is survived by her husband, two sons, Anthony S., of Westfield, N. J., Henry D., of Waban, Mass.; one daughter, Mrs. O. Chester Johnson, of Plainfield, N. J.; a sister, Mrs. George Stillman of Plainfield, N. J., and one brother, Harvey I. Leith of Providence

Her determination to become a nun was gratified in 1888, with her entry in the Sisters of Mercy Novitiate at Mt. St. Joseph Convent and her profession in 1890. Her religious life, one of zeal and fidelity to her calling, was spent in teaching in the parochial schools of Lakeville, Norwich, New Haven, Hartford, Stamford and Bridgeport. Funeral services for Sister Gerald were held Saturday, December 29, at St. Mary's Home West Hartford. Rev. M. F. Lynch was celebrant of a solemn requiem mass; Rev. Francis P. Keough was deacon; Rev. AUTOS AND PEDESTRIANS SLIPPED AND SLID ON ROADS AND STREETS

Skidding automobiles that executed interpretive dances mocked the best efforts of their drivers to keep them in the middle of the road and slipping slithering pedestrians that performed all the known variations of the highland fling before they sat down with sudden and unnecessary emphasis were common sights around the streets of the city Saturday evening, especially from 4 to 7 o'clock when the early part of a snow storm was arriving.

The flakes began to fall about 4:30, of the light, fluffy variety, that covered the ground fast and seemed to produce unusually slippery conditions. As the ground had been bare, very few machines had their chains on and wherever there was a hilly street the motorist without chains had his troubles. Bath street, Union square, Broadway, Laurel Hill avenue, Cliff street and others were trouble spots where machines slipped off the crown of the road into the gutters, if the machine was trying to go up hill, or did a fast spin and turned completely around if the driver was coming down hill. At one time Broadway hill had half a dozen or more machines that were reposing in the gutter waiting for chains to proceed on their way and Cliff street had an equal number that had been unable to make that grade. Wise drivers whose regular route would take them up a hill to get home figured out some circuitous route where they could get level traveling to reach their destinations. In spite of all the hazardous conditions no accidents of any consequence were reported.

The big motor truck of Schwartz Bros. came down Church street into Union square, slid across Broadway and whirled around just in time to settle gently against the flashing beacon at the head of Bath street, without damaging the beacon. The driver put on chains and got away in safety.

A machine driven by Dr. George Thompson of Taftville, skidded while going down the hill in front of the Moose home on Laurel Hill and came to a stop within a few feet of the fence at the driveway to Dawley's lumber yard. The steering gear was somewhat damaged but the occupants were not injured.

While on the way down the West Main street hill shortly after 6 o'clock a Dodge roadster owned by the American Waste and Metal Co. skidded and after turning around in the road crashed against a culvert in front of the synagogue, smashing a front wheel.

As a measure to safeguard against accidents police officers were stationed at the top of Broadway hill and Laurel Hill, above the bridges, to warn drivers of the slippery condition of the road surface. A number of drivers took heed of the warning and rather than take the risk of driving down those hills turned their cars around and detoured through other streets.

Pedestrians found the going equally treacherous and many a fall resulted. Just a moment of inattention in "watching your step" was all that was necessary and the hapless person who looked around to laugh at the fall of another was just as likely to be measuring his own length in the snow the next minute. One of the gallant officers of the Norwich police force who was going out on duty with the squad at 7 o'clock saw a woman go down with a thud a few feet from him as he was crossing Union square. As he turned quickly to help her he struck a slippery spot, his feet shot toward the horizon and he landed with a thud that could be heard all over the square. For the rest of the night he carried his club and his flashlight in another place than his hip pocket.

Street Commissioner A. H. Crothers had men out sanding the dangerous slopes on the sidewalks all through the evening, which was a service that probably saved many falls and was much appreciated.

One trolley accident opposite the Backus hospital gate resulted because of the slippery conditions. A one-man trolley car, due at Franklin square at 5 o'clock, had stopped at the hospital gate and was run into by a car that was following it. The one-man car had the vestible crushed in somewhat and six women passengers who were shocked and scared were taken to the hospital, where their fears were quieted. Motorman Crary was in charge of the one-man car and Motorman Kaminsky was operating the car that ran into it.

A truck driver who managed to reach Norwich from Stonington during the evening reported that on the way he counted 67 automobiles stalled along the shore line highway. Some had smashed wheels and others were unable to move as they were not equipped with chains. Many of the drivers left their stalled machines by the roadside until Sunday morning.

A Norwich man who came over from New London during the evening said that it was the most trying and nerve wrecking drive that he had ever experienced. All along the way were machines piled up by the roadside and at some of the worst spots he had to signal his car along in order to get by.

STATE POLICE ARRESTS PROTECT HIGHWAY USERS

During the month of December the state police of Connecticut made 184 arrests, seized liquor valued at $11,130.50 and recovered property valued at $6,636.50. In addition, 1,924 applicants for motor vehicle operators' licenses were examined, 560 inspections of weights and measures were made and 145 motion picture theatres were inspected.

The total of arrests was divided into classes as follows: Violations of the motor vehicle law 109; miscellaneous crimes, 41; violations of the liquor law 34.

There are 24 different offenses listed on the report of violation of the motor vehicle laws, and 75 of the 184 arrests for these offenses were on charges involving danger to all users of the road. In other words two-thirds of the work done by the department on the highways was in making those highways safe for travel. Forty-eight of the seventy-two arrests of this class were for reckless driving and six for driving under the influence of liquor. Other charges included improper brakes, insufficient lights, improper lens, taking a motor vehicle without permission and theft. The last named charge was laid against six persons.

Crimes listed as miscellaneous included three arrests for manslaughter, eight for theft, one for burglary, six for breach of the peace and assault, three for breach of the peace, one for aggravated assault, one for fraud and four for being fugitives from justice. Other arrests in this class involved eight other crimes.

Arrests for violations of the liquor law included twenty-five for the sale, seven for manufacture and two for transportation. In carrying on the work of the department members covered a total of 74,653 miles in travel and patrol work.

Y. P. C. U. STATE PRESIDENT REPORTED ON CONVENTION

The regular meeting of the Young Peoples' Christian Union of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, was held Sunday night and was opened by the president, Miss Villa C. Bussey, at 6:30 o'clock, after which prayer was offered by Rev. Elliott Barber of Danbury.

The principal speaker of the evening was John Slater of New Haven, president of Connecticut State Union who gave a most interesting report on the New England Get-together of the Y. P. C. U. held in Portland, Me. Mr. Slater, in his report, touched briefly on all departments and spoke of the programme for the coming year as outlined at the convention.

Following the report of Mr. Slater the meeting was placed in charge of J. Harold Cobb who called upon Rev. Mr. Barber and other visitors for brief remarks.

After the meeting a social hour was enjoyed by the young people and light refreshments were served. The committee in charge of arrangements for the evening was composed of Miss Villa C. Bussey, assisted by William E. Mitchell, Miss Bertrice Green, Miss Grace Taft and Miss Natalie Bussey. Members of the union assisted in serving.

FARMERS MUST FIGURE ON COST PER UNIT

Not long ago a representative of farm bureau discovered a dairy farmer in the northern part of the country feeding a dairy grain purchased from a local grain dealer, which showed on analysis of only nine per cent. and costing about $48. Needless to say the farmer was getting very little result in the way of production. If he had taken a pencil and paper and figured what that grain was actually costing him, 26.6 per pound of protein, no doubt he never would have bought it. His neighbors were buying a 24 per cent. ration for about $53 which is 11 cents per pound of protein or less than half of what the nine per cent. ration cost. It was not long before this man was feeding a higher poterin feed and getting results. When buying a ration it pays to look a bit father than just the actual dollars and cents per ton.

The cost per unit is what we are most interested in, in grain as well as fertilizer, for then prices can be compared on the same grounds. No doubt the grain dealers do not care to have the farmers do this, according to the experiences of farm bureaus, but the farmer must look after his own business as well as any other business man.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER PAYS $5 FOR FORGETFULNESS

A Norwich man who runs an accessories store and gasoline station on North Main street paid $5 in the city court, Saturday morning, for a bit of forgetfulness.

While he was driving off the Laurel Hill bridge Friday night and turning into Shetucket street he lost control of his car so that it ran up onto the sidewalk and bumped a small and rather rusty looking machine that was parked there. When the North Main street man reported the accident at police headquarters he was asked to tell the 1924 registration number of his machine. Several anxious searches over a mass of papers in his pocket failed to produce the needed paper but he found his gasoline license which he had picked up by mistake, he said, and put into his pocket. Further trouble loomed up when he was asked what the number of his driver's license was. Out of the mass of papers he extracted an envelope, sealed tight just as it had come to him through the mail with the license in it. With a sheepish look that indicated he knew what was coming to him, he tore open the envelope and handed over the license, still guiltless of the signature on the back which the law requires shall be affixed as soon as the operator's license is received. His summons to appear in court followed.

Settled in Common Pleas.

The case of Frederick O. Bent, a New London contractor, against D. J. Lucy of that city, for $282.39 for material furnished and carpenter work done on a house in Garfield avenue, was settled Saturday morning. The suit was scheduled to be tried before Judge Charles E. Waller in the court of common pleas Saturday.

NOW SHOWING AT THE STRAND

GOOD BUSINESS YEAR ANTICIPATED IN 1924

"The business man in Connecticut has a decidedly pleasant and satisfactory outlook for the year 1924," writes President Stanley H. Butler of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce in the current number of the Financial Digest.

"Industrial activity has been on, what might be called, a normal plane throughout the year," President Butler writes. "No marked 'peaks' or 'valleys' have been evident in the employment curve to date though recently a slight recession, probably as the result of seasonably re-adjustment, has been apparent. The curve will, undoubtedly, rise as soon as inventories have been completed and manufacturers are fully informed with regard to the requirements of the situation. The single marked exception to the generally good condition is in the textile industry—centering in Norwich, which reflects the general tendency of the merchants to retrain from unnecessary purchases and the desire to keep inventories at the lowest possible basis. The cold winter has, undoubtedly, contributed largely to this situation."

The survey by the state chamber shows that merchants in men's wear have suffered quite heavily the past several months due to climatic conditions. The favorable business conditions which have been enjoyed have resulted in a surplus in the textile mills causing many of the to run on short time. Labor conditions during the past year have been normal and manufacturing conditions in general have remained the same.

It is generally considered by the retail merchants, the survey shows, that much keener competition is expected in that line this year than last year, with the merchants receiving only a slight margin of profit as compared to previous the year.

The survey of past, present and future financial conditions in Connecticut, follows in part:

Norwich—Conditions during the past year have been fairly good. Some unemployment due to mills being shut down. Some factories operating on part time. Mercantile business has been very good. Business interests look for a good year in 1924.

New London — Conditions during 1923 have been exceptionally good. Extensive building operations both in office building and in housing, which furnished employment to men of various trades. 1924 viewed optimistic.

Willimantic—There has been a slight falling it in the mercantile business. Manufacturing industries on the whole and had a prosperous year. Opinion is that 1924 will be a good year.

LISBON YOUTH CAUGHT RIDING ON LOCOMOTIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 6.—Mitchell Marchanski, a Lisbon youth, seems to be on the way to the hospital or to a reformatory, unless he changes his ideas of transportation on railroads. He was taken from the front of a locomotive, riding just above the pilot, Friday night, when the New York train was to start from the railway station in this city. Mitchell is said to be something of a prevaricator, too, for he told more than one story to account for his actions. He was brought to the police station Friday night and then his youth suggested that he should be turned over to the probation officer. Mr. Mansfield recognized him at once as a lad who came under his care last summer when he was taken from a train. Mr. Mansfield accused him and Mitchell admitted the accuracy of the identification. Mitchell said his father was the owner of a farm in Lisbon but had gone from there to New York, where he was engaged as a cobbler and trunk repair man. Mr. Marchanski, the lad said, was conducting the farm at Lisbon. As proved to be correct, as inquiry at Lisbon proved. Mitchell said he had been in New York, but he tired of life there and came back to Lisbon for the hunting. He satisfied that desire, but the sport soon satisfied him and he determined to go back to New York. He came to New London from Norwich and here made up his mind to steal his ride on the front of a locomotive. He was not successful in doing that for a train employe found him and turned him over to a police officer. Mitchell is now in jail awaiting a hearing next Wednesday to answer the charge of trespassing on a railroad train.

STATE FARM SUPERINTENDENT MAY NOT BE APPOINTED YET

Mrs. Whitefield N. Thompson, of Hartford, president of the board of directors of the state farm for women at Lyme, "doubts very much" that any action will be taken at the meeting of the board, the 12th, toward the appointment of a superintendent. The farm has been without a superintendent since April, when Miss Anna Peterson resigned and the controversy began that has resulted in the ousting of Mrs. Helen W. Rogers, of Mamden, from the board by Gov. Charles A. Templeton.

At that time Miss Helen H. Hazard of Rock Island, Ill., who had been educational director at the farm, became acting superintendent and has kept the place ever since. Mrs. Thompson said, "We have an acting superintendent and I do not believe that any definite steps will be taken at the present time to appoint a permanent one."

Soon after taking her new office Miss Hazard withdrew her application for the permanent superintendency, saying that she found the responsibility more than she cared to assume.

"Miss Hazard is filling the office of acting superintendent very acceptably," Mrs. Thompson declared, "and she is satisfied to do so until a permanent appointment is made."

JEWETT CITY SELECTMAN FOR PROBATION OFFICER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 6.—Judge Christopher L. Avery has appointed Selectman Maxcy Seymour of Jewett City to be a probation officer. The position was offered to Rev. John J. McCabe, but the latter found that his church duties would not permit the time to attend to the duties and he declined the appointment.

Because of several Jewett City women who had been arrested in September on liquor raids and were sentenced in the superior court here last week, being put on probation under a suspended jail sentence, it was deemed advisable to have a probation officer in that borough. Father McCabe was named by the court, but without knowing whether he would accept the appointment or not. Now that he has declined, the appointment of Selectman Seymour has been made by Judge Avery.

Entertained Almshouse Family

Sunday afternoon the Wauregan orchestra, under the leadership of C. L. Crowley together with a number of members of Grace church choir, Yantic, entertained the members of the almshouse family. The orchestra played many pleasing selections after which the Hyperjoners assisted by the members of the choir rendered a number of old familiar hymns. Nicholas Spellman pleased with a solo. Following the music program, cigars and tobacco were given to the men and candy and oranges to the women.

Savant Discovers new Disease Serum

Professor Miaskowsky, of Charles University, Prague, who has aroused great interest in medical circles on the Continent by the claim that he has discovered an effective serum for arteriosclerosis. A patient, treated with the serum, is declared to have recovered within a short time. Medical men agree that if such a serum has been discovered it would go a long way toward lengthening the span of human life.

CONNECTICUT WEALTH HAS INCREASED 135.1 PER CENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—The department of commerce announces, for the state of Connecticut, its preliminary estimate of the value, Dec. 31, 1923, of the principal forms of wealth, the total amounting to $6,281,359,000, as compared with $2,646,118,000 in 1912, an increase of 135.1 per cent. Per capita values increased from $3,-010 to $3,610, or 19.7 per cent.

All classes of property increased in value from 1912 to 1923, except livestock, which decreased from $29,977,-000 to $22,608,000, or 1.6 per cent. The estimated value of taxed real property and improvements increased from $1,820,072,000 to $3,580,042,000, or 95.4 per cent; exempt real property from $181,943,000 to $444,441,000, or 230.8 per cent; farm implements and machinery from $7,310,000 to $9,055,000, or 23.8 per cent; manufacturing machinery, tools, and implements from $187,165,000 to $437,195,000 or 161.6 per cent; and railroads and their equipment from $145,897,000 to $179,055,000, or 22.7 per cent. Privately owned transportation and transmission enterprises, other than railroads, increased in value from $135,571,000 to $200,501,000, or 48.2 per cent; and stocks of goods, vehicles (other than motor, furniture, and clothing from $415,198,000 to $1,545,931,000, or 235.1 per cent. No comparison is possible for the value of motor vehicles, which was estimated in 1923 at $5,321,000, because no separate estimate was made in 1912.

In making these estimates the department followed in general the methods employed in making the estimates for 1912, though it is believed that in some respects the work in 1923 has been more thorough. It should be borne in mind that the increases in money value are to a large extent due to the rise in prices which has taken place in recent years, and so far as that is the case they do not represent corresponding increases in the quantity of wealth.

The estimated values of gold and silver (in coin and bullion), the vessels of the navy, and privately owned waterworks will appear only in totals for the United States.

ANONYMOUS LETTERS WILL GO INTO WASTE BASKET

The receipt of a number of anonymous letters during the past several weeks addressed to the state highway department has caused Commissioner John A. Macdonald to invite attention to the fact that no results can be expected by the authors of such missives. It has happened that several of these letters have reached the state capitol from the towns of Westbrook and Westport, containing complaints dealing with state highway matters.

No credance can be given the information contained in these letters the highway commissioner pointed out, the only attention they have received up to this time have been to be consigned to waste baskets.

Complaints, properly signed and dealing with legitimate state highway matters, will be received and treated as strictly confidential, if requested, Commissioner Macdonald said. Letters unsigned, however, are of no use to the department, and the information contained in them is considered valueless.

Citizens who have "proper reasons for writing complaints," he said, should consider it their duty to stand in back of the information they see fit to convey to others. As far as the highway department is concerned, everyone may rest assured that a request to keep a confidence will be fulfilled. Nothing can be gained by putting on paper a set of alleged facts, which are not bona fide enough to hold the author's signature, Commissioner Macdonald said.

LAWYERS MUST PAY BILLS, OR BE SUSPENDED

Lawyers who fail to pay their bills are to be suspended. The judges of the superior court at their last meeting, Dec. 21, made an amendment to the rules which provides this penalty for attorneys who repeatedly disregard notices sent out that they are in arrears in the matter of payments to the state.

It is understood that the matter was brought to the attention of the judges by officials in several counties and it was decided to make the punishment for disregarding the rule far more drastic.

It is known that there are several cases about the state which are likely to invoke the new rule if the individuals involved do not take notice when the next statements reach them.

The original rule limited punishment to refusal by the clerks of the courts to recognize notice of appearance in cases, or the entry of new suits for those whose payments were in arrears.

It is the general belief that the judges are determined to put an end to the long delays in payments and have added the extreme punishment of suspension from practicing law upon failure to pay attention to the notices sent out regularly.

Briquets From Waste

It is stated that the French railroads alone lose 300,000 tons of combustible product per annum, which can, however, be readily made up into briquets or balls and the fuel thus obtained is quite as good as the usual briquets.

This product is no other than the waste material that collects in the smoke boxes of locomotives and its heating power is no less than 7,000 calories. Conditions during the war with their resulting economy, led to the use of this substance, and it is said that French manufacturers are engaged in the purchase of the combustible from the railroad companies and are making briquets by its use. A French patent was taken out for the use of this material, one point being that it is neither coal (which has been now burned) nor coke, for it results in fact from the distillation of coal.

Secret of Sevres Blue

For a long time it was believed that the famous blue color given to the porcelain manufactured at Sevres in France, was the result of a secret process and there were many legends in regard thereto. It has been proved however that it is an error to suppose that Sevres blue cannot be produced elsewhere. As a mat

BATTERY E FIVE BEATEN BY FAIRFIELD LEGION TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, Jan. 6.—A crowd of nearly 500 basketball fans witnessed the game Saturday evening at the state armory in Westerly, regardless of the stormy weather, between the Fairfield American Legion Five and the Battery E, 243rd Field Artillery quintet, the former winning, 38 to 25. Fairfield had eight players ready for the game when Referee D. Harold Rogers blew his whistle for play to begin soon after 8.30. The first half of the game was characterized by speedy pass work and clean shooting. There seemed to be no let-up so that when Timekeeper Greig blew his whistle for the end of the first half the ball had left Battery E. Player Plympton's had for a forty-foot clean shoot for a goal, making the score, Battery E 17, Fairfield 12. The allowing of the score was the cause of a short discussion but rule six, section twelve states that play shall cease instantly on the sounding of timekeeper's whistle except that if the ball is in the air on a try for goal when play shall continue until the ball has entered or missed the basket.

In the second half Shaw was substituted for Right Forward Ball. A foul was called on a Battery E player and Quinn, shooting from the foul line, caged the ball tieing the score. The visitors in the last quarter of a minute play showed their speed when two goals were caged with a final score standing, Battery E 25, Fairfield 38. The summary:

Battery E		Fairfield Am. Legion.
Plympton	Left Forward	Walls
Torrey	Right Forward	Ball, Shaw
Stenhouse	Center	Eckert

Fairfield: Field baskets, Walls 5, Ball 3, Shaw 1, Eckert 1, Bowder 4, Quinn 3; fouls, Walls 3, Shaw 1, Quinn 1.

Referee, D. Harold Rogers; timekeeper A. Greig; scorer C. Mudge; attendance 500; two twenty-minute halves.

WINDHAM BEATS KILLINGLY FIVE EASILY, 49 TO 23

Honors were evenly shared at the Windham High school Friday afternoon when Captain Storrs' Windham men won a clear-cut decision over Killingly High by a 49 to 23 score, but the Crimson and Blue girls suffered defeat at the hands of the Williams Memorial lassies of New London by a score of 29 to 24 after a hard tussle. In the boys' encounter, Referee Guyer called a total of 36 fouls, 20 on Killingly and 16 on Windham. Following four personal fouls "Pop" William, one of the chief mainstays for the visitors, was ejected from the game. The locals displayed a generally superior game. "Dud" Burr and Captain Keech were made to feel the severity of the game when both were ejected later in the game for carrying on a little war of their own.

In the Misses Pendleton and Purdy, Williams Memorial has a clever pair of forwards who give promise of accounting for many victories. The Windham girls made a brilliant effort to dodge defeat but fell off five points shy.

In the boys' game, Simonds, Burr and Heller were the chief point getters, while Vadis was the star for the visitors. Both coaches made frequent changes in their lineup.

EDDIE COLLINS HAS PEP AS BEING GOOD WAITER

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Among other records accredited to Eddie Collins, veteran second baseman of the Chicago White Sox, Umpires Billy Evans and Clarence Rowland of the American league have awarded him the honors for running up the batting count to "two and three" more times than any other player in the major leagues.

And still, the batting records show Collins fanned but eight times in 145 games last season.

"RECS" FIVE OF MANCHESTER AT TARTVILLE TUESDAY

The "Recs" Five of South Manchester will oppose the Army and Navy team at Parish hall on Tuesday evening. The "Recs" have defeated the fast Fuller Brush team and the West Sides of Hartford and have also beaten the Plainfield team on the Plainfield floor, 40 to 16.

The Army and Navy management is giving the local basketball fans some of the best basketball seen here in a number of years but at the present price of admission the team is losing money and probably a slight increase in price will be necessary at future games.

TAYLOR IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF NAVY GRIDDERS

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 6.—Midshipman Edmund Battelle Taylor of Lima, Ohio, was elected captain of the 1924 football team, it became known today upon the arrival of the middy team from Pasadena, where they met the University of Washington on New Year's day. The election was held during the return trip.

The Navy warriors were given a warm welcome by midshipman comrades and academy officers.

VERMULEN WINS FRENCH RUNNING ROAD RACE

Paris, Jan. 6.—Jean Vermulen, a former professional runner, but who recently was reinstated as an amateur by the French Athletic federation, today won the eighteenth running of the Le Monnier cup road race from Versailles to Paris. His time was 43 minutes 7 seconds, which is more than three minutes slower than the record time made by Guillemot in 1920. The distance is a little less than seven miles.

Wanderers vs. Stonington.

The Baltic Wanderers clash with the Stonington team at Baltic on Wednesday evening and a fast game is expected as Stonington is used to the small court, the same as Baltic. Stonington has a creditable number of victories to its credit, having beaten the New London Whirlwinds, LaPointe, Westerly S. C., Narragansett Pier Orioles and the New London Y. M. C. A. Seniors.

The Stonington team will play the following line-up: Edgar and Chesbro, forwards; Gilmore or Rolph, center; E. Edgar, McCloy or Shackley, guards. The Wanderers will have Ridgeway and Simoneau, guards; Charron, center; R. Swanson and T. Swanson, guards. In the preliminary the Pantams will play the Stonington A. A. A. Juniors. Dancing will follow the game.

SPORT NOTES

Two of the star minor league pitchers of 1923 will be with Cincinnati in 1924. They are Tom Sheehan from the American association and Jakie May from the Coast league. The Cincinnati staff will include Luque Donohue, Rixey, Benton, Carl Mays and others with less fame.

The Red Sox will start working at San Antonio on February 22. Batterymen and rookie candidates for all positions will report then. Manager Lee Fohl will be in charge. When the whole squad arrives part of the men will work in the morning, the other part in the afternoon.

Ed Barrow blames Henry Ford for the shortage of suitable wood for baseball bats. Barrow says the making of low-priced automobiles has cut down the market in second-hand wagons, from which they used to get wood for bludgeons.

Bill Ryan wants a raise in pay, and is in New York to see John McGraw on the matter. He was a holdout last spring.

The winter colony at the famous Medford plant totals about 50 head of trotters and pacers, with a dozen well known trainers located there. Joe Johnson, Frank Fox, Andrew Jamieson, Will Bowser and Jack Groves have most of their horses stabled there.

Aubrey Rodney, the well-known New England speed artist, will have Pirella Scott, 2:16 1-4, in his stable next year. He is owned by R. G. Pratt of Birmingham, N. Y., and was recently turned over to "Rod," who will campaign his latest pupil over the Bay State circuit twice-arounds.

J. R. Turner, a righthanded pitcher, with the Paris, Tenn., club last season, will go south with the Red Sox battery men next month.

Joe Stecher, famed as a wrestler, may try for a job with the Omaha Western league ball club. Joe is a first baseman and is said to be a deadly with the bat as with his scissors holds.

Nick Allen, catcher with the St. Paul American association baseball club, is to be the Saints' new manager to succeed Mike Kelley, now manager of Minneapolis.

Should W. B. Eckert of Reading, Pa., decide to race over eastern half-mile tracks next summer, the chances are that he will repeat a campaign similar to the ones he took part in when Hillsgrove was a member of the Bay State circuit, for he has three fast pacers ready to carry his silks in Edna Early, 2:02; Auto Pacer, 2:06 1-4, and Phyllis Volo, 3:10 1-4.

Jack "Kid" Wolfe, Cleveland bantamweight, has been matched to meet young Montreal of Providence, in a twelve-round bout at Columbus, Ohio, January 14.

Fred Mitchell, business manager of the Boston Nationals has been appointed coach of pitchers at Harvard. He will serve actively until April 1, and thereafter will give as much time to the work as he can spare from his duties with the Braves. Mitchell was head baseball coach at Harvard in 1916.

Miss Frances Peckham of Cleveland, O., and Leslie Nunamaker, manager of the Chattanooga, Baseball club of the Southern association, formerly catcher for the New York Americans, were married recently.

Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, who recently lost a decision to Johnny Dundee, has been matched with Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill. The match will be held at Madison Square Garden.

George R. Pfann, captain of the 1923 Cornell eleven and choice of many for all-American quarterback last season, has been named as assistant to Gil Dobie, head coach of the big Red football squad for 1924.

Of course, it is known that John McGraw isn't satisfied to retain his present champions, and the Giants who take the field in 1924 will very likely be a changed outfit.

Eddie Collins, star second-sacker of the Chicago White Sox, who lives in the east, doesn't miss a big football game after the close of the baseball season. Collins, who is a graduate of Columbia, and played quarterback on the varsity, admits that as a collegian he much preferred the gridiron sport to the diamond.

Eddie Tryon, Colgate's great halfback is one of the outstanding football stars of the east. He is the regular college hero type.

Frank Rokusek, captain-elect of the University of Illinois football eleven for 1924, and one of the great ends of the year, is the son of a baker in Omaha, Neb. Robusek is paying his way through college by running a bake shop of his own.

The only golf organization in America which is international in its scope is the Pacific Northwest Golf association, which governs the sport in British Columbia as well as in the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Utah.

W. H. Walsh former president of the South Atlantic association, is behind a movement for the organization of a new baseball league with a circuit to embrace some of the leading cities of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

BRITAIN WAR PIONEER IN DEVELOPING BUS

The history of the motorbus in Europe proves Great Britain to be the pioneer nation in the development and use on a large scale of the heavier type of motor vehicles for passenger transportation.

From 1902 to 1906 Germany was the chief manufacturer of commercial motorcars in Europe, but Great Britain was the largest user. In 1905, when the motorbus boom started in London, chassis were largely imported from Germany, France or wherever they could be obtained.

The motorbuses of those days were huge, unwieldy things weighing more than 11,000 pounds. The streets and roads were unprepared for them; the foundations gave and the surfaces became like the English Channel on a choppy day; but the heavy, lumbering cars still thundered along, shaking buildings to their foundations, and developing all sorts of subsidiary noises in their own defective internal economy. None too efficient at the start, some cars as they deteriorated, became expensive to run; some required a gallon of gasoline for every two and a half miles of operation; and a British gallon at that. It was scarcely surprising then that an outcry arose against all sorts of heavy motor traffic, thought it was the bus that bore the brunt of this movement. All sorts of drastic regulations were promulgated and the outlook was dark.

It was at this juncture that the type B thirty-four passenger omnibus was designed. This new bus, although far smaller and lighter than the older vehicles, had equal carrying capacity and was far superior in both cost and manner of operating.

The London General Omnibus Co. has been the principal user of these busses. The Associated Equipment Co., Ltd., has built to date a total of 8314 of these vehicles, of which the London company has purchased 2900.

At present London operations use 1000 of the thirty-four seaters, 1010 of the forty-six seaters, and 645 of the latest fifty-four seat pattern on the roads. These vehicles on the whole are capable of accommodating 118,290 passengers at one time.—Bus Transportation.

The Walnut and the Squirrel

Squirrels are responsible for the appearance of nut-bearing trees in unexpected places; they are forgetful little elves, and many of the carefully hidden nuts they have cached for the winter are overlooked, germinate and become trees. Walnuts, because of their large kernels, are especial favorites with the squirrels. These trees are troubled by few pests, furnish fine shade, and are commercially valuable; the timber makes excellent airplane propellers and gun stocks. The war rthinned out resources in black walnut down to 850,000,000 feet, and half of this is inaccessible for commerce.—Scientific American.

A Medici Roman.

There is a great deal of beauty and sentiment about the Bank of England. One cannot quite comprehend the Bank of England without taking those qualities into account along with the bills and the bullion. The rebuilding now announced may, and probably will, involve the loss of some of the beauty and more of the sentiment. As this is inevitable, nobody can complain. Dropped from the clouds into the Garden court, and allowed to wander as he pleased in its close neighborhood, a stranger might fancy himself in the domain of some later Medici who mingled banking with a zest for architecture and decoration. The old courtroom with its white pillars and inlaid plaques, like big pieces of rare Wedgewood, has a lightness and proportion that are rare in the city of London, where interiors are apt to be heavily handsome. From the windows directors of the bank, these hundred years or more, have looked on to the spreading lime tree which remains the center of the peaceful loveliness of Garden court.—London Times Weekly.

It is also expected that the Mayfield hearing in the Senate will have some bearing on the situation.

TONY WEST SIGNS CONTRACT TO PLAY WITH BALTIMORE TEAM NEXT SEASON

One more local baseball player will go into fast company this coming season. Tony West, premier pitching star of the Riverview club last season, has signed a contract with the Baltimore Orioles for the coming season. He will report to Manager Jack Dunn about March 13th.

West was recommended to Dunn by Joe Faber, a local boy, who also played with the Riverview club several years ago and who went to Dunn last year. Faber played with Jersey City the greater part of the 1923 season but is still the property of Baltimore and will report to Baltimore on March 13th.

During the 1923 baseball season West stood out among semi-pro pitchers in this section of the state and although pitching sometimes two and three times a week he won better than three-quarters of his games. He soon built up a reputation and was in demand by semi-pro teams in Connecticut and Rhode Island. West is 20 years old and stands close to six feet and weighs about 180 pounds. He is a port-side hurler with a world of speed and sharp breaking hooks. West, however, is a trifle green in fielding his position, a fault that can be easily overcome when he gets under the personal direction of Dunn who developed Jack Bentley and other star major league pitchers.

Both West and Faber will report to Dunn on March 13th and then go south with the team for the spring training. Baltimore trains in Georgia. Faber played good ball with Jersey City last season and if he continues his good work will probably be with the Orioles during the entire 1924 season. He is up against a good man for the shortstop berth in Joe Boley, but now that Bishop, Oriole second sacker has gone up to the major it is possible that Faber will either get a chance at the keystone berth or Dunn may shift Boley to the center sack and give Faber a try-out in the short field.

Another local boy who will return to minor league ball this season will be Jack Sank who reports in March to the Frederick club in the Blue Ridge league. Sank last year was the leading hitter of the Frederick team and played a stellar game at the third bag. All three of these players got their real start in baseball at the Norwich State hospital.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY' MARKET

New York, Jan. 5.—Stock prices moved upward in brisk trading in today's half-holiday session of the stock market. Sales ran well over 600,000 shares despite the serious interruption of the wire service of the larger Brokerage houses.

Washington dispatches stating that President Coolidge was opposed to any substantial changes in the Mellon tax reduction plan, combined with a cessation of the recent profit-taking, encouraged the active resumption of operations for the rise. Shorts, apparently impressed by the quality of the buying power, hastened to cover, net gains in the active issues ranging from 1 to 3 points.

A broadening demand was noted for the railroad shares, particularly the southern and northwestern carriers. Southern Railway crossed 40 for the first time in more than a year, closing at a net gain of 1 point, while t. Louis Southwestern, Atlantic Coast Line, Lackawanna and Reading 1st pfd, all closed a point or more higher.

U. S. Steel crossed 90 for a net gain of another point. Baldwin moved up 1 1-4. American Can climbed 2 1-2 and Studebaker improved fractionally.

Motor and Motor Accessory shares staged the traditional bullish demonstration on the opening day of the Automobile Show. Nash Motors jumped 5 points and gains of 1 to nearly 3 points were registered by Stromberg Carburetor, Hayes Wheel, Indian Motors A, Martin Parry and Reynolds spring.

Oil stocks were steadier with further recovery noted in the Pan American issues. Producers & Refiners, Cosden, Sinclair, Standard Oil of New Jersey and several others. Leather, chemical, rubber and shippings stocks continued to respond to improved trade conditions.

Moderate recoveries took place in most of the foreign exchanges. French francs improved about 5 points to 4.93 1-4 cents and the Italian and Scandinavian rates improved slightly. Demand Sterling was unable to hold all its gain, easing in the final dealings to $4.28½, where it was off about 3-4 of a cent from last night's final figure.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a decrease of $73,437,000 in loans, discounts and investments and $2,889,000 in cash in own vaults. The reserve of member banks in the federal reserve bank increased $27,416,000 net demand deposits increased $9,830,000 and time deposits $8,158,000.

Power in Jelly Form.

There is obtainable in various quarters jellies of solidified petroleum, a perfectly transparent product possessing the same colors as the petrols used for its manufacture. It is made in the form of a jelly of sufficient consistency to be carried and handled like any other solid body. It can easily be cut into pieces and may be conveyed in cardboard boxes without danger. The physical properties are the same as in liquid petrol, evaporation is not easy, and with the same heating power its inflammability and heating power is very intense, as also is its carburetting power. When ignited it does not melt, but burns like wood or coal.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Woman's Federation of Park Congregational church, the following resolution was adopted:

Mrs. Henry T. Arnold had just completed her term of office as president of the Woman's Federation of Park church. Little could we anticipate the memory of today be inspecting the memory of a loved one who has passed beyond rather than expressing by our action the greeting of affection and appreciation at the end of her presidency.

So crowned with success has been Mrs. Arnold's work for Park church and the Federation that it now seems she was spared for a purpose and the federation is deeply grateful that her unflagging interest and zeal were freely given until the end.

The executive committee of The Woman's Federation can only express at this time what is really their great sorrow at the loss of one so active and friendly. Nor can we yet realize what her death may mean to us. Our thought and prayer and sympathy go out in fullest measure to her husband and children, who will ring [illegible]

Indian Lands Reclaimed.

Reclamation of "arid and semi-arid lands" on Indian reservations has reached such large proportions that almost 600,000 acres can now be irrigated and 365,000 acres are under actual cultivation, according to a bulletin recently issued by the Indian offices of the department of the interior.

"The cost of these projects totals $30,500,000, with the cost of operation and maintenance running $9,000,000," says the bulletin. "There are 11 storage reservoirs now located on Indian reservations furnishing water to irrigate lands for the Indians and 65 dams, 21 of which are storage and 44 of which are diversion dams. The capacity of the storage reservoir alone is 381,100 acre-feet of water."

Canals, big and small, constructed to carry the water to the fields, cover a total distance of 4795 miles, not including waste ditches, which approximate 144 miles. The number of tunnels built reaches 11 and combined are 7310 feet in length.

Many of the reclamation projects upon Indian reservations have not been completed and it is estimated that it will take $32,000,000 additional money to construct them. When finished they will irrigate an area equal to 1,392,397 acres.

The five largest projects on Indian reservations are located on the Fort Peck and Flathead reservations in Montana, Klamath reservation in Oregon, Yakima reservation in Washington, and the Colorado river reservation, Arizona.

A few minutes before six o'clock on Sunday night the fire department received a telephone call for a fire in the three story brick house at 93 West Main street. Investigation showed that the supposed fire was a back draft from the chimney which filled the house with smoke. The house is owned by James Mahoney and the tenement is occupied by James Wilbur.

MOTOR VEHICLES FIGURED IN 255 FATALITIES IN CONNECTICUT

Motor vehicles figured in approximately 255 fatalities in Connecticut during the calendar year 1923, according to a preliminary compilation of accident statistics completed at the state motor vehicle department. That total represents an increase of twenty-six fatal accidents over the number reported to the department for 1922, but the 1923 figure will be increased if injuries due to 1923 accidents should be later reported to have resulted fatally subsequent to the close of the old year.

While the 1923 total of fatalities is the highest of any year since motor vehicles began to be operated in Connecticut, the ratio of increase over 1922 is 2 per cent. less than the increase in the number of motor vehicles operated on the public highways. The preliminary compilation shows that approximately 191,647 motor vehicles were registered in Connecticut in 1923 as against 168,398 registered in 1922, representing a 21 per cent. increase. Deaths due to motor vehicle operation increased about per cent. in Connecticut during 1923. Automobile fatalities throughout the country increased about 42 per cent. during 1923, and, while these figures for the country at large are not yet available, it is certain from such figures as it has been possible to prepare that the percentage for the country will be several times larger than that for Connecticut.

Hartford, with thirty-one, had the largest number of motor vehicle fatalities. New Haven came second with 22, followed by Bridgeport with 18, Waterbury with 17, and New Britain with 5. Thirty-one of 94 fatalities in these large cities occurred to children under 16 years old.

Senator Started Career As A Jockey

Charles Curtis, Senator from Kansas, is another man whose life story reads like a dime novel, and it might be titled, "From Stable to Senate." He knows Sam Hildreth, Zev's trainer, who was also a jockey on the track around Kansas City at the same time that Curtis rode the fastest horses in the stable. Later the Senator's family said it was not the life for him and he continued his education, studying law and earning his way through college. Later he was elected county attorney and from then on his rise was rapid.

GROTON LONG POINT TROLLEY BRIDGE CONDEMNED

Investigation by the public utilities commission resulted Thursday in the condemnation of the trolley bridge spanning Palmer's cove, Groton Long Point. In the order to halt traffic over the bridge the commission declared the bridge was unsafe for trolley travel.

In spite of the handicap the Groton-Stonington Traction Co. is continuing service. Cars are stopped at each end of the bridge and passengers transfer by walking over the highway bridge that parallels the trolley trestle. The trolley company has engaged Richard Davidson of New London to make the repairs which had been contemplated for several weeks. As soon as they are completed the company will notify the utilities commission and if an O. K. is granted traffic will be resumed.

The Palmer cove trolley trestle is as old as the Groton-Stonington road itself, but it was not regarded by trolley officials as in any way inadequate or unsafe for the use of trolleys, according to Superintendent W. L. O'Brien.

Superintendent O'Brien said that the company knew the tracks over the bridge had been out of line. Inspections were made regularly by various competent men, he said, hired by the traction company and when it was first learned the tracks were not in line orders were issued that the car proceed over the trestle at a rate not greater than eight miles per hour. Notices to that effect also were posted.

The most recent examination made in behalf of the trolley company was made a month ago by Shepherd B. Palmer, Norwich engineer, who after a complete inspection declared it was safe for travel and that a few minor repairs were needed.

Richard Davidson next paased judgment on the structure and confirmed Palmer's decision and that it was safe for trolleys to cross, also that a few repairs were necessary. The work was then planned and Davidson took the contract for repairs, agreeing to begin work today.

Complaint, however, is said to have been lodged with the public utilities commission which resulted in an inspection for the commission by Joseph P. Wadhams, who was detailed from Hartford. Inspector Wadhams thoroughly examined the structure and reported his findings to the commission which sent back a telegram of condemnation, received in Mystic late Thursday afternoon.

Upon receipt of the order Superintendent O'Brien ordered traffic over the bridge stopped at 6.30 p. m. The present arrangement of transferring passengers from cars which will stop at either end of the bridge will be carried out until the repairs are completed. The commission did not specify what particular repairs are to be made and the trolley company will therefore carry out the anticipated repairs and hope for approval from the commission when the job is completed.

ST. PATRICK'S RECEIPTS $50,633, REV. M. H. MAY REPORTS

Magnificent revenues and magnificent results were indicated Sunday, by the annual financial report of St. Patrick's parish, read by the rector, Rev. M. H. May, in accord with the orders of the bishop of the diocese and the diocesan synod. The total receipts reached the new high record of $50,633.31.

At the beginning of 1923 there was in the treasury $12,295.12. The total ordinary receipts from rent of pews, seat money and Sunday offertory reached $15,961.15. Parish collections for various objects amounted to $5,917.45. A lawn fete on the grounds of the K. of C. home, under direction of Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero cleared $3,046.91. Society contributions to the church totalled $641.29, while rent from parish property brought in $848, these extraordinary revenues amounting intotal to $14,070.04. Cemetery receipts were $8,367. Interest, Liberty bonds, et al, were also listed.

Among the principal expenditures were salaries of three priests $2,200 (rector $1,000, two curates $600 each.) Teachers in parish school—nine Sisters of Mercy and one lay teacher, Miss Mary Hartie, of Norwich, instructor of the Third grade—$3,990, a total of $6,190 for salaries. Sexton and labor $2,288.75. Organist, $900. Choir (volunteer); for music etc, $26.12. Fuel and light $3,183.28. For the poor, $818.92; diocesan collections, total, $1,350. Parish assessment for diocesan social welfare work $250. Repairs, on church, school, convent and rectory, organ re-building ($2,000) mission contributions, collection given Japanese earthquake sufferers, et al., aggregated $33,862. Cemetery expenses, $4,430.98, making the total, disbursements for the year $38,293.30, leaving to start 1924 a balance of $12,730.01.

This extraordinarily fine showing gave great satisfaction to the three congregations of the day. Father May modestly took no credit for his skill in financial management, declaring that he stood in the parish merely as the instrument of God's will, that what had been accomplished by himself and his two faithful and able assistants, Father Galvin and Father Guerriero was due wholly to the generosity of the people, who took pride in the upkeep and preservation of the splendid church property which represented many years of devotion and sacrifice on the part of their forefathers. He had warm words of praise for the general cooperation throughout the year, from his curates, the choir and organist, the ushers and collectors, the various societies of the parish, especially the Catholic Women's club, which raised over $600 for the parish poor—and he pointed out how much the parish owes to the quiet, effective work of the holy nuns, who teach the children in the parish school, minister to the poor and sick and afflicted. What must be done during 1924 for the repairing and improving the property—entirely free from debt, yet requiring constant attention—was briefly and clearly indicated.

Blue or brown serge would be good for this style. It is also nice for velvet, knit woolens and taffeta. The sleeve may be in wrist or in elbow length. In black velvet or blue jersey, with collar and trimmings of suede, this style would be unique and attractive.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10 year size requires 3 yards of 40-inch material. For collar of contrasting material 40 inches wide, 1-2 yard is required.

JAPANESE NEWSPAPER SUPPRESSED BY POLICE

Tokio, Jan. 6 (By the A. P.)—The police, after suppressing last night the Japanese newspaper that published accounts of the unsuccessful bomb throwing at the imperial palace yesterday, released the story today, with a formal statement that a Korean had hurled the bombs, which failed to explode.

The emperor and his family are not occupying the palace at present. The Korean who threw three bombs was arrested immediately.

Despite the fact that the demonstration apparently was staged by a Korean, public opinion supports the theory that he acted as a protest against the attempted formation of a cabinet controlled by the house of peers.

The bomb throwing, coming so soon after the attack on the prince regent by a young radical, who fired on his automobile, has caused a tremendous sensation.

After wounding the girl, Gallagher turned the same revolver on himself and sent a bullet into his head. Realizing he had missed a vital spot he slashed his wrists with a butcher knife.

The shooting occurred shortly before 5 o'clock this morning.

Peter Olson, 82, is being held by the police as a material witness.

Mrs. Rothenberg and her sister having announced that they will plead not guilty and will not seek to have the indictment quashed on the grounds of an alleged illegality in its return.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE PROCLAIMS EMBARGO ON WAR SUPPLIES FOR MEXICAN REBELS

Document Signed and Issued by the Chief Executive on the Recommendation of Secretary Hughes—Fine of $10,000 or Two Years' Imprisonment or Both May Be Imposed Upon Convicted Violators of the Embargo—Border Patrols Are to Be Instructed to Watch For Arms Smuggling Expeditions—The Department of Justice is to Instruct Its Agents to Cause the Arrest of Any Persons Conspiring to Violate the Law.

Washington, Jan. 7.—President Coolidge took further steps to aid the Obregon government in Mexico today signing a proclamation which imposed an immediate embargo on any shipments of war munitions to that country except with the specific approval of the government. A fine of $10,000 or two years imprisonment or both may be imposed upon convicted violators of the embargo.

Action was taken by the president on recommendation of Secretary Hughes. No formal statement accompanied the text of the proclamation when it was made public at the state department. So far as known, however, the Washington government has no exact information as to intended sales of arms in the United States to Mexican rebel factions beyond inquiry through the department of which received yesterday from [illegible] de la Huerta agent in New York [illegible] erning purchase and [illegible] Orleans for shipment to the rebel forces of arms and ammunition.

The text of the proclamation follows:

"Whereas, section one of a joint resolution of congress, entitled a 'joint resolution to prohibit the exportation of arms of munitions of war from the United States to certain countries, and for other purposes,' approved January 31, 1922, provides as follows:

"That whenever the president finds that in any American country, or in any country in which the United States exercises extra-territorial jurisdiction, conditions of domestic violence exist which are or may be promoted by the use of arm or munitions of war procured from the United States, and makes proclamation thereof, it shall be unlawful to export, except under such limitations and exceptions as the president prescribes, any arms or munitions of war from any place in the United States [illegible] thereto by the president or [illegible] provided by [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

NORWICH BULLETIN
81 Church Street Telephone 1082

Several Willimantic residents were witnesses to a remarkable show of coolness on the part of a young woman driver Monday afternoon when a dexterous move of the steering wheel avoided an accident in which the other party would have been a man. The young lady was driving down Main street with two women companions in a Buick sport roadster and the machine was traveling the full speed limit allowed within the city. As the car neared the junction of Walnut and Main streets, opposite the Jordan Buick Co. garage a powerful sedan shot out of Walnut street and crossed over to the right of Main. Witnesses of the affair were all prepared to see a repitition of an accident which occured at that place some time ago, under exactly the same conditions, but the young lady swung her machine into the driveway of the Buick Co., and then turned onto the side sidewalk in front of the establishment and there came to a stop. The driver of the sedan did not seem to be aware of the impending danger and disappeared down the street. The Buick car bore the 1924 Connecticut registration number 28-863.

A man giving his name as Joseph Mehana, of Stafford Springs came to the police station Monday afternoon to enquire about a $300 bond which he had furnished for Frank Galimba, formerly of this city, about three years ago. Galimba was arrested here some four years ago at the instigation of his wife who alleged that her husband had left her and was living with another woman in Stafford. The man was given six months in jail. He served the sentence, but proved to be incorrigible and returned again to Stafford to live with the same woman. He was again arrested in that place and his case was heard in the Tolland county superior court in Rockville. Mehana claimed that he had come to this city and had furnished bond for Galimba's appearance in that court. Galimba served one year in jail for his second offense and the bondsman said that the $300 had never been returned to him. When asked who had taken it from him here he said that a "fat policeman" had received the money. Mehana was referred to State's Attorney Keane of Rockville for further information.

The Queen of Rum Sellers, Josephine Marino, of the Flanders district, town of Coventry, whose habitation a few miles from this city, has been "Home Sweet Home" to many Willimantic young men has fallen from grace as she must serve thirty days in jail, besides paying fines and costs to the amount of $22.36. Justice of the Peace William B. Hawkins heard the woman's case at his home in North Coventry, three charges being brought against her by Grand Juror Robert B. Brooks, following a raid at the Marino farm Saturday afternoon, by State Officers Hardesty, Heinold and Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks. Her husband Dominique Marino was charged with similar counts for having in his possession intoxicating liquors, the sale of liquor [illegible] prohibition.

When Dominique was to be put to [illegible] Grand Juror Brooks asked the [illegible] be lenient as it was well [illegible] that he did not approve of [illegible] business which his wife [illegible] and that he had urged her, [illegible] nothing again to quit selling [illegible] and come with him to some [illegible] part of the country. The [illegible] nt a receptive ear to this plea [illegible]rino was acquitted of the [illegible]s on the payment of costs, [illegible]nting to $16.06.

Before her case was taken up, Mrs. Marino was warned by the court that she need not look for any sympathy, as this was her second offense within a few weeks on the charge of unlawful liquor selling and that she had already had a suspended jail sentence of fifteen days over her head for the first offense. An additional fifteen day sentence was then imposed, making a total of thirty days during which time Mrs. Marino can make acquaintances in the lock-up. On all three charges she was fined $199 and costs totalling $23.36 which must be paid before she is released from jail.

When the Marino farm was raided by the officers, they found twenty-five gallons of assorted liquors. A search of the chicken coop disclosed four five gallon containers filled with moonshine and several other caches about the farm yielded about a gallon of various concoctions, including several bottles of champagne bearing labels purporting them to be of French vintage of 1900. A large quantity of empty champagne and whiskey bottles and stacks of Gordon Gin labels were confiscated. It has been stated that Mrs. Marino acted as an agent for one of the New York-Boston rum running gangs and that the farm was one of the transfer points on the route.

In Dominique Marino's case the court took into consideration that there were four small children, the oldest twelve years, who had to be taken care of while the mother was in jail, the duties of the household falling on Dominique. Marino informed the court that he still meant what he said when he asked his wife to forsake her illegal business and her bootlegging friends and come with him and the children to Chicago where he plans to open a restaurant.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN

Tells of Mrs. Vogel's Terrible Suffering and how she was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"My troubles were severe pains in my back and terrible bearing-down pains in my right side, also headaches and sleepless nights. I first began having troubles when I was 15, and they have increased as I grew older. A little booklet was left at my door, and I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women and decided to try it. After the first week I could go to sleep every night and I stopped having that nervous feeling and got a better appetite. The doctor had always said that an operation was the only thing that would help me, but I never had any faith in an operation. Since the Vegetable Compound has started helping me I do not suffer the severe pains, feel stronger, and am able to do my own work. I am more than glad to tell my friends that it helps where other medicines have failed."—Mrs. Gus Vogel, 4608 Pelouse St., Detroit, Michigan.

A record of fifty years service must convince women of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

BIG HOUSES AT PALACE ENJOY MARTY DUPREE SHOW

The Marty Dupree show which opened an engagement at the Palace Theatre yesterday certainly proved that they could entertain, a crowded house showing their approval in a most marked manner. That the show is above the average, in singing, dancing and individual specialties goes without saying as the members of the company responded to many encores. The singing of Miss Dupree was most enjoyable as her voice was certainly at its best, judging from the easy way in which every note rang out, she being obliged to sing time and again. The work of Ben Drohan the comedian was very enjoyable it being very noticeable that he succeeded in getting "his stuff" over without resorting to vulgarism. A very rare thing nowadays. His dialogue was of the snappy variety, and made a decided impression, as did his several specialties. The second comic in the person of Frank Murray was on a par foil for Bennie, his dialect of the Canadian being very good, and between the two they got many a laugh for their efforts. Miss Allan Boland the Prima Donna, has a very melodious voice and her best number was Pal o' Mine which she sang in a most pleasant manner.

Low Canon was the juvenile man, and he deserves great credit for his work, his efforts being recognized immediately, his solo number Stay at Home being well received. George Brown is another who should be mentioned for his capable bits. The dancing of Wallace Melvin was most artistic, he being responsible also for the dancing numbers of a very pretty chorus, who are by the way a set of very pretty girls, and who work very hard to please, and judging from the applause last night, they did please. In summing up the show it can be said that it is a thoroughly clean, snappy entertainment there being nothing to offend at any time, a show that any member of the family can see and enjoy. The feature picture featuring Douglas MacLean in Going Up is a positive riot, the audience rocking with laughter time after time. It is a picture to be seen rather than to be told about, as to tell the plot would be to spoil the fun. Enough to say that it is one of the very best comedy's that we have seen in a long time and one which was thoroughly enjoyed. Short subjects complete a worth-while show.

Final Concert in Y. M. C. A. Course.

The third and last concert in the Y. M. C. A. course will be given on Wednesday evening, January 9th, at the Association building.

The Harmony Entertainers, three young ladies of marked ability and Pietro Mordella, will furnish the program for the evening.

Three wholesome vivacious American girls, each an artist and presenting a program brimming with interest and refreshing novelties. One is an excellent violinist who also plays the musical saw, the ukulele, and does pinhologues; another a reader who introduced the steel guitar; the third a pianist who sings and does crayon sketches. The Harmony Entertainers last year made a phenomenal record for success through seventeen states—their performance in each community received a 100 per cent mark for satisfaction. Not a dull moment or any wait between numbers and everything clean and interesting. Many demands were made upon their time for return dates this year.

Pietro Mordella, of Boston, is a noted and unusual artist on the piano-accordian, and will be remembered as having delightfully entertained a large audience several years ago in the old Y. M. C. A. building. Pietro's father was a maker of fine accordions and the son grew up, as it were, with the instrument he plays with such wonderful skill. He has played in most of the musical centers of the world. His repertoire is inexhaustible, including grand opera, patriotic, sacred and popular numbers, southern melodies, folk songs, running the gamut of musical interpretations.

New "Safety-First" Tire Makes Good Brakes More Effective.

Four-wheel brakes are now officially recognized as a safety feature of automobiles. The National Liberty Insurance company has published a list of nine motor vehicles on which it allows a discount from manual collision and property damage insurance because they are equipped with four-wheel brakes. These include Buick 4, Buick 6, Cadillac 8, Chalmers 6, Duesenberg 8, Marmon 4, Oakland 6, Packard 8, Rickenbacker 6, and Bethlehem Air Line 1-ton truck.

Recent additions to the four-wheel-brake family include Anderson, McFarlan and Rubay. Moreover, a manufacturer of a hydraulic type of four-wheel brakes announces that 12 lines of American automobiles are under contract with him for 1924 requirements. These include 4, 6 and 8-cylinder cars, in all price classes. Many of them will make their first announcement at the New York National Automobile Show.

It seems probable that upwards of 20 American automobile manufacturers will feature four-wheel brakes on their 1924 models. No less than 10 English car manufacturers use four-wheel brakes on 27 of 44 models made by them. And at the recent Paris Automobile Show, all but one of the French automobiles exhibited were equipped with four-wheel brakes.

Breed Theatre.

Mae Murray in Fashion Row, latest Tiffany production for Metro release of this favorite star is the attraction at the Breed theatre today and Wednesday. Crowded audiences testified by their reception of the new picture that Fashion Row is the best in Mae Murray's long list of successes.

It has every pictorial and dramatic appeal that delights audiences. The story is interesting, the scenes are stunning, the cast supporting the star is one of high excellence, and Miss Murray is ravishing in the dual role of two sisters. As Olga Farinova, the newest rage of Broadway, Miss Murray is dazzling, and in the role of the drab little Russian peasant girl, Zita, she shows how great must be her art to portray so realistically these contrasting characters.

Zita comes to America to find her sister. On board the immigrant steamer she meets Kamiroff, who discovers her relationship to the girl he once knew as a dancer in a Russian cafe. A bitter memento of that acquaintanceship is an ugly scar on his face. So he makes Zita the means of his revenge.

Olga has meanwhile become the bride of Eric Van Corland, son of an old aristocratic family. From a ball the couple give, Olga is tricked by Kamiroff into going to a tenement house where Zita is imprisoned. Exciting events follow in rapid order that will give every spectator a thrill and an extra heart-tug.

In the cast supporting Miss Murray, Earle Foxe, Freeman Wood, Elmo Lincoln and Mathilde Brundage give fine performances. Robert Z. Leonard, director general of Tiffany Productions, of which M. A. Hoffman is general manager, directed Fashion Row, written for Miss Murray by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin. Photography was by Oliver T. Marsh and Horace Jackson was art director.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe News and an Educational comedy. Enlarged orchestra every evening.

At the Strand.

Sir Anthony Hope has no just cause for complaint as to the manner in which his popular romance, Rupert of Hentzau, has been transferred to the screen. The entire production is a credit to its director, Victor Heerman, and to Myron Selznick, who personally supervised it. The cast, which is unusually brilliant, is well selected and each artist gives an able characterization of the role to which he, or she, was assigned.

The plot centres around an indiscreet letter written by Queen Flavia (Elaine Hammerstein) of Ruritania to her English lover, Rudolf Ramendyl (Bert Lytell), whom she has not seen since her marriage to the King of Ruritania (also played by Bert Lytell). The missive is stolen en route by Rupert of Hentzau (Lew Cody), who hopes that by turning it over to the king, he may win pardon for himself for a former conspiracy against the life and throne of his royal master.

From the moment the first scene is flashed on the screen, the interest of the audience is caught and it never wavers through the succession of exciting episodes and tender love images until the story terminates in all good stories should—in the final fall of the villain and the grand reunion of the lovers.

Rupert of Hentzau is the feature attraction at the Strand theatre today and Wednesday.

Ontario was swept by a stiff southwester accompanied by heavy snowfall, which combined to produce the province's worst storm of the winter.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Reports covering the first year of its life will be given Wednesday evening when members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club meet at the Central fire station. This club was inaugurated last winter with a banquet, at which the superintendent of the state fish and game commission was in attendance. The club has a large membership and has been very active along the lines for which it was created during the first year of its existence. Much has been done along restocking lines, thousands of trout having been released in streams of towns hereabouts and many pleasants brought into the territory and turned loose. In addition the club has featured trap shooting and has had many fine events at its lodge in the Allen hill section of the town of Brooklyn.

Monday morning, the funeral of Nectorienne Dupuis, 49, wife of George Dupuis, was held from her home on Furnace street, with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 8 o'clock, the officers of the mass being Rev. John Roux, M. S., Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., and Rev. Joseph Moussier, M. S. In addition to the large number of relatives and friends in attendance there were delegations from the St. Anne society and from the St. John Baptist society.

At the close of the mass here, the body was taken to Wauregan, where another mass of requiem was celebrated at the Sacred Heart church, at 9:30, with Rev. J. C. Mathieu, the pastor, as celebrant. The body was entombed in the vault in St. Joseph's cemetery. Prayers of the committal service were said by Rev. Fr. Roux and Rev. Father Mathieu.

The bearers were N. Dupuis, J. Dupuis, Jr., J. Benoit, A. Plante, E. Plante and L. Bernier.

Honorary bearers representing the St. Anne society of which Mrs. Dupuis was financial secretary, were Mrs. L. J. Morin, Mrs. L. J. Fournier, Mrs. N. Gingras, Mrs. M. Chabot, Mrs. A. Belanger, Mrs. M. Burois. Representing the St. John society: Mrs F. Sweet, Mrs. T. Barbeau, Mrs. R. Gallichant, Mrs. N. Pellerin, Mrs. N. Beauvais, Mrs. J. Halle.

Once more the suggestion is heard that one of the fine things that might be done to improve Danielson in its business center would be to arrange for some sort of permanent paving about the railroad station. The job would not be a large one to accomplish and would mean a great deal to the appearance of the very heart of the borough. The area it has been suggested should be covered extends from Main street, just at the railroad crossing to a point at the Pellett and Bacon buildings and then through between the Danielson Trust company building and the Exchange block to Main street.

Nothing, of course, can be done about the matter at this time of year, but there are those who are looking ahead to the coming spring and summer season and hope to see what has been a mud hole in wet periods cleared up and made to match the surroundings. It has been said that a great many people are largely influenced by first impressions, if this is true the first impression of any one coming in Danielson when what is now the square is muddy can be of the highest. And in addition to the muddy square is a nuisance [illegible] who live here. Forces [illegible] some influence are asked to say a word in favor [illegible] improved.

The elected officers of Dorcas [illegible] to be installed Friday evening [illegible] this week are: Noble [illegible] Mrs. Geneva Ryder; vice [illegible] Mrs. Cora D. Page; recording secretary, Mrs. Belle D. Anderson; financial secretary, Mrs. Lucy B. Grover; treasurer, Mrs. S. Estella Talbot. In addition the appointive officers will be installed.

An event of importance in the affairs of the Westfield Congregational church is the annual supper and roll call planned for Thursday evening of this week. A chicken pie supper will precede the roll call, which each year draws a large number of church members together for what may be regarded as one of the important meetings of the year.

Still further evidence that Dark Lantern hill is not as black as it has been painted is furnished by the fact that sleet storms and snow storms have come and gone without anything out of the ordinary happening over there. It was said, and has proved true, that if warning signs were put up the accidents would be reduced to a minimum. Since the signs have been in place the hill figured very little in the news. Most drivers obey warnings, as is again demonstrated in this case, and those who will not have to take the consequences.

A news story in a Boston paper told in detail of a stock swindling scheme that has been uncovered and in which officers were making a search for the man who are alleged to have swindled people in various parts of New England out of what in the aggregate is a very large sum. The story includes the name, of a man said to live in Danielson, who is represented as having been cheated out of $3u,-[illegible] There is no man of the name given residence in Danielson, though there are two whose names are very similar. It may be set down here as authentic, however, that neither of these men has been swindled out of $30,000, and that whatever other merit the news story has, it is entirely wrong as to anyone here being fleeced out of the amount of money mentioned.

Miss Helen Cronin, who has been spending the holiday recess at her home here, has returned to St. Vincent's college on the Hudson.

SUPREME COURT SUSTAINS THE TRANSPORTATION ACT

Washington, Jan. 7—Provisions of the transportation act requiring railroads to divide with the government their excess earnings were sustained today by the supreme court.

Describing the transportation act as legislation intended to build up a system of railways prepared to handle properly all the interstate traffic of the country, and as aimed to give the owners of the railways an opportunity to earn enough to maintain their properties and equipment. In a state of efficiency, Chief Justice Taft declared in delivering the opinion of the court that the railroads of the country had been placed more completely than even under the fostering guardianship and control of the interstate commerce commission.

INCREASING EUROPEAN PEACE THOUGHTS.

Announced at a time when no little attention is being given to the prize winning plan for obtaining world peace, E. A. Filene of Boston has seen an opportunity to get the people of Europe to think along similar lines, so that instead of a peace plan being confined to American thought alone there may be had the benefit of European minds.

With any peace plan contest having for its purpose the concentration of increased thought upon the subject, Mr. Filene is offering his $50,000 to the resident of England, France and Italy that produces the best suggestion directs his appeal to a part of the world where there may well be a serious effort made to get away from past practices, to have thoughts of war submerged by the flood of peace demands.

The fact is of course that Europe has quite generally gone into the league of nations, which has world peace as its object. The countries in which the prize contest will be held have also joined with the United States in the limitation of naval armaments. They have had their experiences with different phases of the league activities and it is not improbable that there are those who will hasten to point out the weak spots and to show what is needed in order to further reduce the possibilities of war among countries where wars have been frequent and where there is talk every little while of new ones.

Prevention of war, like the prevention of everything else that is undesirable, rests upon educational effort. It is necessary to get greater thought directed toward the desirability of preventing war and the maintenance of peace. A prize contest for the development of such a plan is one of the methods to such an end and Mr. Filene isn't going amiss when he believes that there is an opportunity for such an effort in Europe.

NEW YORK'S TARDY ACTION.

There are those in the state of New York who have come to the conclusion that something should be done to check the heavy slaughter from automobiles. It is not the only state in which a similar feeling is displayed, for Connecticut learns that the fatalities from motor vehicles were greater in number the past year than in the year before, despite increased efforts to change that situation.

But when it is announced that Governor Smith of New York state is to introduce a bill in the legislature of that state calling for the licensing of everyone who drives an automobile, it is evident that the Empire state lags far behind Connecticut in regulations concerning the auto. It is in fact surprising that at the present time in a state where there are a million and a half automobiles and where nearly 3600 were killed by automobiles last year that no such requirement prevails.

New York may be suffering from careless drivers but there is a responsibility that rests upon a state which does not require a test of competence for auto drivers and which is not sufficiently in control of the situation that it can prevent reckless and incompetent drivers from infesting its highways.

It is a tardy recognition of the need of improved regulations that is disclosed by the governor, even though it is a repetition of a recommendation made last year. The automobiles have grown faster than the regulations for their control in most states. The possession of a driver's license does not automatically make the possessor a respecter of the laws of the highway or rules of the road. It is possible, however, through such a licensing system to determine whether drivers are acquainted with the established regulations by which they are expected to be governed and to insist upon a knowledge of such, as well as the operation of a machine, before they are permitted to drive a motor vehicle. Auto drivers are not responsible for all the accidents or fatalities, but there are those who figure in such affairs who are a menace to other users and it should be possible to exclude them through a licensing system, and preferably before they are involved in any demonstrations of recklessness.

GARNER'S TAX PLAN.

When Congressman Garner of Texas brings forth a tax reduction plan for the consideration of congress he is moved of course by the fact that Secretary Mellon started the ball rolling and that the common sense of the idea has made a strong appeal to the country at large. It is recognized by democrats as well as republicans that there must be a cutting of taxes. Having been told that they are entitled to it the people are demanding it. Except for the Mellon plan it is highly probable that nothing would have been heard from Representative Garner. His aim now is to undertake to take away what he regards as much political capital sure to accrue to the republicans because of the Mellon plan.

Representative Garner has gone at the task with the Mellon plan as a basis. He couldn't think of endorsing such a thing as a republican tax cutting plan. That would be like throwing votes to the republicans. Instead of regarding tax reduction as something that should be accomplished for the good of the entire country he aims to make it a democratic triumph by pointing out how it is possible to deviate from the Mellon plan without regard for the basis upon which the Mellon plan has been worked out, or the effect that such changes as he urges would have. Congressman Garner is concerned with the political effect first, and the reduction of taxation second.

There are evidences that the democrats would try to block the Mellon plan completely if they dared to, but knowing the pulse of the country from the response that has been made to the Mellon suggestion they feel obliged to produce what is termed a substitute. When it is sought to maintain the high surtaxes on the big incomes, which have already driven great wealth into non taxable securities, a condition which the Mellon plan aims to get rid of is frustrated and the help that would accrue to private business and industry is blocked, quite the same as the increased tax from the big incomes that the country would receive through the removal of the confiscatory taxes.

THE ARMS EMBARGO.

When this government sold rifles, ammunition and airplanes to the Mexican government it reached a decision favorable to those who are committed to and following constitutional procedure in that country and against those who are resorting to unconstitutional action in an endeavor to get control of the government. That means that we were siding with the Obregon government and against the revolutionists.

It is thus a natural sequence when this government established an embargo against the sending of war material of any kind to the Mexican rebels. It hasn't appeared as yet that there has been any great amount of such supplies forwarded to the forces of General De la Huerta, but it has come to the attention of the government that such might be expected. The revolutionists have in fact sought to obtain war material from this country and in view of that fact early action was called for if such a source of supply was to be stopped.

Inasmuch as the appeal for supplies from the Obregon government was approved and we took sides with the constitutional forces, the same treatment of the rebels could not be expected. It is known that revolutions have been fed from this country at other times but the prompt embargo should have the desired effect in checking all open transactions and in showing what those who resort to gun running can anticipate if caught. It is of course a logical position to take in support of a government that stands for law and order and against those who encourage unstable conditions.

USING TWO MILLION.

In the state of Massachusetts the interesting situation of having $2,000,000 more than is required for a special purpose exists, and the problem now is to determine what to do with it. As might be expected there is a wide variety of suggestions as to what to do with it. It is sought for this project or urged for some other. One section of the state wants it but parts of it are at least wanted elsewhere.

When Massachusetts raised its money for a soldiers' bonus it was not able to calculate to the point where no more would be raised than was needed. It has distributed the money to the soldiers in accord with the vote of the legislature and there remain $2,000,000 over. It could be returned to those who contributed only at such great expense that there would be little to return. It could be distributed among the various towns of the state. It could be turned toward a memorial, put into a memorial bridge, or memorial bridges, or it could be applied toward new state buildings. There is no limit to the number of ways in which the money might be employed.

But in few of the ways that have been suggested would it mean any general benefit from the money. Because the state has overtaxed its banks it must consider the laying of a tax larger than this particular sum, and Massachusetts is one of those states that hasn't been able to get along without going into debt. The cutting of the tax by the application of this sum to the debt or putting it in the treasury for the refunding of overtaxation are methods which too seldom get consideration from a legislature when it has money to spend.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Have you cast your ballot on the peace award?

Like people, some sidewalks require more sand than others.

You of course know by this time whether the $50,000 prize belongs to you or not.

The death rate from autos in Connecticut is making progress in the wrong direction.

Putting forth a peace plan is one thing: getting it adopted and making it work is another.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, D. C. Jan 7.—Now the republicans have decided on the place and date of their national convention the democrats are falling into line and the city is filled with "leaders" who have come as an advance guard for the democratic meeting to be held here January 15th to decide on the time and place of the democratic convention, Chicago and the middle of June seem to be accepted as the probable outcome of that meeting.

At this moment Washington hears but two names prominently mentioned as presidential candidates for the democratic party. They are Underwood and McAdoo, but with the accepted forecast that a stable of dark horses waiting only the proper time to be let out into the pastures.

Democratic women have taken steps for full recognition and have provided themselves with a club house where they can meet by themselves entertain friends or call men of that party into conference. The new club will be opened January 15th, the day the conference opens, as called by Chairman Hull. "Of course" say the women social activities will be secondary to politics, but all the same we purpose to have enough social affairs there to attract both men and women of the party." The ladies add that while men from out of town can rummage round hotel lobbies and search for their colleagues, women do not always find that method pleasant, and unless a club is organized, with big rooms where all can meet, many women from distant states would find it exceedingly difficult to get in touch with the men and women, who like themselves, are delegates to that great conference.

Among the governors of the women's club is Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the democratic chairman, Mrs. William J. Bryan and others who are either themselves in the political limelight or who have husbands who are nationally known. The New England member of the board is Mrs. Peter Gerry, wife of the multi-millionaire senator from Rhode Island.

"Met and adjourned" would be the simplest phrase to truthfully describe the doings of congress since it came into being on the first Monday in December. For regular daily sessions have been few and far between with a two weeks out-and-out vacation thrown in for good measure. But committees have been at work much of that time preparing legislation later to be put before the senate and house, and also leaders have been spending long hours trying to untangle some of the hard knots in which they find themselves owing to bloc, factional fights, sectional prejudice and other entanglements that serve to delay or completely balk national legislation at this moment.

Investigations are asked for by the hundred. Oil, coal, booze, make the leading trio, with all sorts of side issues following. The peace solution and offered prizes furnish a big field for investigation. The foreign embassies come in for their share, even though such embassies are "foreign soil" and not amendable to the laws of the United States under all conditions.

In spite of all this congress hopes to shut up shop and get away before the two national conventions in early June, which may mean that side issues won't come to a finish and only appropriation bills and matter that cannot be put over, will get attention this session.

The New Year has brought forward the many old country customs that hold their own firmly at embassy and legation. Sunday is the big day for those homes, just as it is in the countries the ambassadors and ministers represent in Washington.

From now on Ash Wednesday, Sunday at the foreign homes will be the reception day to which friends are invited. It is not a public reception at which the world at large may gain a peep at foreign customs that is observed at these Sunday affairs, for only personal friends and "home folk" are expected to attend. Although at such affairs it is said "tea is served" it means chocolate in many instances. England, China, Japan, hold fast to their tradition of tea at 5 o'clock, but other countries serve coffee or chocolate as home customs suggest. Turkish coffee, comes in for its share of notice, as do the teas of the far east, while guests nibble thin sandwiches, or sweet cake as fancy and taste and custom dictate.

At many of the diplomatic headquarters small informal dances mark Sunday especially where there are bachelor diplomats on the staff. Taken all in all so called Continental Sunday is much in evidence in the capital of the United States, if one has the opportunity to peep behind the scenes.

The British embassy nearly turned turtle when it discovered this week that an apparently insignificant building in process of erection opposite its great iron gates, is to be used as an undertaker's establishment unless the strong arm of the law intervenes.

A new commercial territory was recently established here, that includes a portion of N street opposite the side entrance to the big building, which with ample grounds in the midst of the down town residential section, that is the home of the British ambassador. A secretary of the embassy flew in haste to the commissioners: "Gentlemen" said he "it must not be. Think of the embarrassment to both parties should there be a state reception at the embassy and a funeral at the rooms at the same moment. The mourners might be driven into the embassy grounds and the diplomatic guests driven to the cemetery, should a mix-up of automobiles occur, as might easily happen." Whether a stop can be put to the erection of the proposed establishment, is not yet known.

Mrs. Warren G. Harding has come back to Washington for the winter. She is at the Willard occupying the suite that the Coolidges occupied while the Hardings were in the white house. A strange turn of the hands of fate.

President and Mrs. Coolidge showed their devotion and respect to their late "Chief" and the former mistress of the white house by sending a military aid to meet her on her arrival and also tendering the use of the white house limousine and the use of the private entrance to the union station the gaze of a curious crowd and be tion, so Mrs. Harding might avoid made as comfortable as possible. It is understood that while Mrs. Harding will not take part in any formal social affairs she will drop into touch socially with her old friends here in a quiet way.

There has been very little of see called "local interests" here this winter. Prominent senators and members of the house are all too fully absorbed with plans of organization, the great measures of bonus, tax reduction and national and international affairs to be accessible for small talk or problematic questions. They are attending strictly to the business before them, that is, the New England delegation certainly are, and its long hours of hard work either in committee or office that mark their days.

Senator Brandegee, new chairman of the judiciary committee of the senate will have his hands full this winter. The greatest questions of the day will go before that committee and senators are openly saying they rejoice that the chairmanship fell on such able shoulders with the opening of the 67th congress.

Senator McLean will have many problems of finance to deal with as chairman of the banking and currency while Merritt, on interstate commerce, Tilson on ways and means, and Fresman on rivers and harbors will find the session one of long hours and much hard work.

TOO MUCH IS TOO MUCH

"George's father came to visit us a few weeks ago," said Mrs. Simmons' niece. "That's why I haven't been in to see you since you got back. Did you have a nice trip?"

"Indeed we did," declared Mrs. Simmons; "what's been the matter?"

"A good many diseases," said her niece with a sigh. "First it was flu and then it was gout and then it was something else. It had the merit of novelty, anyhow."

"Why, you poor thing!" cried her aunt. "And you had your father-in-law visiting you when you were so sick?"

"Oh, I wasn't sick a minute," her niece assured her. "Those diseases are the ones that George's father thought he had."

"Whatever did you do?"

"Worried, for one thing," laughed her niece. "The doctor said the patient had been sightseeing a little too much for a man of his frail strength, and he thought he would be all right after a few days' rest.

"But Gregory's father said that this doctor was no good," the niece went on, "and so he called another one. This one told him he'd better go to bed and stay a week, but he informed us on the quiet that there wasn't anything the matter. He didn't realize that George's father would want to be sat with and read to for the entire week.

"Of course, knowing that the trouble was only fatigue, we left him alone sometimes to get a little sleep and let him have mental relaxation, and he did not like it. We stayed home evenings and I gave up my luncheon club and the concert and ran up to see how he was even when I had callers, but he got the idea that he was being neglected and he was hurt. The first thing we knew, he climbed out of bed and telephoned to the nearest hospital to say that he wanted a room and would they please send the ambulance for him.

"George told me to let his father go if he wanted to. He has plenty of money and we could go and see him at the hospital, and it would be a lot easier for all concerned. So he went.

"He went over there on Monday," the niece continued. "On Tuesday afternoon I went over and he told me triumphantly that that morning he had had all the attendants on the floor looking after him. He said a newsboy came in first with a paper, then a man to vacuum, then a woman to mop up the floor, then a nurse to take his temperature, then an interne to tell him what he could eat, then a nurse to open the window, a girl in brown with a tray of lunch and then another nurse to take his pulse and close the window."

"I suppose he loved all that attention," laughed Mrs. Simmons.

"Oh, yes, indeed," said her niece. He said it was certainly worth while to be there and see what they would do for a poor lonely man who was so sick as that. While I was there a nurse came and opened the window, another girl in brown brought in a glass of water, a nurse brought him a book to read aloud from later, if he wished her to, a nurse entered and closed the window, and the interne came to tell him the football score and another nurse to put up the back rest so that he could sit up. Every time one of them came in George's father would glance at me as though to ask what I thought of that for care of the proper sort."

"Oh, of course," said Mrs. Simmons.

"The next morning I was busy," the niece went on. "But about 5 o'clock, after the baby was asleep, I was putting on my hat to run over to the hospital for a few minutes, as I had promised I should, when I was telephoned from the hospital that I needn't come, as my father would explain later. Of course I thought the man was angry at my coming so late, and I called up George and asked what on earth I should do."

"Gracious!" cried Mrs. Simmons.

"George said to sit tight and do nothing: he didn't believe his father was angry. I was still upset and wondering what I ought to have done, when the bell rang and I answered it, only to find George's father standing there apparently as hearty as ever."

"Dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "What had cured him?"

"He didn't say," laughed the niece. "All I could get out of him was that he was darn glad to get back, out of that pesky place, where twenty-six persons had fussed over him between breakfast and lunch!"—Exchange.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

Salaried persons and wage earners form by far the largest class of taxpayers. In their interests, Form 1040A heretofore used for filing returns of net income of $5,000 and less from whatever source derived, this year is used for reporting net income of not more than $5,000 derived chiefly from salaries and wages.

Compensation in any form "for personal service rendered" is subject to the income tax. This includes salaries, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses and pensions, and tips. Salaries paid by a state or political subdivision thereof to its employes are not taxable, the reason being that the federal government does not tax the instrumentalities of a state.

The exemption does not apply to salaries paid by the federal government, except that a federal income tax may not be levied on the salaries of the president of the United States or federal judges which would diminish the salaries that were in effect at the time they took office. This provision does not exempt from taxation the salary of the president of the United States or federal judges. Its meaning is that if congress, after the president or a federal judge has taken office, should increase the rates of taxation, such increase would not apply to the salaries payable at the time the oath was taken.

Fees received by a notary public commissioned by a state are not taxable nor are fees paid jurors by a state. Witnesses in lawsuits, even though summoned by a state's attorney, are not considered employes of a state, and fees received by them are subject to taxation.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

James K. Hackett, who is to be honored with a public welcome in New York today upon his return from a sojourn of three years in Europe, has long been numbered among the eminent actors of the American stage. Mr. Hackett comes from a family which for several generations has been prominent in the theatrical profession. He himself was educated for the law, but soon after his graduation from the College of the City of New York, he listened to the call of the stage and joined A. M. Palmer's stock company, then playing in Philadelphia. Afterward he became a member of Augustin Daly's company, and engagements followed as leading man in several other companies until he reached the stellar ranks. Mr. Hackett has inherited his father's managerial tastes, and of late years has directed the professional work of other noted players and operated theatres of his own in New York and elsewhere. During his recent long stay in England and France he was honored for his Shakesperian performances and decorated by the French government with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

Stories That Recall Others

Goin' or Comin'.

A boy was being examined in an intelligence test and one of the questions asked was, "If one of the boys in your school should hit you what would you do?"

"Goin' or comin' to school?" asked the boy quickly.

"What difference does that make?" asked the inquirer.

"Lots," said the lad. "If he was coming to school I'd tell the teacher; if he was going home I'd lick him."

New Name for Money.

Betty has a new name for money. It illustrates, too, the attention given to detail by a child. She is not yet three but when she sees currency or bills she holds out her hands and says "Ties."

For a long time the parents were puzzled as to where the name originated. When the husband leaves the house in the morning he always asks his wife if she has enough money. She usually replies "I just have $2 or $3," as the case may be.

Little Betty's quick ears heard this remark and she connected it with money, because she often saw her father hand money to her mother when the remark was made. Thus, "I just" shortened to the baby lingo of "ties" meant money.

Avon Franklin Adams who as managing proprietor of the Wolfsohn musical bureau has introduced many foreign musical celebrities to this country, died at his home in New York. He was born in Boston in 1863.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell. Just will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 206-K, Marcellus Ave., Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life and at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

NEW METHOD HEALS RUPTURE

Kansas City Doctor's Discovery Makes Truss or Operation Unnecessary.

Kansas City, Mo.—(Special)—A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of Dr. Andrews, the well known Hernia specialist of this city. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Bulletin, who writes him at his office 6021 Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today!

MILL MEN'S ASSOCIATION HELD GREAT GATHERING

(Special to the Bulletin)

Plainfield, Jan. 7—About 175 members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, representing manufacturing companies in all the towns and cities in this part of the state gathered at Plainfield, Monday evening to rwhat was afterwards described as one of the finest meetings in the history of the association. At 7 o'clock the party sat down to a splendid dinner served at the Lawton Inn and during the course of the meal there was a variety of entertainment which like the entertainment of the later part of the evening was arranged by Roy Bennett, of Moosup, chairman f the entertainment committee.

Following the dinner the party adjourned to the Plainfield Community House where the business session was held. President Harry Richardson of Moosup presided. The feature of this meeting was an address by James McDowell a cotton expert of Boston, whose topic was Cotton Manufacturing, the address providing an unusually fine one. The entertainment included orchestra selections, violin and piano solos, duets and numbers by a double quartet. A feature was community singing of old time melodies. Music was furnished by Leach's orchestra of Moosup and James Royal was the leader of the community quartette. Alma Boutilier, a pupil of Prof. Frank L. Farrell of Norwich, entertained with several excellent piano selections.

At the business meeting the secretary was instructed to notify the Moraine Mfg. Co., of Westerly, the Putnam Mfg. Co., of Putnam and the Stevensdale Mfg. Co., of No. Grosvenordale that their requests for admission to the association had met with the approval of the association.

Among the guests at the meeting were George A. Goulston, a representative of Fibre and Fabric and Fred who were instrumental in founding wick L. Babcock, editor of the paper, the association.

FUNERALS.

Mrs. Henry T. Arnold

At noon Monday the funeral of Mrs. Henry T. Arnold was held from Park Congregational church with a very large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. S. H. Howe, D. D., pastor of the church who in an impressive eulogy said:

I have asked the privilege of saying a few words in this service today and for two reasons. First, when a life has been given so unreservedly to the service of the church and community as this life has been so conspicuously surrendered the community and church should recognize and acknowledge their indebtedness. Second, the living should be incited to the emulation of that life and see to it that the fallen mantel is lifted and borne in meeting the added responsibility.

I do not speak for the sake of the bereaved household for one should not intrude upon so sacred a memory as they have and the sanctity of a grief that wrings their heart which we should not approach. But the wider public owes this tribute of an open acknowledgment of a service that has been so fruitful and so largely contributed to the funded wealth of a community's assets of inspiring life. Some people use their chance at life for the opportunity of getting out of it the utmost of its power, others use their opportunity for the change of putting out the utmost of their resources for the uplift and the betterment of the world in which they live. I think no one would think of challenging the statement that to this latter ideal this life has been sacredly devoted.

This dear friend came among us a dozen or more years ago, a stranger to most of us in this city, but we were not long in finding that a rarely refined and efficient magnetic personality had been added to our best citizenship. There might have been good reason after a strenuous life expended on other communities for seclusion and the withholding from activities of those about her but it was soon our good fortune to find that a new comrade had been added to the working forces of the city and it was a pleasing exception to the general rule that by sheer worth and wealth of her resources we saw her possessed with leadership of the best life which a community could find or a woman's gifts, until every kind of service of usefulness seemed to call for its wise direction to her inspiration.

This leadership was not sought by her but pressed upon her by law of fitness and full equipment which she possessed, a role she took with a grace and dignity and self-effacement we rarely meet. It is well that a church or a community pause at a time like this with fitting acknowledgment and worthy appreciement, she seemed to belong to the community quite as really as to her household and it is this communal loss we mourn today.

I asked to speak these brief, inadequate words to invoke the spirit of emulation. We have looked upon a life that seemed always to be giving the best of herself to others, using the full reach of personal equipment for the lives of those about her, and it is a noble gift and an inspiring spectable to see a life that uses its full resource in the uplifting, upbuilding of others. We are not all putting out the full volume of personal resources in' this unselfish fashion. Would that we could realize the high reward and guidon of those who forget themselves and are gaining thereby distinction and immortality. They leave us with the oppressive sense of loss and of disheartenment and hopelessness for finding others to fill their places. But they leave us with gratitude for their great outlay of service and we can give joy to them that they have gone to lay down their gathered sheaves at the feet of Him who labored with them in the reaped harvest field and have received His, Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord.

Lead, Kindly Light and Abide With Me, were rendered by the church choir, Ebenezer Learned chorister, and Miss Annie E. Taft organist. The bearers were Henry A. Tirrell, Frederick W. Cary, George L. Ingalls, Weston C. Pullen, W. Russell Baird and Robert C. Johnson. Burial took place in North Cemetery, Providence, R. I., where a committal service was held. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Preceeding the funeral service at Park church there was a prayer service at the house conducted by Rev. Mr. Arnold.

JOHN T. CASEY ELECTED SERGEANT BY COMMON COUNCIL VOTE, 7 TO 6

By a vote of 7 to 6 Police Officer John T. Casey was elevated from the rank of a patrolman to sergeant by the court of common council at its January meeting Monday evening in the council chamber. Officer Casey was recommended in a majority report submitted by Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, chairman of the board of police commissioners, while Councilman Frank H. Quinley submitted a minority report in favor of Police Officer Myron C. Morgan. The new sergeant whose name is seventh on the list of patrolmen, was appointed to fill the vacancy on the force caused by the death of Sergeant Allen C. Mathews. By the appointment Sergeant Thomas Murphy, appointed some months ago to succeed the late Sergeant John H. Kane, automatically moves up to the rank of first sergeant. Sergeant Murphy, since the death of Sergeant Mathews has been acting as first sergeant.

To fill the vacancy left by the promotion of Officer Casey, the council named John K. Quinn a member of the regular force of patrolmen. Officer Quinn has been a member of the supernumerary force for some time past. The vacancy on the supernumerary list was filled by the appointment of Howard Coburn as a supernumerary officer.

That there was considerable in error in the selections of a new sergeant was evident from the fact that the spectators' chairs were filled, several late comers finding standing room only. The meeting was called to order at 8.15 o'clock by Ele Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, with all members of the council present. According to custom the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading. City Clerk Weston C. Pullen read his return of publication of the proposed city ordinance regarding the digging and refilling of excavations made in city streets by city departments. After the acceptance of the return of publication Mayor Waters declared the hearing on the matter open. No one appeared to be heard and the hearing was closed the council then accepting a resolution adopting the new ordinance.

Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

From Elizabeth L. Martha and others, for three street lights on Grand Court. Referred to police commissioners with power.

From Joseph Krieg for a light at 88 near his residence on Corning Road. Referred to police commissioners with power.

From the Connecticut Co., by Samuel Anderson, for permission to construct a turnout on Williams avenue, between Broadway and Washington street. The council by the adopting of a resolution fixed the evening of February 6th as the date for a hearing on the matter.

The quarterly report of the cash account of the water department was accepted and ordered printed in the journal.

Fire Marshal's Report

The quarterly report of the fire marshal was accepted and ordered printed in the journal. The report showed 77 applications for buildings, new buildings and alterations to old buildings, granted during the quarter, the total cost of building operations being given as $710,840 for the quarter. The report also stated that during the year a total of 194 building permits were granted, the cost of the building operations for the year being given as $669,197.

Other reports accepted were the quarterly report of the chief of police, the monthly report of the street department and the monthly report of the city treasurer.

Report On Camping Site

Mayor Milo R. Waters submitted a report for the committee appointed at the last meeting to confer with the park commissioners regarding the establishment of such a site near the auto parties passing through Norwich. The report stated that the committee had conferred with the park commissioners and that the park commissioners are contemplating the establishment of such a site near the Rockwell street entrance to the Mohegan Park grounds. The report was accepted.

Reporting for the police commissioners Alderman P. F. Sweeney stated that in response to petitions a street light has been placed on West Main street near the West Side fire station, one near No. 170 Broad street and one near the so-called Cadillac building. The aldermen's report was accepted.

Claims for Damages

A claim from H. I. Pettis of 4 Elm avenue, Norwich Town, for damages to his auto on Summit street was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel. Mr. Pettis, in his claim, states that on November 17th last as he was driving down Summit street he ran into two ditches in the road not marked by a light.

OBITUARY

Channing Smith, Jr.

The news of the death of Channing Smith, Jr., 28, which occurred suddenly from heart disease, New Year's night, in New York, was received in Norwich with sorrow.

Mr. Smith, who was the son of the late Channing Smith, owner of the Valley Woolen Mills and Chapel Manufacturing Co., of Leicester, Mass., was on a visit to friends, when stricken with death. His funeral was held in private at Cherry Valley, Thursday morning.

Mr. Smith lived there in early life and went into the automobile line in Worcester. By his father's will he and his brother, Reding, were to have active control of the Leicester mills, within a period of nine year. James H. Char, Channing Smith, died December 15th, last.

Channing Smith, Jr., was an exceptionally fine young man with a promising future. He was the fiance of Miss Elizabeth A. Olaf, of New York, formerly of Norwich. Miss Olaf, who several months ago located in New York, to continue her study of voice culture with a distinguished tutor; and Mis Smith were to have been married next month. Mr. Smith spent New York's eve with Miss Olaf, and the shock of his sudden death the following evening completely unnerved her. Miss Olaf immediately left for Worcester, to remain over the funeral and it was while there that her Norwich friends learned of her grief, with profound sympathy.

ANNUAL RACE OF INTERCOLLEGIATE ROWING ASSOCIATION ON JUNE 10TH

New York, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Taking rank as more of an open college rowing championship than ever before, the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing association will be held June 10, on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie, the earliest date set for this blue ribbon classic in years.

This was decided upon today by the board of stewards of the association, who, at their annual meeting, voted to extend invitations to any crews coming up to their elegibility standards, including Princeton, the Naval academy and University of Washington and Wisconsin.

The stewards also voted down a proposal to lengthen the varsity race from three to four miles, rejected a bid from the city of Geneva, N. Y., to stage the regatta on Lake Seneca, and elected Maxwell Stevenson, of Columbia, as chairman to succeed Morton G. Bogue, who retired as Columbia's representative on the board.

The date for the regatta, Mr. Stevenson announced, was selected because of the existence of favorable tidal conditions at that time and not because of proximity to the final Olympic tryouts, which are scheduled to be held at Philadelphia June 13 and 14. Heretofore, the race has been held late in June, but this year, after June 17, the next date on which water conditions would be suitable is July 2. This, it was felt, would be too late.

Before Poughkeepsie, traditional site of the regatta, is definitely chosen, however, satisfactory arrangements must be made with officials of that city and also with the railroads which furnish observation train facilities along the race course. No hitch, however is expected in this connection.

So far as the Olympics are concerned, Mr. Stevenson pointed out that they had little relation to the intercollegiate race inasmuch as the Olympic championship distance for eight oared shells is only a mile and a quarter, less than half the distance of the college classic.

Nevertheless, Washington and Navy, which finished first and second, respectively in last year's intercollegiate race, plan to enter the Olympic trials, and, if either is successful, it probably will not row at Poughkeepsie.

The four members of the I. R. A.—Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse and Pennsylvania—all intend to devote their preparations toward the college race in preference to the Olympic and the stewards hope to have as many outside contenders as possible, particularly Princeton, which has never rowed Poughkeepsie. Navy, Washington and Wisconsin all have competed in the event a number of times, but only the huskies and middies ever were victorious.

Columbia, which advocated a return to a four mile varsity race a year ago, proposed again to lengthen the feature event of the regatta but after considerable discussion, the proposal was voted down. Syracuse also was understood to have inclined toward the longer race but the opposition of Cornell and Pennsylvania decided the issue, at least for this year.

AMERICA'S OLYMPIC TEAM TO SAIL ON JUNE 16TH

New York, Jan. 7.—America's Olympic team, including athletes who will take part in the track and field, swimming and rowing events, will sail June 16 for France on the specially-chartered steamship America, it was announced tonight by the Olympic committee.

The America's departure originally was set by the United States lines for June 14 but as this date conflicted with the final tryouts in swimming, rowing and track, a postponement of two days as agreed upon at a conference between Frederick W. Rubien and Henry C. Breckenridge, representing the Olympic committee, and officials of the steamship company.

The entire first cabin of the ship, accommodating 500, has been reserved by the Olympic committee. Close to 300 athletes will be aboard, while the rest of the party will include coaches, trainers, officials and friends of athletes or others connected with the team.

The America is due to reach France June 24, nearly two weeks in advance of the official opening of the Olympic games on July 5. The games will officially close July 27.

The team will not return in a group, as many of the athletes intend to sail immediately after their events are concluded. The Olympic committee has arranged for their passage on the following steamers: Leviathan, sailing July 15; America, July 25; President Roosevelt, July 29; Leviathan, August 5; George Washington, August 22, and America, August 26.

FINDS FRIEND IN BOSTON AND SAILS WITH TEAM

Boston, Jan. 7.—A twenty year friend in need was a friend indeed today to Clarence Abel of St. Paul, Minn., defense star of the United States Olympic hockey team. The members of the team were going through the formalities at the passport office in preparation for their sailing Wednesday on the President Garfield from New York when it was discovered that Abel had forgotten to bring his birth certificate.

The passport clerk informed him that unless he obtained an affidavit from some one in his home town, sworn to before a justice of peace, he could not get his passport. This would have been impossible before Wednesday. Then the clerk said there was one other way out: "If some one could be found in Boston who had known Abel for more than twenty years and would take oath to that effect the passport would be granted. Fortunately Trainer Thomas Murray of the team, recalled that there was such a man and within a short time the friend appeared at the passport office. Abel will sail with the rest of the team.

ELMER SMITH GOES IN YANKEE TRADE FOR COMBS

Elmer Smith, substitute outfielder, will be one of the two players the New York Yankees will give in part payment for Earle Combs, star outfielder of the Louisville club of the American association it was announced today by Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the world's champions.

A substantial cash consideration, making Combs' purchase price the equivalent of about $50,000, also is involved in the deal but Colonel Ruppert declined to make the figure public.

The passing of Smith to the minors came as a surprise. He came to the Yankees from the Boston Red Sox in 1922 in the deal which also brought Joe Dugan, star third baseman, to New York.

Smith earned fame as a heavy hitter with Cleveland, knocking a home run with the bases full in the 1920 world's series, the only time this feat ever has been done in the title classic. Last season, he starred as a pinch-hitter for the Yankees. His season's batting average for 70 games was .306.

HARVARD VARSITY CREWS TO HAVE STIFF TRAINING

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 7.—Up and down will be the motto of the candidates for the Harvard varsity and 150 pound crews for the next few weeks. In order to put the men in good condition the trainers have devised the plan of having them meet at Claverly hall three times a week, run from there to the stadium, climb the stadium stairs two or three times and then run back to Claverly. Formal indoor work on the rowing machines will be started on February 15.

BAR YOUNG STRIBLING FROM LANIER HIGH SCHOOL

Macon, Ga., Jan. 7.—W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon school boy boxer, has been barred from attending Lanier High school here, and unless an arrangement can be made for the middleweight sensation to finish his high school education in this city, his father has announced that he will move either to Newark, N. J., or Philadelphia, in the spring.

When the boy reported for classes the principal informed him that he had been dropped, giving too many absences as the reason.

An attack was understood to have been made on the boy in a board of education meeting several weeks ago, but no action was taken then. The superintendent of schools said tonight that the board has not yet acted in the matter.

WILL THERE BE ANOTHER GIBBONS-DEMPSEY BOUT?

Indianapolis, Jan. 7.—Eddie Kane, manager of Tommy Gibbons, declared here today that negotiations are under way with James C. Mullen, Chicago promoter, for a bout between Gibbons and Jack Dempsey, heavyweight titleholder. Kane said he would insist that the bout be held where a decision can be given and where a boxing commission will name the referee.

Louisville would like the bout for Derby eve, Mr. Mullen said.

Mr. Mullen asserted Dempsey agreed to the bout last week in New York, adding that the champion would fight on a percentage basis. Arrangements with Gibbons will be made at a conference with Eddie Kane, the challenger's manager, in Cleveland, next week, Mr. Mullen said.

SUB BASE ORGANIZES FAST BASKETBALL TEAM

Another basketball team has been put on the floor—a team which may make a big name for itself on the chalked court as it did in baseball and football. After going three years without a basketball team, the New London submarine base is forming a team which will be ready to take on leading fives in a short time.

The team will be composed of two 1921 Annapolis players and two of the United States Fleet championship team, together with other talent.

The Sub Base is looking for games with Hartford teams and other fast teams. Athletic Director Lieutenant J. E. Arnold, Submarine Base.

New York, Jan. 7.—The 12-round match between Harry Wills, negro heavyweight title contender, and Bartley Madden of New York, at the first regiment armory, Newark, N. J., has been postponed from January 28 to February 4, it was announced tonight.

Wills had signed to fight Jack Taylor, Omaha negro, at Hartford, Conn. on January 25 and the change was made to give him additional time to prepare for Madden, the first white opponent of prominence Wills has been matched with since 1921.

Wills to Fight Jackson.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 7. — Harry Wills, colored heavyweight contender, has been matched to meet Bud Jackson of New York, in a 12-round match here on January 16th. The fight was originally scheduled to take place two days later but was advanced because of Wills' bout in Hartford, Conn., with Jack Taylor, a negro of Omaha, Neb.

Mullen, Chicago promoter, for a match between the heavyweight titleholder and Tommy Gibbons. Kearns said he had been approached by Mullen several weeks ago but had received no definite proposition from the promoter.

"It's all news to me," Kearns declared when informed of Mullen's announcement. "I told him I was interested in a return fight with Gibbons—I always am—but that's as far as it went. I expect the champion to see quite a bit of action this year but as yet we have nothing definite scheduled."

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB CLASHES WITH RECS OF SOUTH MANCHESTER TONIGHT

What gives promise to be one of the fastest basketball games ever staged on the Taftville court, takes place this (Tuesday) evening when the undefeated Army and Navy quintet meets the strong Recreation Center club of South Manchester at Parish hall.

The Recs boast of having the fastest team in South Manchester, and lay claim to be one of the leading fives in the state, basing their claim on the victories they have held over Middletown Y. M. C. A., on their own court, the powerful West Ends and the Fuller Brush teams, the last two named being rated among the fastest quintets turned out by the capitol city.

The lineup of the Recs includes such well known stars as Pentland, former Collegian star, Benson, Sallsieper, Angell and Bissell, any one of these men being capable of holding down a berth with fast travelling teams.

The Army and Navy five, with seven straight wins to their credit, have proved to the followers of the sport that they are equal to the best the state can produce, and they are fully confident that they will come out of the fray tonight holding the long end of the score.

The local quintet will be without the services of their flashy forward, Bob Cardle, but Manager Murphy has secured Bill Reddy of Southbridge, formerly of Danielson, who has a reputation in Eastern Connecticut as being one of the stars of the chalked court. The remainder of the team is the same as in past games, Belair, Mills, the Coleman brothers, Molleur and Lemieux.

Besides the main go there will be a fast preliminary between the Army and Navy seconds and the Laurel Hill five. The opening game will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

SPORT NOTES

Washington—Nine exhibition games have been arranged for the Washington club of the American league during the spring training, all but two of which are with National league teams. The first is to be played at Tampa, Fla., where Washington will train, on March 15, with Boston as its opponents.

Wilson, N. C.—Wilson was awarded the 1923 Virginia league pennant at a meeting of the league's directors at which a vote was taken on the dispute between the club and Richmond as to which should receive the award.

Detroit, Mich. — Battling Siki and Joe Lohman of Toledo, have been matched for a twelve-round bout to a decision January 19 at Windsor, Ont., across the river from here, it was announced by E. N. Kernahan. Kernahan is promoter for the Great War Veterans' association, under whose auspices the bout will be held.

New York, N. Y.—Tex Rickard, the famous fight promoter, has obtained a controlling interest in the Original Celtics, the world basketball champions. Although the Celtics have played at Madison Square Garden, where Rickard stages his indoor fights, for the last few seasons, Rickard was unable to buy into the club until recently. Jim Furey, who with his brother, Tom, has been the sole owner of the titleholders, will continue as manager and booking agent of the champions.

New York, N. Y.—Herman Taylor today is Bobby Wolgast's manager. They reached terms and a contract has been signed whereby Herman will look after Robert's business affairs for two years, which means until the boxer becomes of age. As he is only nineteen years old the parents of Wolgast signed the papers giving Taylor all rights to do the bantamweight's business. Wolgast recently broke away from Pete Moran and announced that Jimmy Coster would be his manager. No papers were signed, however, and the contract with Taylor makes him Wolgast's handler. Bobby has established a great record for himself, having boxed all of the leading men his weight in the country, including Champions Genaro, Villa and Lynch.

The council then accepted a quit claim deed from the Norwich Savings society of a small parcel of land recently acquired by the city in the widening of Laurel Hill avenue.

Police Sergeant Appointment

The next matter taken up was the appointment of the new police sergeant. Alderman Sweeney, chairman of the board of police commissioners, called attention to the fact that through the death of Sergeant Mathews there existed a vacancy on the force. He presented a majority report for the commissioners, recommending that Police Officer John T. Casey be promoted from patrolman to sergeant. The report was accepted.

Councilman Frank H. Quinley presented a minority report recommending the appointment of Officer Myron O. Morgan. Councilman Quinley said the reason he and the commissioners could not agree on the selection of a patrolman for the appointment, was that he believes seniority should rule in the police appointments. He said he felt that Officer Morgan was entitled to the promotion. His report was also accepted by the council.

No other nominations were offered and the council proceeded to ballot on the two candidates. The result of the ballot.

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 7—Miss Delia Shea of Norwich in New London Saturday night and during her stay here a thief stole her coat, a brown garment, with black fur collar, from the dance hall in the Plant building. Miss Shea reported her loss to the police, but neither the garment nor the thief was located. In the pockets of the coat, Miss Shea stated, were a pair of gloves and a string of green rosary beads.

Miss Shea missed the garment greatly too, for when the dance was concluded the thermometer registered about 10 degrees above zero.

Attorney Hadlai A. Hull, who has been kept at home a number of weeks by illness does not improve for he is confined almost entirely to his bed.

R. S. Mills, of 285 Montauk avenue, was ordered by State Policeman Fred Caron of the Groton barracks this morning to appear in the police court Saturday next and answer a charge of evasion of responsibility and upon complaint of C. N. Crandall of 4 Denison street Groton. Saturday Crandall alleges that his automobile was considerably damaged when a machine owned and operated by Mills on Broad street crashed into the former car. Crandall declares that Mills evaded responsibility by not providing Crandall with his name and displayed a further endeavor to evade responsibility by not determining the extent of the damage that had been occasioned.

When the superior court reconvenes in Norwich tomorrow morning it is the intention of Acting State's Attorney Warren C. Burrows to cause the first of the trial cases to be started, starting with that of Tony Arcinchuk of New London, charged with violation of the liquor law. Witnesses in the case were summoned today and some of the officers who participated in the raid upon Arionchuk's place where it is alleged liquor was sold, gave their versions of the case to the acting state's attorney.

The members of the New London police department received their first initial instructions in handling firearms and at target practice today in a further endeavor on the part of Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney to improve the efficiency of the force. The members, both patrolmen and sergeants appeared at the old police station and there had target practice under the supervision of Sergeant Nelson Smith. The practice will be continued indefinitely.

A musical program was provided consisting of song by Miss Jane O'Brien Mrs. Frank Savage and James N. Kelley, exhibition dancing by Mrs. Conrad Stick and Mrs. E. L. Holton, and recitations by Miss Mary Jane Nelson. Mrs. Jean St. Jean played the accompaniments for the soloists.

There is every indication that Ste- wart Lawne, the Providence man who brought a young woman here on alleged immoral purposes, will go over the line, when the federal and state authorities get through with him in court. He was held this morning in the police court in a bond of $5,000 to answer next Wednesday. That took Lawne to jail where he will have the opportunity to think over his lax ideas of morality. Lawne sported a heavy fur coat and gave no ... ward appearance of being a man who would seek to live on the earnings of a woman. His consort in the offense Evelyn Foster, is a demure appearing person and not such as would be judged an offender against the moral code. She has passed through the worst of her disgrace in being arraigned in court, not as an accused person, but as a witness against the man who was so cruel to her that he humiliated her and put her on a level with dogs. What action will be taken in the case of Lawne has not been decided upon this afternoon, but he will probably be presented before the United States commissioner Frank McGuire and by him will be held for trial in the United States district court. A revolver is now figuring in the case, but it comes there through a pawn shop, and will not be a serious factor as it is not likely that Lawne will be prosecuted for carrying a concealed weapon without permission of the authorities. He is said to have abandoned all idea of becoming reconciled with his wife, whom he left, according to his own story, in Providence, in a delicate condition. Miss Foster declares that she has terminated her relations with Lawne even to the extent of recognizing him. She has placed herself in a position where her statements will not be accepted as "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth." Neither had council when they appeared in court today and they are not likely to have any such advisor when the trial actually takes place. They are without financial means.

Miss Edna Leighton Tyler was in the police court this morning charged with operating her automobile on the first day of the new year without being in possession of registration as required by law. It was represented to the court that Miss Tyler made every effort to obtain the necessary permission to operate a car, but there was such a rush at the registration office that she was obliged to forego getting the registration for the first day of the year. She entertained guests that day and Miss Tyler drove about the city. Then a state police officer stopped her and asked to see her driving papers. She could not produce them and her appearance in court was the result. Judge Prince was considerate and did not have the heart to impose a penalty. He sensed the situation and suspended judgment.

Peter Reed, the man found to have stolen a gold crucifix from St. Mary's convent Friday, was turned over to the authorities at the Howard, R. I., state hospital today for confinement there. Reed escaped from that institution on the 18th of December just prior to the time for his release. He is not considered "all there" as to mentality.

There are rumors that another sta- tion for gasoline filling will be established on Bank street in what is considered the best location on the whole thoroughfare. Evidently the travel into and out of this city is through Bank street. That's the idea one gets from the number of stations there for the sale of gas.

Willis Jones, who with William El- wood, is employed as watchman of the several New London banks, is confined at his home ill with pneumonia. During Mr. Jones' illness his duties are being filled by Frederick Manchester, a former police officer.

The police signal system is crippled again for today four boxes were not performing service. The disabled boxes are at the corner of Montauk avenue and Thames street, Montauk and Hall avenue, Bank and Howard streets and Main and Williams streets.

E. Frank Martin, 548 Williams street, reported to the police this evening that while his automobile was parked on Shapley street it was backed into by a truck owned and operated by Theodore Martin of Riverside Heights and was damaged. The owner of the alleged colliding truck declared he was not aware that a collision had occurred.

A still alarm summoned the North- west fire company to the residence of Dr. George N. Bates, 18 Granite street, this forenoon when a blaze was discovered in a defective chimney of a fireplace. Guiseppe Cameroni, a shoemaker, was in the Groton town court this morning, charged with violation of the liquor law. Counsel for the accused entered a demurrer, which was overruled by Judge Cornelius C. Costello and a fine of $75 and costs, the latter amounting to $84.11 was imposed together with a sentence of 30 days in jail. The jail sentence, however, was suspended for one year. Cameroni contended that he was mistaken for the real violator of the law. He also contended that he had a permit to manufacture grape wine for his personal use, but that at no time had he manufactured more than 30 gallons. The court ruled that there was no case of mistaken identity and that the permit issued to Cameroni to manufacture wine did not give permission for its sale.

Joseph Arsenault was before Judge Costello on a charge of non-support, the case having been continued from time to time for six months. In court today it was shown by Mrs. Arsenault had received but $27.50 from her husband for the support of herself and three children. Upon recommendation of Acting Prosecutor Lubchansky, Arsenault was ordered to pay his wife $75 monthly or take a jail sentence of 30 days. Both the husband and wife were ordered to appear in court in two weeks and if the husband has not showed a disposition to comply with the court's order the jail sentence will be put into operation.

The automobile owned and oper- ated by Ruby Prottas, a Niantic grain merchant and in which were Mrs. Prottas, C. D. Gates and Mrs. F. L. Gates, also of Niantic, was wrecked this evening on Bank street when the automobile crashed against a Niantic bound trolley car. All four occupants of the machine were injured and were taken to Home Memorial hospital. Mr. Gates sustained bruises and an ugly laceration under the left eye. Mr. and Mrs. Prottas sustained cuts, bruises and abrasions. Mrs. Gates, who suffered only minor bruises and scratches, returned to her home after her wounds were treated. The accident occurred shortly before 8 o'clock, when Mr. Prottas was driving the machine to New London. Near St. Germain court the automobile overtook another machine and in driving around the leading car, Prottas' machine swung to the trolley tracks and directly in front of the trolley car. Before either the motorman or Prottas could reduce speed the automobile and trolley came together head-on. The automobile struck the trolley car with such force as to smash the glass, the automobile being of the sedan type; the smash rendering the machine a complete wreck. All four occupants of the automobile were caught prisoners in the car, and luckily were not thrown from the machine. A call was sent for the ambulance. The trolley car was in charge of Motorman George Robertson and Conductor Leroy Norman.

The city council this evening car- ried out the plan which The Bulletin this morning predicted in relation to the establishment of a gasoline station at the corner of Bank and Tilley streets, on the Keefe property. The Atlantic Refining company has purchased the Keefe property at a price said to be $27,000. The company and the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company are to donate a strip of land each to widen and straighten Bank street at Tilley and just south of it and the council voted to widen Tilley street so that there may be a 30-foot roadway there. The gutters are to be taken from the street, or at least they are to be flattened and the sidewalks are to be narrowed. At the corner of Bank and Tilley streets the corner of Bank is an abrupt one, which will now be straightened. The cost of the widening of Tilley street is to be more than $7,000, but the funds to accomplish the work are in hand and may be applied to the purpose. The purchase of the corner at the Keefe property was sought many years ago by the late B. F. Mahan when he was mayor, but the price then asked for it was regarded as prohibitive. The widening of Tilley street was also contemplated then.

The council elected William T. May and Louis B. Lincoln members of the board of relief, as there are two vacancies on the board.

The council voted to place four 600-candle power lights at the corner of Bank and Blinman streets.

An attorney for Joseph Hyde, injured while doing fire duty some more than a year ago, made a claim for payment of damages to Mr. Hyde. Former Manager Barlow fixed $1000 as the sum that would be a fair price to pay Mr. Hyde but the council did not take action upon the report as no recommendation was made to secure that action. Now the matter is left with the city manager and he is to report at the next meeting of the council what settlement he can make.

A vote was passed authorizing the city manager to contract with the Standard Oil company of New York for not less than 1,000 gallons of fuel oil at a price not to exceed 7 cents a gallon. Trap rock was ordered to be purchased from the New Haven Trap Rock company.

The council voted to buy a four-ton steel truck, a Ford tractor with snow plough attachment for use on the streets.

A considerable number of Norwich people were in New London this evening in attendance upon the performance of Little Nellie Kelly.

Barrows, president of the Narragansett Electric Light Co., of Providence. Also present representing the Westerly Light and Power Co., was William Clark, president and W. C. Clarke, general manager. The subject of President Barrows' talk was the consolidation of the three companies, now operating as separate companies under the control of the Narragansett Pier Electric Light and Power Co. and Westerly Light and Power Co. Mr. Barrows showed that one concern could operate more economically, efficiently and with greater simplicity. A map or chart was on exhibition which showed by a red shaded area the small territory originally served by the three separate companies and a shaded area more than fifty times as large represented the area at present cared for by the three companies under control of the Narragansett Co., with 600 stockholders in Washington county. If the combination plan meets approval, the three companies will consolidate into one, known as the South County Public Service Co., for which a bill will be introduced early in the present session of the state legislature. Mr. Barrows' talk was cut short by the necessity of his catching a train for Providence. Routine business of the Board of Trade was transacted before adjournment.

This cash figure, of course, does not include the "prepaid" received and the "collect" pieces handled.

The east-bound Gilt Edge express on the New Haven railroad was considerably delayed by a broken steam pipe on one of the coaches at the Westerly station stop Sunday night. Trainmen cross over the connections, leaving one of the cars without heat, and the train proceeded.

Repairmen in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Co., from their work and supply train which has been located near the Westerly station for the past few days, have erected new poles along the railroad bank near the Hotel Martin, preparatory to restringing the lines on new cross arms.

Miss Emma Crandall, a teacher in the public schools of Providence, returned to that city Sunday night, after a week end visit with Westerly friends.

The January meeting of Westerly town council was held at 9.45 o'clock Monday morning in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall, there being present Council President Campbell; Councilmen Utter, Rossi, Fowler and later Nichols. Also present were Council Clerk Whipple and Town Solicitor Ferguson. Councilmen Morrison and Smith were absent.

A vote of the council approved attorneys' fees for having the town's notes certified and considerable discussion arose over the charges made from time and time, it being the general opinion that the issue of bonds would eliminate this charge as soon as the amounts of the bonds to be issued could be learned.

Superintendent of Highways Leon appeared before the council and asked in the name of the highway commission that a sidewalk cleaning ordinance.

The council voted to request Wall-Over and Company of Providence, to make a brief investigation of the conditions expressions existing in Westerly in connection with the audit of its books and the revision of its system of accounting, for the purpose of recommending to the council any changes that may be necessary to bring the accounting methods up to date, and in line with the great progress being made in municipal and government accounting.

Real Music—"As You Like It"

Do your own playing! It's so much more fun that to have others do it for you. To go to your Gulbransen—and actually play—gives you a real sense of accomplishment! It increases—enriches! It is one of the most delightful experiences imaginable!

Delightful because Gulbransen music is so expressive! So full of feeling—so full of life—you take a personal pride in producing it!

Accenting, for instance. That's important! For in any piece you play there's a strain of "melody" you must pick out and accent properly, to give it a pleasing rendition.

But, where are the melody notes? In what part of the keyboard do they come? With the ordinary player-piano that's a real problem. But by observing the Melody Indicator—a simple and convenient little patented guide—you know where the melody notes are, and just where to accent them, on the Gulbransen!

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, Jan. 7.—Constructive forces were at work in today's active stock market, prices in all sections of the list rising steadily until just before the closing when the top quotations in many instances were shaded by a wave of profit taking. Brokers reported that buying was influenced by the growing speculative belief that a tax reduction bill will be passed by congress this year. The demand for high grade dividend paying issues was construed as an indication of a good reinvestment demand.

Many stocks, including American Can, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Congoleum, sold higher than they had sold before while a number of others reached their highest prices in years. American Can touched 109 3-8 and then eased to 108 1-2, where it was up 1-78 on the day. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe touched 56 1-4 and closed 1 point below that for a net gain of 3 3-4 and Congoleum crossed 57 and then slid back to 54 3-4 where it was up 3 3-4 above Saturday's final figure.

Considerable interest centered in U. S. Steel common on the announcement that the annual subscribtion offer to employes would be made at par. Last year the stock was offered at $107 a share and 41,950 employes subscribed to 100,370 shares. Today the stock touched 100 1-2 the highest price since last May, and closed at par for a net gain of 5-8. Strength of steel common brought freash buying into the independent issues, republican closing more than a point higher.

Marked strength also developed in a number of the railroad shares despite the decision of the U. S. supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the recapture clause of the transportation act. Southern railway crossed 42, the highest quotation since 1906, accumulation of this issue being based to some extent on speculative expectation of the inauguration of dividends this spring. Favorable dividend action also was reported to have influenced the buying of St. Louis Southwestern common, which reached its highest level since 1920. Other strong spots in the railroad group were "Nickel Plate," Canadian Pacific and Colorado and Southern.

Nash motors sold more than 4 points above Saturday's close, apparently in anticipation of the extra dividend of $1.50 announced after the market closed.

There were a few heavy spots. Marland dropped more than 3 points on the withdrawal of the proposed sale of treasury stock. Pan-American issues also were heavy. General Electric dropped more than 2 points on profit-taking and corn products and tobacco products yielded to selling pressure.

Money rates were easier. Call funds opened at 4 3-4 and dropped to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper were on a 4 3-4 to 5 per cent. basis.

Foreign exchange rates held firm. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.29 1-8 and French francs around 4.90 cents. Reports of French government control measures are said to have influenced short covering of commitments abroad.

Bond Market

New York, Jan. 7.—An unusually active and broad market today was accompanied by an increase in the public offerings of new issues, three offerings being sold during the day.

Secondary railroad mortgages were particularly popular in the trading, several issues advancing a point or more. Local tractions also were also in demand, the Brooklyn-Manhattan issues being especially active on speculative buying. Market street railway bonds also were active and generally higher. In this conection offering is expected tomorrow of $13,000,000 Market street railway bonds to take care of the company's 1924 maturities.

Buying of industrial liens also covered a wide assortment of bonds, several issues, notably Dery & Co. 7s, and Tennessee Electric refunding 6s, advancing more than two points.

Traders report an unusually large inquiry for public utility company liens and attribute this to the wide distribution of year-end interest payments by these companies.

Active United States government bonds either improved or held steady. Further gains in the second and fourth 4 1-4s gave credence to reports that the British government had again entered the liberty bond market.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Wheat scored an advance today whereas corn was lower. Buying on the part of the northwestern interests together with reports that European purchasing of Canadian wheat was the largest in some time, had much to do with lifting wheat. The market for wheat closed unsettled 1-4 to 3-4c net higher; May 1.08 5-8 to 1.08 3-4, and July 1.06 7-8. In corn there was 1-8 to 3-8 setback, with oats at 1-8 off to 1-4c up, and provisions ranging from 2c decline to 22c gain.

It was estimated that at least 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been bought since Saturday for shipment to Europe, and this circumstance was emphasized by an advance in wheat quotations at Liverpool and by the fact that temporarily sterling, francs and lire all showed an upturn. Bullish sentiment as to wheat was further stimulated by general scantiness of domestic receipts and by New York stock market strength, as well as by a decrease of the wheat total in the United States visible supply statement.

Special significance in connection with dwindling of wheat arrivals at primary markets in this country was attached to messages from Kansas City saying that receipts there were inadequate and that for about the first time this season the stock in store was being drawn upon. It was also noted that the movement of Canadian wheat from interior parts had fallen off as compared with the recent volume.

Profit taking sales and prospects of enlarged rural offerings affected the corn market. Weather conditions were favorable to more liberal shipments from the country, and the visible supply showed a substantial gain. Oats were upheld by reports of good demand from the east.

Higher quotation hogs gave firmness to provisions.

Curb Market

New York, Jan. 7.—Confusing price movements took place in today's curb market with the general tendency upward despite a rather large volume of profit-taking, especially in the oil shares.

Several of the pipe line and high priced oil shares moved up 2 to 5 points, Standard oil of Kansas moved up 1 1-8 on a turnover pr 2,300 shares and Vacuum gained nearly a point on sales totalling 4,000 shares. Prairie oil and gas fell back 2 points and losses of a point or more were registered by Prairie Pipe, Standard oil of Nebraska and Magnolia petroleum. Raising of the export price of gasoline 1 cent a gallon had a tendency to steady the market, which was forced to absorb stocks held through the period of depression last summer.

Automobile shares were inclined to buoyancy on buying traditionally associated with the opening of the automobile show here. Durant moved up nearly 2 points and Ford motor of Canada advanced 8 on a single of 10 shares. Goodyear rubber was the most active industrial, closing more than a point higher.

Interest in the mining shares was confined largely to the penny issues.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

CORRUPTION EXISTED IN THE VETERANS' BUREAU

Washington, Jan. 7.—(By The A. P.)—Fraud and corruption existed in the Veterans' Bureau under the directorship of Charles R. Forbes, John F. O'Ryan of New York, general counsel for the senate veterans' committee, asserts in a report filed with the committee.

Moreover, O'Ryan charges that Forbes himself "was a leading actor in an established conspiracy to defraud the government" on hospital contracts and he names as other parties to the alleged conspiracy, C. B. Hurley, president of the Hurley-Mason company, of Tacoma, Washington; J. W. Thompson, a St. Louis contractor; the late James W. Black of Chicago, and Elias H. Mortimer of Philadelphia, the chief witness in the committee's public hearings.

Ewing Laporte of Pittsburgh, Pa., an assistant secretary of the treasury in the Wilson administration, and E. L. Morse, prominent in Missouri republican politics, are assailed in connection with the purchase of Morse homestead at Excelsior Springs, Mo., for a hospital at $90,000. O'Ryan charges that "this project was forced upon the public health service by the joint action" of Laporte and Morse.

GUILTY OF HAVING USED THE MAILS TO DEFRAUD

New York, Jan. 7.—Three members of the Crager System, Inc., Benjamin Crager, president; his father, Henry Crager, and Samuel Rosenblatt—today pleaded guilty in federal court to an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud investors of $175,000 through the sale of stock of the glass casket company.

They will be sentenced after the trial of 57 other defendants, involved in the promotion and sale of the stock.

The Crager system, a stock selling organization, it was alleged, induced investors to buy casket company stock on the representation that health authorities in many cities were about to order the use of glass caskets for all interments.

HEARING ON ACCOUNTINGS OF $75,000,000 BRADY ESTATE

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 7.—An imposing array of attorneys, bankers, brokers, railroad men and industrial magnates were in the surrogate's court here today for the proposed hearing on objections to the 1919 and 1920 accountings of the trustees of the $75,000,000 estate of Anthony N. Brady, New York financier, but after a half hour session an adjournment was taken until tomorrow. The delay was due to the absence of former Governor Nathan L. Miller, of counsel for the defense.

Two daughters of Anthony N. Brady—Mrs. Carl Tucker and Mrs. Francis P. Garvan—have filed objections to the accounting of James Cox Brady and Nicholas F. Brady, their brothers, and the Central Union Trust company of New York as executors and trustees. They have asked for $8,346,853 surcharges against the trustees alleging gross neglect in the handling of the estate. Grand-children of Mr. Brady also are involved and separate objections have been filed on their behalf.

THEFT OF VALUABLE GOWNS AT NEW ROCHELLE

New Rochelle, N. Y., Jan. 7.—The cleaning and dyeing shop of Motzkin Brothers, for 22 years left unlocked at night in testimony of the proprietors' trust of their fellow citizens and for as long left unmolested, was robbed last night a short time after the owners, alarmed by the wave of robberies in New York, had locked the doors and appointed a watchman. The burglars took several thousand dollars worth of gowns and left behind forty uniforms of policemen and firemen.

With last minute changes in several posts, the Japanese cabinet of the new premier, Viscount Kiyoura, finally was completed.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

There was a general slackening off in the building trades in Norwich during the past week, due to the coming of colder weather but it is expected that the slack time will not be of long duration. Very few applications for building permits were received during the week by Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton these being for garages and small buildings.

Work on the buildings for which permits have already been granted is progressing rapidly however. The Gordon and Solomon houses on Broadway are rapidly nearing completion. The plastering in the Gordon house has been completed and the work of interior finishing will soon be started. Both houses will be ready for occupants by April 1st. The Johnson house on the corner of Broad and Cedar streets and the Baldwin house on Lincoln avenue have been completed as far as outside work is concerned and workmen are busy with the interior work.

In reviewing the building in Norwich during 1923 Fire Marshal Chief Howard L. Stanton said that Norwich had nothing to fear of in the building line. The building of new houses in the city and town during the past year has been speeded up over 100 houses being built, of which 50 or more were within the city limits.

Permits for the first few days of 1924 included 3 new houses and if this is a sign of what may come during the year Norwich will see the erection of even more houses during 1924.

Contractors expect a lull in business in January but hold forth that 1924 will be even a bigger year in building in Norwich than the year past.

NEW LONDON

Seaside Council, Knights of Columbus, are planning extensive activities for the year just started and expect to start operations on the erection of an addition to the present club house on Huntington street during the year. Plans have been prepared calling for an addition which will provide an auditorium, with a seating capacity of 1,200 persons, a swimming pool, coat rooms, toilets and gymnasium. The building will be two stories high.

Mercer Building Contracts

The following sub-contracts have been awarded by the H. Wales Lines Co., Meriden, for the building being erected on State street for Frederick W. Mercer, Huntington Street; Ornamental iron, Bradley & Hubbard Co., heating, Hopson-Chapin Co., 231 State street; mill work, Hoe Corporation, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., elevator entrances, Tyler Co., New York; reinforcing steel, Edward A. Tucker Co., Boston; structural steel, Eastern Bridge & Structural Co., Worcester; terra cotta, New Jersey Terra Cotta Co., New York; plate glass, Capitol City Glass Co., Hartford.

Squire Street House

Work has been started by Arthur S. Rowe on the erection of a frame cottage for himself on Squire street. The dwelling will be 20x26 feet, and will be provided with all modern conveniences. The estimated cost of the house is $4,000.

Dixie Filling Stations

The contract has been awarded to H. Wales Lines Co., for the erection of an elaborate gasoline filling station for the Dixie Filling Stations, Inc., on the site recently acquired by them at the corner of Church and Huntington streets. In securing the site the Dixie company has agreed to erect a building to cost not less than $30,000. From private plans, the building will be two stories high, surmounted by a copper dome. The exterior will be of brick and stucco, finished in white. On the first floor there will be an office room, toilets and compressor room. The second floor will be fitted for rest rooms and toilets for women. The most complete filling station in this section of New England is to be built. A concrete inclosed drive wide enough for two cars will give access to the station. The Dixie Filling Stations, Inc., plan to have six filling stations in operation in New London by April 1, one of which will be a wholesale station. Negotiations are in progress for desirable sites.

Fire during the past week caused a damage of about $50,000 to stock and building of the three-story frame building at 76 State street, owned by S. Patterson. The entire building was destroyed and considerable famage done to the adjoining structures.

Applications for Building Permits

Arthur S. Rowe, dwelling, Squire street, $4,000.

M. & N. Benvenuiti, storage shed Goshen street, $275.

Number of permits issued for the week 4; estimated cost of buildings $4,890.

THE STATE SITUATION

The new year opens with the rank and file, leaders and subordinates, in an extremely optimistic mind and convinced that good times are ahead. The restoration of this all-important psychological factor to its rightful position, as it affects business in this country, is one of the most constructive factors accomplished in months. The program may be said really to have dated from the 30th of October when in the midst of general pessimism the Steel directors surprised everyone with an extra dividend of 1-4 per cent. Small as this was, it was sufficient to convince financiers and business executives that the biggest interests were sanguine of the future and disposed to protect the rights of capital, which latterly had been eclipsed by labor's progress. A long series of extra dividends has followed to back up the stand of the Steel Corporation. And resume of earnings accompanying this dividend liberality has been enlightening as to the prosperity of 1923 in industry as a whole despite the unsettlement in a few industries as oil, textiles and leather, for example.

While real estate transactions are usually at a low ebb at this season of the year, yet the sales and mortgages recorded in the Connecticut towns reported in The Commercial Record make a better showing than for the corresponding week of last year. In the towns mentioned there were reported for the week 301 sales by warranted deed, with mortgage loans amounting to $5,712,572, in comparison with 248 sales for the same week a year ago, when the mortgage loans were $1,895,935.

Building Operations

The record of building permits issued in the larger Connecticut centers in the past week is an unusually high one for the last of the year, due in large measure to the permitting of a group of buildings in Hamden representing an expenditure of more than $400,000. The total for the week of 146 permits granted, for a total of $1,300,207, compares with the last week of 1921 and 1922 as shown in the 98 permits in 1922 for the same week, with a total of $311,463, and 86 permits in 1921, the buildings costing $427,564.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

A Ride on The Snow King's Horse.

"Thunder and blizzards," exclaimed the Snow King, "you have come a long way, my little bunny," and stepping down from his throne, he invited Little Jack Rabbit to see his wind horses, who were kept in a great snow stable near the palace. They were very wonderful horses, some as white as snow, others black as night, and when they ran very swiftly, the breath from their nostrils reached all over the earth.

"You shall have one of my horses," said the Snow King, "which will you choose?" The bunny boy looked them over carefully and at last picked out a great black one, whose nostrils were as red as fire.

Slowly the drawbridge came down.

"Let me see you ride him," laughed the Snow King.

But dear me! No sooner did the great animal feel the little rabbit on his back, than quicker than lightning, off he went, leaving the King and the little reindeer far out of sight, in less time than I can tell it to you.

Well, gracious me! Little Jack Rabbit had never ridden so fast in all his life. But he wasn't afraid, although the big black wind horse made a great noise as he galloped away. The breath from his nostrils made a sound like steam from a locomotive whistle, and it turned into snow flakes that whirled about and covered the land.

By and by, after a while, they came to a great forest, and the treetops bent and swayed as the great black wind horse rushed through the air. All of a sudden, poor Little Jack Rabbit slipped off his back and fell into a tree. Away went the horse, leaving him alone in the great forest.

The bunny was so stunned by his fall that for several minutes he hardly knew where he was. By and by, he hopped down to look about him. Away off in the distance, rose the turrets of a great castle. Carefully hopping around great fallen trees and boulders, by and by, he came at last to a great drawbridge.

Taking out his magic whistle, he blew three long blasts. Slowly the drawbridge came down and in less time than I can take to tell it, he had hopped into a beautiful garden. It was so quiet and shady that he lay down to rest. In a minute he was sound asleep.

Over the misty, restless sea
A little dream comes home to me,
In a ship of white with sails of pink
And a little white sailor dove, I think.

"Ship ahoy!" he coos to me,
"Here is a dream from over the sea.
In this ship are some chocolate cake,
And lollypops filled with chocolate ice.

But don't wake up, for the mice might jump
Into the ocean with a bump,
And so you would lose these chocolate mice,
And the lollypops filled with chocolate ice."

But dear me! Just then, the little bunny opened his eyes. Away went the sailor dove in his misty ship and the little rabbit hopped out of the garden into the next story.

POETRY

The Coral Grove

Deep in the wave is a coral grove,
Where the purple mullet and gold-fish rove,
Where the sea-flower spreads its leaves to the light,
And the water is ever at rest and bright.

But in bright and changeful beauty shine,
Far down in the green and glassy brine.
The floor is of sand like the mountain drift
And the pearl-shells spangle the flinty snow;
From coral rocks the sea plants lift
Their boughs, where the tides and lilies flow;
The water is calm and still below,
For the winds and waves are absent there,
And the sands are bright as the stars that glow
In the motionless fields of upper air.
There with its waving blade of green,
The sea-flag streams through the silent water.
And the crimson leaf of the dulse is seen
To blush, like a banner bathed in slaughter;
There with a light and easy motion,
The fan-coral sweeps through the clear deep sea;
And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean
Are beading like dorn on the upland lea;
And life, in rare and beautiful forms,
Is sporting amid those bowers of stone,
And is safe, when the wrathful spirit of storms
Has made the top of the wave his own;
And when the ship from his fury flies,
Where the myriad voices of ocean roar,
When the wind-god frowns in the murky skies,
And demons are waiting the wreck on shore;
Then far below, in the peaceful sea,
The purple mullet and goldfish rove,
Where the waters murmur tranquilly,
Through the bending twigs of the coral grove.

—James Gates Percival in Indianapolis News

Over the Sea to Skye

Sing me a song of a lad that is gone,
Say, could that lad be I?
Merry of soul he sailed on a day
Over the sea to Skye.

Mull was astern, Rum on the port,
Eigg on the starboard bow;
Glory of youth glowed in his soul
Where is that glory now?

Give me again all that was there,
Give me the sun that shone!
Give me the eyes, give me the soul,
Give me the lad that is gone!

Billow and breeze, island and sea,
Mountains of rain and sun,
All that was good, all that was fair,
All that was me is gone.

—Robert Lewis Stevenson.

DECLARES CITY SHOULD SELL ITS GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT

George L. Crosgrove of 30 Baltic street thinks that the Norwich gas and electric plant has demonstrated that municipal ownership is not a success and he advocates the sale of the city's plant on North Main street. He presented his views on the subject in a letter to the mayor and common council, which was read at the meeting Monday evening. By vote of the council Mr. Crosgrove's letter was placed on file.

He wrote as follows:

His Honor, the Mayor, and Court of Common Council, City of Norwich:

Dear Sirs:—We have had two explosions recently in our gas and electric department and the third one should be one of sufficient power to put the city of Norwich out of the gas and electric act for all time.

There may be places in this country where municipal ownership is more successful than private ownership, but the city of Norwich has proved it is not one of them. That gas and electric plant should be put up for sale and the city get as near as possible what it has cost and get in a position to receive some tax from the plant which will help some.

Other places throughout the country are getting their light for three to nine cents per k. w. hour and gas for 95 cents to $1.25 per thousand and there is no reason why Norwich could not do the same. If the exorbitant rates charged for light and gas brings in more than enough to run the plant intelligently or honestly it would be simply horse sense to reduce the rates instead of blowing in the people's money for white ways and other fool ways which we do not need.

There is no more need of a white way through Main, Shetucket, Broadway and Franklin streets than there is through Mohegan park. There are places in Norwich where a little more light is needed, but not in the streets named. Up our way there is a light at the junction of Boswell avenue, Broad and Baltic streets. The next light up Baltic street is at the corner of Baltic and Orchard streets, 1,500 feet more or less apart. A bug light half way between would help out a whole lot, but petitions get us nothing.

A committee came up here one moonlight night and decided no light was needed and we were given leave to withdraw. Of course we don't need much light anywhere on moonlight nights.

When we were paying $2.40 per thousand for gas I called on a former city official and put up a kick. He said I was mistaken; gas was $1.40 per thousand and the other $1 was for the use of the meter. I called on another city official and to my question he said the cost of a meter was about eight or nine dollars. So the people who use gas are paying the price of that meter every eight or nine months and still the meter belongs to the city.

Now, gentlemen, that is no little piece of innocent graft, but a clean steal and it is time it was cut out and the people given a square deal. Under private ownership if no gas was used we got by with the payment of 25 cents per month for the meter which was pretty good interest at that.

Yours sincerely,
G. L. CROSGROVE.

FIRST NOON MEETING AT RICHMOND RADIATOR

Monday the Norwich Y. M. C. A. held the first noon meeting this season at the plant of the Richmond Radiator company. There was a good attendance and the men listened with deep interest to the message by Rev. C. H. Ricketts on the topic, The Man of Nazareth or Barabbas—Which? On this theme Mr. Ricketts spoke as follows, in part:

At the feast of the Passover it was the custom to release a prisoner. At this time Jesus was before the tribunal of Pilate. Now Pilate, who was not such a bad man at heart, but weak, vacillating and cowardly, wanted to release Jesus because there was nothing legally against him. But the rabble cried out for Barabbas and Pilate bowed down to the rabble. Consequently the Barabbas was led to freedom; Jesus to the cross. A murderer was set at liberty, but a Savior was crucified.

These facts set forth the issues of that day. Injustice and wrong were enthroned; right, truth and justice were made to bite the dust. These two forces have been in conflict ever since. As they can never compromise they will se continue until one of them is completely victorious. Shall it be the Man of Nazareth or Barabbas?

The speaker made three logical approaches to his subject: the first was a rapid survey of the Barabbas spirit against which the Man of Nazareth has always contended. This survey covered only the main work of Barabbas among the American people, and two instances were cited, that of the incubus of slavery showing when the nation rose to moral grandeur and put Barabbas down the nation rose in international importance. The second illustration was taken from the rum traffic showing that when Barabbas was compelled to leave his old stand of slavery he set up a new one in the rum business, or paid greater attention to it. The speaker thought the nation would stand by its constitution and not play the role of Pilate and release to the mob the old whiskey barrel.

Barabbas is going to be put out of commission by the unity of all moral and religious forces. Other things have tried it and Barabbas is still with us. His terrible hand is seen in holdups, other robberies, burglaries, murders and other crimes. Diplomacy has attempted to curb the activities of Barabbas with only indifferent success. Let the Man of Nazareth have his inning by sending forth all his disciples clad in the full armor of God.

Great Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday

A large audience assembled at the big gymnasium at the local Young Men's Christian Association Sunday to witness the six reel feature, moving picture, entitled The Stream of Life, and the verdict was unanimous that it was an intensely impressive and instructive picture, in fact one of the very best ever seen. The story is of one Philip Maynard, born and reared on a farm by devout Christian parents. Philip longed for the city, and after a struggle the parents consented to his leaving home, giving the boy good advice and warning of the dangers incident to city life. The young man prospered, but as he increased in earthly wealth his interest in the things of God waned; this nearly broke his old mother's heart back in the county home, where she now lived alone as her husband had passed away. After a while sorrow came to Philip who had a home of his own; his only child was taken and the old mother visiting her boy pleaded with him to come back to his mother's God. Finally after the conversion of his worldly life, he came back to the kind of life he had lived on the farm, that is a Christian life. The picture was of deep human interest and a number of the audience were deeply touched. A feature of the meeting was the splendid and appropriate music furnished by Hugh Kinder on the piano.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting and roll call of the members of the First Baptist church took place Monday evening with over 100 members of the church present.

Following the supper the annual roll call took place, over 100 responding as their names were called. The annual business meting followed, and the reports of the treasurer showed the church to be in excellent financial standing, having a substantial balance on hand, with all bills paid.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Deacons, Fred Wilson, reelected; Henry Frink, 5th deacon. The three deacons holding over are Chas. E. Cross, Frank L. Lathrop and Frank L. Robinson. Trustees, Frank L. Lathrop, William J. Koonz and Charles R. Cross. Clerk, Miss Rose Thornes; treasurer, Mrs. George W. Rathbun; benevolence treasurer, Miss Gladys Thornes. The following members were elected or appointed to serve on the executive council of the church, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar; deacons, clerk, treasurers, Walter M. Cowan, superintendent of the Sunday school; George H. Amburn, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school and Mrs. Minnie Amburn, Mrs. Elizabeth Hurlbut, Mrs. Fannie Pineault, Mrs. Sadie Stamm, Mrs. Grace E. Willey, Mrs. Lena Perkins, Mrs. Lina Leach, Mrs. Lillian Cross, Mrs. Agnes Lathrop, Mrs. Annie Church, Mrs. Elisabeth Koonz, Mrs. Belle Gilchrist, Earl Stamm and William J. Koonz.

In the by-laws one change was voted whereby the church may elect three deaconesses, to serve for a period of three years. Owing to the late hour, however, there was no vote for deaconesses and adjournment took place, a special meeting to be called in the future.

AUTO SPEEDER DEFIES WILLIMANTIC POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 7.—After narrowly escaping being run down by a Ford coupe about 11.15 tonight, Lieut. Frank McLean and Officer William Hurley succeeded in holding a second machine of similar make which was following a few feet behind. The driver of this car was wanted in South Manchester for violation of the traffic law. The local police department received a call to the effect that two Ford coupes had gone to the left of a silent policeman in Manchester and that the drivers had refused to stop when hailed by an officer. The local officers had just set out to watch for the machines when they were seen speeding down Main street. Both were ordered to stop but the driver of the first car made his getaway, going at break neck speed through the business section of the city. He was seen by another officer to cut to the left of a silent policeman on Lower Main street and head toward Danielson. Officer Hurley drew his night stick at the second machine and as it slowed down Lieut. McLean jumped on the running board and it was soon brought to a stop. The driver gave his name as J. W. Gilbert, formerly of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., now employed in Providence, R. I. He said that he had met the driver of the first car on the road and that they were to spend the night in Danielson. The state police barracks in that place were notified to be on the lookout for the Ford. Bottles partly filled with beer were found in Gilbert's machine, but they had mysteriously disappeared when the car was searched the second time. Gilbert was later turned over to the Manchester authorities. The driver of the other Ford is wanted here for resisting an officer. According to Gilbert they had anticipated being held up in this city but the other driver whose name was not known had stated that he would refuse to stop.

NAME SOME COMMITTEES FOR AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

The executive committee of the New London County Agricultural society held its first meeting of the 1924 season Monday morning at the office of Secretary E. V. Ross. President Elmer R. Pierson presided and members present were: Treasurer Albert J. Bailey, George G. Avery of New London; Simon Brewster of Griswold; Edward W. O'Brien, Montville; J. Lawrence Raymond, Lyme; Gilbert S. Raymond, Norwich; Griswold H. Morgan, Salem; George G. Grant, Taftville and Secretary Ross.

The minutes of the meeting of Jan. 4, 1923, were read and approved, following which these committees were appointed for the ensuing year: Building committee, President Pierson; Treasurer Bailey; Secretary Ross and L. L. Chapman; finance committee, president, treasurer and Charles D. Greenman. President Pierson, George G. Grant and Secretary Ross were appointed delegates to attend the meeting of the Connecticut Fairs Association and the New England Fairs Association. Secretary Ross was authorized to take charge of the advertising, the vaudeville and to let the privilege and the midway space and he with President Pierson were authorized to rent the grounds for the season. The racing program and selection of judge were again left to Speed Secretary Bailey.

It was voted to give immediate attention to a revision of the premium list for the year to clear up some old fallacies and to make it more attractive to a large number of exhibitors. A committee composed of Secretary Ross as chairman, J. L. Raymond, Gilbert S. Raymond, Edward W. O'Brien, George G. Grant and Charles D. Greenman was nominated by President Pierson and they will be prepared to submit plans to the executive committee at the February meeting.

WATERFORD BAPTIST CHURCH DAMAGED BY FIRE

The First Baptist church of Waterford was damaged by fire late Sunday afternoon and so serious did the blaze become that assistance was requested of the New London department as it was apparent a short time after the blaze broke out that the wooden structure would be destroyed unless adequate firefighting equipment was obtained. As it was the church was damaged to the extent of $2,500. The damage was confined to the cellar, dining room, rear wall of the main structure and the roof.

Shortly after 5 o'clock two youths who were standing on the steps of the post office observed smoke issuing from the lower windows of the church. The boys rushed to the residence of Rev. George H. Strause, pastor of the church, where they obtained keys to the church doors. One of the doors was opened and the seriousness of the fire was immediately recognized for the blaze had made its way to the main floor and was climbing toward the roof through the partitions. An alarm was sounded causing the Waterford fire department to respond, but with the arrival of the firemen it was determined that assistance was needed if the church was to be saved.

A telephone message to New London fire headquarters caused Chief Charles Rose to dispatch the Niagara Engine company's pumper and the C. L. Ockford Hose company to the church. When the New London firemen arrived the fire had traveled rapidly toward the roof. The Niagara's pumper was put into service and a deluge of water was emptied upon the burning building. After a half hour's work the fire was brought under control, but not until another hour later was it determined that the fire had been entirely extinguished.

HOPEFUL FOR RECOVERY OF WATCHMAN SHUGRUE

Michael Shugrue of Thamesville, the watchman at the American Woolen mill, who was found unconscious on the floor at the mill a week ago Saturday, apparently the victim of a murderous assault, is slowly recovering from his injuries. He remains a patient at the Backus hospital, from which it was reported Monday that he has become quite rational. According to the attending physician, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, the injured man's mind has not sufficiently cleared yet for much dependence to be placed on any explanation he may give of how he thinks he received his injuries. He is able to remember that he made his last round of the mill at 8 o'clock Saturday afternoon but cannot fill in the time after that. He was found unconscious about an hour and a half later. Sunday Mr. Shugrue said he thought there must have been two men who assaulted him but, as before stated, in the opinion of Dr. Gildersleeve, Shugrue's recovery has not reached a stage yet where much dependence can be placed upon what he thinks he remembers.

Capt. D. J. Twomey and Sergeant Thomas Murphy visited Mr. Shugrue at the hospital Monday and had a talk with him. The injured man was able to sit up in bed, having made encouraging progress towards recovery since his fractured skull was trephined a week ago Saturday. If no improvement continues he may soon be considered off the danger list.

POPULAR FINANCE CITES CHARLES F. NOYES' CAREER

Popular Finance, under a remarkably fine cut of Mr. Noyes, has this explanatory note:

Charles F. Noyes—the biggest "one man firm" in the realty world. He manages 500 buildings in New York's financial district, employs a staff of only 55 persons and does an aggregate yearly business of $70,000,000—$200,000 each day!

In another section of the write-up, Mr. Reeves says: There is one man down on Williams street who is almost a trust in himself, so extensive is his important real estate business.

Charles F. Noyes came to New York just over 20 years ago from Norwich, Conn. He was in partnership with another man for about a year, since which time he has been the Charles F. Noyes company. For fifteen years he has been distributing a percentage of his profits each year among his employes.

FINDS TUBERCULOSIS GERMS CAN ENTER THROUGH EYE

Two statements of unusual importance in tuberculosis research were Monday made at the monthly medical meeting of the state tuberculosis commission, the first to the effect that as an alleged cure of tuberculosis, the vaccine of Prof. Dreyer, of Oxford university is apparently without curative power; the second that the tubercle bacillus enters the body through the eye much more frequently than has been believed. Both were made by Doctor William M. Stockwell, superintendent at the state tuberculosis sanatorium at Newington, as a result of experiments covering months, conducted by him and his staff.

Doctor Stockwell reported to the assembled medical officers of all the state tuberculosis sanatoria that his clinical experiences with the vaccine of Prof. Dreyer seemed to show that this alleged cure of tuberculosis, in both man and beast, fails to induce recovery and that it is apparently merely a very inefficient type of tuberculin. The experiments undertaken in testing the Dreyer vaccine and the decisive announcement will carry much weight in the medical world.

Doctor Stockwell also gave an interesting demonstration of the use of the fluoroscope in diagnosing conditions of disease in the human chest.

Another paper by the staff of the Hartford sanatorium showed the live possibility of tuberculous infection through the open eye and without apparent injury to the optic at the time of infection. This paper caused a very lively discussion, because of its far reaching implication in the whole field of tuberculosis research, such as the likelihood of entrance of the germ of tuberculosis into the eye through the dust, through possibly kissing, especially of babies, or by coughing. The belief seemed general that more cases of tuberculosis are caused by the spread of the germ in this manner than has been believed. The eye, as a wide open port of entry for the tuberculosis germ, will hereafter receive more consideration from medical authorities.

Preceding the medical meeting, the commission held a short business session, discussing building plans at Meriden and staff changes at Newington.

January Dandelion Blossoms.

The cold weather and snow of the past few days has failed to stop freaks of nature cropping out. On Monday Harry J. LaTurner of Norwich found a dandelion in blossom on the farm of Joseph Willington in Sprague.

The blossom, with others picked during the past few days, is now kept in a vase in the Willington home.

The wrist contains eight bones, the palm five and the fingers fourteen.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. TO ENFORCE ARMS EMBARGO AGAINST MEXICAN REBELS

Instructions Forwarded to All Officials Along the Mexican Border to Enforce Vigilently All Regulations Proclaimed by President Coolidge—All Port Authorities Have Been Directed to Hold Up Exports of Arms or Other Munitions Destined For the Mexican Revolutionists.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Steps toward making rigidly effective the Coolidge arms embargo directed against the De La Huerta faction in Mexico went forward rapidly today.

The treasury forwarded instructions to customs officers and prohibition enforcement agents to enforce vigilantly all laws and regulations under which business across the border is transacted, while upon request of the state department the American Railway association, through its car service division, declared a freight embargo of arms and other war equipment to Mexico unless approved by a United States government agency.

The embargo order was forwarded at once by the association to its members in the United States, among whom are all major railroads of the country, and is to become effective immediately.

The treasury, in addition to telegraphing explicit directions to border points, also notified all port authorities to hold up exports of arms or other munitions destined for the Mexican rebel forces. The action was preliminary to the drafting of regulations to carry out formally the terms of the embargo proclamation issued yesterday by President Coolidge.

The action looking to an effective tightening of the lines along the border and at American ports was still another move on the part of the Washington administration in its progressivelysively developing policy of giving aid to the Obregon government of Mexico by selling it war equipment and at the same time preventing, insofar as legally possible, munitions reaching the De La Huerta forces.

During the day progress was made toward the sale of equipment from the Washington government to that of President Obregon through the receipt of cash from Mexico for the transaction. Whether the arms actually have be endelivered, however, has not been revealed.

Th administration policy with reference to Mexico, however, did not escape criticism from American sources. During the day the arms embargo being assailed from democratic quarters in the senate. Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, presented a bill which would prohibit the sale of munitions to foreign governments either by the United States government or a private American citizen.

The treasury acted today without awaiting receipt of the formal notice from the state department of the White House emburgo proclamation, and as a result of reports from its agents that they have been having more than the usual amount of trouble in recent weeks with border smuggling. In the opinion of the agents, the increased difficulties have been due in a measure at least, to the political disturbance in Mexico.

As a result of the conditions, the customs and prohibition agents have been ordered to make more thorough inspections of all consignments, either inbound or outbound. The increased effort is expected to lead to a curbling not only of arms and munitions shipments but to the movement of other contraband such as liquor and narcotics as well.

MEXICAN REBEL AGENTS AT WORK IN ARIZONA

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 8.—Investigation by Mexican government representatives into activities of rebel agents operating here today resulted in the unearthing of insurgent plans to send Mexican reinforcements from Arizona for the purpose of furthering the rebellion on the west coast of Mexico, government officials announced tonight.

DAWES AND YOUNG TO ISSUE FORMAL STATEMENTS

Paris, Jan. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Any statements emanating from Brigadier General Charles E. Dawes and Owen D. Young, unofficial representatives of the United States on the expert committee which is to investigate Germany's situation, will be issued formally by them. This announcement was made tonight in the following communication signed by General Dawes and Mr. Young:

"The American experts up to this time have made no statement of any kind to the press. Whatever they have to say now and hereafter will be by formal statement.

"They have been invited by the reparation commission to sit as members of the expert committee which is asked to ascertain facts and make certain suggestions. The American experts come as private citizens, without instructions and without obligations of making reports to the reparation commission. They have no preconceived plans simply hoping in the plans developed by others they may be of assistance.

"There is one statement, however, which they have no hesitation in making at this time, and without consultation they assume it represents the sentiment of all the members of the committee, as well as public sentiment everywhere, to wit:

"That time is an essence of this situation—that the committee is a business committee concerned with facts and constructive inferences to be drawn from them—that their work should be conducted with all possible expedition and that there should be daily and continuous sessions."

OPENING OF BRITISH PARLIAMENT UNEVENTFUL

London, Jan. 8—(By the A. P.)—The fifth parliament of the present reign opened today in a quiet and uneventful manner, apart from some nancal effervescence on the part of the labor members, elated at the prospect of their party taking office as the government.

The reelection of John Henry Whitley as speaker of the new house was a foregone conclusion.

Interest for the present, lies rather outside the parliament than within it, namely, in the meetings, conferences and consultations among the leaders and their parties, and doubtless in the underground intrigues inseparable from a situation of such extreme novelty in British politics as having to deal for the first time with a new group system of parties, instead of the traditional two party system.

TO BROADCAST JAN. 19 YALE-U. OF P. DEBATE

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—The debate between Yale and the University of Pennsylvania here on January 19 will be broadcast it was announced tonight. Arrangements are being made to have alumni of the two universities at distant points and Yale students at New Haven listen in.

The debate will be on the question of whether the United States should become a member of the existing permanent court of international justice, subject only to such reservations as are made necessary by the constitution of the United States. Pennsylvania will have the affirmative.

PUPILS RESENT THE REMOVAL OF PRINCIPAL

Silver Creek, N. Y., Jan. 8—As a protest against the recent action of the school board in asking for the resignation of W. H. Edwards, principal, 300 pupils of the high school today left their classes and paraded the streets. The paraders carried banners inscribed "We want Edwards" and secured signers to petitions asking for his retention.

The use of tobacco by Principal Edwards and the inadvertent destruction of some old magazines are said to have been the basis for the removal of Edwards.

The trial of William H. Anderson, New York state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league on indictments charging grand larceny, extortion and other irregularities in the league's affairs was set for January 13.

HORSE RACE BETTING RAMPANT IN BRITAIN

London, Jan. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Millions of Britons habitually break the law by betting in the streets, says the report of the government's committee on betting, made public today. From a perusal of the report it would seem that the liquor laws in America were observed much more generally than the statutes against horse race betting in Great Britain; for have the bootleggers organized their business so thoroughly as the unlicensed bookies here.

The committee learned that in some places school children ten or twelve years of age place their scanty allowances on the hoses egularly, while their mothers and the domestic servants in their homes are called upon "in the mornings, during the husband's absence" by canvassing agents for bookmakers.

Many small shopkeepers, the committee learned, receive betting slips on behalf of the bookies and in numerous shops this sideline brings in more money than the legitimate business itself—groceries, tobacco or whatever it may be.

In the industrial centers betting on the races is common among the workers.

The committee declares the law is open to criticism that the rich man can bet to any extent without risking any penalty while the poor man if he bets at all is liable to criminal penalties, and his street bookie as well.

COOLIDGE EXCLUDED FROM CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Washington, Jan. 8—For a second time an articles entitled "Analysis of the Political Training of Calvin Coolidge," was excluded today from the Congressional Record.

Senator Spencer, republican, Missouri, renewed a recent request for unanimous consent for its publication, but Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, objected after there had been extended discussion.

Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, declared that if the article were published there would be requests for publication of similar articles by friends of William G. McAdoo and others, and that "such minority of the republican national committee as favors the nomination of Coolidge will seize upon it," for campaign purposes. He added that opportunity should be given for "an antidote to go out to the country with the poison."

Senator Spencer then gave notice that he would read the article to the senate at the first opportunity.

There were invitations of "Read it now," from the democratic side, but Senator Spencer said he had to attend an important committee meeting.

FUNERAL OF CHILDREN WHO WERE BURNED IN MIDDLETOWN

Middletown, Jan. 8—The funeral of the four young children of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastiano Cianci, whose lives were snuffed out in a fire in their hom eearly yesterday, was held from St. John's church this morning. The edifice was filled with mourners and the casket bearers were schoolmates of the children in St. John's school. Rev. Dr. James F. Donovan was the celebrant of a high mass of requiem and the prayers were read by Rev. Fr. R. C. Roccapriori. The Gregorian mass was sung by the choir.

The condition of Mrs. Cianci, the mother, who was burned, was much worse today and she was removed to the Middlesex hospital. She had desired to attend the funegal of her children and worried over the likelihood that she could not go to the church. This caused a turn in her condition, and the funeral time was hel dtoday instead of tomorrow.

WAGNERIAN OPERA CO. HAS GONE INTO BANKRUPTCY

New York, Jan. 8—A darkened house and notices posted on the doors announcing suspension of the Wagnerian Opera Company, greeted about three thousand persons who surneyed to the Manhattan Opera House tonight expecting to hear "Derr Zigeunerbaron" sung.

Showdown Coming on Tax and Bonus Bills

Expected at a Conference of the House Republicans on Thursday Night.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Confidence was expressed today by Republican leaders of the House that they would be able to press a tax reduction bill to a vote before action is had on the soldiers' bonus.

Opposed to giving priority to the bonus—a question expected to come to a show-down at a conference of House Republicans Thursday night—Representative Longworth, the majority leader, notified the group of former service men who are demanding a vote on adjusted compensation ahead of tax legislation that no effort would be made to dodge the issue.

For an hour Mr. Longworth was in conference with Representatives Johnson, of South Dakota, Fish, of New York, and Andrew, of Massachusetts, who were active in having the conference called. He told them that "we have you beaten and will show you Thursday night."

The discussion was had after it had been announced at the White House that President Coolidge was in hearty support of plans to give tax legislation right of way over the bonus. At the same time, a White House spokesman, in discussing the tax situation, said the President considered that the surtax schedule carried in the Gerner Democratic substitute for the Mellon bill would tend to discourage the investment of capital in business enterprises rather than in tax-exempt securities.

NINA WILCOX PUTNAM PROTESTS PERSECUTION

New York, Jan. 8,—From the hote' bedroom to which she is confined by illness, Mrs. Nina Wilcox Putnam Sanderson today sent reiterations of her denial of intimacy with Ellsworth Bassett, her business manager, and an assertion that she had originally hired Bassett as her chauffeur on the solicitation of Mrs. Bassett, whom she desired to help.

Reclining on her bed, tears streaming down her face and her body shaking with sobs, the novelist first made her vigorous denials, then, yielding to hysterical nervousness, half screamed: "I am being persecuted."

Mrs. Sanderson said she applied for a divorce in Providence, to escape notoriety.

"My whole idea has been to protect Mr. Sanderson," she said. "I did not want to say anything that would hurt him. I appreciate his silence in this matter very much. I tried to bring it about in a way that would hurt neither him nor me. I would not take so desperate a step as divorce unless it was inescapable."

New York, Jan. 8—The Federal Council of Churches of America has aligned itself behind American German relief movements and has unreservedly endorsed the proposed $70,-000,000 government food credit bill, heads of the council announced tonight.

The council claims to represent 100,000 Protestant churches in the United States, with a membership exceeding 20,000,000.

Reports on the situation in Germany, based on investigations by Dr. Ernest Lyman Mills, superintendent of Methodist-Episcopal Sunday school work in Europe, soon will be sent to all Federal Council agencies for dissemination among church congregations, who will be urged to support financially various campaigns to provide relief from Germany's post-war ills.

Besides conducting campaigns for individual church funds for denominational relief in Germany, the Federal Council will collect money for expenditure through channels now used by the American Committee for Relief of German children, which is headed by Major General Henry T. Allen, commander of American occupational forces on the Rhine. This committee's relief means are being distributed in Germany by the Society of Friends.

Dr. Mills has just returned to New York after four and a half years in Europe. At the request of the Federal Council several months ago he traveled through the Ruhr and into Berlin, studying the situation of the whole German people.

Dortmund, Duesseldorf, Essen and surrounding cities and towns, he said, were in extreme need of assistance.

"SUCKER MACHINES" USED BY ECLECTIC PHYSICIAN

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 8.—Summary action was again taken by the grand jury investigating qualifications of practitioners and their diplomas today when Marvin F. Adelman, of this city, who has had an office as a chiropractic, was ordered to close his office. He had been summoned to appear before the jury and was in the room only fifteen minutes. Adelman is said to have used in his practice an electrical machine which generated colored lights and for which were claimed special virtues in the treatment of diseases. Adelman was once convicted in the police court for violation of the state medical practice act and fined $100 and costs.

Early in the grand jury probe evidence was presented relating to machines used by certain practitioners in their treatments given to patients and some of these had been designated as "sucker machines." The grand jury had undertaken to inquire into the use of such machines.

During the day fourteen doctors, most of them of the eclectic school were witnesses before the grand jury under subpoenas.

GUARDSMEN ORDERED OUT TO COPE WITH "DRY" RAIDERS

In Three Raids in Less Than Three Weeks in Marion, Ill., 212 Persons Have Been Arrested For Alleged Violations of the Dry Law—Troops Were Called Because the Action of the Raiders Has "Assumed the Proportions of Mob Violence—One Resort Was Burned During the Raid—Friends of One Young Raider Appeared in Court With Two Machine Guns "For Protection."

Marion, Ills., Jan. 8—(By the A. P.)—Three companies of national guardsmen ordered out today for duty here by Adjutant General Carlos Black at Springfield, arrived late today. The town was quiet tonight.

The troops were sent at the request of George Galligan, who advised Adjutant General Black that he feared rioting might break out as a result of the "bootleggers" war.

In three raids in less than three weeks, the last of which was last night, when a score of men were arrested, 212 persons have been arrested for alleged violation of the dry law.

The raids have been conducted by federal agents assisted by hundreds of deputized citizens, many of them admittedly members of the Ku Klux Klan. A counter organization to the klan, known as the Knights of the Flaming Circle, sprung up six months ago, shortly after klan organizers appeared in Williamson County.

The raids have been conducted without the knowledge of Sheriff Galligan, who is sick with tonsilitis. He explained he requested troops merely as a precaution.

Deputy Sheriff John Layman, however, stated the call for troops was because the actions of the raiders has "assumed the proportions of mob violence."

Then trouble was feared, it was said, over the trial of S. Glenn Young, dry worker, which began in justice court today. Young is charged with assault. He appeared in court today with a large assemblage of friends, who carried two machine guns, "for protection." Young is alleged to have struck Paul Corder with a revolver two weeks ago in an argument over the raids.

There has been considerable activity in dry raids in Williamson county, scene of the Herrin Mine killings, since last fall. In October, prohibition agents from East St. Louis raided a number of stills.

On Dec. 22 one hundred and thirty six persons were arrested in raids, in which members of the klan participated. Four persons were shot. Otis Clark, one of the defendants acquitted in the Herrin Mine trials, was one of those arrested. These raids followed a trip of a number of citizens to Washington where a demand was made that the county be "cleaned up." The places raided included resorts, gasoline filling stations, private homes and soft drink parlors. All liquor found was confiscated, as was gambling paraphernalia found in some of the resorts.

Last Saturday night fifty-six persons were arrested in raids and one resort was burned.

One resort was burned in last night's raid.

INVESTORS DECEIVED BY GLASS CASKET COMPANY

New York, Jan. 8.—Charges that spurious offers were made to stockholders of the Glass Casket company to induce them to buy additional shares in the hope of realizing enormous profits, were made by government prosecutors today at the trial of forty defendants, officers and employes of four stock selling concerns, charged with using the mails to defraud.

Letters from fictitious firms to thousands of investors, mostly Pennsylvania working men, offering to buy their shares for several times their value, it was said, would be followed by visits from stock salesmen, soliciting more stock subscriptions.

With the prospect of unloading it at a much higher price, the stockholder would take the entire allotment, discovering too late that he could not dispose of it. Some stockholders, persuaded to hold their shares, even were mulcted a second time, buying more stock on the representation they would be elected directors, the prosecutors alleged.

Three officials of the Crager System, Inc., which directed most of the stock selling operations, pleaded guilty yesterday.

The forty placed on trial today were mostly salesmen for the Crager System, J. E. Dorn & Co., A. B. Heim & Co. and Lester Armstrong & Co. Fifteen others have not yet been arrested, and two have forfeited bail.

$20,000 SUIT AGAINST JAMES P. STOW OF MIDDLETOWN

Middletown, Jan. 8.—Papers in a suit for $20,000 were served today on James P. Stow, city clerk, alleging that Stow, as trustee of his father's estate, wrongfully used the avails therefrom to pay debts chargeable against the income of the estate of his father, Asa B. Stow, who died March 8, 1898. The suit was instituted by Stow's sister-in-law, Mrs. Isabelle Stow and her four children.

The father's estate is said to have been worth $60,000 of which $40,700 was in real estate. According to the writ Stow was given the power to sell provided that he reinvested the proceeds in real estate or loans upon good first mortgage securities.

It was understood here today that property in Stow's name has been attached. The case is returnable in the superior court the first Tuesday in February.

FRENCH AND BELGIAN NOTES ARE IN ACCORD

Paris, Jan. 8—(By the A. P.)—The replies of the Frenc hand Belgian governments to the recent note of Germany requesting a discussion of administrative and economic questions connected with the occupied territories, have been drafted. They are said in official circles to be in full accord as to substance, though differing somewhat in method. Both notes are regarded as leaving the door wide open for a continuance of conversations with The Berlin government if the Germans so desire.

M. Poincare's text was submitted to the cabinet today and is understood to have received unanimous approval. Some retouching may be necessary in both the French and Belgian texts in order to bring them more into agreement as to terms, though it is said positively there is no disagreement as to fundamental points.

PLAINVILLE IN DARKNESS DURING SHORT CIRCUIT

Bristol, Jan. 8.—A short circuit in the power house of the Plainville Electric company left this city in complete darkness for over an hour early tonight. The power failed shortly before five o'clock, forcing factories to close and trolley service to be suspended. Lights in stores and homes were fixed about 6.30 o'clock and repairmen were working on the lines then in an endeavor to complete repairs on the street lights.

CLEAN-UP OF PHILADELPHIA PROCEEDING WITH DISPATCH

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—Spurred into action by the orders of Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, new director of public safety, for a "clean-up" of the city within forty-eight hours, the police this afternoon raided 27 cider saloons, padlocked their doors, and arrested the alleged proprietors when they attempted to spill the contents of jugs.

Tonight the police planned a smashing attack against disorderly houses. Lieutenant Holton, in charge of the squad, declared that he would lead his men through the tenderloin district armed with axes and that if necessary the doors of disorderly houses would be battered down.

Moonshine whiskey and other liquors were said to have been found in many of the places visited today, but in the majority of the cases there were neither proprietors, bar-tenders nor customers.

It was stated at city hall that most of the large gamblers had been driven to cover.

Director Butler and Mayor Kendrick told 2,000 members of the force at the Metropolitan Opera House what they expected of them.

General Butler said that only this morning he had been offered "a $100,-000 bribe for the handbook privilege, or permission to take race bets, without interference from the police."

He said that two police district in the city were running "wide open" and declared that if they were not cleaned up by this time, tomorrow, the lieutenants are going to be busted."

TO PLACE HOSPITAL IN HANDS OF RECEIVERS

Bridgeport, Jan. 7.—Columbus hospital, whose founder and chief of staff, Dr. Pasquale Romeo, had his license revoked recently by the eclectic examining board, following on the grand jury medical probe, is to be placed in the hands of receivers prior to complete reorganization, it was stated here today.

The decision followed the withhold ing of the state appropriation of $10,-000, only $1,250 of which has been received. The failure of the second installment, due January 1, last, and the report that its founder has withdrawn his financial support made this action necessary. The meeting at which the decision was taken, followed the receipt of news that Dr. Romeo had fled to Europe and was not likely to return for some time.

LEADING N. Y. BANKERS PICTURE BRIGHT FUTURE

New York, Jan. 8.—Heads of a score of banking houses painted a bright future in addresses today at the annual meetings of stockholders of their institutions. Except for a few minor changes in directors, none of the share holders' meetings effected any big departure in the management of the larger banks for the year 1924.

Declaring that the American public during the period immediately following the close of the World war, over emphasized the importance of Europe to American business, James S. Alexander, chairman of the board of the National Bank of Commerce, said that the 1924 outlook points to a continuance of "ample supplies of credit at reasonable and fairly stable rates—a condition favorable to prosperity."

SLASHING PRICES OF BEER IN GERMANY

Gelsenkirchen, Germany, Jan. 8.—Falling off in the consumption of beer has brought a slashing of prices, one beer hall proprietor today announcing that a glass of the amber brew would henceforth sell for ten pfennings, or about 2 1-2 cents, which is the same as was charged before the war.

The reduction in price is causing much joy among the 100,000 coal miners and other workers in this district of the Ruhr.

DUTCH BANKER HAS BEEN EXPELLED FROM FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 8.—(By the A. P.)Henry Ruyzen, a Dutch banker, who was ordered expelled from France by the minister of the interior because he was charged with spreading alarmist statements in financial circles and repeating them on the Bourse, was conducted to the frontier this afternoon by the police.

BOY'S TERRIFYING EXPERIENCE WITH A MADMAN IN EAST KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Danielson, Jan. 8.—Edward Pinkham, a boy of about 16 years of age resident in East Killingly, faced the horrible prospect Tuesday night of being forced to dig his own grave while the mad man who was his captor, stood by ready to murder him. Seizing an opportune moment Pinkham avoided the terrible fate by taking a lusty swing with a shovel at his captor, Everett Harrington, and knocked him unconscious. The boy then raced away to give the alarm and in a few minutes state police from the local barracks were on a hunt for Harrington, but had not located him up to midnight.

Harrington is insane and for a long time had been a patient at the Norwich state hospital. His mother is resident here and he had been about the town since the middle of December.

Tuesday afternoon Harrington was at East Killingly and induced young Pinkham to accompany him on a mission that was to take them to a camp where a portable sawmill had been located in the Mashentuck district. Pinkham said that they went mostly through the woods and when in the rear of the reservoir between Danielson and East Killingly, Harrington suddenly seized him, felled him to the ground and, while choking him with one hand, brandished a hatchet and told him that he was about to cut him up. He seemed to change his mind about this, however, and dragged the boy to his feet, then forcing him to go along a trail of several miles through the woods, finally coming out near the Frank Davis property about a mile and a half above Danielson.

Pinkham said that Harrington watched the automobile traffic on the state road until there was a good change to cross without being seen and then ordered the boy ahead of him across the road, threatening to shoot him if he tried to escape. The pair then crossed through fields, to the ball grounds above the Connecticut mills, then over the railroad track to the river. On the bank of the stream Harrington pointed out a hunting box and told Pinkham that it was an instrument of torture.

By this time darkness had come on and Harrington forced Pinkham along into Westfield cemetery, where the mad man unlocked the tool house with a skeleton key and selected a shovel, a pickaxe and a crowbar.

Giving the boy a shovel he ordered him through the south section of the cemetery, across the back road, leading to Goodyear and then into a lonely lane, leading to the Quinebaug river, where Harrington said he had a cave and where he purposed to finish Pinkham. It was in this lane that Pinkham crashed the shovel down on Harrington's head and knocked him out.

When the state police arrived there they found the snow all kicked about by Harrington's efforts to get to his feet and then tracked them back to the road where the trail was lost. The state police continued to search for him until after midnight but without finding a trace.

Sergeant Albert Field of the state police issued a request for officers and citizens to be on the lookout for Harrington today as he was an extremely dangerous character. He is between 26 and 36 years of age, about 5 feet 10 and weighs around 160 pounds. He is light complexioned. He is wearing dark trousers with a pronounced light stripe, laced hunting boots, a sweater that formerly buttoned but has been sewed up the front to make a slip-on and a cap.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1042

An account appeared in Tuesday morning's issue of The Bulletin of the spectacular capture of a Ford coupe and the escape of another car of the same make, in this city, late Monday night. The catch was made by Lieutenant McLean and Officer William Hurley, after word had been received that the two cars were wanted for violation of the traffic law in South Manchester. Before the story went to press the captured Ford had been searched quite thoroughly but another search made later on in the night disclosed over one hundred bottles of Canadian wine cleverly hidden under the seat and back of the car. The liquor was confiscated by the police and the driver, James W. Gilbert of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and Providence, R. I., was charged with transporting liquor without a permit. At the session of police court Tuesday morning he threw himself on the mercy of the court and was given a fine of $200 and costs and a fifteen-day suspended jail sentence, the fine being the largest ever imposed by the local court on a rum runner. The seizure of liquor was the first of its kind in over a year in this city. Gilbert said that both cars were on a trip to Providence with a shipment of wine. After he has made his settlement with the local authorities, Gilbert will be taken to Manchester, to answer to a charge of violating the traffic laws there. The Ford was registered in the name of Mile E. Elwell of High Rock avenue, Saratoga Springs, and was equipped with markers only last Monday. The state police barracks in Danielson were notified to be on the look-out for the other Ford which nearly ran over the two local officers and went speeding in the direction of that town. It is believed, however, that it succeeded in running the gauntlet, as no word has been received from the barracks.

Funeral services for Egbert Bass were held Tuesday afternoon, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, 226 Church street. Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead officiated. Relatives acted as bearers. The arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

Richard E. Dodge, who is invariably on the spot when the roll call is read at each meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club, was the cause of the defeat which "Val" Murphy's team suffered in the recently closed attendance contest. There is no loss of credit, however, on Dick's part for failing to attend the meeting which would have tied the two teams. Dick happened to be out in Ohio at the time. He wired and telephoned to various cities in four surrounding states in a vain attempt to locate a club which would hold a meeting where he could make up his attendance. Dick missed them all and he returned here bearing the stigma of responsibility, President "Jim" Mustard's team had thirteen absentees and "Val's" had fourteen. The above facts were made known at the regular meeting of the club Tuesday noon, by Secretary Charley Hill, who also acted as referee in the attendance contest. Members of the defeated aggregation questioned "Charley's" validity as a referee but were fully satisfied that he was on the square when they were informed that he himself was to be one of the contributors for the banquet given to the winners. With all due respect to the losers of the contest, it was moved that they furnish the banquet on the evening of Tuesday, April 1st, April Fools' Day.

There were three absentees at the meeting Tuesday. "Bill" Slater of the New Haven club, a former member of the Connecticut Agricultural College faculty, and George Slawick, of Stafford Springs, were guests of the club. "Tosie O'Reilly," one of the latest comers to be adopted by Rotary circles, was put through an initiation course by the Club Quartet, John F. Ahern, Raymond A. Parker, Marry W. Standish and Henry Congdon.

A letter was read from Miss Loretta Higgins of Norwich, noted soprano, in which she stated that she would be pleased to appear in a concert here under the auspices of the Rotary Club, under the condition that the high school auditorium can be secured the recital will be held early in February. Although the tickets will be sold at a low price they will be limited to the capacity of the hall.

A communication was read from Regional Scout Executive H. A. Berry in regard to the merging of a Willimantic Scout council with the one now existing in Norwich. Executive Berry suggested that this would be the better course to follow and that the double council go under one name. He asked that the members of the club assist in a campaign to raise $1,500 in the furtherance of this work. The matter was turned over to the board of directors.

A letter of thanks was read from Miss Ruth Webber, in acknowledgment of the receipt of a box of chocolates from the members.

After some argument it was proven that the Business Methods committee was still in existence and upon a suggestion made by "Val" Murphy it was voted that the committee be in charge of the meeting to be held in two weeks.

President Mustard asked that the "On to New Britain" committee continue its propaganda in the interests of the spring conference to be held there April 3 and 4.

The regular session was followed by a meeting of the board of directors.

A protest was received Tuesday from John Ryan, whose home in Lebanon was raided by State Police officers last Sunday, that errors had been made in the account of the affair, which appeared in Tuesday morning's Bulletin. According to the story the place was raided at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Ryan claims it was at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Mr. Ryan pleaded guilty to the charge of keeping liquor, but not to the charges of keeping with intent to sell and reputation of keeping. He was fined a total of $200, as stated. A thirty-day jail sentence was imposed and suspended due to an illness from which Mr. Ryan is now suffering. Mr. Ryan denies that a well fitted out gambling and bootlegging establishment had been found by the officers. Although it is true that there were several barrels of cider and wine in the cellar of the house, Mr. Ryan says he never made any special provision for dispensing of this liquor. There was no special equipment for selling liquor or for gambling purposes, according to his statements.

MAYOR DION'S APPOINTMENTS ALL CONFIRMED BY COUNCIL

Willimantic, Jan. 8.—A special meeting of the common council was held Tuesday evening and the heads of the various city departments were appointed upon recommendations of Mayor Hormisdas Dion. That the results of the appointments was of general interest was attested by the large gathering of citizens in the gallery. The meeting was opened with the reading of Mayor Dion's message in which he offered several recommendations which, it is said, would conduce greater efficiency and economy in the management of the municipal government. He advised that the superintendents of the streets and of sewers be combined on the grounds that neither of the departments is so incompatible that the duties of both cannot be united and efficiently performed by one and the same person.

It was also deemed advisable to use crushed native rock in the construction of the city's streets. The mayor further recommended that the percentage for collection of taxes and assessments be fixed at one-half the amount previously allowed. In regards to the increasing demands upon the water supply, it has been stated that it has been found necessary to operate the the machinery a great deal and that as a result the installation of a new steam pump and a new water wheel cannot be delayed much longer. The introduction of a steam operating traveling crane would greatly increase the efficiency and working capacity of the station. In concluding Mayor Dion asked for the cooperation and assistance of the board in making the incoming administration a thoroughly business one in all matters concerning the city's interests. To that purpose Mayor Dion pledged his best endeavors.

The following appointments were then recommended and unanimously confirmed by the common council: Corporation counsel, Thomas J. Kelley; inspector of plumbing, William D. Kelly; collector of taxes and assessments, Alfred J. Lariviere; superintendent of streets, George M. Flint; superintendent of water works, Henderson S. Moulton, (present incumbent); superintendent of pumping station at Mansfield, Willard N. Bowen, (present incumbent); superintendent of sewers, to be recommended by the sewer committee. Upon a motion by Alderman Lee, it was resolved to further confirm the positions of chief engineer of the fire department, James J. Tighe and assistant chief Henry J. Kelley. These positions were made permanent by a special amendment enacted by the last legislature. The assistant engineers appointed were Frank M. Lincoln, James Rowan and Thomas Moran; fire police, Lyman Maine, Thomas Kelly, James Moriarty, Joseph Beaulieu, Henry Desormeaux and Antonio Ghracca. Dr. W. P. S. Keating was reappointed city health officer. The ordinance committee was appointed as follows: Mayor Hormisdas Dion, Aldermen George W. Hickey, Pierre J. Laramee, Eugene B. Lewis and Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelly.

Before adjournment, Mayor Dion thanked the members of the council for the excellent support which they had given him in his appointments.

MORE VALUE
~ than in any closed car!

New Four Door Sedan $1395

F. O. B. Cleveland

—This Cleveland type was great value at $1545.

More impressive than ever is the new 1924 model at $1395.

For 1924, Cleveland announces the biggest closed car values ever offered to the public.

Two new sedans are presented at prices heretofore never achieved by any builder of quality sixes: $1295 for the 5 passenger sedan; and $1395 for the luxurious four door model.

Bodies by Fisher

The bodies which reflect Fisher's unmistakable mastery in the coach builder's art, represent a welcome departure from the makeshift construction that many manufacturers are satisfied to sponsor.

Thirteen painting operations produce a deep, rich, enduring color finish. Carefully selected plush, beautiful and long wearing, is used for upholstering. The seats are deep, soft, loungelike, and restful. Generous interior dimensions and skillful seating arrangement preclude the crowding so frequently experienced in sedans of moderate price.

Performance Supremacy

Even though they carry the lowest prices ever placed on enclosed cars of similar specifications, Cleveland 1924 sedans are notable for the performance supremacy produced by the new Cleveland motor.

Its extra power in the driving range is responsible for amazing performance brilliance. No light six equals or even compares with the Cleveland's thrilling speed on hills or its alert, smooth, silent response to the accelerator in traffic.

Do not fail to see these dominant closed cars! Combining the sound appeal of a rugged chassis, the attraction of smart, modern lines and the charm of spacious interiors luxuriously finished, they merit the single inspection that will reveal the matchless values they offer!

When the United States revenue cutter Manhattan on last Saturday sighted the British steamer John Calvert, 10 miles of the Shrewsbury Rocks on the coast of New Jersey, lights were extinguished. When they were flashed on again two motor boats were seen in the steamer's lee, as she lay in Rum Row loading contraband liquors. From one of the motor boats a man scrambled up onto the steamer's deck and then both boats started to leave the steamship. When no attention was paid to Lt. Com. Ryan of the Manhattan when he ordered the boats to stop, a solid shot was fired across the bow of one of the boats and the engines of both motor boats were stopped. Boarding the motorboat, from which a man was seen leaving for the steam ship, 36 cases of liquor were found, mostly whiskey, the two men giving their names as Joseph Supenski and Sylvestro Kenzia, both of Leonardo, N. J. The owner of the boat, said to be Anton Kenzie, left on the steamer and could not be taken as he was on a foreign craft. It is said that the assistant keeper at one time of the Watch Hill light, whose name was Sylvester Kenzie, left Watch Hill for Leonardo, N. J., and that he may be the man who gave the name of Sylvestro Kenzie, and after being landed at the Burge office, New York, now awaits arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Edwin Stanton of Hoboken. The other boat contained no liquors but all the men were taken to New York.

CLEAN AND WHOLESOME ENTERTAINMENT AT PALACE

That the Marty Dupree show is all that has been claimed for it is evidenced by capacity houses which have been very much in evidence since its opening show Monday afternoon. A review was given in this paper yesterday, but a short synopsis of the individual work of the artists who are with this show warrants a word of praise for the excellent manner in which they do real brain work. No one trying to gather individual glory but all working to make the show a real success which it is in every sense of the word. The company is to remain the balance of the week and will offer a complete change of program, introducing new song hits dance numbers; in fact a different show entirely than the one they are now playing, without a repeat of any description. A novelty offering is in order for on Friday night, which will be termed Garter Night; a genuine surprise will be given, something you have never seen before, and one that is a positive riot of laughter. To tell about it would be to spoil the fun, but if you want to have the real laugh of your life do not miss seeing this special offering, for Friday is going to be the night of fun.

DODGE BROTHERS ESTABLISH NEW PRODUCTION MARK

One million cars built and sold in the first nine years and eleven days of production.

This is the latest achievement of Dodge Brothers, Detroit, who thereby add another to their long list of automobile contributions to the automobile industry.

It is a world's record.

No other manufacturer, according to official figures shown by Dodge Brothers executives in support of their contentions, has achieved the one million mark so soon after the completion of his first car.

Dodge Brothers began production on December 4, 1914, car No. 1,000,000 rolled off the final assembly line December 13, 1923—9 years and 11 days later.

Strong public demand has given a constant impetus to Dodge Brothers production from the very start. At the outset they were oversold—and have been ever since, despite enlargements which have converted a factory of some 20 acres of floor space into a great industrial city employing 20,000 men and having a floor space of more than 50 acres. Only a few months ago a large new assembly plant was placed in operation, increasing plant capacity to approximately 1,000 cars a day and placing Dodge Brothers in a better position than ever before to build their share of the huge output scheduled for 1924.

While factory officials are pleased at the attainment of the one million mark in so brief a period, they attach far greater importance to the fact that more than 90 per cent. of the first million cars are still in service. This is the point that interests the public, they maintain, for it is emphatic evidence that quality production has always had preference over quantity production in Dodge Brothers Works, even when the most hectic measures were being adopted to increase plant capacity to meet the increasing demand.

BREED THEATRE

Mae Murray in "Fashion Row," her new Tiffany production for Metro release will be the stellar attraction at the Breed Theatre today. Written for Miss Murray by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin, "Fashion Row" gives the popular Metro star the interesting dual role of two sisters.

One of them is the famous Olga Farinova, toast of Broadway, and the other is a grubby little Russian peasant girl named Zita, who comes to America to find her sister. On the immigrant steamer Zita meets a minister figure named Kaminoff. To Kaminoff she shows a photograph of her sister and its unmistakable resemblance to a dancing girl he once knew in a Russian dive brings back to Kaminoff bitter memories. So he plans to make Zita the instrument of his revenge, and in New York quarters her on the East Side with Papa and Mama Levitsky.

Olga Farinova, meanwhile, has given up her stage career to marry young Eric Van Corland, son of one of Knickerbecker's oldest and most aristocratic families. The couple plan a Russian masked ball on the Van Corland estate, and so that the party may have a real Russian flavor, Jimmy Morton, who is Eric's friend, goes to the Levitsky's to procure real vodka. He meets Zita and is suspicious of her resemblance to Olga.

What transpires in the following scenes is said to make "Fashion Row" one of the most exciting romances of the season. Earle Foxe, Freeman Wood, Mathilde Brundage and Elmo Lincoln are prominently cast. "Fashion Row" was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, director general of Tiffany Productions, of which M. A. Hoffman is general manager. Oliver T. Marsh photographed the production, and Horace Jackson was art director.

Other pictures on the bill include the Fox news and an Educational comedy. Enlarged orchestra every evening.

KREISLER

Of Fritz Kreisler, who comes to New London January 14, to give the third concert in the Connecticut College Series, one who has been enthralled by his art a great many times can subscribe wholeheartedly to the following quotation from one of the country's foremost musical reviewers.

"As a personality, as musician, as violinist, Mr. Kreisler wins his vast and varied public in the concert hall he is sincerity itself, bent wholly upon the music in hand, quietly resolved to play it in the full measure of his abilities, courteously considerate of the desires of his hearers, so long as he can keep his own true standards. Quickly, by the mysterious communication between a great artist and his audience, it perceives and feels the fineness, the poise, the power of Mr. Kreisler as personality. As musician he reveals himself, first by the choice of the program that ranges from grave to beautiful and exacting ancient classics through warm and rich romantic numbers to light, fanciful items inviting many a delicate dexterity. As musician again he plays every one of these pieces with rare sense of its particular quality and style, treating the design, governing the mood [illegible] ty, at once sustained a d plastic, sensitive to whatever shading by suggestion he would lay upon it—the voice in perfection of the violin, the music and the artist.

DANIELSON

"The Bulletin's representation on behalf of important interests and business interests as to permanently paving that section of the business center near the railroad station was just to the point," said a well known citizen, Tuesday—well known citizen being used because there are some people who do not like publicity, "but the statement should have gone a bit further and advocated paving that section of the business center just west of the tracks and covering what may be termed a triangular space fronting the Bodoin and Burrows properties, where a great deal of business is done each year and where there is much traffic". The amendment is accepted. And it may be stated this morning that the proposed improvement is not too much to hope for this year—providing the radio-voiced non-taxpayers and chronic kickers do not get in to block the plan, fearing that Danielson, in the course of events, may be more attractive as a place of residence than Podunk.

Which calls to mind that some lecturers, catching an audience where they can, are howling their heads off—non-taxpayers again—because the selectmen finally decided to rent the town hall for $200 for a period of one year. For the benefit of all the people who hear this propaganda—all business on the side, by the way, and by non-taxpayers, by the way—it may be recalled that the selectmen gave due legal notice by publication that the town hall was to be leased and set forth specifically, under what terms. Anyone was entitled to bid. The selectmen reserved the righ to reject any and all bids. They received only one. After due consideration they decided to accept it.

Now those who would not risk a dime to win the entire United States are orating on the subject. They would bid if they could get the hall for five or ten years. In fact, they are perfectly willing to admit they would buy the United States Military academy at West Point and the services of all the future generals there, with Annapolis also considered, if you would only let them know late in 1923 just what is going to happen in August, 1926. They want protection, but don't ask them to risk any money in advance for it.

Anybody can be a Napoleon—providing Napoleons are turned out as fast as film runs, per inch, through a projection machine.

There can be no legitimate kick about the town hall. The whole world was entitled to bid. Only one solitary offer was received. As has been blithely said, what the public wants is its prescriptions written in English and filled in Scotch, but that particular thing isn't happening just now—and is not likely to in the near future.

Nothing was "put over" in the town hall lease. It was an open and above board proceeding. Whoever bid was entitled to bid a million or twenty cents. If $200 won when there was not another bid, why try to make propaganda out of it? That is what the average man would like to know.

All of which should stir the writers of anonymous letters to another period of activity.

It may as well be said now as at any other time, that the next annual town meeting should be the hour when the town hall should finally and definitely be taken out of what may be termed politics. Killingly is prosperous enough and progressive enough to reserve its town hall entirely for town purposes—town meetings, caucuses, party rallies, educational functions, graduation exercises and the like. Remove it entirely from the field of competition with business enterprises that represent heavy investments and are entitled to every protection. There isn't any good reason, after all, why a Killingly High school basketball team or any other school athletic team should, through its management, be called upon to pay rental, as is the case this year. The town hall is more or less a discredit to the town—as to its upkeep—today, but it never will be different so long as things drift along as they have for the past few years. An owner of a home does not, as a rule, try to make a guest room pay a profit. Likewise, Killingly, in the opinion of many citizens, should reserve its town hall exclusively for town purposes. This may entail giving the high school a suitable gymnasium—to which the school is entitled in the light of modern progress—but it might well be worth the money invested. The Smithsonian Institute at Washington, the New York Museum of Natural History, the Metropolitan Academy of Art and the Boston Public Library were not built for a profit. But they are wonderful things to the people, as might be, in a minor way, a finely appointed town hall here and a high school gymnasium so appointed as to mean something to all who have a real, anchored interest in the town of Killingly.

A town hall with shattered blinds, broken windows, streaked ceilings and walls isn't a real good advertisement for Killingly. Maybe tahe town will say at the annual meeting next fall that no one can lease it at any price. If the meeting will do this, there will be a mighty chorus joining in the "Amen". There need be no moral issue about it. Just a straight business proposition.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Windham County National bank, held Tuesday, the members of the present board of directors were re-elected. These directors will meet later for organization. This bank had an exceedingly prosperous year during 1923, a year in the second century of its existence, and reports excellent business in the opening days of 1924.

Just after 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, the fire department was called out for a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. William Myers, at the upper extremity of Railroad street. Chief A. P. Woodward answered a call in his car and, with a driver, extinguished the blaze. There was no damage.

A competitive examination to fill the position of clerk and carrier at the Danielson postoffice will be held here on January 19. Salaries for regular employes range from $1,400 to $1,800 per annum. Further information relative to the examination may be obtained from the district secretary at Danielson.

Trying to operate under 1923 registration plates is not a joyful operation this year. An instance has come to light in which, it is related, an owner of a car was backing the machine out of the garage, in a nearby town this week, just as a state police officer happened along. Spying the officer, the driver of the car rushed it righ back into its storage place, like a woodchuck going for its hole when a hunter is in sight. This as matters should be. If one man pays for his registration on time, there is no reason in the world why some other man should operate through any part of the new year on last year's numbers. Everyone knows the law—or should.

Tonight (Wednesday) the Stonington High school basketball team comes to Danielson to try conclusions with the Killingly High team. It should be a great game. As they all are—or promise to be. In any event, Stonington will be something of a strange team battling here for supremacy over Killingly High, and this fact alone, aside from the sprotsmanship of the occasion, is likely to figure in attracting a large attendance.

A new and strange team offers unlimited possibilities. It arouses curiosity. Possibly Stonington has a great team. Killingly is very good. On the home floor the home team should do well—without any favors shown—and the fans will be on hand to see the powerful organization that Killingly has this year, in action against a team from a town where history has been made. Perhaps it may prove another battle of Stonington, fought out in Killingly. Hats will be off to the visitors if they win.

For the men who have leisure and like the sport—and the number that will endure the hardship of unlimited hiking and the cold and the waiting, this is a great period for the fox hunters. The enthusiasts are out about every day. With them the sport is not so much in getting reynard as in giving him a run for his money—if he knows anything about such a source of evil. They have a good time whether they nail his pelt to the barn door—or maybe garage door in these days—or whether they just have a day in the open with the lung filling exercise attendant upon the long drills over hill and dale, wherever the baying hounds may lead. If they get a fox, they mention it to a friend, though there is no blare of trumpets, but if they do not, that is a mere incident and will be, so long as foxes are out there to be chased and there are men and dogs and guns to use in going after them.

PUTNAM

At the criminal session of the superior court here Tuesday, Judge George E. Hinman, presiding, Joseph Larrow Jr., Leo Plant and Arthur Randolph were charged with stealing liquors at the home of Dorothy Beebe in Thompson a few weeks ago. Two other boys Leodore Lepire and Theodore Boulay arrested on the same complaint had their cases nolled after it was stated that they were not concerned in the break although they stopped at the place with Plant the night of Armistice Day. When Plant rattled a door trying to enter and a pane of glass broke, Lepire and Boulay said it was getting too serious and would have nothing more to do with it and called Plant off.

Later Plant, with Larrow and Randolph, went back to the Beebe house, entered the cellar, and cleaned out the stock of wines and liquors. As Plant had been there before, it was thought that he was the leader and he was sentenced to four months in jail while Larrow and Randolph got off with three months each. It was stated that none of the boys had been in any kind of trouble before.

Alexander Dougherty of Plainfield pleaded guilty to a sale of intoxicating liquor. State's Attorney Searls said that Dougherty is a well known Plainfield man. Not only is he known there, said the state's attorney, but he thought he must be very popular, from the amount of pressure that had been brought to bear on the state's attorney's office. He said the case came up on appeal and the defendant had admitted his guilt. The pressure had been extreme on him, (the attorney,) to do something he thought he ought no tto do. In all cases he had asked the court to impose a all sentence and he thought Dougherty should be made to see the inside of a all.

Attorney Torrey spoke for Dougherty, saying that he was arraigned in the lower court with several others on like charges and that the others had been let off with fines and jail sentences are suspended. He said the case arose before the general procedure had been to ask for jail sentences and he therefore thought the case stood on a different plane. Judge Hinman said he would take the case under advisement.

Steve Kalis of Southbridge, a baker, was charged with transporting liquor and pleaded guilty. It was stated that three quarts were found in the defendant's wagon, when searched in North Grosvenordale. A fine of $200 and thirty days in jail was the sentence.

Stanley R. Evans, 17, was charged with stoning a horse which was out to pasture in the town of Woodstock. He pleaded guilty and was given a four months' jail sentence. The execution of the sentence was suspended and the boy was placed in the custody of his employer, N. E. Andrews of Woodstock, as probation officer.

Urgele Charbonneau, of North Grosvenordale, was present after the noon recess and pleaded guilty to transporting liquor. He was fined $100 and sentenced to six months in jail.

Judge Hinman then asked that Alexander Dougherty be presented. The court said he had given careful consideration to the case and had further investigated it through the state's attorney. In one or two features he found this case different from the other cases recently disposed of. In the first place, the October cases were on bench warrants, without any action in the lower court. Counsel had urged that this case arose previous to these other cases, but that hasn't a controlling influence.

The disposition of the other cases in the same campaign where jail sentences were suspended are not quite understandable. He did not understand why the discrimination was made. He had learned that the justice who tried the cases had made an attempt to modify the sentence, but was without power to do so. This made it appear that he was of the opinion that he had erred in his discrimination. While the court does not usually feel like overruling a sentence by a Justice court, this is not overruling the Justice's opinion, arrived at after reflection. It also appears somewhat that the defendant has gone out of the business and expressed an intention to go out. He must remove all evidences of any bar room stfi remaining in his hotel.

Dougherty told the court that he had removed the bar five or six weeks ago, but the back bar remained. He said he could remove this within five or six hours.

The court then imposed a sentence of 30 days in jail with execution suspended and a fine of $200.

Herewith is presented the fire record for Putnam, for 1923. As usual the majority of alarms called out the firemen, at all times of day and night, to answer calls resulting chiefly from the negligence of those responsible for the proper care and protection of property. There were a few heavy losses here during the past year, notably the fire that destroyed the Dunogue block on Washington's birthday, but on the whole and as compared to the total valuation of property withing the city the loss was very moderate.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

DEATHS FROM MOTOR VEHICLES

During the past year there were 255 persons killed by automobiles in the state of Connecticut. This record was made at a time when there were in it the largest number of automobiles the state ever licensed and probably the largest number of cars from other states.

Deaths from autos have not increased as rapidly as the motor vehicles have increased in number, and yet we are confronted with the unfortunate situation that because of the motor vehicles 255 persons lost their lives last year, a greater number by 26 than the year before, and this in spite of the fact that persistent endeavors have been made to bring about a reduction of that recklessness on the part of drivers and the lack of care on the part of both drivers and other users of the highways which show why so many accidents and fatalities result.

How long is it going to be necessary to average a death on the highways of the state almost every day in order to bring about that increased care in the operation of motor vehicles, and that willingness to stop, look and listen on the part of all highway users, that will show a reduction instead of an increase?

There is no indication that the number of motor vehicles is going to grow less. Everything points to the contrary. The gain in registration of 31 per cent last year is likely to be equalled or excelled this year, meaning that the danger in the streets of the city and the roads of the country will be just that much greater.

The time has come when it is useless to belittle the dangers of the highway or the importance of each and everyone contributing his part to assure increased safety. Regard for rules and regulations, respect for the rights of others, law enforcement, elimination of the practice of taking chances and speeding are necessary. When there is a greater willingness to drive under what might be termed the Golden Rule of the highways there will be less fatalities even though the number of autos increase. Is it too much to expect any such reaction?

THE OLD LOUISIANA.

When it was disclosed that the old battleship Louisiana was adrift it was anticipated that there would be those who would put the responsibility up to the navy department and seek an inquiry, those who would complain against the policy of scrapping the ships and those who would hold the government negligent for permitting such a storm to arise as the Louisiana encountered.

We are not disappointed. Breaking away "from her tow" is interestingly pictured as a protest against the attempt to utilize the material that has been used in its construction for other purposes, "adequate protection in towing" is demanded and "the lives of the seven aboard were worth it."

The fact of the matter is of course that the government sold the Louisiana and relinquished all claim to it some time ago. It was being taken by its new owners to be scrapped and all was well until a storm was encountered which made towing any further at that time impossible. The towing vessels sought shelter and the Louisiana was anchored with a crew of seven, not naval men, aboard. The storm caused the parting of the anchor chains and the battleship was adrift to be found after the storm's end, intact and safe.

From the day that the government disposed of the vessel it has ceased to be the property of the government. The new owners had a right to sink it if they wanted to but the expectation was that they would employ its material for other construction work, a disposition of such ships, or any ships, that is far more commendable than sending them to Davy Jones' locker.

It is necessary under the naval agreement that the obsolete battleships of which this is one must be broken up or sunk. The government in selling for junk shows that it is committed to the policy of conservation and stands against needless waste. What it receives for such ships for junk is insignificant in comparison with the original cost, but it is certainly preferable to taking the equivalent of so many thousands of dollars out into midocean and sinking it. It is to the credit of the government that the Louisiana goes to the junk heap but it is not its fault that it encountered a storm while the purchasers were towing it.

THE MENACE FROM ASSASSINS.

There is a long list of those who have fallen from the blow of an assassin administered in various ways. If we are to judge from recent occurrences the day of the assassin is not over. There continue to be those who feel called upon from some personal reason to shoulder the responsibility of removing the heads of governments or those having a leading part therein. Assassinations haven't been regarded as the popular method of reform down through the centuries but they have figured prominently in various countries, and our own has been no exception.

With the attempts that have been made against the ruler of Japan and against Japanese cabinet members the far east has been experiencing no little excitement, although the attempts have fortunately been unsuccessful and those held responsible have been caught.

Another echo of this same false reasoning has been disclosed in the attempt to take the life of Kemal Pasha, the head of the Turkish republic. The fanatic employed a hand grenade and missed his mark, although the wife of the ruler was injured. Regardless of the estimation in which he is held by the most of the Turks there's no denying the fact that Kemal Pasha has his enemies. Some of them are Turks and some are subjects of nations which do not feel particularly cordial to the president of the new republic. There is no telling when they will resort to their underhanded work, and the fact that Kemal Pasha appears to have done so much for the Turks and to hold such a high place in their estimation is sufficient to aggravate the warped mind that guides the assassin's bullet or grenade.

There are those who cannot stand prosperity and there are those who cannot see others succeed without attempting to check it. The assassin in the commission of his dastardly attempt is moved by insane reasoning. In view of the fact that it is the benevolent ruler quite as often as the tyrant who becomes the mark of such people indicates that there is no way of guarding against such acts by conduct on the part of the ruler or leaders. It is a menace that requires elaborate safeguards of other kinds.

GENERAL WOOD'S ATTITUDE.

Just what might be expected is the attitude disclosed by General Wood in regard to the congressional inquiry which has been proposed by Representative Frear of Wisconsin into his administration in the Philippines.

General Wood has been doing his duty as he sees it and as it is set forth under the law concerning the Philippines. It is true that he has departed from the do nothing policy of his predecessor, and which has been responsible to a large extent for the situation that has developed. But he has departed only to the extent of doing what is expected of a governor general instead of shirking it.

Characteristic of the governor general is his response to the prospect of inquiry when he says "I hope they'll hew to the line and let the chips fall where they may." Anyone with less backbone or with less regard for the responsibility resting upon the shoulders of this government's representative in the islands might have yielded to the efforts of the politicians of the Philippines as Governor General Harrison did. That would have meant a continuation of the conditions which were found in the islands and which were set forth following the tour of inspection by the special commission named by President Harding.

Those in the islands who have been affected by the changes recommended and made have balked, and doubtless their utmost to create an unpleasantness under the guise of a struggle for independence before this country is willing to relinquish its guardianship. Governor General Wood indicates from his response that he welcomes an inquiry and there is every reason to believe that it will result to every way to his credit.

CLEANING PHILADELPHIA.

Every clean-up movement arouses interest. Just now attention is certain to be focused on Philadelphia where the new administration has taken up the reins of government, where General Butler of the marine corps has been put in charge of the department of public safety and where there is no question but what there is need for a betterment in existing conditions.

Philadelphia has been wide open for a long time. Efforts to change the situation has gotten nowhere. If all the claims have been true conditions have been deplorable. Now with new hands at the helm something different is promised and steps have been taken which indicate a sincere determination to keep the promises. It is in watching developments that more than Philadelphia is concerned.

Mayor Kendrick has declared politics and the police department have been divorced. Members of the department need respect no political influence. They are to be responsible solely to the director, and Director Butler has told the department officers to clean up the city in the next two days or he would put in their place men who will. He lays emphasis upon the fact that the people of the Quaker city have no confidence in their police force and it is his purpose to restore it.

That he has shouldered no small job will be admitted, but he goes about it in a way that means business. It is certain and will not be surprising if Philadelphia can show the way possibly other cities will be anxious to pattern thereafter.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The flood which Paris is experiencing isn't caused by rum-runners.

Who will put up a prize for a plan that will bring about peace in congress and Mexico?

The man on the corner says: Some like winter only when they can experience it in Florida.

Wouldn't it be a terrible thing if it were not necessary to select our police officers according to politics?

There is need of it, but can Connecticut lower the number of auto fatalities this year as compared with 1923?

The lid has been put on the sale of war materials to Mexican rebels marking a consistent course by this government.

Not much chance for the Bok prize winner to have the amount doubled by getting congress to attach its approval thereto.

The longer his campaign continues the more certain Hiram Johnson must be that he would have suffered less disappointments had he kept that hat out of the ring.

Government operation of the railroads cost but one and two-thirds billions to the government. But think what great handicaps it also placed on the railroads and the stockholders, to say nothing of the public.

TOO MUCH FOR BEN

Miss Belinda's brother met her at the train. She had been away from home two weeks and Ben had missed her sorely and he was delighted to see her, but he did not even press her hand in greeting. He simply gazed at her for a moment in blank astonishment.

"Good heavens, sis, what have you been doing to yourself?" he asked at last.

"I didn't do it to myself," replied Miss Belinda almost tearfully. "Don't come any nearer me, Ben. Keep your distance. You may kiss me, if you wish, after—well, after I've been renovated. How are you going to get me home? You oughtn't to touch me with a ten-foot pole." Miss Belinda laughed a bit unsteadily.

"Ah, I guess you're not so dangerous as all that. But you do look as if you had been made of taffy and you were melting and running away."

"I wish I could run away. Put me in a cab, if you can get any driver to take me, and send me home, Ben."

Ben glanced down at his own clothes, hesitating for an instant. Then he hastily bought half the papers on a news stand, and beckoned commandingly to a taxi driver.

"This is an old suit. In youth you sheltered me, and now I'll stick by you, sis," he said as the chauffeur silently papered the seats of his car.

"That's what I'm afraid of, Ben, that you will stick by me," objected Miss Belinda as her brother followed her into the cab.

"I'll squeeze myself as small as I can into this corner. Don't worry about me. You are sufficient cause for anxiety. Now tell me what has happened to you that you ooze molasses from every seam and fold? Why, my dear, its even in your hair and eyebrows. I'm blessed if you aren't a complete picture of molasses and misery. Your trade-mark ought to be 'Done in New Orleans.'"

"I'm glad you can get some fun out of this horrible mess. If it hadn't been for you, though, I shouldn't have arrived here in such a condition. Dear, it was your molasses that covered me."

"My molasses?"

"Yes, yours. This morning when I was coming away Aunt Linda said she had a package for me to bring to you, and of course I said I should be delighted, but when I saw the package I must confess I didn't like the look of it. I think she rightly interpreted my glance, for she began to explain at once that she had wrapped it very carefully, and that you, Ben, simply doted on old-fashioned molasses for griddle cakes. She remembered what quantities you used to eat when you were a boy. I couldn't refuse her loving thoughtfulness for you, could I?"

"No, of course you couldn't, Belinda. You're not strong on refusing, my dear. But did the bottle break?"

"It wasn't a bottle. It was a stone jug, and just as we were coming in along by Gary, I think, I heard a sound like a gunshot, and I wondered whether train robbers had boarded the car. If they had they could not have created much more havoc than did that molasses.

"It had got warm in the parlor car and worked, and it simply gushed forth like a fountain, all over me, and all over such a nice-looking young college chap beside me.

"I couldn't think of anything to say to him, I was so dreadfully ashamed but he thought of lots of things to say, and the porter—oh, Ben, the porter's reproachful looks were almost more than I could stand. The velvet seats, the window curtains, the carpet—nothing escaped! I gave him $5. I had to."

"For once I commend your generosity, Belinda. You are certainly—but, what's that you're carrying now, sis?"

"It's your other jug of molasses. There were two."

"The other jug of molasses! Are you crazy? Here's where we stop the taxi and set that jug on the curb."—Chicago News.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

Payment for services other than in money is subject to the income tax. The fair market value of the thing taken in payment is the amount to be included in income. For example, the value of merchandise or goods received by a clerk in part payment for his services must be reported as income. The value of board and lodging constitutes taxable income to the taxpayer receiving it as compensation for services. The amount to be included is the amount he would pay in cash for similar accommodations.

Promissory notes received in payment for services and not merely as security for such payment constitute income to the amount of their fair market value. Compensation paid an employee of a corporation in shares of stock is to be treated as if the corporation sold the stock for its market value and paid him in cash.

Where living quarters, food, clothing, etc., are furnished solely for the convenience of the employer—as, for example, in a logging or fishing camp—the value of such does not constitute taxable income to the employee. The rule applies to board and lodging furnished seamen.

The value of board and lodging furnished hospital employees is to be returned as income, unless the employee is subject to duty at any time during the 24 hours of a day, and therefore is required to accept quarters and meals at the hospital in addition to his regular compensation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

LOW PROTEIN FEED

Mr. Editor: Your item about the farmer buying a low protein feed for milk production has my attention.

It is certainly the duty of the farm bureau to educate the farmer as to economy in feeding. It is, however, beyond its duty to cast any reflection upon the grain dealer as a class. If the farmer asks for a low protein feed at the grain store, the feed dealer must comply with his order, just as the butcher must sell his customer a soup bone instead of a nice, juicy steak, if his customer so demands. The feed dealer has nothing to gain in selling a feed of low protein. The average profit per ton is about the same on high as on low protein.

Our experience as feed dealers is that there is a class of farmers who cannot be made to see the economy of scientific feeding, and who measure feed entirely by the initial cost instead of by results obtained. That class needs education. The farm bureau should do the educating. It should do it, however, in a straightforward, honest way, and not stoop to the misrepresentations some of its agents have in the past few years.

The grain dealers in this community are the best friend the farmer has. By misrepresentation, the farmer in many instances, has been led to believe otherwise. Truth will out, however. The farmer will realize that if farming is a business to be run scientifically and economically, so is the grain business.

We need the farmer in every community. We also need the grain dealer. If there is an occasional grain dealer who has no further interests in the farmer than to relieve him of his cash, there is also somewhere, in another class of merchants, one who would do likewise. But even as in one, so the other. The one does not make the rule, but rather the exception.

Be fair, Mr. Farm Bureau man, the grain dealer is also your neighbor.

Stories That Recall Others

Even the Worm.

During the recent warm December days, as well as many other living things, felt the urge of spring time. Many of them were seen crawling about.

A child ran to her mother with: "Mother, I just saw a fish worm out in the yard tying to take off its winter underwear."

What Did He Mean?

A young man who had been engaged in a vigorous New Year's celebration walked to a waiting taxi about four in the morning.

"Happy New Year, sir," said the taxi driver.

"Thanks, old man, and not so many of them," the celebrator replied earnestly.

SENATORS FOR BONUS REPRESENTATIVES AGAINST IT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, Jan. 8—Senator Brandegee said to your correspondent today: "I have always voted for the bonus and shall keep on doing so whenever it comes up in the senate." Senator McLean holds the same view.

In the house the situation is reversed and the Connecticut republicans will vote solidly against the bonus as they have done in the past. Tilson of New Haven is urging that the tax reduction measure take precedence of bonus and a republican caucus will be held Thursday to decide which shall come out of the ways and means committee first. Leaders state that a change of heart is evident since members returned from holidays at home where they found constituents clamoring for tax reduction instead of billions for bonus. The republican steering committee favors the tax bill first though some of its members have been strong bonus men. The senate is said to lack two votes of sustaining a probable presidential veto. The house stands doubtful in that contingency. Congressman O'Sullivan, democrat, says he was elected on a "for a bonus" platform and will vote for a bonus every time it comes up.

Mothers of Ailing Daughters, Attention

How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters by Giving them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands.

When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite and is irregular, her mother should have a care for her physical condition and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

First Bottle Helped Her

Richmond, Indiana.—"I am sending this letter to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did my daughter. She was troubled with nervousness so that she was restless at night, and then she could not sleep and she was afraid of everything. She could not work as she was not strong enough, and she had to quit school at 14 because she was ill so much. The doctor said she had a nervous breakdown and her system was all run down. She had pains in her right side and through her back, and the medicine she took did her no good at all. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's advertisement in our paper, telling all that the Vegetable Compound had done for other women so I said, 'We will try it out and see what it does.' She had not taken the first bottle before it began to help her, and we will always say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine she ever took."—Mrs. E. DARBY, 911 N. 16th St., Richmond, Indiana.

An Ohio Mother Reports

Columbus, Ohio.—"When my daughter became 14 years of age she was ailing very much. The doctor gave her medicine, but she was very weak, and he always had to write excuses for her as she could not attend the 'gym' classes, and I often had to keep her home from school. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and run-down condition, so I gave her three doses daily, and also Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. Our friends are surprised to see how fine and tall she is getting and how well she is. I will gladly answer letters and give you a fine recommendation for other mothers."—Mrs. MARIE MIELKE, 814 Ebder Street, Columbus, Ohio.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who have taken this medicine have been helped by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

MUST SOON ABANDON OPERATION OF HALLVILLE TROLLEY LINE

The Hallville and Poquetanuck district, with the Norwich State hospital is faced with the certainty at no distant date of having trolley service withdrawn, according to statements made by Receiver Robert W. Perkins of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co., to a conference here Tuesday afternoon held by business men of the city and by residents of the localities now served by the trolley line.

Diminishing receipts on this four to five mile section of road and necessary expenditures that would have to be made to put the road-bed and equipment into safe running condition for continued service make a combination that force him, as receiver, Mr. Perkins said, to exercise the authority which a court order gives him to abandon operation of the road.

The conference was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms under the auspices of the transportation committee of the Chamber which invited Receiver Perkins to attend the conference and requested representation from Hallville, Poquetanuck and the state hospital. The director of the Norwich Retail Merchants association and the chamber of commerce were also represented. President H. M. Lerou presided.

Mr. Lerou opened the conference by stating the reason and the necessity for making some investigation of the proposed abandonment of the trolley line. He invited Mr. Perkins to state the facts concerning this trolley line.

Mr. Perkins stated that the reason for the proposed abandonment of this road was its very poor physical condition and the gradual falling off of revenues from the public due to the increase of the number of privately owned automobiles. Under the present conditions he would not dare to continue the operation of the road in the spring when the frost is leaving the ground. $500 would need to be spent at once to make casual repairs, and from $1500 to $3000 to put the road-bed and equipment not including the rolling stock, in good shape. This expenditure of money he could not reasonably make in view of the decreasing patronage on this line of trolleys. Two years ago he received a court order giving him permission to abandon the road but he has kept the road going to the last degree of safety, he said, purely out of consideration of the communities which the trolley served.

Overtures to the Connecticut Co., to lease, own, or operate the road have met with absolute refusal. The Connecticut Co., has its own serious troubles on its interurban lines.

Many questions were asked Mr. Perkins particularly by the people from the adjoining communities regarding various plans to keep the cars running. Mr. Perkins answered all questions to the entire satisfaction of all present.

The only good plan for giving transportation from Poquetanuck and Hallville to Norwich is by running busses on regular schedules. Unfortunately the road to these communities is poor and consequently the necessity arises of building a good road in order that busses can be used. A strong delegation from Norwich, Hallville and Poquetanuck will in all probability go to Hartford to present the situation as it actually exists and to urge the building of a road that will afford a means of safe transportation to all the communities affected. The abandonment of this trolley service seems certain; the only alternative is a good road and the use of motor busses.

REFORMATORY SENTENCE FOR ROBBERY AT CHURCHES

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Jan. 8.—The criminal session of the superior court, Judge George E. Hinman, presiding, resumed business, Tuesday morning.

Raymond Chevette, 16, who was before the court last Friday and pleaded guilty to breaking into the Catholic church at Wauregan, and whose case was continued in order that his past might be investigated, after he had told the judge that he had never been arrested before, was brought out as the first case. It was reported that investigation developed that the boy had been arrested in Woonsocket for breaking into a meat market and was wanted by the officials of that city now for breaking into the Sacred Heart church.

It was this boy and his father who entered churches in Baltic and Taftville as well as at Wauregan and robbed the poor boxes. The father was sent to jail for six months from Norwich.

Judge Hinman said to Chevette that he was sorry to find out that he had been in trouble before, also that he had lied to the court. He said that such actions did not call for further leniency. A sentence to the reformatory was imposed.

George H. Gregoire of Moosup was the second to be presented. He was charged with practicing dentistry without being registered or having a license. He pleaded guilty.

The state's attorney said he felt some pity for the man whom he knew and for whom he had drawn a bill to be introduced in the last session of the legislature, which had it passed, would have allowed the defendant to practice in the state. He said the accused had practiced in the state with another dentist and that he had also practiced in Massachusetts. The man had a large family and the only means he had of making a livelihood was now to be taken away from him as he could not get a license to practice in this state. It was further stated to the court that citizens of Moosup had signed a petition in his behalf which denoted that the man's work had been satisfactory. A sentence of six months in jail was imposed and suspended.

With Chairman Walter F. Lester presiding the town school board held its regular January meeting Tuesday evening. Judge Thomas J. Kelly, secretary of the board, was present for first time since he broke his leg some time ago.

Only routine business was before the board but it was also reported that the proposed plan for a kindergarten at Norwich Town in a room at the Rock Nook home could not be carried out as the home management found it impossible to heat the room in which it had been proposed to hold the kindergarten.

Some enlargement has been necessary in the manual training department at Broadway school by adding to the benches and equipment. Attendance at the night school sessions is well sustained this year.

WILL TRY TO EXCEED NORWICH $1,000 QUOTA

An effort will be made to overbalance the quota of $1,000 assigned to Norwich toward the million dollar endowment fund for the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, for which a campaign is being conducted all over the country directed Abner Schwartz, head of the local committee, which includes Rabbi Max Stamm and Rabbi J. N. Rosenberg as honorary chairman.

"The Jewish citizens of Norwich are deeply concerned in the problem of Jewish education," said Rabbi Max Stamm, "and they are keenly alive to the danger of permitting our younger generation to grow up without a thorough training in Jewish history and the tenets and traditions of their faith. They know that the Jewish Theological Seminary has rendered invaluable service not only to the Jews of this country, but to this country, by training an educated, English-speaking rabbinate, and by developing teachers qualified to impart this knowledge to our young people. Right in their own homes they have seen the need of such work as is being done by the Jewish Theological Seminary and its allied institutions, like the United Synagogue of America, and have felt the great spiritual stimulation resulting from their efforts.

"They were not aware, however, for the most part, that the maintenance of the Jewish Theological Seminary was a burden imposed on a small group of men who are unable to bear this burden any longer with the result that this vitally important institution may have greatly to curtail its work, and, even to close its doors. This no Jew who loves his people, who is eager to be of service to them and to his country will permit. On the contrary, I believe that they will welcome the opportunity that is now afforded by this campaign, headed by Louis Marshall, Dr. Cyrus Adler, Rabbi Max Drob, Felix M. Warburg, David A. Brown and Mortimer L. Schiff, to make it possible for the Jewish Theological Seminary not only to continue its present efforts on behalf of American Judaism, but to do even greater work by increasing its faculty and receiving a much larger number of students in both its rabbinical courses and Teachers' Institute, as well as adequately housing its great library and making it available to the scholars of America.

"The Jews of Norwich who made such a splendid record for themselves in raising funds for the relief of the war-suffering people of Europe and for all local philanthropies will, I am sure, give generously to this fund upon the success of which the future of Judaism in this country so largely depends."

STATE GRANGE MASTER WANTS LAW ENFORCED

Laws not enforced are worse than none, and when they become a menace rather than a benefit, said Allen B. Cook of Niantic, master of the Connecticut State grange, in his annual address Tuesday afternoon at the thirty-ninth annual session of the organization at Foot Guard hall, Hartford.

Laws, he continued, are made for the benefit or guidance of the people as a whole and their enforcement must necessarily cause inconvenience or hardship to some.

"If any class of people is allowed to violate or ignore any law for their own convenience or pleasure it encourages other people to ignore other laws and will have either a real bedlam or the present tendency toward class favoritism. If a law is just, enforce it; if not, see that proper changes are made."

NOLLE IS ENTERED ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

A nolle absolute was ordered in the criminal superior court here Tuesday morning in the case of Henry A. Daniels of Franklin against whom there was a charge of statutory manslaughter for having caused the death of John W. Frink of Franklin on Sept. 30 when Frink was struck by Daniels' automobile. Noon Meeting at Norwich Belt Co.

At noon Tuesday under Y. M. C. A. auspices an interesting meeting was held at the plant of the Norwich Belt Co. A brief address was delivered by Secretary Edwin Hill to which the goodly company of employees listened with evident interest. Mr. Hill spoke in part as follows: "I want to speak to you today on "The Value of Ordinary men." God certainly puts a high estimate upon a man, the average man. Someone has said, "God must love common folks, he has made so many of them." How very important in warfare is the common man, the rank and file. If there were no ordinary men there would be no army of defense. That southern farmer boy named York was just an ordinary fellow, and at first refused to fight in the world war, but was finally convinced that it was his duty; he went "acroes" and made the most wonderful record of any one man in the U. S. Army on one occasion made some forty or fifty Germans prisoners absolutely alone and unaided.

The ordinary man in the great factor industry; without him we would have no industry. Henry Ford puts a high value on the average man and he has recently stated that he considers his workmen his partners."

How very important is the carpenter; he builds us our houses to shelter us; Jesus sheds a halo upon the carpenter shop, for he was himself a carpenter; indeed the Master honors all honest toil. Jesus selected ordinary men for his disciples.

Seven of the eight writers of the new testament most of them common men, became extraordinary heroes and sealed their testimony with their life blood. I say it reverently, God only knows what we, common men may become if we follow the leadership of Jesus Christ; he is the great divine potter, and only as we yield ourselves as clay in his hands we can become uncommon and extraordinary men as God reckons the value of men."

ARMY-NAVY CLUB SUFFERS DEFEAT; POWERFUL RECS TAKE GAME 58 TO 3

Bucking up against one of the toughest and fastest basketball outfits in the state the Army and Navy club went down to defeat Tuesday evening on their own court by a score of 58 to 31. The Recs of South Manchester came to Taftville with the name of being a hard team to beat and lived up to their reputation throughout the game, giving the Taftville quintet their first beating in 8 starts.

The Recs started on their victorious march early in the game and before the Army and Navy quintet had realized that a game was in session had piled up a comfortable lead. Snapping into it the Taftville aggregation netted several baskets and at the end of the first half found themselves trailing the Recs by the score of 26 to 12.

In the second half the Army and Navy five spurted and gradually cut down the lead of the flying visitors but again the Recs started on a rampage and the game ended with the Taftville team still second with 31 points to 58 for the Recs.

The playing of Bissell, right guard for the Recs, was the sensation of the game. This snappy "flash" seemed to be everywhere on the court and a ball coming to him meant two points against the Taftville five. Bissell almost single-handed defeated the local club, getting thirteen baskets for a total of 26 points, five less than the entire Army and Navy team could muster. Angelli, left forward for the visitors, was another dangerous man and added 18 points to the score of his team, getting nine baskets from the floor. Balls eper, right forward, rung in four alarms for eight points and Norris, in center, scored three baskets for six more points. The teamwork of the Recs was a pretty thing to watch and the team played a clean game.

For the Army and Navy club Mills, the lanky center, played a stella game and only for his clever work the score would have been much worse. Mills seemed to be the only Taftville man to solve the defense of the visitors and by clever playing and shooting succeeded in ringing nine baskets, 18 points of the 31 scored by Taftville. Belair, left forward, as usual counted in some baskets, getting three, while Reddy found two, and J. Coleman one.

The fans liked the playing of the Recs and await a return game with pleasure. A second booking with the Recs is scheduled for next Tuesday evening when it is hoped the score might be reversed.

In the preliminary game the Army and Navy Seconds had better luck than their elder brothers, winning from the Laurel Hill Five by a score of 31 to 8.

AMERICAN HOCKEY TEAM SAILS FOR FRANCE TODAY

New York, Jan. 8.—The American Olympic hockey team will sail tomorrow from Hoboken on the President Garfield of the U. S. lines for Chamonix, France, where they will compete for international honors during the latter part of this month and the early part of February.

Members of the team are: Justin McCarthy, Irving W. Small, George F. Geran, Willard W. Rice, Alphonse La Croix, John A. Langley and Frank Sinnott, all of Boston; Harry Drury, Pittsburgh and Clarence J. Abel, St. Paul. Accompanying them will be William S. Haddock, president of the U. S. Hockey association, and Patrick Murray, trainer.

Mr. Haddock said the team fears most the Canadian combination. He was confident of success, however, asserting that the two defeats the sextet recently received destroyed overconfidence and created better morale. Five or six days' practice before the games open will, in his opinion, bring the needed team work.

The addition of Drury and Abel has added strength, he said, to the nucleus of the team which was from the Boston Athletic association. Geran announced in Boston today that he would not sail.

1,482 ENTRIES RECEIVED FOR THE FUTURITY OF 1926

New York, Jan. 8.—With distant points still to be heard from, 1,182 entries for the futurity of 1926 have been made. Slightly below the record of 1,519 hung up last year, but nevertheless indicating large growth in the bloodstock breeding industry of the United States and Canada. The entries are from 171 nominators in 21 states and Canada.

The figures were announced today by Victor Schaumburg, of the Westchester Racing Association, together with statistics revealing that about 900 thoroughbreds are in service in the United States and Canada, including the progeny of such great stallions as Gay Crusader, Lemberg, Gainsborough, Buchan, Tredennis, Sun Star, Spearmint, Galloper Light, Craig An Fran, Junior, Bachelor's Double, Tetratema and Flamboyant.

Entries for the 1926 Matron stakes closed simultaneously with the Futurity on January 4. For this event, which is limited to two-year-old fillies, there were 188 nominations as against 75 last year.

Mr. Schaumberg said Harry Payne Whitney is the largest breeder of thoroughbreds in this country, his nominations alone for the Futurity totaling 105 and comprising his choicest stock from Broomstick, Whisbroom, 2, Chicle, Johren, Peter Pan, Man o' War and Pennant. John E. Madden is second in the list with 82 entries, Arthur B. Hancock third with 55 and Himyar Stud fourth with 52.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The Cleveland club of the American league is the only major league club that has a clean slate as far as retired and ineligible players is concerned, according to a list compiled today by Commissioner Landis.

E. S. Barnard, president of the club, says the reason for this showing is that the club makes an aim to satisfy its players and as a result there are virtually no disagreements between the players and the club.

Fifty-three players are listed as "outlaws" on one of the lists, while there is a "general" list, which includes players who are outside the jurisdiction of baseball law.

CANADA HAS STRONG ARRAY OF TALENT FOR OLYMPICS

Toronto, Jan. 8.—Canada will be represented by a formidable array of talent in the Olympic winter sports competition which gets under way at Chamonix, in the French Alps, late this month. The wearers of the maple leaf will include a well-balanced hockey team, two fancy skaters and one speed skating specialist.

Canada captured the hockey championship in the 1920 Olympics and followers of this year's team look for another international triumph. Enthusiasts predict that the other contestants will score enough points to rival, if not outdo America's performances on the ice.

Charles Gorman of St. John, N. B., who has been a rival of America's best amateur skaters for several seasons, will be the dominion's lone representative in the speed skating. Melville Rogers of Ottawa, and Miss Eustace Smith of Toronto, will compete in the fancy skating events. All three are booked to sail for France next Friday.

The Olympic hockey team, is the granites of Toronto, a combination which won the Canadian amateur title last year and is regarded as one of the speediest ever developed in the dominion. The fact that this aggregation will go intact to France, whereas the United States will have an all-star combination which has not had much time to develop team-work, is seen as favorable to Canada's chances.

Watson, McCaffery and Smith form the forward array on the hockey team; Rumsay and Munro, the outer defense pair, and either Cameron or Collett, the goal tender. McMunn of Winnipeg, and Slater of Montreal, have been added to the squad and will serve as substitutes in case of emergency.

The possibility of broadcasting a running account of a basketball game is being investigated by the athletic authorities at Michigan Agricultural college, and it is probable that an attempt will be made to send a play-by-play report into the air the night of January 18, when the University of Detroit quintet plays the Aggies at East Lansing.

GOSHEN INCLUDED IN GRAND CIRCUIT SEASON OPENS AT CLEVELAND JUNE 22

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Goshen was admitted to membership in the Grand Circuit, the opening racing date for 1924 was fixed at June 23 at Cleveland, the present officers were re-elected and Cleveland was selected as the place for the 1925 conclave by the board of stewards of the Grand Circuit in executive session here today.

The schedule as announced by Winn H. Kinnan, secretary, contains 76 days of racing, opening at Cleveland June 23 and closing at Lexington October 11. An invitation was extended to Goshen to hold a meeting of the Grand Circuit over its mile oval and a five-day meeting extending from August 18 to 23 was allotted to the new member, this meeting to follow Cleveland's second meeting at North Randall.

Definite decision on the part of horsemen in Goshen interested in light harness racing as to whether the "Lexington of the East" would accept the invitation was withheld pending an investigation of affairs and condition in Orange county. If Goshen decides not to hold a meeting, Cleveland will hold its second meeting over into the second week and close in time to allow the horsemen to ship to Boston for the Readville meeting. The stewards elected to give Goshen 15 days from today to make a definite decision.

President H. K. Devereaux of Cleveland was re-elected president, Edward H. Swisher of Columbus, vice president, and Winn H. Kinnan of Cleveland, secretary. The stewards passed a ruling making five heats necessary to declare a day of racing and voted to make it compulsory for tracks which stage meetings independent of fairs or other associations outside of the racing associations, to issue rain checks, these to be valid if less than five heats are raced during an afternoon.

It was also voted to allow promoters to keep their early closing races open from 126 to 150 days prior to the day of the race. This rule was urged by eastern horsemen who want more time to list their entries as most of the eastern meetings are late in the summer.

The stewards also voted to send recommendations to the joint rules committee of the National and American Trotting associations which holds its annual meeting in Chicago on January 14, to the effect that horses can race in distances of an eighth, and "win races" made at each distance will not be a bar to any other distance. This rule was passed at the request of the Syracuse steward who can stage races over the wet-weather seven-eighths of a mile track if weather prevents racing over the mile oval. Any marks made on this track will not bar a horse from any distance in any class over a mile track.

OVER 90% OF ONE MILLION STILL IN SERVICE

Since delivering their first car, early in December, 1914, Dodge Brothers have manufactured and sold one million motor vehicles.

Over 90% of all these cars are still in active service.

This striking fact stands alone—a unique and overwhelming tribute to the principles and methods responsible for a product of such enduring worth.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

HOUSE OF THE THREE LITTLE KITTENS

One day after Little Jack Rabbit had hopped for many a mile, he came to a little house by the roadside, and, as he was tired and hungry, he turned the knob and hopped in. There was no one around although there were several times.

"This is stronge," he said to himself, and peeked into a room fitted up like a nursery. There were all sorts of toys lying around, dolls and various blocks and picture books and, oh, lots and lots of things. At last, sitting down in an easy chair, he began to read a fairy story. Pretty soon it began to rain. Dear me, how it did rain. It came down in torrents, pitter, patter, on the roof and against the window panes, until, by and by, it put him to sleep.

All of a sudden the cuckoo came out of her little clock house and sang.

Pitter, patter on the pane,
Rings the music of the rain.
Through the night the gentle breeze
Whispers dreams among the leaves,
And the clouds across the sky
Hurry, hurry, hurry by.

When the bunny boy woke up the next morning, he found that he was in the house of the Three Little Little Kittens. All of a sudden, the cuckoo came out of her little clock house and sang:

"Get up, get up, the sun is bright,
And all the world is gay with light.
The little bird sings in the tree,
The woolly lamb is on the lea,
And soon you must run off to school,
With slate and cop book and rule."

Jumping up, he pulled on his shoes just as the Three Little Kittens who lost their mittens brought in the breakfast. Pretty soon he said goodbye after thanking them for a very comfortable night in their pretty little house.

"Dear me," said the bunny boy to himself, "didn't I dream last night that I was home in the Dear Old Bramble Patch?" Suddenly it all came back to him. A little boat fitted with a slender mast on the top of which was fastened an umbrella, had carried him back to his white bungalow. Strange as it may seem, the sun was shining when it reached the little gate in the white picket fence, close to the Bubbling Brook in the Sunny Meadow. Hopping out, he had tip-toed up the little path through the brambles. There sat Lady Love in the flower garden.

"Oh, dear, I feel homesick," sighed the bunny, "I wish it had all been true and not a dream."

Just then a tiny voice began to sing:

"Twinkle, twankle, twinkley, O,
Tell me where you would like to go?
Over the hills and far away,
Down to the ocean, white with spray,
Or go with me to a little house
Where lives a pretty tiny white mouse."

And in the next story you will hear what happened after that.

POETRY

Above The City

Upon a tower high above the town,
High over myriad dwellings midget small,
I stood when twilight slowly floated down
And reared its crimson westward like a wall.

Dim films of smoke in multitudinous strands
Curled smokelike to the blank, dis-colored skies.
And as I watched they seemed to form in bands
Of souls with cloudy wings and search-light eyes.

Dull spirits of dull toilers earthly bound
And spirits rocket borne on bright desires
Rose in a veil of mist that wreathed them round
As sooty fumes may wreath abysmal fires.

One lingering moment, on the verge of night,
The city's herded thousands gathered here,
Hovered between the darkness and the light,
Seeking brief rest in that calm atmosphere.

One fleeting moment—as the day with arrow
The transient peace of twilight passed them by.
And when I looked more closely I could not know
Only gray smoke ascending to the sky.

—Stanton A. Coblentz in New York Herald.

The Future

They will wait all day unseen by us, unfelt
Patient they hide behind the day's full glare;
And we, who watched the dawn when they were there,
Though we had seen the rain the daylight melt
While the slow sun upon the earth did kneel,
Because the teeming sky seemed void and bare,
When we explored it through the dazzled air,
We had no thought that there all day they dwelt.
Yet were they over us, calm and true
In vast shades far up above the blue—
The brooding shades beyond our day-light ken—
Serene and patient in their conscious light
Ready to sparkle for our joy again—
The eternal jewels of the short-lived night.

A tourist in Scotland was boastfully told by a resident of Tain that the place was a noteworthy one, being one of the old royal burghs of the country. "Why" his informant went on, "its charter was granted by King David himself."

"Dear, dear me!" exclaimed the tourists. "You don't tell, me so! Was that th—er—gentleman who wrote the Psalms?"—Buffalo Commercial

"I took the telephone operator out fishing with us," said Bowers. "She had just got her line in when a big bass pulled it, line and all, into the water."

"What did she do?" inquired Loveland, with considerable interest.

"She munched her gum for a few minutes, then said placidly: 'The line is busy.'"—Kansas City Star.

MARKET FLUCTUATED.

New York, Jan. 8.—Stock prices bounded upward at the opening of today's market, a number of issues moving up 1 to 4 1-2 points, and then fell back on a large volume of profit-taking which embraced virtually all sections of the list. Sporadic attempts were made to rally the general list but they made little headway except in the low priced rail shares and a new high grade specialties.

Early buying was reported to have been based on encouraging reports from Washington concerning the tax reduction bill, and the optimistic views on the banking and trade outlook expressed by bank executives at the annual meetings of stockholders now being held throughout the country.

Strength of the Erie issues was the outstanding feature of the session, the common and both classes of the preferred selling at their highest prices since 1913. The common touched 25 3-8, the first preferred 38 5-8 and the second preferred 29 1-4, all at net gains of 3 to 3 1-4 points on the day. Wall Street heard rumors during the day of early dividend action on the first preferred, but these lacked confirmation and were not taken seriously in high banking quarters.

Southern Railway climbed to 43 3-8, the highest price since 1907 when it sold 1-2 a point higher, but it cancelled the day's gain before the close. Marked strength was shown by some of the other low-priced issues, particularly Wabash "A" buying of these shares being influenced by the U. S. supreme court decision yesterday upholding the constitutionality of the recapture clause of the transportation act which is expected to lead to relief for some of the weaker railroad lines.

Pan-American issues were freely sold on reports that the rebels had taken possession of some of the company's Mexican Oil properties and that operations had been temporarily suspended. Net losses, however, were limited to fractions. Producers & Refiners broke nearly 3 points. Maryland disp yielded slightly in further reflection of speculative disappointment over the delay in the sale of treasury stock to a local banking syndicate.

Some of the outstanding strong spots in the specialty list were American Woolen, American Tobacco, Congoleum, Corn Products, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, U. S. Rubber and Utah Copper, all up 1 to nearly 3 points. Strength of the rubber attracted marked attention. Sugars yielded on further reductions in refined prices.

Call money opened act 4 1-2, eased to 4 1-3 and thence to 4 1-4. The time money market continued easy with more funds available at 4 3-4 per cent. Commercial Paper rates also were easier, exceptional names being quoted as low as 4 1-8 per cent.

Moderate reactions took place in the foreign exchanges. French francs touching a new record low at 4.84 1-2 cents. Dealers report considerable nervousness in the market due to the uncertainty of developments in the British and French parliaments now in session. Demand sterling ruled about half a cent lower at $4.29.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 8.—Broadening activity and rising prices in today's bond market continued to reflect the heavy purchase of listed securities with January reinvestment funds. Virtually all groups of bonds participated in the advance which was most marked, however, in the secondary railroad issues which are expected to benefit by the decision of the U. S. supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the recapture clause of the transportation act.

Relative scarcity of new offerings also is believed by bankers to have been of material benefit to the listed issues. Several large issues are known to be pending, but the only ones known to be ready are the $9,700,000 City of Montreal 5s, due 1942-62, and the 1,300,000 New York State Gas & Electric first mortgage 5 1-2s. The $13,000,000 Market Street Railway issue put out today was readily disposed of.

Standard foreign and U. S. government bonds moved within narrow and irregular limits. Serbian 8s, Oriental Development 6s and Swiss 8s each moved up about a point on light dealings while Netherlands 6s and Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6s sold a point below yesterday's final figures.

In the railroad group, the Erie issues moved up in sympathy with higher stock prices. Good gains also were registered by Frisco income 6s, Missouri Pacific 6s, Seaboard Air Line 6s and Delaware & Hudson Refunding 4s, all up a point or more.

A 3 point gain in Dary Silk 7s, based on high current earnings, was the feature of the industrial group. Sinclair Pipe Line 8s made marked progress.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Although firmer at first today in sympathy with an advance at Liverpool, the wheat market here turned easier afterward as a result of selling in Chicago against buying at Winnipeg. The close was unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4c lower, May 108 1-2 to 108 5-8 and July 108 5-8@3-4. In corn, there was 1-4c to 1-2c net gain, with oats unchanged to 1-8c higher and provisions varying from 2c decline to 7c advance.

According to some reports, the Liverpool rise in wheat values was at least partly due to heavy rains impending the movement of the Argentine crop. Another bullish factor was gossip current that snow covering for considerable winter wheat east of the Mississippi river was scanty or absent during recent severe cold weather. Demand here, however, failed to develop much volume and the market readily gave way when spreading operations between Chicago and Winnipeg became the dominant factor.

It was contended by a leading authority on crop conditions that domestic winter wheat in general is in excellent condition; that west of the Mississippi a moderate snowfall has afforded ample protection. He reported some ice on fields in southern portions of Ohio and Indiana, but said serious damage was improbable.

Corn and oats ruled firm throughout the day. Contrary to predictions, rural offerings of corn gave no evidence of increasing, and it was said the southwest had been buying liberally at Missouri river markets and that the west was buying in Chicago territory. Bulges in price here, however, ran into selling orders.

With cash demand for lard holding up well, provisions averaged higher, despite lower quotations on hogs.

LEVERONE PROPERTY, NEW LONDON, SOLD TO FREDERICK H. GAVITT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 8.—Frederick H. Gavitt today purchased the Leverone property in Golden street and eventually will connect it with the Hotel Royal on Bank street. The Leverone property is four stories, brick construction and was formerly a part of the Lawrence property. It will be recalled by the older citizens as a public hall in the upper stories and as a meat market and cafe on the ground floor. Jack Daly made a lot of money in that building and John Goos before him amassed a competence there. When Mr. Leverone acquired the building he remodeled it and made stores on the main floor and tenements in the upper stories. The building is well rented now so that it is a good investment. But Mr. Leverone is to go to Florida, where he is to undertake the raising of vegetables for the northern markets. He will, it is understood, take men from New London when he leaves for the south that he may begin his new undertaking with help that he knows about. Mr. Leverone is not a farmer, but he intends to become one of whom even Magnus Johnson would be proud. At present the Coffey Beef house is located in the building, and that company has a lease that cannot be broken. In the past, political meetings were held for many years in the public hall in the building and there were some hot political caucuses there. Washington Tooker stepped into fame in a night when he delivered his lecture on "Pork" there. The original building was one of the oldest in the city. It had the distinction of escaping a fire until a year or so ago, when it was damaged somewhat.

Mrs. Helen Patterson today bought the interest of Maria Chaney in what has been known as the Patterson building on State street. The purchaser is undecided whether she will cause a three-story or a five-story building to be placed on the site of the burned building, but the structure will be an architectural improvement to the street. Already applications have been made for offices in the proposed building. The establishment of an elevator in the building is the phase of construction that leads Mrs. Patterson to hesitate about a five-story building. To put the building up to the height of five stories would necessitate the installation of means of reaching the upper floors other than by stairways. That would mean the employment of an elevator attendant day and night the year around and it would increase the hazard of accident by the use of an elevator. The Burned building was one of the oldest on the street. It was the store of Thomas Potter for many years and later was the store of Mr. Potter's son, the late Thomas W. Potter.

Members of Kenomee Hose company are anticipating the 50th annual banquet of the company next Thursday evening at the Mohican hotel. Stokes and it had as foreman William Mercer before he went into the regular army. Later he became the first city manager under the commission form of government. Its present foreman, W. R. Pollock, is an inspector of customs and has served the city in the court of common council. Many of its members are prominent merchants in the city and business men of high standing.

Jacques and Andrew Greig.

Dart, 447 Fort Washington avenue, New York, communicated with the New London police today, stating that he had found a dog bearing New London registration, 41010, and requesting the name to whom the license was issued that the dog could be returned to the owner. Inquiry at the office of the city clerk showed that the license was issued to A. Einhorn, formerly of 44 Connecticut avenue, who moved to New York several months ago.

The funeral of Mrs. Addie H. Brown, widow of George Brown, whose death occurred Sunday was held this afternoon at her residence, 37 Lee avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of Groton Heights Baptist church. Burial was in Noank.

A small blaze occurred this fore-noon, when Isadore Levine, employed by the Coco Cola Bottling works, on Hamilton street, dropped a lighted torch among loose oil on the floor of the place. The oil immediately ignited. Levine had a telephone message sent to fire headquarters and the Ockford Hose company was dispatched to the fire. Just before the firemen arrived Levine discovered a couple of fire extinguishers and emptied their contents upon the burning oil.

Steward Lawne, the Providence man arrested here Saturday in company with Evelyn Foster, 17-year-old Providence girl, at a rooming house will come before the police court on Wednesday to answer to a charge of bringing the girl here for immoral purposes. Lawne is married, and the circumstances under which he was arrested makes him a double offender. He is regarded as a violator of the Mann act and an adulterer as well. The girl has turned against him because of his conduct now that she realizes, or appears to realize the enormity of Lawne's offense. Cowardlike, he is disposed to blacken the character of the girl he brought here, ostensibly to support him. He has been held in jail here since Monday for appearance in default of a bond of $5000. TRYING NEW LONDON MAN WHOSE CAR POLICE CAUGHT BY COLLISION

Tony Arionchuk of New London, whose arrest was accomplished there in an automobile Sept. 15, 1922, when Sergeant Nelson Smith ran another machine in front of Arionchuk's car and brought on a smashup, was put on trial in the superior court here Tuesday afternoon before Judge C. L. Avery on three counts of violation of the liquor law.

He was charged with transportation of liquor illegally, reputation for selling since July 1st, and keeping with intent to sell. Attorney Clayton B. Smith defended him and Attorneys Warren Burrows and Thomas E. Troland presented the state's side of the case.

Joseph Rzepnewski, owner of the building at 362 Main street, where Arionchuk lived in a tenement on the fourth floor, was the first witness for the state. He conducts a bakery on the main floor of the building. He said that he had been in Arionchuk's place and got liquor there and had seen men drunk there.

Sergeant Nelson Smith of the New London police force, testified that on Sept. 15 he had been handed a note by the New London police captain. He had lost the note now, he said, but it had read something to the effect that if you want to get a load of booze watch Vauxhall road, Ford car coming along that way. The note gave the number of the car registration, said Sergeant Smith, and when they looked it up it was Arionchuk's number. The sergeant secured a search warrant for this car and waited on the Vauxhall road, near Leary's farm, about 3.30 or 3.45. He watched the numbers of cars going by and in about 10 minutes the car with the number he was looking for came along. The sergeant got into a jitney and followed the car which was going very fast. They tried to get ahead of it several times but couldn't do so. Reaching New London, the pursued car was overhauled in front of Major Hull's home on Vauxhall street. The car with the policeman swung in front of the other and the Arionchuk car ran into the policeman's. A man known as "Big John" was in the car with Arionchuk, the latter driving, and there were two other men in the car on the rear seat. Sergeant Nelson said he found in the car a small jug between Tony's feet, a big jug in a bag in the back seat, a two-quart jar and a two-quart bottle, all containing liquor. There was also a jar of honey. Tony told the officer that Big John owned the liquor to which Big John responded, "He's a —— liar." The liquor in the jugs and bottles tested from 60 to 70 per cent. All the men in the car had been drinking, the sergeant said. The witness testified he had received a number of complaints against Arionchuk's place previous to Sept. 15, because of intoxicating liquor. He said Arionchuk had a reputation for selling liquor.

The jugs and bottles which Sergeant Smith said he found in the car were produced as exhibits in court.

Officer George A. Perkins of the New London force testified that the Arionchuk place had the reputation for keeping liquor. Some Polish women and other officers had told him of it.

On cross examination by Attorney Smith the policeman said he had seen men coming out of the building intoxicated. He had not known of any raids made on the place. He had tried to get two young men to buy liquor there but they wouldn't do it.

Peter Burgean of New London testified he had gone to Arionchuk's place to get a drink and paid 25c a glass for moonshine there. To Judge Avery the witness said the last time he was at the Arionchuk place was about 10 months ago. On cross examination he admitted he had had a fight with Arionchuk and had had him arrested.

At this point the state rested and Attorney Smith moved to have the entire complaint dismissed. He said there was nothing to show that any liquor was being transported for purpose of sale. Because of the quantities and the way it was divided up, there was nothing to show that one person was transporting it for purposes of sale. That the men in the car were intoxicated also weighs against the presumption of getting liquor for sale.

Judge Avery over-ruled the motion as to the counts alleging transportation and reputation.

In defense, Attorney Smith placed the accused man on the stand, giving testimony through M. R. Malinowsky as interpreter.

Arionchuk testified that he now lives on Hill street, New London, and has a wife and three children. He admitted the jugs and bottles on exhibit in court had been in his automobile. They came from Aleck Chaplinsky's farm to which he went by way of Montville and Oakdale. It is in the Fire street neighborhood. Arionchuk said that Big John and a man named Joe went with him and on the return trip the farmer, Chaplinsky, and another man came with them. He admitted having had a fight with Peter Burgean for which he was arrested and fined. He was arrested another time for a fight with a man over a game of cards.

Arionchuk said he went to the Chaplinsky farm on Sept. 15 because Big John and Joe asked him to go. Big John treated them from a soda bottle full of whiskey just before they started. At the farm the witness said he took one drink and the others finished a bottle. They picked some apples. Arionchuk said he didn't know there was any moonshine in the automobile until the officer stopped the car. He said that Big John took a bottle from his pocket and handed it over to the officer. The leather bag in which a bottle of moonshine was found in the automobile belonged to one of the other men, the accused man testified. Arionchuk contradicted the testimony of Officer Smith by saying that there were three men in the rear seat instead of two. He denied that he ever sold any whiskey at his home on Main street, but had bought whiskey for Rzepnewski, his landlord, several times. Rzepnewski used to give him the money for the whiskey and he bought it in New London.

Arionchuk testified that he had treated Burgean to liquor but had not sold any to him.

Trial of the case will be concluded today (Wednesday).

EDDIE CLARK WINNER IN LOS ANGELES TOURNEY

Local roque enthusiasts will be interested to learn that Eddie Clark, the well-known Springfield player, an ex-champion who has for a number of years taken part in the tournaments on the Rockwell street courts in this city, is now in Los Angeles. The Springfield Republican has the following to say regarding the ex-champ's visit to California.

Eddie Clark, the champion roque player, who was raised on roque in this city, is now in Los Angeles, Cal., G. B. Allen of King street recently received a letter from him in which he gives an account of his winter campaign:—

There are eight courts here in Lincoln park and so many players they have a time limit of one hour to a game and two games a day. The club is growing rapidly and is looking around for more courts. Saw Gervais several times while in Los Angeles, and also played with him. He can still play quite a game. Last week they held an elimination handicap tourney which took in several clubs around. About 90 entered. I played a match and every one else received four aches or better up to 20. A fellow put up a couple of silver cups for first and second prizes. I managed to win first and am waiting for my cup. Played 11 games in all and then the only one left, Barnett of Long Beach was second. We played off in the finals and I won. The big meet starts January 7. After that I go to St. Petersburg, Fla., to play in the tourney starting February 3. Then I go to Bradentown, Fla., for a month. Also a tourney there in March. I get $100 and expenses while there. Well, I hope you have the best of luck for the coming year and the best of health.

READS COTTRELL LETTERS TO SHOW MENTAL SOUNDNESS

Trial of the appeal from probate of Mrs. Leone Balfe Cottrell from the will of her husband, the late Edgar H. Cottrell, head of the printing press manufacturing firm of C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co. of Westerly, involving an estate of $2,000,000 was resumed before Judge Newell Jennings in the superior court in New London Tuesday morning, with Charles P. Cottrell, brother of the testator and executor of the will, resuming identification of personal and business letters written by his brother over a period of several years. The introduction of the letters by the appellees is for the the purpose of showing that Edgar Cottrell was mentally sound and of testamentary capacity. It is the claim of Mrs. Cottrell in trying to break her husband's will that he was not of sound mind.

Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun, counsel for the appellees read a typewritten copy of each letter after its identification by the witness.

Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, counsel for the appellants, renewed objections made last week, that the typewritten copies were not true copies of the letters in regard to the misspelling of words and other particulars and Attorney Rathbun declared that he was not introducing the copies as evidence but that they were just made in order to facilitate the reading of the original letters in the handwriting of Mr. Cottrell.

The witness then gave testimony regarding the will of his brother, and said that neither he nor his brother, Arthur M. Cottrell, also an executor of the will, were present when the will was drawn. Regarding the agreement for the sale of the stock, the witness said that it was a family agreement that stock of the company should be kept within the family and that his brother, Edgar, should transfer the stock to himself at a value of $100 a share.

Under cross examination by Attorney Alcorn, Mr. Cottrell said that he had produced all the letters in possession. He said that he had destroyed many letters two or three years before his brother died.

BRANDEGEE SAYS BOK PLAN IS PRO-LEAGUE

United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee of New London, one of the most outspoken of the irreconcilables in the senate—the group which successfully fought the League of Nations—characterizes the Bok prize winning peace plan as a pro-league proposition pure and simple.

The irreconcilables say that the Bok plan, even though supported by a predominant referendum vote, would not affect the United States senate in any way. The policy of the United States was opposed to joining the league, no matter how its principles were modified.

The league advocates declined to comment definitely on the new proposal, although some who were told of it were inclined to believe that it would enlist nation-wide support and compel absorbing interest in the coming national conventions. They said it would concentrate attention of the people in the November elections on the League of Nations. They believe it will furnish the Democratic party with an issue of compelling force in the national elections this year.

Leading members of the irreconcilable group were shown the plan ten days ago, and asked to study it with an idea of getting behind it when its provisions were made public. They studied it carefully and compared it with the League of Nations articles, with the result stated.

The irreconcilables are opposed not only to the framework of the Bok plan, built as they say upon the League of Nations foundation, but to the acceptance of the original Harding plan for the United States joining in the world court. This latter feature is opposed also by the reservation faction in the Republican party, led by Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee.

In analyzing the plan as it would affect the Democrats who supported the Wilson covenant, Republicans pointed out that those Democrats, it they remained consistent, could not give any more substantial support to the Bok plan than the irreconcilable group. The Wilson Democrats refused to accept the league, with the Lodge reservations, which eliminated articles X and XVI. Therefore, judging by views obtained, the Bok plan cannot hope to meet with the active support of any group involved in the treary fight.

TRANS-ATLANTIC STEAMERS ENCOUNTERED ICY GALES

Passenger Liners Have Been Delayed From One to Four Days—Steamers Making Port Are Storm-Scarred—Many Small Vessels Are in Distress, Some Sinking, Others Disabled and Unable to Make Headway—Storms Were the Heaviest in Years.

New York, Jan. 9.—Beating toward their ports tonight were many of the largest trans-atlantic passenger ships, delayed one to three and four days by the icy gales which for more than a week have lashed the seas, tossing small craft to destruction and driving others aground on barren shores.

The storms, first felt by ships in mid-ocean and within 700 miles of American shores, now have moved eastward, and today from London came reports of many vessels in distress, some sinking, others disabled and unable to make headway in the gales.

In the port of New York today arrived the Lapland, from Southampton, the Laconia, form Liverpool via Halifax and the George Washington from Bremem, all showing signs of the battles they had with the sea furies. Expected arrivals tomorrow are the Majestic, now two days late from Southampton, the Conte Verde, from Naples, the President Van Buren, from London, the Estonia from Copenhagen and the Suffern from Le Havre.

Wireless reports from these ships have indicated that the winter's first severe storms were heaviest in years.

In the last week there have been three sailing craft reported wrecks and several steamers in distress near American or Canadian shores.

The British schooner Czarina pounded to pieces on the rocky coast of Newfoundland. Her crew were rescued in heavy seas by six daring sailormen from the steamer Cairnmona. The T. M. Nicholson, a lumber schooner, was reported Monday to have been lost with all hands off the coast of New Foundland. The Ferry Setzer, a four-master carrying lumber from Jacksonville, Fla., to Fall River, Mass., went aground last night on Long Island, her crew was taken off by coast guards. A schooner believed to be of British registry has been reported abandoned 700 miles east of New York.

The old naval warrsman, Louisiana, is tow to the scrap heap, was abandoned during a heavy storm several nights ago by tugs. With six men aboard she drifted, helplessly until picked up by a rescue craft. Those aboard had suffered severely from the cold, but the old battler was none the worse for her buffeting.

The tanker Georgia was driven aground on the Florida east coast during the height of the storms and pulled off with difficulty. The Italian freighter Sorriso, reported by wireless that she was disabled and in need of assistance 350 miles off Cape Hatteras, was picked up by other freighters and at last reports was being escorted to Bermuda.

The Majestic arrived in quarantine tonight and will leave for her pier at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning.

DAMAGE BY STORMS ALONG FRENCH ATLANTIC COAST

Paris, Jan. 9—(By the A. P.)—A tidal wave and storms today wrought havoc along the French Atlantic coast from Finisterre to the Basque country. A number of lives were lost and immense material damage resulted.

Reports from Biarritz, Quimper, St. Malo, Parame, La Rochelle and Les Sables D'Olonne on the bay of Biscay, indicate that all these places were hardhit by the elements. Despatches from St. Nazaire say that during the height of the storm which was between two o'clock this morning and five o'clock, numerous small boats were thrown against the walls of the embankments and destroyed. At Les Sables O'Olonne a number of vessels were torn from their anchorages. One of them, a fishing boat, was sunk and its crew of six men perished.

The storm raged throughout today. Several wireless appeals from the sea were received at Brest. One of these came from the Steamer Tasmania, which was in trouble in latitude 47.18 and 7.13 longitude. The message failed to make known which of the several steamers of that name needed aid.

GEN. BUTLER IS DRIVING CLEAN-UP OF PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Jan. 9—Brigadier-General Smedley D. Butler's campaign, to clean up Philadelphia continued today. A tour of police stations by the new director of public safety was followed by a raid on a large central city cafe.

In reviewing the situation, the general said: "This is a house-cleaning, and we've finished only the first floor. We must clean, clean, clean until January 1, 1925, when I leave here under my one year's leave of absence from the marine corps."

The general named two districts as "black spots," and indicated that drastic action would be taken against police officials there if any laxity was discovered in keeping them clean.

Director Butler stated that Mayor Kendrick planned to make an inspection tour of the city with him tonight.

Forty four clerical positions in the police department were abolished by the director during the day, and four captain's clerks were put on regular beats.

A dance hall permit for a hotel that has been the subject of investigation by the last administration, was summarily refused by General Butler. Complaints had been made against the place by a local priest, after a man had been found dead from asphyxiation in it.

THREE FATALITIES IN BATTLE WITH OUTLAWS

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Two men were slain and a woman wounded in a battle between officers and members of the Ashley-Mobley gang which raged near here for almost 12 hours today. The outlaws broke through the line of officers late this afternoon and were being chased through the Everglades.

The dead are John Ashley, Sr., one of Florida's most notorious outlaws and Deputy Sheriff Fred Baker of Palm Beach county, who led the officers into battle with the gang early this morning. Laura Epthecrove, said to have been a camp follower of the gang, was wounded in the hand and legs.

The fight late this afternoon was being waged in the mucky Everglades, the outlaws, estimated at about ten in number, were firing as they ran.

The machine gun used by the officers earlier in the day was abandoned.

LEADER OF OUTLAWS CAPTURED BY DEPUTY

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 9.—(By the A. P.)—Wesley Mobley, one of the leaders of the Ashley-Mobley gang, was captured late this afternoon. Deputy Sheriff Hiram Lawrence returned here with his prisoners. The running battle between other members of the bandits has been raging all day, was said to be still in progress.

KING GEORGE PAID BRIEF VISIT TO ROME

Rome, Jan. 9.—(By The A. P.)—Without the trimmings which feature royal welcome King George, who recently left his country at the request of the revolutionary party, today paid a brief visit to Rome.

Leaving Rome late today they were scheduled to arrive in Naples tonight to take part in the commemoration of the death of the late King Constantine, who is buried there.

ENTIRELY NEW OFFER MADE FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

Washington, Jan. 9.—(By The A. P.)—An entirely new offer to the government for the electric power to be developed at Muscle Shoals, tendered today by nine of the principal associated power companies of the southern states, assures a re-opening of that much controverted subject before congress. At the same time it assures re-examination of the pending offer by Henry Ford.

Briefly the new offer proposes to pay the government $100,000,000 in rental over a period of fifty years, and still leave the government in possession of the property.

It contemplates taking only the hydro electric energy to be developed by the Wilson dam in 1925 and leaving the nitrate plants free to the government for production of munitions in war, or for the production of fertilizers in time of peace. Besides that the offer proposes to reserve for production of fertilizer a block of the electric power to be developed on the dam.

The power for fertilizer it was pointed out, would be available under government supervision, to Henry Ford or any other manufacturer who could come to terms with congress for its use.

SEEK RECODIFIOATION OF THE NAVIGATION LAWS

New York, Jan. 9—Recommendations for a complete recodification of the navigation laws and rules of the United States were sent to the shipping board today by the American Steamship Owners association.

The recommendations approved by the association, are the result of an investigation by the association's technical committee made after the shipping board had asked suggestions for amendments to federal laws to reduce operating costs of American vessels. The committee recommended that the department of commerce be authorized to prepared a complete set of regulations to have the force of law to succeed the present rules "which are now antiquated and unsatifactory in many respects", governing measurement of vessels, construction and inspection of hulls, boilers machinery and equipment.

SCHOONER ASHORE OFF THE POINT O' WOODS, N. Y.

Point O' Woods, N. Y., Jan. 9—Coast guards tonight expressed confidence that the four-masted schooner Perry Setzer, lying in 20 feet of wate ron the sand on which she ran in a fog yesterday, would be saved unless a storm came up and dreve her further ashore. Advent of a gale, they said, might spell disaster for the schooner which is heavily laden with lumber.

Wreckers stood by for a chance to float the vessels on which Captain B. C. Moore and two coast guards were ready to aid the work.

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY FINDS SCARCELY ANY UNEMPLOYMENT

Washington, Jan. 9.—Scarfely any unemployment and good prospects for full industrial activity this year was reported by the United States employment service in a special survey made public today.

In such industrial areas as Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, and Massachusetts, the usual and inevitable seasonal slackening was said to be of less consequence than usual, with future resumption of factory operations assured.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Volcano in Eruption

Not Former German Crown Prince.

Rome, Jan. 9. — Dispatches from Meran, Tyrol, today say that the personage stying there who was taken yesterday for Frederick William, former German crown prince, is in reality his brother, Prince Adalbert of Prussia, third son of the former kaiser.

WILL OPPOSE GIVING BONUS PRIORITY TO TAX LEGISLATION

Republican leaders of the house not only are opposed to consideration of the soldiers' bonus ahead of tax legislation but believe it unwise to commit house republicans to the enactment of a bonus bill at this session of congress.

This attitude became known today as bonus foes and friends perfected their plans for tomorrow night's party conference on taxation and the bonus. As they maneuvered for advantage, the revenue question bobed up in the senate, half a dozen senators joining in the discussion.

On the house side, members of the republican soldier bloc, who had had tomorrow night's conference called with the avowed purpose of bringing about a show-down on the bonus, were undecided, in the face of opposition of organization leaders to their plans, as to what tactics they would employ.

The group had intended to offer a resolution instructing the ways and means committee to report the McKenzie bonus bill ahead of the tax measure, now under committee consideration. Announcement by Representative Longworth, the republican leader, that he would counter with a proposal that the committee complete its consideration of the tax bill and report it before taking up the bonus question and his confidence that he would have enough votes to approve this program was followed today by the statement of some members of the war veterans' group that they might not carry out their original intentions.

Representative Fish of New York, one of the leaders in the former service men's bloc, is understood to be prepared to offer a motion at the conference that the republican membership of the house record itself as believing passage of a bonus bill would not be incompatible with tax reduction and that it favors enactment of both tax reduction and bonus legislation at this session.

BOK PEACE AWARD MAY BECOME A COURT CASE

New York, Jan. 9—A court order to compel the Bok peace award jury to read all of the 22,000 plans submitted by contestants may be sought in a few days, Frank Hendrick, a New York attorney, said today.

Mr. Hendrick, whose office has become a center for contestants who assert their plans were not fairly considered, said concerted action might be taken by the dissatisfied contestants.

Another attorney entered the discussion today when Charles Le Barbier was retained to represent Dr. H. Lyons Hunt, a contestant who claims the conditions originally laid down for the contest have not been complied with.

Elihu Root chairman of the jury of awards, will answer the attacks, it was said by Miss Esther Everett Lape, secretary of the policy committee.

VALUE OF FORD MOTOR CO. ESTIMATED AT $840,00,000

New York, Jan. 9—Experts in Wall street, who for years have wondered what the total stock of the Ford Motor company was worth today hazarded the the estimate of $840,000,000 and they believed it would total $1,260,000,000 within another year.

The computations were based on the public valuation of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, profits per car made by the dominion corporation and the one in this country, the former $68 a car and the latter $67 and the market valuation of the Canadian stock which is $425 a share.

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY HAS BANNED HAZING

Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, Jan. 9—Hazing went under the faculty ban today at Lehigh university. Dean McCann told the students of a new rule adopted by the faculty, in which hazing was defined as including "dumping," "paddling" soap feeding and all forms of physical violence and personal indignity. The dean said the faculty was behind him and that hazing survived "only in second rate institutions."

$30,000 FIRE IN BUSINESS SECTION OF ANSONIA

Ansonia, Jan. 9—The business section of this city was threatened by fire which broke out in the A. P. Turney company's store tonight shortly before 9 o'clock. Firemen prevented the spread of the blaze from the three story wooden structure, confining most of the damage to the store itself at a damage of approximately $30,000.

A rooming house occupying the upper stories was emptied of its occupants, some of them being driven into the street in their nightgowns, when the heavy smoke poured through the rooms shortly after the fire started.

STATE FORESTRY ASS'N HAS BOUGHT GREENWOODS FOREST

Hartford, Jan. 9—A portion of the Greenwoods forest, famed in Connecticut history as the last stand of primeval timber in the state is being bought by the Connecticut State Forestry association and presented to the state as the peoples forest. When the entire tract under consideration by the association is bought it will add 3,000 acres to the state holdings and will provide the eighth state forest.

SUPPRESSION OF TRAFFIC IN WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Rome, Jan. 9—An official decree was published today for enforcement of the international convention signed at Paris, May 4, 1910, concerning the suppression of the white slave traffic. It includes also enforcement of the international convention signed at Geneva September 26, 1921 for the suppression of traffic in women and children.

Deadlock in Senate Has Been Broken

Smith, Dem., Was Elected Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, was elected today as chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee.

Smith received 39 votes, or one more than the necessary majority. Cummins of Iowa, the regular republican candidate, polled 28 votes and Cousens, republican, Michigan, the first choice of the insurgents, received six.

Four republican insurgents and the two farmer-labor senators from Minnesota, Johnson and Shipstead, switched from Cousens to the democrat and made possible his election. The insurgents were Brookhart, Iowa; Frazier and Ladd, North Dakota, and LaFollette, Wisconsin.

Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, voted for Cummins to the last. The deciding ballot was the thirty-second since the deadlock developed early in the session.

EXPECT FIGHT OVER PRESIDENT PRO TEM

Washington, Jan. 9.—With the deadlock broken in the senate, organization of the sixty-eighth congress is complete except for an expected fight over the office of senate president pro tem. The situation as to this matter was somewhat obscure tonight. Senator Cummins is without the endorsement of the republican party conference for this place, as the party leaders have held an election to be unnecessary. With the Iowa senator deposed from the chairmanship of the committee which handles railroad legislation, the insurgents have indicated that they would support him for reelection as president pro tem. But there have been rumblings of some opposition from the republican roganization.

MRS. JUNE DIAMOND BROWN'S BODY REMAINS UNCLAIMED

New York, Jan. 9.—The body of Mrs. June Diamond Brown, writer, who died on Christmas eve after taking an overdose of poison, still lay unclaimed at the morgue today, when her wealthy ex-husband, Dudley P. Brown, failed to fulfill his promise to have her buried in Kensico cemetery, instead of potter's field.

Meanwhile a request came from R. R. Brown, of Minneapolis, who said he was a son of Dudley P. Brown, to have the body placed in a vault temporarily until he could locate his father and the woman's mother.

Before she died in Bellevue hospital, Mrs. Brown asked authorities to notify Mrs. Sally Waters, Louisville Ky., in the event of her death, but the latter disclaimed any knowledge of Mrs. Brown.

On her discharge from an insane asylum in 1922, Mrs. Brown was paroled in custody of her mother, Mrs. George W. Waters of St. Louis. She failed to return to her parent but attempted to eke out a living by writing motion picture scenarios.

A DENIAL OF NEGLIGENCE BY WORCESTER JAIL GUARD

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 9.—From his bed in City hospital, Albert E. Decelo, jail guard, who was overpowered by four convicts early Sunday morning at the Worcester county jail, gave his version of the break in which Mervin A. Reynolds, of Danbury, Conn., Thomas Biggs, of Providence, made their escape. He denied Sheriff Richardson's statement that it was his negligence that allowed the prisoners to escape.

"In my thirteen years of service at the jail," Decroche stated, "I have never been reprimanded in any shape or manner."

Five of Family Killed In Fire in Brooklyn

Six-Year-Old Boy Jumped to Death From Window of Apartment.

New York, Jan. 9—Two women and three children, all members of the same family, were killed in a fire that swept through three Brooklyn apartment houses late today. The dead are Mrs. Mary Esler, 43, her five year old son, Steve, her daughter-in-law, Mary, 38, and two grandchildren, Harold, 6 and Catherine, 12, children of Mary and George Esler Jr.

The fire started in the center of three buildings that stood in a row. It was in this building that the Esler family lived on the third floor. Harold was killed when he jumped from a window of the apartment and his father was seriously injured when he also jumped from the flames.

Although the origin of the fire was not definitely established those directing three investigations—the fire marshal's, the district attorney's and the fire department's—worked on a theory that a whiskey still had exploded.

The victims had no chance to escape, so rapidly did the flames spread and the first fireman to arrive found the three buildings unconquerable infernos.

Charred almost beyond recognition the Esiers were found in a heap just inside the locked door of their apartment.

Investigators learned later that the fire was caused by the ignition of gasoline used by a young man trying to thaw out frozen pipes on the second floor of the house. A gallon can of the inflammable liquid caught fire from a gasoline torch.

When the can blazed the youth tried to run down the stairs, but tripped and fell and returned to extinguish the flames. He was badly burned about both hands and when he his efforts were useless he ran out of the house without notifying anyone of the danger.

Fire Marshal Brophy did not divulge his name.

11 WARRANTS AGAINST CLEAN UP RAIDERS IN MARION, ILL.

Marion, Ill., Jan. 9.—(By The A. P.)—Eleven warrants charging assault, larceny and assault and battery were sworn out late today by six men against S. Glenn Young, dry worker, and ten of his clean-up assistants. Five of the warrants were against Young. The complainants were arrested recently in the dry raids which resulted in three companies of militiamen being sent to this, Williamson county, scene of the Herrin mine killings.

Every Ku Klux Klan raider that had aided Young in the clean-up was a "federally authorized special deputy marshal," Young and State Representative Bandy, of Marion, declared here today.

"This move," Young said, "discloses the sheriff's object in calling for troops. He feared the popular indignation that would follow. All these charges are untrue."

Adjutant General Black announced tonight that nothing had occurred to require the troops.

Glenn's co-workers accused in the warrants are John Smith, garage proprietor; Carl Nelson, wholesale grocer; Sam Childers, Harry Walker, and "one Carlson" coal miner, and Caesar Cagle, constable.

A warant sworn out by Hosea Cagle charged four men of Herrin with the Theft of $700, which he alleged has been missing since a recent raid.

"Troops will not be withdrawn from Williamson county tonight," said Adjutant-General Black, who is interviewing citizens in the county in an attempt to obtain clear vision of the situation existing between the opposing factions.

A director order was received here today signed by Division Chief W. W. Anderson, of the general prohibition agents in Illinois, to the effect that all raids in Williamson county must cease.

John Smith and Young were arrested tonight on the warrants sworn out today. They were released on bonds of $1,000 each, which were issued.

The trial of Young was set for January 24 the advanced date being fixed because Young has been called to Washington next week.

WOULD GROUP ALL RAILROAD SERVICE IN NEW ENGLAND

Committee Headed by James J. Storrow Favors Consolidation of Rail Transportation Into One Great Corporation—Argue Before the I. C. C. That Such Action Would Serve to Insure Financial Stability and Improve Service to the New England Public.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The New England situation occupied the attention of the interstate commerce commission today in hearing final arguments upon railroad consolidation proposals. Representatives of a committee headed by James J. Storrow and appointed by the governors of the six New England states detailed reasons which were said to have influenced opinion of that section to the view that transportation service in the region would be best served by a grouping of all present lines in the territory into one great corporation.

Such a regional consolidation, it was argued, would serve to insure financial stability to the resulting corporation and improved service to the New England public. The commission was urged not to lay out any alternative schemes of attaching one or more of the New England roads to eastern trunk line systems.

Discussion before the commission tomorrow will turn chiefly western railroad conditions. The Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and Burlington, the "Hill" group of railroads, will be heard at length, with Walker D. Hines, former director general of railroads, appearing for the Great Northern. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific representatives likewise are scheduled to make brief presentations.

TIRADE BY LABOR MEMBER OF BRITISH PARLIAMENT

London, Jan. 9.—(By the A. P.)—The humdrum proceedings of parliament, which was engaged today in swearing in the members were interrupted by a tirade by John Joseph Jones (Jack Jones), labor member for West Ham, who, because of some fancied grievance against the house of lords came into conflict with the speaker. Disapproval of other members of his party was expressed.

The occasion was the procession of the commoners to the upper house to hear the king's message of approval and the election of the Right Honorable John Henry Whitley as speaker. This is a mere formality, and only a sprinkling of peers were present. This seems to have incensed Jones, who with the other members of the house of commons, was in the gallery.

On the members returning to their own house, Mr. Jones, on a point of order complained to the speaker that the peers had treated the commons with contempt. The speaker vainly tried to mollify the angry member by promising to inquire into any grievance, but Jones persistently continued the altercation, to the evident embarrassment of his fellow members, who finally induced him to resume his seat.

"THE EMPEROR JONES" PRODUCED IN BERLIN

Berlin, Jan. 9. — Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," which was given its first German production in Berlin last night, got a much better reception from the press than his "Anna Christie," but called forth a protest from the monarchist and militarist Deutsche Zeitung.

This paper describes the play as an American search for sensations and wild stage effects which tries to deride kaiserdom, but declares it "did not make any impression on its first night audience by its political thrusts." Denouncing the production of "This foreign sensational drama" the paper says it has lost faith both in Eugene O'Neill and in the stock company which selected his play for production.

Oskar Homoloka, who played the title role, won a great personal success and the majority of the newspapers declare the play is highly original and indicative of an interesting trend in modern drama.

WOULD SEPARATE BOARD FROM THE EMERGENCY FLEET CORP.

Washington, Jan. 9.—After three days' discussion, the shipping board today adopted and sent to President Coolidge for study, a resolution separating the board from the emergency fleet corporation and delegating to the latter authority to operate the government fleet.

Pending its study by the president, provisions of the resolution were not made public but they were understood to reserve to the board full power of supervision over all ship sales and allocations and selection of trade routes, and the power to dispense with the services of the fleet corporation head at its will. It was the point of the powers to be reserved to the board that the hitch developed which held up agreement on the plan by its members.

After several members of the board had refused to approve a memorandum, which it was then said represented in detail the views of President Coolidge on the new plan, on the ground that it called for a delegation of such pwers to the fleet corporation as would constitute a violation of the merchant marine act, the memorandum was taken to the White House today by a board member with an explanation of the position of those opposing its provisions.

It was then learned that the memorandum did not represent the president's views in detail but only in broad principle, White House officials stating that the executive had the intention that the board should be divested of any of the legal powers now held. Adoption of the board's resolution followed.

CHURCH HAD NO RIGHT TO BREAK CONTRACT WITH SINGER

New York, Jan. 9.—Winifred Gaynor, grand niece of a former New York mayor, who sang solos at Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal church, until December 1, might have said "naughty, cutting" things about the choir leader and gossiped about the tenor's ability; but the church had no right to break its contract with her, a municipal court jury decided today. She was awarded $175.

The courtroom was crowded with choristers, vestrymen and other members of the church during the trial. Some were quite shocked by bits of the testimony and left, but most of them stayed until the end. Miss Gaynor sat through it with a look of confidence and when the verdict was announced tripped down to the jury box, shook each juror by the hand and thanked him.

John Cushing, the choir leader declared that Miss Gaynor, with "prima donna ways," played hookey from rehearsals and he remonstrated with her, informing her that in his opinion able John Henry Whitley as speaker. This is a mere formality, and only a sprinkling of peers were present. This seems to have incensed Jones, who with the other members of the house of commons, was in the gallery.

On the members returning to their own house, Mr. Jones, on a point of order complained to the speaker that the peers had treated the commons with contempt. The premises of Mrs. Josephine Marino were raided Saturday by State Policemen Hulbert, Hardisty and Heinold, and four five-gallon cans of liquor were found, also a large quantity of bottled stuff. Mrs. Marino was brought before Justice William B. Hawkins, charged with manufacture, possession and keeping with intent to sell intoxicating liquor. Dominick Marino was also arrested, charged with reputation and keeping with intent to sell intoxicating liquor.

Mrs. Marino pleaded guilty to the charges, which was a second offense, she being arrested Oct. 20 on the same charge, and was given a 16-day suspended jail sentence upon promise to go out of the business. The court told her that he was very much disappointed that she did not do as she had promised but instead engaged more actively in the business. He felt it his duty to impose a fine of $199 and costs, and to sentence her to jail for 30 days. The charge against Dominick Marino, upon recommendation of the prosecutor, was nolled upon payment of costs.

This action, it is hoped, will break up one of the worst receiving and distributing centers in this section.

CUSTOMS AGENTS LEAVE NEW LONDON TO DESTROY LIQUORS AT FISHERS I.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 9. — Daniel W. Watson has been made master of the barge Majestic, of Stonington, succeeding Thomas Eccles. Marton Miller has succeeded J. W. Rowell as master of the barge Kaisen of Philadelphia.

Four thousand, eight hundred ninety-two bottles of liquor were emptied into Fishers Island sound, this morning, by customs house agents, the bottled goods, which comprised Scotch and rye whiskeys being a portion of the cargo of the rum-runner Columbia, which foundered off Fishers Island on the night of Dec. 30th.

Last night Special Agent Frank E. Kirby and two inspectors of the New York customs department, arrived in New London, armed with orders to proceed to Fishers Island and destroy the liquor, which consisted of 406 cases. During the night the officers went to the island and this morning they went to the headquarters of the coast guard where they tackled the job of confiscating the liquor. As fast as the bottles were removed from the boxes they were taken to the shore and the contents of the cases deposited in the sound, the task not being completed until this afternoon. The liquor had an estimated value of close to $3,500.

The Columbia was headed through the sound on the night of Dec. 30th, during a heavy wind and tide. When off Fishers Island the launch was carried on the rocks and was wrecked. The crew of the life saving station obtained the major portion of the cargo, which has since been held in storage at the life saving station.

Lieut. H. W. Alden, stationed at the submarine base, was in the police court this morning for operating his automobile without having registration so to do. He pleaded not guilty and endeavored to excuse his conduct on the ground that it was an inconvenience for him to have secured the registration without losing a great deal of time. So he took a chance and lost out. He explained to the court that he went to the registration bureau and could not get the desired papers without a long wait and that sacrifice he could not make. State Policeman Leon Schaffen came upon Lieut. Alden far up the road and notified him to appear in court. His appearance will cost him something more than $21, which is a pretty stiff price to pay for a little time that might have been spent in getting registration.

Mitchell Marchanski, a boy whose home is or was at Lisbon, but who was found stealing a ride to New York from this city on the front of a locomotive, will come into the police court tomorrow when the probation officer will explain what he has learned about Mitchell in the past week. The boy is a romancer all right, but what measure of truth there is in the stories he has told no one yet knows. He was arrested here last summer stealing a ride on a train and then steered Probation Officer Mansfield far afield when the officer accepted what Mitchell said as being true. It was learned since then that the boy's father and mother were residing on a farm at Lisbon and that the father tired of trying to earn a living there and went to New York to engage in work at his trade, that of a leather worker. Mitchell proceeded to New York to join his father, but didn't stay long before an itching for hunting the section about Lisbon possessed him and he returned there. That sport suited but a short time and then he longed for New York and started for that city without having any money. That led to his apprehension and his appearance in court last week. His case was continued to Thursday that facts concerning him might be ascertained.

Steward Lawne, the Providence man held here for concubinage in bringing Evelyn Foster, a Providence girl, to this city, for the alleged purpose of leading a life of shame, will not know what is in store for him till Saturday when he will be in the police court or before United States Commissioner Frank L. McGuire. A federal attorney has been in this city investigating the matter and to learn whether there was a commercial side of the case actually or whether there was no such phase of the arrangement between Miss Foster and Lawne, and he has not yet reported the result of his investigation to the prosecutor. The case was called in the police court today and then Lawne was held in $5,000 till next Saturday. He has secured an attorney to represent him in court.

Antone Leverone, who disposed of a three-story brick structure on Golden street to Frederick H. Gavitt, proprietor of the Hotel Royal, yesterday, left last night on the steamer for New York and today sailed for Miami, where he will engage in business. Mr. Leverone was accompanied by several New Londoners who will be employed by him.

Antone Leverone, who is remembered as the proprietor of the leading mercantile place at Ocean Beach, has gone to Florida where he will develop land and engage in raising vegetables for the northern market. He has taken several men with him from this city and will get buildings ready for his use. Mr. Leverone expects that he will be able to raise some three crops a year and that he will have the earliest peas, cucumbers, spinach, asparagus and all other vegetables for sale here before the snow is off the ground. He has all his plans laid and he is to carry them out in a broad way. Mr. Leverone has made a large investment in the acquisition of land and he will increase his investment in the way of buildings and machinery. He is no expert at the business in which he will engage but he will have with him persons of long years of service in the farming industry in the south. Mr. Leverone is a brother-in-law of S. Polk, the theatrical magnate, and the gentleman is understood to be interested with him in the financial end of the business.

An Italian, a caretaker in the employ of Dr. Tracy W. Farnam, of 966 Pequot avenue, and who resides upon the estate, received an anonymous communication yesterday which purported to be written by one or more members of the Ku Klux Klan, and which threatened the caretaker with bodily harm if he did not turn over $1,000 at a place near the estate, to the writers of the letter. At the police station today it was admitted that the Italian had lodged complaint there, but that his name was being withheld because he did not wish any notoriety in the matter. Neither is there any entry on the blotter showing that a complaint was received and there is no record of the complaint being lodged there. It is known, however, that Lieut. Benjamin Beebe assigned Patrolman Walter Rehn, upon whose beat the Farnam residence is located, to maintain a watch of the place throughout the night and should any suspicious persons be found loitering in the vicinity of the estate, to take them into custody. Rehn was close to the Farnam place throughout the night until 3 o'clock this morning, when he went off duty, and no appearance of members of the band or suspicious persons was observed by him. The threatening letter is the second within two weeks which has been sent to residents of New London.

Patrick McCarthy, 39, of 40 Read street, died at Lawrence hospital last night from pneumonia. He had been under treatment at the institution about two weeks. Mr. McCarthy was a plumber and is survived by two brothers, Robert and John McCarthy of New London and by a sister, Mrs. Arthur Bridgham of Willimantic. Mr. McCarthy was a member of F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company.

Mrs. Dell Eastland of Bent View, Waterford; Miss Elsie Fish, Shaw street, David Bingham, Hempstead street and Charles Bent of Ocean avenue, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

At a meeting of the F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company, held last night, the old board of officers, with Council Thomas F. Grogan as foreman, was re-elected for another year.

The deed transferring the lot, corner of Huntington and Church streets, from Frederick W. Mercer, J. F. Taylor Armstrong and Theodore Bodenwein, to the Colonial Filling Station, Inc., of Boston, was received for record at the office of the city clerk this afternoon. The price paid was $16,000. A $25,000 brick structure for the dispensing of gasoline will be erected upon the site at once.

The funeral of Andrew J. Blake, a well known machinist, whose death occurred a few days ago at a private hospital, was held this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock at his former residence, 95 Montauk avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Prayer for Mrs. Fannie Lawis Dunbar, wife of John F. Dunbar, was held this afternoon at 1.15 o'clock at her home, 670 Williams street in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and acquaintances. Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. At 1.30 o'clock services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Howe at the church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Mrs. Henriette Brockhaus, widow of August Brockhaus, died this morning at her home, 8 Konomoc street. Mrs. Brockhaus, who was of advanced years and who had been in ill health some time, is survived by a son, Arthur Brockhaus of New London, and by a daughter, Mrs. George Rand, of Essex.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan in making his rounds on Bank street late last night discovered the entrance of the Troy laundry unlocked. The place could not be secured, but the officer maintained a watch of the location for the remainder of the night.

The automobile, owned and operated by Casmire E. Cocradt of 936 West Main street, New Britain, and an automobile owned and driven by Louis Goldbaum, 1800 Bathgate avenue, Bronx, New York, were in collision this morning on Main street, near Masonic street. Both cars were damaged, Goldbaum's machine sustained the greater damage. Goldbaum was arrested by Traffic Patrolman Frank Linehan, charged with violation of the automobile laws in not having an operator's license. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning. The accident occurred when Goldbaum's car, headed in a northerly direction, approached Masonic street and the wheels became caught in the trolley rails. Because of the moist condition of the highway the cars slid along the trawles. Goldbaum endeavored to guide the car from the rails, but was unable to do so, with the result that the automobile crashed against the machine of Cocradt.

Mrs. Cornell residing on New Street was taken into custody this afternoon when discovered roaming about the streets. Later in the day she was turned over to the care of her sister, Mrs. James Newman of Allen Street, Groton.

Mrs. Cornell is undoubtedly suffering from mental trouble as a result of merold religious views for she passed through State street shoppers about 4 o'clock wearing a small handpainted sign "Mexican Christ". Traffic Officer Frank Linehan's attention was called to her. The officer questioned the woman and quickly determined that her mind was unbalanced. She was taken to the police station where she declared that she had talked with Jesus Christ on the street and that she would converse with Him again. During the course of her more rational utterances it was ascertained that she had a sister in Groton and inquiry revealed that Mrs. Newman was the next to kin and the latter's notification followed.

Witnesses are being summoned for the trial of Dr. Charles S. Isaacson, formerly of New London, more recently of Waterford, charged with performing an abortion upon a New London girl, at the residence of the physician several weeks ago.

State Policeman Joseph J. Komenski stationed at Groton barracks, has resigned and his resignation, it is stated, is the the result of the acquittal of a prisoner by the New London police court a week ago. The resignation was sent direct to Superintendent of State Police Robert Hurley at Hartford, Komenski resides in New Britain and he received his appointment about 18 months ago.

The wrath of the officer was occasioned when Judge Prince discharged Miss Edna Leighton Tyler of Gardner avenue, following the young woman being ordered into court New Year's day for violation of the automobile law, in operating her machine with 1924 markers.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Steckel requested all police departments to enforce the law requiring the use of 1924 markers. When Officer Komenski was making a tour of New London streets he observed Miss Tyler operating her machine with last year's markers on it. After questioning the young woman he ordered her into court the following day. When Miss Tyler was presented she admitted having used her car with improper markers attached, and said that she had been unable to procure new markers because of the rush at the office of the motor vehicle department and she decided to take a chance and use the automobile with the old markers on. Judge Prince ordered Miss Tyler discharged and a few days later Komenski decided to resign and forwarded his resignation to his superior officer.

Mrs. Irving Mitchell and infant of Willetts avenue, Mrs. Warren Hartwell and infant of Terrace avenue, Mrs. Angelina Terisca of Liberty St., Westerly; Nichola Castagna of Westerly and Samuel Lombardo of Westerly, patients at Home Memorial Hospital, were discharged today.

Denison, were married this evening at 7 o'clock at the residence of the bride's mother, Pleasant street, Groton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George R. Avis, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church, in the presence of relatives and intimate friends. The best man was J. Albert Thompson, brother-in-law of the bride; Miss Laura M. Perkins attended the bride. Mr. Clark is employed at the Groton post office in charge of the rural delivery and his bride was chief clerk there for a number of years.

AT THE PALACE

The Marty Dupree show which scored such a decided hit the first three days of this week, will offer a complete change of program for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is claimed that the show the last half of the week is even bigger and better than the one the first half. If that is so, then the Norwich theatre going public are certainly in up a class, as every one who attended the Famous Melodies Revue and Beauty Chorus were loud in their praise for this company of clever entertainers. That Norwich enjoys a good clean entertainment such as is given by the Dupree Co., was evidenced by capacity houses attending every performance. The feature picture is a story by Booth Tarkington, internationally famous as a novelist and dramatist, who has no equal as a writer of stories about the younger generation. And William Beaudine has won fame in motion picture circles as the greatest director of "kid" stories.

The creative genius of both is responsible for one of the most intriguing pictures which has ever reached the screen. It is "Penrod and Sam" which is now being shown at the Palace Theatre. The picture has been acclaimed a classic of American boyhood.

Penrod Schofield, the youthful hero of Tarkington's stories, is without a doubt the best-known figure in present-day fiction. His popularity with the reading public is due to the fact that he has been drawn with rare fidelity by the author.

"Penrod and Sam," is filled with screamingly funny situations, due to the propensity of Penrod and his chum Sam of the duo is portrayed by Joe Butterworth. The two are accomplished actors and live, rather than act, their parts. The adult roles in the production are enacted by Gladys Brockwell, Rockliffe Fellows, William V. Mong, Gareth Hughes and Mary Philbin, among others.

A special kiddie matinee Saturday morning at 10.30 a. m. is also on the program when a two hour show will be given the children at 10c admission charge.

EXCITING CHASE AND FIGHT IN BIG MYSTERY

One of the most exciting roof-top chases and fights ever screened will be seen in "The Leavenworth Case," a Whitman Bennett production, which will be shown at the Strand Theatre up today to Saturday.

This sequence forms the unexpected in the presentation of this unusual mystery story. "The Leavenworth Case," which is based upon the famous novel of the same name by Anna Katharine Green, is the story of the solution of the baffling murder of Ira Leavenworth, a wealthy old recluse, who is found shot to death in his sound-proof apartment.

His two nieces, Mary and Eleanor Leavenworth, whose relationship with their uncle had never been more than ordinarily cordial, are the first to come to the attention of the police as possible guilty persons. Suspicion then swings to a strange dealer upon Mr. Leavenworth on the night of his death. Two other men closely connected with the affairs of Mr. Leavenworth are not beyond suspicion. A secret marriage, a key, a woman's handkerchief and a charred letter are clues that concern investigators.

The crime is solved by Donald Robertson, a private investigator, who is one of the most famous fiction detectives. Revelation as to who the guilty party is proves a highly sensational climax to the mystery.

Seena Owen and Martha Mansfield are seen as the nieces of Ira Leavenworth. Wilfred Lucas is a romantic and mysterious figure in the photoplay, while Bradley Barker and Carl Dauset are prominent in the all-star cast. Charles Giblyn directed the production, which is rated as the best mystery story ever screened.

A comedy and news completes the program.

MUSICAL RECITAL

As arranged for by the Jewett City Chamber of Commerce, Richmond Gardner will sing in Finn's Theatre, Jewett City, Friday evening, from the steps of the stage. Mr. Gardner is a native of Hampton and old Irish Folk Songs, and will close with a selection from the opera La Jolie Fille de Perth, by Bizet.

Mr. Gardner will soon (in the middle of February) return to his music studies abroad, going to Italy for a couple of months; then resuming his course in the Conservatoire Americain at Fontainebleau. Already he has devoted two summer terms to study and training in the Conservatoire Americain. In addition he has been in Paris under the same professors as those at Fontainebleau—operas and in opera comique.

The musical entertainment which Mr. Gardner will give on the evening of January 15 is an opportunity which music lovers ought to appreciate. His prospects are bright for important engagements within a short time; for he has talent and a training which involves labor and study applications.

Tickets on sale at Cranston's.

"MONNA VANNA" DRAMA AT BREED THEATRE

"Monna Vanna" which Maurice Maeterinck, the Belgian author, wrote in 1909 was acclaimed by international critics as a literary masterpiece of the highest order. And "Monna Vanna" which William Fox, the motion picture producer presents on the screen of the Breed theatre for the remainder of the week, reaches a similar position in the art of the photoplay, if the outburst of applause from the capacity audience which filled the auditorium last night is any indication.

The picture version of the famous author's story is characterized by an adequacy uncommon in elaborate productions of its type. The romantic spectacle reveals a dignified splendor in its every scene and is elevated to perfection by its conspicuous freedom from the taint of garishness.

Director and producer have assembled a cast of brilliant talents, and supported by a story of absorbing interest and vitality, they display the finest histrionic supremacy of emotion and perseverance this reviewer has ever witnessed.

Too much cannot be said for excellence of the film translation of the powerful story. The many pitfalls beset those who venture the transfer of a master's art to the screen seem to have been but stepping stones to a higher success for the daring men who made "Monna Vanna."

A news reel and a comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

Salada Salesmen in Convention

Enthusiasm, efficiency, and loyalty supplemented by newspaper advertising into the home, formed the keynote to the addresses delivered by heads of the Salada Tea Company at the annual convention of sales managers and salesmen from all parts of the country, held at the national headquarters in Boston last week. The convention lasted two days.

Edgar H. Pinto, Business Manager, in calling it to order, declared he felt reasonably confident that when the final figures were made up for the year, they would show a three per cent increase in poundage for Salada Tea in the United States than for any previous year in the history of the Company.

William H. Walsh, Advertising Manager, also spoke most encouragingly of the newspapers as being by all odds the best medium. Moreover, it is remark that Hon. F. C. Larkin, President of the Corporation, has always contended that you must first of all have a meritorious product, then advertise persistently, consistently and energetically. That has been the policy of the Salada Tea Company since the beginning, and continues the policy today. Mr. Walsh contended that the newspaper remains the maximum of advertising mediums in furnishing contact with the people. It is the only medium that the business cannot afford to be without.

Representatives of the Boston office, including Manager [illegible] Murray and Frank Samuel, Frank Thacker and others.

DANIELSON

Everett Harrington is again a patient at Norwich state hospital. He was picked up in Webster by the police of that place Wednesday morning and had created the impression that he was Frank Weedon, the notorious Rhode Island murdered who escaped last summer and was believed to be in this territory for a time, when State Officers Merrill Keith of the Danielson barracks, out on a hunt for the wanted man, came along and identified him. Officer Keith brought Harrington back to Connecticut and delivered him at the Norwich institution during the afternoon.

Early Wednesday morning a trolley crew reported that Harrington had been seen going north on a car that left here at 6.10 Tuesday night, but at that time no one knew that the man was wanted. He left the car in Putnam and somehow made his way to Webster between then and Wdnesday morning.

It is evident from this that he did not long remain in an unconscious condition after being hit with a shovel by Edward Pinkham and that upon coming to he had walked three quarters of mile to the trolley line and boarded a car.

He appears to have been under the impression that he was Weedon, for he told Pinkham that's who he was when he first attacked him, though Pinkham knew decidedly different, and he signed as Weedon at Webster—writing "kill, kill, kill," under his name. He is also said to have written an another slip of paper, "Bills, bills, bills—money, money."

Newly elected officers of Danielson Girls' club for the year are: President, Mrs. L. S. Ingalls; vice president, Miss Edith Fuller; secretary, Mrs. Harold Horton; treasurer, Mrs. Chas. W. Hale; financial secretary, Miss Antoinette LaPonte; chairman entertainment committee, Miss Annie Gates. In connection with the annual election there was a lunch, sandwiches, coffee and cake being served.

At the annual meeting of the Bohemian club, A. M. Thompson was re-elected president. A. Putnam Woodward, secretary-treasurer and John B. Bassett, George Robertson and Francis E. Storers members of the executive committee.

The meeting drew an attendance of about 70 and there was lively balloting on the election and interesting discussion of various matters that came before the meeting for consideration. The club rejected by a narrow margin a proposal that the minimum age limit for admission be reduced from 21 to 18 years. It accepted a proposal that the limit of membership be increased from 200 to 225. At the close of the year the club had 193 members and four applications for membership were approved at the annual meeting.

Following the annual meeting of St. Alban's parish, it was announced Wednesday morning that steps were taken that will lead to establishing St. Alban's as an independent parish instead of a mission receiving aid from the missionary society, as has been its status for many years. The reports given at the meeting showed St. Alban's to be in splendid condition, spiritually and financially, and in a position to undertake with success the establishment of a parish in Danielson.

Also featuring the meeting was the reading of a communication from Rev. L. R. Richards of Auburn, R. I., who is to come here as rector, taking up the duties the first of February. There has been no resident rector at St. Alban's since Rev. Albert Jepson went to Windsor Locks, about September 1.

James Edward Milner was elected chairman of the executive committee, John R. Mariand treasurer, John Bamford, collector, Alfred L. Reed, clerk. Prior to the business meeting a splendid supper was served by the members of the Sewing society.

In becoming a parish the members of St. Alban's will assume entire financial responsibility for its maintenance. This it is anticipated will not be difficult, for the church has received only a small amount of financial assistance annually for a number of years. The change also will eventually mean the taking over of the church property now held in the name of the Missionary society of the diocese and the incorporation of the parish in accordance with customary procedure in such cases. St. Alban's has approximately 110 communicants and attracts numbers of other worshippers regularly. Their success in conducting the affairs of the church has led to their being able to assume the full responsibility of a parish and this is to be done in due course, through machinery set in motion at the annual meeting.

Though no statement relative to the matter is available here, it may be definitely stated that the Connecticut company is to abandon its car house at Dayville except for storage purposes and use a portion of the big building at the power station at the Dyer dam as a carhouse. Work in carrying out the necessary changes at the powerhouse is now underway and will be completed in the near future. Three tracks have been run into the building and a machine shop is being equipped there. The carhouse serving the local lines, extending from Central Village to North Grosvenordale, has been located at Dayville since the construction of the trolley line, about 25 years ago. It is understood that the change herein outlined is to be made in the interests of economy, concentrating the carhouse, machine shop and power station in one building.

The Danielson Trust company has erected a magnificent electric illuminated clock on an ornamental pedestal in front of its banking house. The timepiece has four large dials facing as many different directions, and will not only add materially to the appearance of the busiest section of the city, but will prove a great convenience to the general public.

The most distinctive feature of the clock, other than its unusually artistic appearance and the perfection of its construction and mechanism, is the complete set of Westminster chimes with which it is equipped. These ring every quarter hour and may be heard practically as far as the clock may be seen.

The big clocks are operated by electricity from a master clock inside the building, in the main banking room. This is an especially handsome structure of mahogany and plate glass construction, with 12-inch dial, and guaranteed to keep practically perfect time. Every minute the hands of the big clocks are sent ahead one minute by electricity governed by the master clock within, the connection between the two instruments being perfect and insuring correct time on the large clocks on the outside as well as on the master clock inside.

The clock is erected at the curb line in front of the bank building at a sufficient elevation to be plainly visible from all parts of the street. It is 17 feet in height by 3 feet square, of dark bronze with copper hood at top and bottom. All faces of the clock are alike, and underneath each dial are the words, The Danielson Trust company in large illuminated letters. The dials of the clock are 24 inches in diameter, of set glass.

The officers of the bank offer the following explanation of the beautiful Westminster chimes consisting of five tubular chime bells with which the clock is equipped, giving interesting information regarding the chimes themselves as well as explaining the objects which have prompted the bank to offer the public the many advantages to be derived and enjoyed from this beautiful clock:

"As a home institution, serving the people of this locality—enjoying your good will and business favor, we have in the past endeavored to show our appreciation by presenting our patrons calendars and novelties and otherwise recognizing your co-operation in making this a serviceable and successful house.

"Years of prosperous banking have been made possible only by your support. We wanted to show our appreciation in a substantial way and have, therefore, purchased of the manufacturers, a large handsome clock combined with a set of the softest and most beautiful chimes ever heard in any city of the old or new world.

THE CHIMES

"Lord, through this hour
Be Thou our guide
So by Thy power
No foot shall slide.

"Everyone who has lived within sound of the bells of Westminster is familiar with the verse given above. The origin of the carillion has never been positively established. Some writers accredit it to Mr. Crouch, who was a pupil of Dr. Randall, regius professor of music. This, however, is disputed by other writers, who accredit it to Dr. Randall's conception of the idea taken from a movement in the fifth bar of the opening of Handel's Symphony, 'I know that my Redeemer liveth.' The chimes were first fitted to the clock of the University church, St. Marg's the Great, in Cambridge, but were not copied until reproduced on a very large scale in the Victoria clock tower of the House of Parliament.

"At the quarter, half and three-quarter hour these chimes will ring out in various musical combinations. At a quarter past the hour, four strokes—Westminster; at half past the hour, eight strokes—Reveille; at the three-quarters past the hour, twelve strokes—Cathedral peal; and on the hour sixteen strokes—Westminster, followed by the striking of the full hour, in a clear, vibrant tone.

"May we hope that the chimes will mean something to all of our people—that they will have a message for the youngster on his way to school—a thought for the business man who hustles through his day; a solace for the old, and inspiration for all.

"Every day of the week the chimes will be sounding their message—the note of warning spoken in time; the chime of rejoicing; the lament in time of sorrow. The chime will be all things to all men, for it is going to belong not to us alone, but to men and women and children of our community."

Investigation Wednesday developed the fact that while state police were using their very best efforts to locate Everett Harrington, soon after he had been knocked out with a shovel by Edward Pinkham, that Harrington, having regained control of himself, came cross lots from the location of the incident to the trolley line, boarding the northbound car at 6.10 p. m. at the white pole about 200 feet from the barracks—an evidence of his irresponsibility and that he did not sense he was wanted badly.

Miss Jennie Williams, operator at the central telephone exchange, is ill at the home of her parents in Moosup.

PUTNAM

Some timid residents hereabouts became a bit jumpy, Wednesday morning, when they read The Bulletin's story relative to Everett Harrington and his plan to make Edward Pinkham, an East Killingly youth, dig his own grave before he killed his captive and their state of mind was aggravated upon reports being received that Harrington was known to have left Danielson and come in this direction on a trolley car. There need be no further fear of Harrington, as he was picked up in in Webster Wednesday morning almost before the average person had read about his wild escapade and is now safely in custody again at Norwich state hospital.

A story in a recent issue of a Boston paper recounts the tragic end of James Welch, a printer, who was employed on a paper here for a few months about two years ago. Welch, who was about 40, was found dead in a room in a cheap lodging house in one of the squalid districts of Boston. A companion—another man—lay dead beside him. The bodies were found by the landlady when she opened entrance to the room when them did not appear after the time and long since passed for them to be up and about. The medical examiner who viewed the bodies said Welch and his companion died of alcoholic poisoning, and the assumption is that they drank some poisonous concoction.

Welch was rated here as an able pressman and one of wide experience, he having worked in printing shops in various parts of the country. He came of a very good family, but had a great weakness for intoxicating drinks, a weakness that finally cost him his life.

More criminal business will be taken up when the superior court meets here today (Thursday). There was no session Wednesday. Good progress has been made so far in disposing of cases and further progress is anticipated for today. It is stated that it is the intention of the state attorney to clear the calendar of criminal business during the present session, which has produced the prospect of a number of trials.

Here is an angle of the fishing license laws to which attention is being called by Supt. J. W. Titcomb of the state board of fisheries and game and which few fishermen know about—the following being from a letter that Superintendent Titcomb has sent to all game wardens:

Every operator of a fish net must have a license, the fee for which is $1, and every owner of a net must have a special license for the particular type of net he uses, the fees for which are given on the application form.

Every application for a net license should be accompanied by an application for an operator's license. Tags will be furnished by the department for marking nets. These are not yet ready, but we will be able to send them out to all licensed fishermen within a few days. In the meantime you will, of course, have to overlook the absence of these tags on the nets and simply demand to see the license of the fisherman.

It has been brought to our attention that several dealers in bait are engaged in fishing for and selling bait at the present time without a license. All dealers in live bait must have both the operator's license and the special license for minnow nets. You will please check up on these people very carefully.

In the maritime district a license is required of all commercial fishermen, the fee for which is $5.00. No license is required of fishermen who do not engage in fishing for purposes of sale, with the exception, of course, of lobster fishermen.

Of interest here as elsewhere along the Putnam lines is the fact that the carhouse at Dayville is to be abandoned by the Connecticut company, excepting for storage purposes and carhouse facilities created at the powerhouse at the Dyer dam, two miles south of Danielson, as told in the Danielson news this morning.

Suitors after employment continue to invade this section, as has been the rule since late in the fall. January has not seen so many of them as did November and December, but they are numerous yet despite the fact that numbers of them have obtained work or have been sent to jail for terms of 30 days or more.

CONGRESS AND COAL.

Whether congress will get down to the business of dealing with the coal industry at the present session is beyond the power of man to tell. It is a month since it opened for business and it requires no great time or material to set forth its accomplishments. It hasn't as yet begun to move in that direction.

Within a fortnight the soft coal miners will meet in convention for the purpose of determining what demands are to be made for a new agreement that will replace the existing one, expiring in the spring. About three weeks thereafter there will be a conference of the representatives of th miners and the operators in an endeavor to reach an agreement. Much likewise depends upon what is looked upon as the attitude of congress relative to the coal situation. Such is certain to have its bearing upon the coming convention and conference. If congress indicates that it is not interested, or not enough to show proper protection to the welfare of the coal consumer the inference to be drawn from such is not going to be overlooked.

The federal commission has made recommendations. For the purpose of preventing frequent repetitions of trouble over fuel congress has a duty to perform. It knows the predicament of the coal using public and any passive attitude will be subject to quick interpretations.

The country has experienced the effects of enough coal strikes without by any means becoming reconciled to them. It looks to congress for such relief as lies within its power. There may be other ways of meeting the problems but federal legislation is one of the avenues from which help can be derived, and with the possibilities of another strike looming up before the country it is time for congress to let it be known that the interests of the public are not going to be entirely ignored. Congressional action based upon past performances and recommendations for preventing a recurrence is needed.

THE WAYS OF TWO CITIES.

How similar problems are tackled in different ways is illustrated by the manner in which the new director of public safety is going at his task of cleaning up Philadelphia and the way in which the police commissioner of New York recently and apparently reluctantly began a drive against the crooks.

Commissioner Enright, after it was disclosed that there was a rising wave of crime in the city of New York, found it necessary to do something. He stopped the vacations of his policemen and served notice upon the gunmen, robbers and crooks to get out of the city. That is instead of dealing with this criminal class for the protection of the metropolis it was his object to drive them out and leave them free to prey upon others, in fact forced them loose upon the rest of the country, and particularly that nearby, for the continuance of their lawless business.

General Butler as director of public safety has ordered the city cleaned up and he expects the police to accomplish it. He hasn't undertaken to tell the criminal class that all will be well with them if they leave the city. That may be their own inference but they are not ordered out, the expectation being that the police will deal with all who make a business of violating the law.

It is the proper way to deal with a crime wave or to enforce the laws. Those who figure that Philadelphia is not going to be a healthy place to remain will get out the best way they can. New York anticipates that it will get some of them for Commissioner Enright has warned his force to be on its guard against such people as the result of The Quaker city's clean up. But while New York may be anticipating the emigration of many to that city it must be able to appreciate the satisfaction there is in knowing that Philadelphia has not resorted to a cleaning up of its deplorable conditions by inviting those responsible for those conditions to go somewhere and camp. It has set about dealing with its own problems in a direct and commendable manner.

THE AUTO SHOW.

Automobile shows have charmed from the time they were inaugurated. There may have been some in the smaller cities that got rather cold receptions in the beginning but they are now regarded as necessary. And why shouldn't they be?

There are for instance more than 15,000,000 motor vehicles in the country. There are more who can drive motor vehicles than own them. There is a motor vehicle for one in every seven and a half persons in the United States. That makes it evident why there is a steadily increasing interest in the automobile shows.

Naturally those who can get to the big centers are eager to do so when the auto shows are in full swing. Those who cannot must be content with what they read about them or what they can gather from the smaller shows. The auto show is an important feature of the times.

However much one may be committed to his particular type of car or the machine that he now owns, he is desirous of getting acquainted with the newest features, and he isn't afraid to learn the good points of all the cars, especially if he is an automobile fan. The respective merits of the various makes, the new models, the up to date devices developed through experience or demand, the thousand and one accessories, tools and the like are all spread out to allure and charm. And that is what they do. It is a wonderful show and the increasing patronage each year shows what a reception it gets.

And while the show has its appeal for those who own or run cars, it likewise has a fascination for those who haven't but desire one. The auto show is a fixture, the problem being to provide room enough to accommodate all those who desire to exhibit, and it draws from far and near till the display in many centers, big and little, covers the country like a network. It is a display of goods that is a great aid to the automobile business and no little satisfaction to the trade.

SHIPPING BOARD'S CONSENT.

By the approval of the shipping board of the change recommended concerning the management of the fleet of merchant ships owned by the government, the direction of the work which has hitherto been handled by the board will in the future be under the control of one man, Admiral Leith Palmer.

It is an effort to get greater efficiency, and is based upon the recognized fact that a one-man control is preferable to the board control in which a variety of opinions may exist and when it does reacts to the disadvantage of the entire service.

Convinced of the wisdom of making the change, President Coolidge has acted promptly in his endeavors to put it into operation. With the approval of the board, whereby it steps from a managerial position to that of advisory, there has been accomplished in a short time what might have required months had it been necessary to accomplish the same thing through new legislation.

Just as long as the government must continue to look after the merchant marine that was developed during the war, it must aim for the best possible results from its operation. Efforts to get the chance to try for greater efficiency and economy through a subsidy failed. This endeavor to overcome the handicap which our ships experience in comparison with those of other countries encountered too much opposition.

Possibly the one-man control will not do all that it is expected, and it is certain that it will not accomplish the impossible, but every move that is for better business, whether in the merchant marine or any other government service, is deserving of commendation. The board has acted wisely.

SAFEGUARDING TROLLEY USERS

In the efforts which are becoming more and more necessary every day to prevent automobile fatalities, Massachusetts has had an active commissioner of motor vehicles, whose work has been constantly directed against the failure to properly enforce the laws and the recklessness of drivers.

It is therefore in keeping with expectations that Commissioner Goodwin is seeking additional legislation in our neighboring state for the purpose of dealing with certain conditions calling for betterment.

Strange as it may seem Massachusetts does not appear to have a state law safeguarding those who are leaving or entering a trolley car. A number of deaths have occurred because drivers have failed to stop, or keep at a sufficient distance under a reduced speed on such occasions, and it is now proposed that such be included among the motor vehicle laws. It is a protection that the public is entitled to, one that Connecticut long since established, and while not always it is respected for the most part.

Such legislation, like much other, is made necessary because of the comparatively few who show an unwillingness to contribute to the general safety. It is forced by those drivers who refuse to check their speed or stop when approaching a car receiving or delivering passengers, or who insist upon going by on the wrong side to the danger of those going around either end of the trolley car.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Every day is a leap day for those who are crossing the streets.

Perhaps the good resolutions will hold out as well as the winter's coal supply.

If you are able to write it 1924 every time the newness is beginning to wear off.

Stop and think and you'll realize that there can be no January thaw unless there's a January freeze.

Senator Ladd says LaFollette will not run for the presidency. It will take some explaining to understand anything like that.

With people freezing to death in Georgia, Alabama and Louisiana, it is hard to understand why some people go south in the winter time.

Cutting the national debt by $400,000,000 during the past year means much to those who appreciate the benefit of good business administration.

Those in congress who are all worked up over the Mellon plan are those who are unwilling to give the taxpayers the reduction to which they are entitled.

The man on the corner says: Look and listen may be good advice in connection with learning politics, but it is always safe to heavily discount political promises.

Jailing intoxicated auto drivers is preferable to letting them off with a slap on the wrist after endangering the lives of others, or possibly sending someone to a hospital or an undertaking establishing.

With so many others being pardoned, paroled and given suspended sentences, to say nothing of acquittals, it is not likely to be hard to work up quite a bit of sympathy for Harry Thaw's release.

ROSEBUD SAVES THE DAY

Rosebud Richardson was two and toddling. She was oft accused of being a very naughty little baby, when if the truth were really known she was merely investigating this new, strange world! Right now Rosebud was engaged in investigating the lower part of the cupboard. First she dragged out the coffee. Next she tackled the rice tin. That too made a pleasant splash so just to make the job complete, Rosebud dumped the contents of the flour bin over all! "Goo-goo"—she screamed in delight.

"Rosebud," her mother admonished. "This time you shall not escape. You are a little minx—very, very naughty baby." The infant made a speedy ascent through the air and landed close against her mother's bosom.

After that Mama Rose pointed to the heaped mixture of dry groceries and somehow or other Rosebud understood. Rosebud was hurt and humiliated. A moist little underlip shot forward. Two big tears trembled on a long-lashed lip and tumbled over a pair of pretty pink cheeks. Then came the rush of mother forgiveness and Rose snuggled her daughter closer, croning lovingly.

Jamie appeared suddenly. "Well, old kid, how goes it anyway?" He lifted his young wife off her feet and swung her around in a circle. Then he kissed her.

"Why all the excitement?" Rose scanned his face closely. She knew that something out of the ordinary had happened, for Jamie was home earlier than usual and a bright spark lighted his Irish blue eyes.

"Oh, nothing very much," he answered nonchalantly. "Just cleaned up two hundred cold simoleums on the fight last night, that's all. You could have knocked me over with a feather when I got to the office this morning and found I had won the pool."

"I thought we thrashed out this matter of your gambling before we were married!" his wife chided.

"Now, now, honey don't be silly. That's not gambling. What's a fellow to do when the gang goes in on a pool—be a piker I suppose? And besides, didn't I win?"

"Well, I don't like it a bit, Jim, this gambling streak in you. I suppose I never hear of the many times you lose, do I? And me, trying to economize every minute of the day, so that we can get along.

"I han buy a fur coat with the money," she said.

"That's going into the bank," he declared.

Rose was fretful. She had married Jamie when she was very young. In their married life they had been poor, and the fur coat was the one luxury upon which she had set her heart.

"You don't care anything about me, or you'd let me have it!" she sobbed.

"Cut out the weeps, Rose, and look at matters squarely. You'll be glad I didn't give in next spring when we get our house!"

It was a warm day so Jim flung the window wide open, seated himself at the parlor table and proceeded to count his winnings. It was distressing to listen to Rose weeping bitterly in the kitchen. No, he'd stand it—he simply wouldn't give in. But he could not endure it when he heard her talking to their young daughter.

"Oh, Rosebud," she wailed, "daddy doesn't love us. He is a naughty wicked man who gambles, and worst of all a poor sport! Never mind, you and mother will go away some day and then he'll appreciate us when he is all alone!"

James could not be thus blackened in the eyes of his two year old child, so he sprang to his own defense. And one word led to another until a marital storm was in full progress in a short time.

Rose and Jim had decided that life together was impossible. She would go home to her mother that very day, and she'd take the baby, too, and he'd never see the baby again. The baby—where was the baby? A flood of anxiety swept over Daddy Jim as he thought of the open window. Both parents rushed into the front room. Rosebud was still giving little screeches of delight. Assured that his darling was safe, Jim's mind turned to the money.

"The money"—he gasped. "Rose, I left it there on the table. What has become of it—where is it?"

The parents stood gazing at each other in bewilderment. Then Rosebud tiptoed over to her daddy. Her face was wreathed in smiles.

"All gone?" she crowed in a singsing tone, and obliged them by enacting once again the pantomime of throwing the money from the window.

James looked stupefied for a moment, then his sense of humor saved the situation:

"Well," he said, "it looks as though baby had settled the argument, Mrs. Richardson. Evidently she has thrown the money from the window.

"They looked below, but the bank notes were no where in sight.

"Rosebud you're a naughty, naughty baby," mother began, but Daddy Jim wouldn't let her go on.

"No Rosebud, you're a darling, for you brought your silly mother and father to their senses. Jim grabbed them both and held them tightly: "Heck," he said, "it was worth two hundred to settle this scrap. Don't let's ever argue over anything so fleeting as money again."

Rose gave a little sniffle and then she giggled.—Ottawa Citizen.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

Pensions paid by a coporation or individual to retired employees for services rendered are taxable. Pensions paid by the Government to civil employees also are taxable. The revenue act exempts "amounts received as compensation, family allotments, and allowances under the provisions of the war risk insurance and vocational rehabilitation acts, or as pensions from the United States for services of the beneficiary or another in the military or naval forces of the United States in the time of war."

Allowances, whether paid by the Government, a corporation, or an individual, to one who performed no services—for example, to a widow in recognition of services rendered by her husband—are not taxable, but are regarded as gratitude or gifts.

A bonus paid by a State to its residents who served in the military or naval forces during the war with Germany is not taxable income to the recipient.

Allowances paid to a retired clergyman by the governing body of a church or religious denomination in recognition of services are taxable income.

Annuities paid retired employees of the Federal Government, under the act of May 22, 1920, are subject to the tax to the extent that the aggregate exceeds the amounts withheld from the compensation of the employee. An employee who leaves the civil service before becoming eligible to retirement and receives the amount of salary withheld, together with interest, should report only the amount of interest as income for the years in which received.

Benefits received from a labor union by a member while on strike are to be returned as income.

Stories That Recall Others

Power of Suggestion

Standing on Washington square clad only in a light sweater besides the usual garments, and apparently unmindful of the arctic blasts that swept down Washington street, a man stopped a boy and casually inquired how cold it was.

"Only about 12 above," was the reply.

"My goodness," he exclaimed, as he pulled the collar of his sweater a little higher, "I should have worn my overcoat."

The Small Variety

Understanding that the older of the brothers was sick, a friend asked the younger one how his brother was.

"Oh, he's all right," was the reply.

"Why, he's sick, isn't he?"

"Yes, but he isn't very bad," was the response.

"Hasn't he got the chicken pox?" inquired the friend.

"Yes," replied the brother, "but he's only got the small chicken box."

INCOME TAX FORMS SENT TO TAXPAYERS

Thousands of income tax forms are going out from the office of the department of internal revenue in Hartford. Col. Robert O. Eaton said and but few more remain to be sent to the taxpayers.

January 1, marked the beginning of the period for filing income tax returns for the year 1923. The period ends March 15, at midnight and heavy penalties are provided by the revenue act for failure or wilful refusal to make a return and pay the tax on time.

Form 1040A, heretofore used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less, from whatever source derived, has been revised in the interests of the largest class of taxpayers, wage earners and salaried persons. Reduced from six pages to a single sheet. Form 1040A is to be used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less derived chiefly from salaries and wages. Persons of whose income any part is derived from a business or profession, farming, sale of property, or rent, though the amount is $5,000 or less, will be required to use the larger form No. 1040. The use of this form is required also in cases where net income was in excess of $5,000 regardless of whether from salary, business, profession, or other taxable sources.

It being impossible to determine at this time which form is desirable, copies of both forms will be sent to taxpayers who filed individual returns for the year 1922, and may be obtained also at the offices of the collector of internal revenue and branch offices at written request.

It was announced by the revenue department that every single person whose net income for the year 1923 was $1,000 or more, or whose gross income was $5,000 or more, and every married couple, who are living together, whose net income was $2,000 or more, or whose gross income was $5,000 or more, must file an income tax return.

The department said that broadly speaking, gross income is all income received by the taxpayer during the year from salary or wages, business, trade, profession or vocation, dealings in property, interest, rent or dividends or from the transaction of any business carried on for profit. Net income is gross income, less certain specified deductions for business expenses, bad debts and taxes.

The exemptions are $1,000 for single persons, $2,500 for married couples, living together, whose net income for 1923 was $5,000 or less and $2,000 for married couples whose income was more than $5,000. An additional credit of $400 is allowed for each person, other than husband or wife, dependent on the taxpayer for chief support, if such person is under 18 years or incapable of self-support because physically or mentally defective. Exemption can be claimed by only one member of a household.

The normal tax is 4 per cent. on the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the exemptions and credits and 8 per cent. on the remaining income.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically, from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs. Stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals, with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful ant-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia, especially prepared for stomach use.

New German Discovery Promises Relief From Rheumatic Pains

From Leipsig, Germany, comes a report of the discovery of a newer method for the relief of pain in cases of rheumatism, gout, neuritis and neuralgia without the use of internal medicines. The discoverer, Jacob Buhler, of Stuttgart, Germany, has undoubtedly proved that in even the most advanced and stubborn cases the sufferers often secure relief the very first day.

Buhler proceeded on the theory that rheumatism is often caused by internal abscesses (such as a blind pus pocket in a tooth), giving off poisons which are absorbed by the blood and carried to the joints and muscles where they set up inflammation and intense pain. When the inflammation appears in the muscles or joints, it takes the form of rheumatism, but where the delicate nerve sheath becomes inflamed it causes neuritis or neuralgia. To neutralize these poisons, Buhler compounded a new form of oil intended to penetrate to the affected joints and muscles and neutralize the poisons in much the same way that bicarbonate of soda or magnesia neutralizes an acid stomach. As a result, the aching joints are soothed, the annoying pains and inflammation, stiffness and swelling are relieved in many instances with even the first few applications.

NOTE: The oil referred to above is known in this country as Buhler Oil. At the present time the following druggists report that they have secured a limited quantity of Buhler Oil for distribution in this city. So remarkable have been the results from the use of Buhler Oil that these druggists are giving their customers a written guarantee to refund the price in full to all purchasers of Buhler Oil who fail to get immediate relief. On sale at Lee & Osgood Co., Andrew McLaughlin, J. A. Langan, G. G. Ziegler, George M. Richards.

Cards have been received by Norwich friends announcing the marriage of Leslie Fletcher Ward and Miss Bertha Rebecca Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clinton Porter of Hebron, Sunday evening, December 30th, at the home of the bride. Chas C. Haun, pastor of the Congregational church of Columbia, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was very charmingly gowned in white pearl embroidered georgette crepe over satin with lace veil and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Miss Eunice Porter, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore blue canton crepe.

Harry William Ward, of Norwich, the groom's brother, was best man. The ribbon bearers were Misses Thelma Cummings and Harriet Hough and Masters Harold Cummings and Winthrop Hilding.

Mrs. William O. Seyms played the bridal march. The rooms were decorated with Christmas greens and flowers. The bridal party stood under a canopy of evergreens and beautiful flowers during the ceremony and afterwards to receive congratulations from the guests, of whom about 60 were present, relatives and friends.

CLAIMS HIS GOODS DISAPPEARED IN MERIDEN STORAGE WAREHOUSE

Leroy Churchill Potter, a registered pharmacist of New London, put his household goods in T. J. Horrigan's storage warehouse in Meriden, when he broke up housekeeping in that city in April, 1917, he testified in the superior court here Wednesday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown. He had a shock when he went to the warehouse to get them in January, 1923, for he found some of them had disappeared, some had been sold without his knowledge, books and pictures were dispersed about the place, and the dust lay thick on what articles of furniture were left.

In consequence Mr. Potter brought suit for $1,500 damages against Mr. Horrigan and trial of the case was started Wednesday. C. C. Morgan is attorney for Mr. Potter and Mr. Horrigan has Attorney Danaher of Meriden for his counsel.

Testifying in court, Mr. Potter said that he did the packing of the goods himself, putting them in boxes, barrels and cases and saw them loaded onto an express wagon to be taken to the storage place. He did not go there or see where they were put at that time.

When he wanted to get his goods in January, 1923, he testified that he sent word to Mr. Horrigan and asked for a bill. He got a bill for over $300. He went to the warehouse and found that his goods were in a room which had a heater in it. Books had been taken out of their boxes and were scattered around the room. He found some of his pictures used to decorate a dance hall in the building and some were on the walls of a garage. One valuable oil painting had a hole punched through it. A combination chiffonier and writing desk was unlocked and some watches and rings that it had contained were gone. A revolver was also missing. Mr. Horrigan told him, he said, that he had not seen the jewelry, but he had taken the revolver away because he didn't like to have it around. Mr. Potter also learned that some of the goods had been sold. Mr. Horrigan could not tell him what he had sold but thought he had received about $90 or $100 for them.

Mr. Potter gave on the stand a list of the property which he had packed, among which were a piano, refrigerator, chiffonier, rocking chairs, set of dishes, dresser, many books and a number of pictures. He was allowed to testify to what he had paid for such articles as he had bought but when Attorney Morgan attempted to have him place a value upon them at the time they were packed up, Attorney Danaher made an objection, which was sustained by Judge Brown. Attorney Morgan argued at length his claim that Mr. Potter should be allowed to place a value upon the jewelry, but Judge Brown ruled that the witness had not qualified to appraise these articles.

Court was held in the common pleas court room, but adjourned late in the afternoon to continue the trial in the morning when court will be held in the superior court room as that will not be occupied today (Thursday) by the criminal court session.

BOYS' WORK IMPORTANT HE TELLS ROTARIANS

Roy Butler, secretary of the Boys' Work committee of the New York Rotary club, was the speaker at the weekly meeting and luncheon of the Norwich club Wednesday noon. The meeting was called to order by vice-president Grosvenor Ely, and later president Charles A. Saxton took charge. Louis A. Wheeler was the song leader. The musical numbers included a solo by William G. Park and songs by a sextette of the "deacons" of the club., Richard Gardner, baritone of Jewett City, whose voice was trained in France, was a guest at the luncheon and entertained with two Hungarian folk songs, giving as an encore an Irish folk song. E. LaRue Bliven was presented an appropriate gift in honor of his birthday.

Mr. Butler, the speaker, was introduced by President Saxton. Mr. Butler complimented the local club on its splendid Rotary spirit and inspiring singing. He said his subject, Boys' Work, was one dear to his heart. In part the speaker said:

During the world war we were told to conserve — conservation being a great word—and since then conservation of humanity has taken on a world aspect. The boy is the nearest we can approach, and Rotary throughout the world is endeavoring to conserve the boys seeking community interest in boys' welfare. In Rotary work we try first to reach the under privileged boy, who lacks the advantages of your boy or mine. Every boy is entitled to at least a high school education. Many go into the trades without proper training and labor is not properly educated to understand conditions in the world of commerce. We are confronted with a staggering array of crime, the seeds of which were sown in boyhood. The speaker quoted statistics showing that 75 per cent. of criminals in our prisons are under 25 years of age, and a fellow of 25 is not much more than a boy. The crime bill of this country is three billion dollars a year, or $30 for every man, woman and child in the country. We are up against this as a growing proposition. The boy problem is one of the greatest. Very few are trained for any special vocation. Half a million boys in the country will become voters and very few are trained in civics or know how to vote intelligently. Many are going out into the world unprepared. The evil effects of socialistic teachings were graphically described as well as those of the present apprenticeship system and the results of the "gang" idea.

As to the remedy "you cannot let a boy grow up wildly during the plastic stage and expect him to turn out a 100 per cent. American citizen. Trees are nourished by their roots and we must start cultivating boys in early youth. Great work is being done by the boys' clubs the Boy Scouts, the Y. M. C. A. and the Big Brothers. The latter help by developing personal relationships. Quoting from a world war verse, "God, we come, we came" we today as Rotarians must show our towns that we come and carry on. There is big work to do.

BAKER'S TRUCK BURNED ON ROAD NEAR CHAPLIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 9.—A new Reo speed wagon owned by the Dion bakery of Ash street was completely destroyed by fire Wednesday on the state road near Chaplin. Oscar Gareau, the driver, narrowly escaped being pinned in the cab as the flames burst up all about him. The truck had just come down a long incline and as it started up a grade it backfired and caught fire. Within a few minutes the machine and the load of about 150 loaves of bread had been consumed. Nothing but a tangled mass of machinery and parts of the wheels remained.

A successful gentleman's night was held Wednesday evening in the G. A. R. rooms by the Woman's Relief Corps. FINE ENTERTAINMENT IN Y. M. C. A. COURSE FINAL

As the final number in the series of three entertainments given this winter under the auspices of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association, the Harmony Entertainers presented a delightful programme Wednesday evening at the association hall. It would indeed be difficult to duplicate the troupe of musicians and to say the audience was pleased with their programme is putting it mildly. All five musicians are artists of exceptional ability and their numbers were heartily applauded by the large and appreciative audience.

The personnel of the troupe comprised Marjorie Lybarger, violinist; Elinor Flower, reader; Marjorie Webber, soprano accompanist and crayon artist and Pietro Mordella, piano accordionist.

The programme opened with a trio number and there followed in quick succession soprano, violin and piano solos. During the evening Miss Flower gave several humorous readings, including a dialogue from one of J. C. Lincoln's Cape Cod stories, Betty at the Baseball Game and in conclusion The Vacant House. The latter reading was illustrated by Miss Webber who rapidly sketched a crayon picture of a deserted farmhouse.

Mr. Mordella, the piano accordionist, who has previously appeared in Norwich, gave a number of difficult accordion selections from well known operas and also gave several popular numbers. His imitations of church organ numbers brought him instant applause.

Mr. Mordella, whose father was one of the early manufacturers of the piano accordion, briefly explained the use of the 150 or more keys on the instrument. He then proceeded to play a selection with his left hand only. Later in the evening he played a piano duet "by himself" as he put it. This number being a very clever imitation of a young man who had been asked to play a duet with a young lady who failed to appear. In giving the "duet" Mr. Mordella used both hands and his left foot and his imitation proved most realistic.

Miss Lybarger drew well merited applause for her violin numbers. She featured her part of the programme with imitations of a small boy and girl reciting their first pieces and of a small and somewhat wheezy organ in a country church at prayer meeting. Her interpretation of Home, Sweet Home, as it is played in various countries of the world was heartily applauded.

Following the playing of several numbers by the pianist, violinist and accordionist, Mr. Mordella led in the community singing of popular and old-time songs, the programme being brought to a close with the singing of one verse of America.

RESERVES DECISION IN SUIT OVER BUYING FARM

Judge Allyn L. Brown took the papers and reserved decision in the superior court here Wednesday, after hearing trial of the suit of Nick Phillip Fallocco of Montville against Mike and Peter Pisarko and Sam Panuty of Norwich, over an agreement to buy a farm on Roosevelt avenue for $3,500 on which $500 had been paid down by the plaintiffs, but it was claimed that the sale was not to be completed unless the property was satisfactory to the family of Fallocche. There was a further provision that the $500 should be applied in that case on any other property that the plaintiffs would buy from the defendants.

The Roosevelt avenue farm was not satisfactory, it is claimed, and the defendants sold the Frank L. Lathrop farm to the plaintiffs. In August 1923 the plaintiffs made demand to have the $500 applied on this sale but the defendants refused to do this.

The suit is brought for the $500 by the plaintiffs and the defendants make a counter claim of $1,000.

After the evidence for the plaintiff had been presented by Attorney Hibberd K. Norman, a motion for a nonsuit was made by Attorney M. H. Petria for the defendants but was denied by Judge Brown.

A. J. Bailey is serving as clerk of the court.

The Baltic Wanderers took a hard fought and tough battle from the A. V. A. A. of Stonington Wednesday night at the Baltic gym, by the score of 35 to 23. The game was marred by rough playing, two of the Baltic men being forced to leave during the game. Five points scored by each team on free tries indicated the type of playing.

The Wanderers started out early, and the first half ended with the visitors trailing, 21 to 11. The second half was a repetition of the first, Baltic never in danger, slackening the pace, getting but 14 more points while Stonington rung in 12 points.

In the preliminary the Baltic Bantams trimmed the Stonington Juniors by a score of 38 to 12. Dudley Burr, Windham High school star was referee of the games.

GETS 10,000 FRANCS FROM THE ACADEMY OF SPORTS

Paris, Jan. 9.—The Academy of sports has awarded its annual grand prize of 10,000 francs to Allain J Gerbault, the tennis player. Among previous recipients of the prize was the late Captain George Guynemer, one of France's famous flying aces; Rene Fonck, another aviation ace; Georges Carpentier, the pugilist, and Lucien Gaudin, the fencer.

Gerabault last year made a hazardous journey from France to New York alone in a 30-foot boat. He was made a member of the Legion of honor for his feat.

U. S. HOCKEY TEAM HAS SAILED FOR FRANCE

New York, Jan. 9.—The United States hockey team which is to represent this nation in the Olympic winter sports games at Chamonix, France, sailed for abroad today on the President Garfield without its star centre, George "Jerry" Geran, of Boston.

Geran was unable to arrange his business affairs in time to accompany the squad, and according to his friends, there is a possibility he may be unable to make the trip. Passage to France has been booked for him next Saturday and also for Wednesday in the event he is able to go. The Wednesday sailing date is the latest which will permit him to reach Chamonix in time for the games.

A volunteer hockey star, John J Lyons, of Arlington, Mass., who is accompanying the team at his own expense, may be used should Geran fail to arrive in Chamonix. Lyons' entry as an alternate was cabled to the French Olympic committee just after the President Garfield steamed down the harbor.

William S. Haddock, president of the United States Hockey association, accompanied the team as manager. He appointed Roy D. Schooley, of Pittsburgh, acting chairman of the executive committee of the association during his absence abroad. Mr. Schooley is secretary-treasurer of the association.

Thomas Murray, the old Boston Red Sox trainer, went along as trainer of the team.

OPPOSED TO RULES TO COMPEL PLAYING STYMIES

New York, Jan. 9—The United States Golf Association is definitely opposed to any change in the present rule which compels all stymies to be played. The attitude of the governing links body was revealed today by Howard F. Whitney, chairman of the rules committee, in a letter rejecting a proposal by E. Ellsworth Giles, editor of the Pittsburgh Golfer, that the stymie be abolished and the medal play rule substituted. It settles the stymie issues, observers believe, for 1924, at least.

Under the proposed change, the stymied player would have the privilege of asking his opponent to remove his ball, the opponent having the option of lifting or putting. If the stymied player did not ask for the removal of his opponent's ball and struck it, he would be penalized a stroke.

This plan is undesirable according to Mr. Whitney, because it would eliminate "what many believe to be the finest shot in golf, the short pitch into the hole." He points out that many experiments in stymie rules have been made, adding that "the U. S. G. A. decided to go back to the old form of playing the stymie as no change that had been suggested up to the present time is, in their opinion, an improvement on the old method of play."

GIANTS HAVE WAIVERS ON PITCHER JACK SCOTT

New York, Jan. 9—The New York Giants today announced they had waivers on Jack Scott, pitching hero of the 1922 world's series, and probably would dispose of him in a deal sending him to the minors.

The National League champions offered Scott to Louisville in part payment for Pitcher Wayland Dean, $50-000 star purchased last Saturday, but the American Association Club refused to accept the veteran right-hander.

Despite injuries that kept him out of the game for several weeks, Scott had a good season in 1923, winning 16 and losing seven games, but several lapses in discipline were said to have influenced Manager John McGraw to part with him. Scott was suspended and threatened with a fine on one occasion for failure to report for a trip to Boston.

Scott's come-back, after a sore arm was believed to have ended his major league career, was one of the sensations of 1923. He was a big factor in the Giants' pennant victory and blanked the Yankees with the most brilliant twirling performance of the world's series that year. Last fall he was knocked out of the box in his first start against the American League champions.

AUSTRALIAN PLAYERS CHALLENGE FOR DAVIS CUP

New York, Jan. 9.—Austria, regarded as America's most formidable challenger, today filed its official entry in the 1924 Davis cup tennis contest.

The antipodeans, who captured the American zone competition and defeated France for the right to challenge this country last year, expects to send another strong team into the lists. Recent reports have indicated that it may be captained by Norman E. Brookes, veteran internationalist, with the playing burden assigned to Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, members of the 1922 challenging team.

Australia again will compete in the American zone and has requested that there be a longer interval between the final interzone match and the challenge period.

Under the tentative schedule arranged by the U. S. L. T. A., the inter-zone final would be played September 4, 5 and 6 with the challenge round on September 11, 12 and 13. The Davis cup committee, it was said today, would consider lengthening this interval, which might also involve re-arrangement of the national championship schedule.

"HOME RUN" BAKER GETS UNCONDITIONAL RELEASE

New York, Jan. 9.—The name of J. Franklin ("Home Run") Baker, famous for more than a decade as a slugger and third baseman, was scratched today from American league rolls when the New York Yankees announced his unconditional release.

Baker has not played regularly for several seasons. His last active service with the Yankees was in 1922. He was on the voluntary retired list last season. His formal release was given him so that he may play independent ball, possibly as manager of a team near his home at Trappe, Md.

Baker leaped to fame as one of the stars of Connie Mack's $100,000 Athletic infield. He first entered the diamond limelight in 1906 and was bought from the minors by Mack in 1908. When Mack broke up his great machine after its disastrous world's series defeat in 1914 by the Braves, Baker was the last star to go. He was sold to the Yankees in 1916.

Goodrow for the Battery Seconds led in scoring, caging 4 baskets.

Zimmerman was referee and Morel kept time for the game. The score follows:

Word has been received here that the fight scheduled to take place on January 10th, today, between Baltimore Joe Gans of Norwich and Silas Green of Claremount, N. H., has been postponed until January 16th.

Baltimore Joe Gans is in fine shape for the bout with the light heavyweight champion of Canada and local backers expect him to win on the 16th.

Gans has been getting in some fast boxing with Frank Busch, Brusso, Irish Billy Glynn and Freddy Bundy and Barney Keenan has taken care of the rub-downs.

With a win tucked away over Green, the local fighter expects to step out in fast company in Massachusetts or New Hampshire.

CARPENTIER WILL PROBABLY RETURN TO AMERICA AND SIGN FOR BIG FIGHTS

New York, Jan. 9—Georges Carpentier, colorful French boxer, probably will essay an American comeback attempt before the close of the indoor ring season. His manager, Francois Descamps today cabled Tex Rickard that Carpentier was anxious to come here in February, or March to fight Mike McTigue, or Gene Tunney, holders of the world's and American light heavyweight titles, respectively. If successful, George would like to fight Tom Gibbons in June or July.

The cable from Descamps was simultaneous with the arrival in New York of Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, who probably will confer with Rickard tomorrow on a Carpentier match as well as a possible return engagement next summer with Jack Dempsey.

Rickard did not indicate what reply he would make to Carpentier's proposals but he probably will offer the Frenchman terms for at least two fights here. Some time ago the promotor sought to sign Carpentier but the latter's financial demands abruptly ended negotiations.

Descamps informed Rickard that he had rejected offers for Carpentier to fight Jack Bloomfield, British boxer, and Ermindo Spalla, Italian holder of the European heavyweight title abroad. He also turned down an offer of American promoters for a bout with Gibbons at Minneapolis next summer.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

The Wind Flower

If you can find the little mouse
That scampers all about the house,
Ask her to kindly make less noise
So's not to wake my girls and boys.

Now, I'm sure I don't know why I began this story with this little poem, for I'm not going to tell you anything about my little house nor my little mouse.

What I meant to say was that Little Jack Rabbit hopped along until he came to a beautiful red flower, and, as the wind blew against its petals, they slowly opened, and drifted away. It was the blossom called A-nem-o-ne, or Wind Flower.

Picking up one of the fallen petals, he placed it in his pocket, when, all of a sudden, he was able to understand what the wind was saying.

"Once upon a time, many years ago," sang the wind, "there lived a handsome youth named Adonis who was beloved by the goddess Venus. One day while hunting, the wild boar, which he wounded with his spear, rushed at him and, having no other weapon, the youth was forced to turn and flee. Soon the wild boar overtook him and killed the youth with its great tusks.

Just at that moment, the goddess Venus was driving through the air in her chariot drawn by white swans, and looking down upon the earth, beheld her beloved Adonis lying upon the grass. And great was her grief to find him dead.

"Alas, my beautiful Adonis," she cried. "Your blood that sprinkles the ground shall be changed into a crimsonflower," and in less than an hour's time there sprang up a flower as red as blood."

As the wind hushed its voice the little rabbit whispered, "Tell me more." Pretty soon, the wind began to speak again.

"So whenever I find this flower in the bud I blow upon its petals, and when it opens, I whisper in its heart:

'Dream on in your flowery sleep, Oh beautiful Adonis, for she loves you,' and then the petals take wing to find her, the lovely Venus. They call this blood red flower the Wind Flower.

Soon the voice of the wind grew still and the trees ceased to move their leafy branches, and the bunny boy awoke, as from a dream. And perhaps he had falen asleep. Who knows. For few of us have heard the voice of the wind.

Oh, the voice of the wind as it sings to sleep
The birds in the forest, cool and deep,
And the wooly lamb by its mother's side,
Or the little starfish by the ocean's tide,
Sings to me at night in a dream,
That slips away in the morning gleam.

SAYS NEW ENGLAND'S PROSPERITY IS LINKED WITH AGRICULTURALISTS

Hartford, Jan. 9.—B. Kent Hubbard, President, Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, Inc., addressed the State Grange today as follows:

I have often spoken of the capacity of Connecticut Yankees, whether they be native born or transplanted, to work together. It is with satisfaction, therefore, that we note an ever increasing tendency of all groups in Connecticut to work together for the good of the state. This is particularly true of industry and agriculture, and this is as it should be, for there is a complete interdependence of these two great lines of human endeavor. There must exist a proper balance of supply and demand, of adequate and efficient agricultural production and distribution on the one hand, and of industrial production, distribution and consumption on the other.

Many of us, I believe, do not realize the important transitions which are taking place during this period of our national and international development. These are days of great portent, of influences affecting not only the present, but more certainly the future of the entire world, affecting the destinies of every farmer and every industrialist and of their children and their children's children. It is, therefore, necessary that we define our place in the economic structure and put forth every ounce of intelligence, duty and patriotism. There is no organization of considerable size that can do more along these lines than the Connecticut State Grange. The fact that it represents a comparatively small portion of the total population of New England should not discourage us. Such an organization, devotedly patriotic, standing for real American principles, can be of great power for good in the state and in the nation. It can lead the way in insisting upon a government and governmental policy big enough to meet our national opportunities and responsibilities. It can employ all agencies for enlightening the people, for it has at its command and under its influence the public schools, the press, the libraries and the pulpits. It can depend upon the cooperation of the industrial groups I say this with a knowledge of facts, for as president of the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut, I know that everyone of our members is willing and eager to aid agriculture in every way, for they realize that our industrial future is dependent in a great measure upon the agricultural progress of New England. With such understanding on the part of all groups I feel that our agricultural future is secure.

I therefore say to you that our heritage is a message, coming down through the ages; of the first President of our country in his farewell address: "In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened."

Such, I believe, to be the duty of an organization such as yours and such as mine. We have a great responsibility. We employ thousands of men and women and it is incumbent upon us to provide for them a true American atmosphere.

From time to time you will hear people say that the farmers cannot stick together. I should like to deny this statement absolutely, and I should like to point to the great agricultural organizations within this state and to ask you to note the success which has attended their operation. However, I should like to point out that there should be further organization. I believe that the other sections of the country have gone beyond us in agricultural organization. I believe that the agricultural future of New England, as well as the agricultural future of every other section of the country, depends upon close, well knit organization working for a common good in all things, such as cooperative buying, cooperative selling, cooperative action in securing adequate and just national and state legislation, etc.

The Return of New England Agriculture

Personally, I have no fear for the future prosperity of New England if our powerful agricultural organizations develop along the lines upon which they have been founded. I say this with conviction, and, if you will allow me, I shall state some of the facts upon which I base this prophecy.

First, we have in New England the location. One need but look at a topographic map of the State of Connecticut in order to forecast the success with which agriculture may be undertaken. Not anywhere in the country are there markets more accessible. An analysis of such a map shows that east of the Connecticut River nearly all the towns from Stonington to Somerville and from New London to Thompson contain nationally-known textile mills. These mills employ thousands upon thousands of workers who should get their food from Connecticut soil. Think of the thousands of other industrial workers west of the Connecticut River engaged in rubber manufacturing, cutlery, brass, steel, etc., who likewise could live more economically and more effectually were they supplied by Connecticut farms through local markets. Compare this condition of affairs with the towns in Indiana, Iowa, and Illinois, for the farmer there must transport his products a minimum of twenty miles. Compare this with Texas where products must be transported on an average of fifty miles.

Second, we have the soil. While we cannot boast of fertility such as is enjoyed by some other section of the country, we are compensated by the fact that our soil is so diversified that we are not ruined by the failure of a single crop, such as is the case in the corn belt, the wheat belt, the cotton belt, etc.

Third, our transportation facilities are much more adequate than those of any other section of the country. The State of Connecticut has spent $40,000,000 on improved roads. We have approximately 17,000 miles of these roads tapping almost every section of the state. We enjoy the advantages offered by thousands of miles of trolley railway lines. Nowhere in the country are the markets more accessible through proper transportation facilities than in Connecticut.

Fourth, we have the research facilities. We may be proud of the fact that Connecticut has the distinction of founding in Connecticut in 1875 the first agricultural experiment station in the United States. The effect of this organization, as well as the influence of the Connecticut Agricultural College, cannot be overestimated. It has meant thousands of dollars to the farmers of this state.

Fifth, we have an adequate supply of labor. It is true, of course, that because of the wages paid in the industries there is at times a shortage of farm labor. This is an evil which the Manufacturers Association of Connecticut is attempting to overcome. Personally I do not know how it can be done, but I am convinced that the farmers of New England would suffer more if labor was not drawn to the state by the industries.

Finally, I believe that we have what is probably more important than all—the will to do. Our agricultural and industrial organizations, as I have pointed out, have come to see a common goal toward which to work—the future prosperity of Connecticut.

With all the above advantages possessed by Connecticut and by New England, I feel that we shall gradually emerge from the lethargy which has overtaken us. However, I would not have you become overconfident, as I do not intend to be overconfident myself. You will agree with me that we must put our best foot forward. In order to do this most effectively we must take stock of our shortcomings as we have taken stock of our facilities. As you know, the value of farm property in New England is over $1,000,000,000. The value of the products from these properties amounts to hundreds and millions of dollars annually, yet in the face of these facts we import nearly three-quarters of our food supply for which we pay over a half billion dollars per year. Such a situation is alarming, as alarming as is any comparison which you may care to make between New England agricultural conditions and agricultural conditions in other sections of the country. I was very much interested in seeing sometime ago a comparison between the six New England states and the state of Iowa. It is interesting to note in this connection that the state of Iowa contains 56,000 square miles while the six New England states contain a total area of over 66,000 square miles. In the state of Iowa 95 per cent. of its area is under cultivation, while in New England barely 40 per cent. is cultivated. The value of the average Iowa farm, although slightly larger than the average New England farm is $40,000 as against $8,000. The population of the farms in New England is slightly in excess of those of Iowa, while in the cities of New England the population is almost six million against less than a million of Iowa. As I pointed out before, and as I believe I have proved with the statement of these figures, New England has within itself a wonderfully consuming market, and yet she cultivates only 40 per cent. of her area.

Some of us may say that the character of agriculture in New England is quite different from that of Iowa and therefore cannot be compared. I should like to point out to you, therefore, that the number of dairy cattle in the state of Iowa amounts to 1,500,000 while in the entire six New England states you can find but 1,230,000 cattle. Take chickens—in the state of Iowa there are 27,700,000 chickens and in New England state 5,800,000. Iowa boasts of 7,800,000 hogs while New England has only 850,000. With our great amount of pasture land ideally suited for the raising of sheep our census figures show that we raise in the six New England states only 240,000 head, while in Iowa there are raised over a million head. In beef cattle also, Iowa leads the six New England states by nearly 250,000,000.

But it is not my purpose to point out our shortcomings as far as agriculture is concerned. We all know them, and while you as agriculturalists know the remedy much better than do I, I hope I may be pardoned for pointing out a few things which I believe should be done.

First, I believe that there should be a great increase in the amount of live stock, particularly meat-cattle, sheep and hogs. Quite apart from utilizing favorable pasture land and the profits which accrue from the scientific raising of such stock, I believe it is absolutely important as a matter of brinaing back soil fertility.

Second I believe that we all recognize the importance of lower freight rates and more adequate railway transportation. Of this, I shall speak later in connection with railroad consolidation.

Third, I would urge diversification of crops. I base this contention on data recently published by twelve Federal Land Bank presidents. We can in New England overcome crop diversification hazards which attend farming in other sections of the country. The corn belt must raise corn if it is to survive. The wheat belt must raise wheat. The cotton belt must raise cotton, but we in New England can raise almost anything under the sun and profit. Why not take advantage of this God-given gift.

Fourth, cooperative marketing is, I believe, the solution to fair prices for farm products. The tremendous success of the Connecticut Tobacco Growers' Association has proves that fact.

Fifth, we must have cooperation as I have pointed out of all industrial, commercial and industrial organizations within the state if agriculture in this state is to be what it should be, and, finally, we must teach every citizen of the State of Connecticut, regardless of his occupation or interests, that New England cannot survive unless agriculture is fostered.

Railroad Consolidation

I spoke of the burden of high freight rates and of inadequate railway facilities. I believe that in the past year we have done a great deal to overcome this situation. As chairman of the Connecticut Committee on Railroad Consolidation I had the very good fortune to make with the other members of the Joint New England Railroad Consolidation Committee a detailed study of this problem. I have long realized, as have all of you, that any sort of progress in agriculture and in industry is primarily dependent upon a proper solution of our railway problems. You will remember that the Transportation Act of 1920 instructed the Interstate Commerce Commission to divide the country into a limited number of districts and to consolidate the railroads into competitive systems which would conform to these districts. In accordance with the letter and the spirit of the Act, the governors of each of the New England states appointed a committee to undertake an exhaustive study. The state committees thereupon formed themselves into a body known as the Joint New England Committee on Railroad Consolidation.

Prior to the final report of this committee various suggestions were made both by the Interstate Commerce Commission and by private individuals as to the form that consolidation should take. While these suggestions were many, I need only point out the two major suggestions. The first was the so-called Trunk Line Plan. Under this plan the railroads of New England were to be consolidated with the Trunk Line system, particularly the New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroad. The second plan was that of an All-New England system. In other words, the consolidation of all the railroads of New England into one great system.

I wish that I had time to give you some idea of the many difficulties encountered by the committee in arriving at its final conclusions. Since this is not possible, I shall merely say that the members of the Joint Committee and the technical staff sat hour after hour and day after day for nearly ten months at the across-the-table question and answer discussion with the officials of the several New England roads. As an illustration of the amount of time spent and the thoroughness of the study, I may say that the examination of the fourteen officers of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad occupied nineteen days and that the testimony covered 2,404 pages of the committee's record. In addition, the committee and staff made inspection trips of the important roads, visiting terminals, classification yards, construction, erection and repair shops, locomotive shops, harbors, piers, etc. After this exhausted study the committee satisfied itself that such a compact railway system as that represented in the proposed All-New England Plan of consolidation would involve a minimum of evils and with conditions as they are in New England would produce a maximum of the benefits possible to result from consolidation under the provisions of the Transportation Act of 1920. But the committee believed that such consolidation is neither advisable nor equitably possible until each of the two major New England systems; that is, the Boston and Maine, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford have been rehabilitated and shall have shown the financial and operating results they are capable of producing under normal conditions and with restored credit. The committee, as you probably know, further outlined a complete plan of financial rehabilitation of these roads.

The committee decided against a Trunk Line plan of consolidation as being against the best interests of New England, for it believed that New England would be submerged in the enlarged Pennsylvania and New York Central systems. It believed that the New England railroads should be New England owned and managed. It pointed out that our railroads and the interests of the local population at present served by them would be hopelessly lost in such an overextended and unwieldy transportation agency. It is always possible and there is always danger that a centralized authority will be developed attempting to exercise its jurisdiction over so vast an area as would be comprised in such a consolidated system, and that upon such an enormous population as inevitably as to lead to numerous disregard of wishes and welfare of interests of individuals. The committee believed that it is important to avoid this wrong tendency, for after all the prosperity, happiness and contentment of any people is through the prosperity, happiness and contentment of its individual members.

To those of you who are interested in learning more about the findings of the Joint New England Railroad Consolidation Committee I shall be very glad to send copies of the final report. I know that many of you feel that railway transportation as a national subject does not directly concern you, but I want to tell you that you are wrong. It affects you more directly than the food which you eat, the clothes which you wear and the house in which you live, for without railway transportation you would have none of these.

Before I conclude, I want to make clear my position in regard to the railroads of the east and of the other sections of the country. I do not believe in the policy of "dog eat dog." Without the railroads we could not exist. Our industries would be valueless—our farms would become barren wastes. We are as dependent upon them as they are upon us. From the year 1910 until 1920 the policy of the Federal government was distinctly anti-railroad. This was an extremely shortsighted policy, one from which we are suffering at the present time. However, with the passage of the Transportation Act of 1920 there appeared to be a change of policy which we should all welcome. We want low rates. We want service. The way to secure both of these things is to approach our railroad problems without prejudice and in a spirit of helpfulness. We know that there is much to be desired in the way of service and rates, and we know that neither government ownership nor anti-railroad legislation will accomplish the desired ends.

Perilous Times

As I said in the beginning, there are many influences which are at work which will affect not only the present but the future of the entire world. It is up to New England agriculture and New England industry to preserve New England for the future. We are known as a conservative people, and while I do not agree that this so-called conservatism has not in any way retarded agricultural or industrial progress, I have prayed God that it will deliver us from some of the tendencies which are evidencing themselves at present. I have been much interested in reading the recent State Department reports on the Russian Soviet government and the International Commune and the activities of that organization in the United States. I have been interested in the attempts of certain elements of the so-called Farmer Labor party which, by the way, is not truly representative of either the farmer or laborer and should be disowned by both. I have been interested deeply in the German reparation problems and the French attitude toward them. I have been interested in all these problems as have all of you, for I recognize, as do you, that out of them may come occurrences of vital importance to the life, liberty and happiness of all of us.

While I shall not say that we are overdeveloped, while I shall not say that we are progressing too rapidly, I would have you note that Rome fell when in the minds of many it had reached perfection; that Greece also failed with all her marvelous civilization when no one within the time could have predicted such a calamity. I would ask you, therefore, to feel your responsibility as members of this great Connecticut community. I am not preaching, for I abhor the man who attempts to preach to those who are better informed than he, but I would like to bring to you these few thoughts for your consideration.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Pupils in the local and high schools resumed their studies Wednesday, after the holiday recess.

Mrs. Jacob Spaulding and son Marshall have returned from a visit with relatives in Weston, Mass.

Gertrude Hall left Tuesday for Lynn, Mass., where she is a special class teacher in the Washington Community school.

A. A. Jacques is spending the winter with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barlow.

Emil Westrand has been driving a team for A. E. Hall during the illness of the regular teamster, Everett Hall.

Harry Young, Jr., and Floyd Gallup were visitors at G. W. Barlow's Sunday.

Jacob Spaulding called at The Oaks Sunday.

While thawing water pipes in the cellar, Mr. Barbare set fire to the floor which for a time threatened to destroy his house. The blaze was finally put out by the family and by neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall and Edith Coffey spent Sunday with Putnam friends.

Mrs. George Slater and son Grant visited Mrs. Herman Barlow of Danielson recently.

An axe in the hands of H. Gault slipped while he was chopping wood, struck his foot and cut it badly. Drs. Tanner and Todd of Danielson were called and dressed it. Later he was taken to his home by Dr. Tanner. He is reported to be doing as well as possible.

NORTH STERLING

A large airplane passed over this place Friday afternoon, going towards New London.

Miss Evelyn Soule of Norwich spent the week-end at C. H. Rounds'.

Mrs. Marion I. Brown has recovered from her recent illness.

The iceman begins to feel more encouraged.

A number are on the road of recovery from mumps.

Fishing through the ice will soon be the sport of local fishermen.

For more than a centenary the people in this section have made Danielson their headquarters to do their shopping and purchase all their supplies which amount to thousands of dollars. They are now going to other markets to do their trading as the roads in Killingly, adjoining this town are not safe to travel owing to deep ruts and the rear end of autos dragging on the crown of the road. Doctors from Danielson will not visit the sick as they say the road is not safe to travel. The ambulance from the Putnam hospital came here for a patient ill with pneumonia and was stuck in the deep ruts and much time and labor was spent before it could proceed. If the ruts were filled with crushed stone it would make safer traveling the remainder winter months. One lawsuit with the town of Killingly would cost more than to put the roads in safe condition.

BALTIC

Miss Rhea Despathy, who has been spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Fontaine, has returned to her studies at the Convent of the Holy Family.

The hunting and fishing licenses for the year 1924 are at the town clerk's office. Twelve anglers have applied for licenses since January 1.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

The Westerly band held its 61st annual meeting Wednesday, which was featured by a banquet reports, elections of officers and a general talk by those present for the good of the band. At 7.30 o'clock at a local restaurant, thirty members with a few guests assembled at the long table decorated with red candles, red candy baskets and flowers and the following menu was enjoyed:

Fruit Cocktail
Puree of Tomatoes aux Croutons
Boston Celery Spiced Sweet Pickles
Banana Fritters, Maple Sauce
Roast Native Turkey,
Giblet and Cranberry Sauces
Mashed Creamed Potatoes
Hubbard Squash Turnips
Waldorf Salad
Stratfield Rolls
English Plum Pudding, Hard Sauce
Oriental Pound Cake Angel Cake
Lady Fingers Macaroons
Philadelphia Ice Cream
Fruit
Tea Coffee

Following the banquet adjournment was taken to the band rooms for the business session. The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed the band to have had a prosperous year. A report of the committee on park concerts showed that 14 had been given and sufficient funds had been collected to defray the expense, it being the hope that next year's series receive the same substantial support. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Charles McCaffrey; vice president, Lewis Solomon; secretary, Edward F. Card, treasurer, William A. Burk, (reelected to that office for nearly 40 years); librarian, Paul Lewis; leader, Charles D. Gavitt (reelected for nearly 25 years); assistant leader, Charles P. Cushman; trustees, Hobart Livingstone, William A. Burk and Harry Geary. The committee on the annual banquet consisted of William A. Burk, Edward F. Card and Santo Negrelli. Following the election President McCaffrey called on the members present and in response brief speeches were made which showed the interest taken in the band's work and hope was expressed for all that was best in the year to come.

In a special session of Stonington town court, Wednesday morning in the court room, Borough hall, Stonington, Judge William A. Wilcox presiding, Arnold Blizer was presented by Prosecuting Attorney George R McKenna on a charge of intoxication Tuesday. Patrolman Francis McMahon was called to the Lorraine Mill boarding house and placed Blizer, a weaver in the mill, under arrest locking him in the lockup on Liberty street. On his plea of guilty Judge Wilcox fined him $1 and costs, amounting to $13.13. In default of payment, Blizer was taken to New London county jail Wednesday morning, by Officer McMahon.

Thirty-eight years ago Wednesday morning, Jan. 9th, in a blinding snow storm, the two-masted schooner, Clio Chilcotte, Capt. Edward L. Fullerton, came ashore on the beach between Watch Hill and Brightman's ponds, where Pleasant View is now located. The schooner was loaded with cut granite and westbound from Vinal Haven, Me., to New York. The men on the schooner had taken to the rigging when sighted by Edward Clark of Stonington, then a member of the coast guard crew at Watch Hill. One of the crew was thrown from the rigging and lost his life, but the rest of the crew, including Captain Fullerton, were brought ashore safely by the coast guardsmen. The schooner proved a loss but the cut stone was salvaged, being taken across the neck to Avondale and reloaded on another schooner. Capt. Fullerton, aged 84, now resides at Reading, Mass., and on the anniversary of the wreck has always written Horace P. Dodge of Westerly, a former sea-faring man; who looks forward to hearing from the captain.

JEWETT CITY

Charlie Peazcik, one of The Bulletin boys of the town, is a manly little fellow and for a year has been a daily welcome early caller at the doors of some 300 borough homes. One morning last week, he was shy a few pleasant greetings on the last part of his route. The reason was because in his usual friendly way he had been too familiar with three little black and white kittles, of proved questionable character.

It was only just beginning to get daylight as he was hurrying on his morning job right on Main street, too, when he met the trio, all so pretty and striped, one big one and two quite a bit smaller. It was the old one that resented Charlie's attempted strokings. Now he will use his first extra money to buy a Cape Cod slicker, "Sou'wester," hat, with hip-boots to match.

Last year John Murray picked a dandelion in April. Miss Prior found one this month. If February and March should produce a couple there would be the astonishing record of dandelions every month in the year, blossoming in the open.

Wednesday was almost springlike in its unseasonable mildness. The mercury stood at 48 degrees for several hours at midday. The snow melted rapidly, leaving only a trace here and there. Ponds were covered with water. Old Cluey Watson says he can foretell mild weather as well as any other kind, and the solar perplexion don't bother him either.

Funeral services for Mrs. Philomena Nedeau were held at St. Mary's church Wednesday morning. Rev John J. McCabe celebrated requiem mass, also conducted the committal service at the grave in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon. The bearers were Henry Ballou, Wilfred La Chappelle, Louis Masse and E. Lucier. Hourigan Bros. were the funeral directors in charge.

Passers along the state road up above Joseph Roode's are interested in the new icehouse that has been built by John Wood. A favorable sag in the long meadow beside the railroad track, with a little winter brook furnished two of the conditions necessary for an artificial ice pond; the dam which has been built did the rest. Besides providing fine skating, an ice crop is assured, if it comes cold enough. The new ice project is a sort of company deal between Mr. Wood and Walter Burdick, who owns a wayside store down on the Plains. The harvest will be used only for their own summer needs.

The gallery was unusually large at the Tuesday bowling matches. Jewett City got away with Plainfield by the scant margin of 5.

The Home Economic committee provided a delightful entertainment at Pachaug Wednesday evening. The program included a violin solo by Herbert Miller, a song by William La Liberte, and a piano selection by Miss Viva Richardson, followed by a reading by Mrs. Frank Morgan. A male quartette sang two selections, the singers were Albert Reynolds, Harold Geer, Eino Rajala and William H. Montgomery. A solo by Mrs. William La Liberte gave pleasure. The characters in the First Aid to Cupid, dialogue, were Charles Campbell, Leon Young, Adam Medick, Roy Holmes and C. Frank Morgan. Then came a solo by Amelia La Liberte. The dialogue entitled The Train from Jewett City to Beach Pond, was of especial merit. There were the following impersonations: Mrs. Eagerly, by Ellen Campbell; Mr. Thornton, by William P. Holmes; Elder Black, by Willis Morgan; conductor, by Elmer Campbell; Mr. Diggin, by William Edmond; Mrs. Diggin, by Miss Susie Morgan; Mrs. Diggins' two children, Tom and Mary, by Robert Bitgood and Grace Campbell.

There will be refreshments and a smoker, with an address by Mr. Amburn and other grand lodge officers.

Dorcas circle of The King's Daughters held its annual meeting Tuesday evening in the Methodist church vestry. A cafeteria supper was served at 6.30 by Misses Grace Olin, Mabel Wilcox, Helen Hull and Mrs. A. H. Anthony. Miss M. A. Burdick conducted the business meeting, the reports showing much activity in good works. In response to the roll call thirty members replied with sentiments applicable to the new year. The state president, Mrs. George H. Prior, was a guest of honor. She gave a most interesting talk about the Margaret Bottome Memorial, in New York. Later the circle voted ten dollars toward lifting the mortgage on the home. The singing of old-time hymns unaccompanied by any instrument, was a pleasant feature of the programme. There were two readings, a parody on Whittier's Maud Muller, read by Mrs. Samuel Geer, and the other, The Crimson Ramblers and Aunt Abbie's Legacy, read by Mrs. E. H. Hiscox. STOMACH UPSET?
Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.
Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.
Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET BROAD AND ACTIVE

New York, Jan. 9.—Heavy buying of the railroad shares, particularly the low priced issues, was again the feature of today's active and broad stock market. Strength of these issues was attributed to a variety of causes including rumors of new consolidations, Secretary Hoover's speech at the transportation conference of the U. S. chamber of commerce, high earnest earnings, extensive buying for European accounts and reports of favorable dividend developments.

New Haven assumed the leadership of the upward movement, crowding 19 for a net gain of nearly 6 points. The Erie issues, which were the outstanding strong spots yesterday, climbed to new high levels today but were unable to maintain their top prices. Other low priced issues which were in good demand were the St. Paul, Wabash preferred A and B, Frisco, Texas & Pacific, Rock Island and Missouri Pacific preferred.

Among the dividend payers, one of the leaders was Canadian Pacific which closed 3 points higher, large orders for this issue being placed through houses with international connections. Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line all closed a point or so higher.

Operators on the long side found encouragement in the Washington reports that the administration favored priority for the tax reduction bill over the soldiers' bonus.

Curiously, the sugar shares moved upward despite the further reductions in refined prices while the oil shares lost ground in the face of an increase in Mid-Continent crude oil prices.

Mixed price movements took place in the steel shares with the greatest activity taking place in Penn Seaboard, which showed a moderate gain on reports of improved conditions in the U. S. Steel closed fractionally over on the eve of the publication of the monthly tonnage statement which is expected to show a slight increase in unfilled orders. Weekly trade reviews predict good rolling mill operations for the first quarter.

Copper shares were inclined to ease on publication of reports showing that stocks of refined copper increased 46,000,000 pounds last month and that December output was the highest on record. Motor shares lost ground on profit-taking, Studebaker, Chandler and Mack Truck showing fractional recessions.

Some good gains were recorded among the specialities, Corn Products, Computing, Tabulating and Recording, Remington Typewriter, Cuyamel Fruit, Fleischman and Iron Products moving up 2 to nearly 4 points.

Early strength of the foreign exchanges was due to heavy buying of frances and sterling in this market by Paris and London, presumably representing covering operations on commitments placed on the expectation of a more radical attitude of the labor party chieftains in London. The rally was not sustained, however, although closing quotations were slightly above those of yesterday.

Money rates continued easy. Call funds opened at 4 1-2 per cent. and then eased to 4 1-4. Trading in the time money market was quiet with business practically established on a 4 3-4 per cent. basis for all maturities. The bulk of prime commercial paper commanded 4 1-4 per cent. with a few exceptional names going as low as 4 1-2.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 9.—Marked irregularity took place in today's curb market with weakness again cropping out in a number of oil shares despite the announcement of higher Mid-Continent crude prices. Prairie Oil & Gas, which initiated today's advance in crude, dropped back 2 1-2 points, Standard Oil of Nebraska slumped 3 and Ohio Oil, 1 1-2. Other Standard Oil issues yielded fractionally.

Strength and activity of Corn Products new stock which moved up nearly 1 point on total of sales in excess of 30,000 shares was the feature of the industrial list. Other new issues such as Gold Dust and United Gas and Electric, also sold at new top prices. Motors yielded fractionally.

Activity in the mining group was confined to the penny issues.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 9.—Today's bond market was one of the most active in several months. Total transactions also greatly exceeded those of recent days and the tone was decidedly stronger.

In addition to a sizeable flow of reinvestment funds into the market, traders reported an unusually large demand for American bonds originating abroad. The market for new securities also developed new strength and bankers renewed conversations about several issues that have been under negotiation since last fall.

Among the more active issues on the "big board" were those of the St. Paul railroad, several of those items advancing 1 1-2 points, and the turnover being unusually large. Several single sales of $25,000 to $30,000 were recorded.

Other railroad bonds for which there seemed to be no exception loudly good market included the New Haven mortgages, one of which jumped more than 6 points, Missouri Pacific, Texas & Pacific, and Canadian Pacific first 4's, which touched a new high price.

While public utility liens and industrial bonds generally experienced a good market, the price tone was not nearly so strong. This resulted, perhaps, in the case of the latter group, from the selling of sugar company liens, a number of those bonds receding fractionally.

Unusual activity and strength was displayed by the American Government bonds, two issues, the first and second Liberty 4 1-4's improving 5-32 of a point. Much of this buying was said to have originated in bank circles but there was evidence also of purchases for the account of the British government traders stated.

DOCTORS SAY LETTERS SHOW WESTERLY MAN HAD APHASIA

Physicians called in sub-rebuttal made the concluding witnesses Wednesday in the superior court at New London in the trial of the appeal from probate of the will of Edgar H. Cottrell, the millionaire printing press manufacturer of Westerly and New York, whose wife, Leone Balfe Cottrell, is contesting the will on the ground of mental incapacity and under influences.

The medical experts were called to the stand by the appellants and were asked to give their opinion of the mental state of Edgar H. Cottrell as indicated by letters which he had written and which had been introduced by the executors of the will, Charles P. Cottrell and Arthur M. Cottrell, brothers of the testator, to show that Edgar H. was of sound mind.

Dr. Whitefield N. Thompson, superintendent of the Hartford Retreat for the Insane, who had previously given the opinion from a hypothetical question, that Edgar Cottrell was not mentally sound, was recalled to the stand by the appellants and testified that in his opinion the letters indicated a degree of aphasia due to cerebral deterioration. His opinion was based on the facts that the letters contained many omissions, misspelled words and interlineations and that they did not show a keen grasp of subjects contained in the letters. He characterized them as negative.

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital for the insane, also gave the opinion that the letters indicated aphasia for the same reasons advanced by Dr. Thompson.

Dr. Harry M. Lee of New London was called to the stand to refute testimony of Dr. John Champlin and Dr. C. Grant Savage of Westerly who had attended Mr. Cottrell during illnesses. Dr. Lee expressed the opinion that the unconscious spell for which Dr. Champlin attended Mr. Cottrell in 1916 and which he said was caused by indigestion; was not due to indigestion but was due to hardening of the arteries and that the attack was similar to prior and subsequent unconscious attacks due to cerebral hemorrhages.

The witness said that he did not agree with Dr. Savage that a nose bleed for which the latter attended Mr Cottrell in 1918 was the cause for an unconscious spell at that time, but that it was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage, due to a sclerotic condition.

The same opinions were expressed by Drs. Thompson and Wilcox regarding these unconscious spells.

The testimony of the experts completed the evidence and at 12 o'clock after a short recess, both sides announced that they would rest their cases.

Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, counsel for the appellants, made the opening argument and concluded at 1 o'clock. After the noon recess, Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun made an argument for the will.

COLLEGE GIRLS ANALYZE HOW THEY USE TIME

During the second semester of 1926-23 an effort was made to ascertain how the average girl at Connecticut College for Women, distributes her time. A group of girls, including leaders in student affairs and social activities and representatives of each college class, was selected as a fair sample of the student body. Members of this group kept a record of every half-hour spent for a period of one full week. Activities were grouped under class; preparation of assigned work; eating and dressing; chapel; convocation and vespers; extra curricular activities; renumerative work; recreation; entertainment; miscellaneous, social and personal. The general results are as follows:

The average girl spends, per day, almost 7 hours in classroom and in preparation; 3 1-2 hours in eating, dressing and care of person; slightly over two-thirds of an hour in remunerative work; about 30 minutes to extra-curricular activities in connection with clubs, the News, class meetings, student government, and the like; slightly over 8 hours in sleep, and about 5 hours distributed at will among various forms of entertainment, personal and social engagements, and recreation. Each girl spent over 2 hours a day in miscellaneous social affairs, including letter writing, entertaining callers or calling, teas, conversation, etc.

It will be seen that on the whole the average approximates very closely eight hours work, eight hours sleep and eight hours to herself. While the hours devoted to school work varied from 2 3-4 to over 11 hours, in only two cases did the sleep item fall even slightly below 7 hours, the sleep average being quite uniform. One student officer devoted over three hours per day to extra-curricular duties, while one confessed to an average of nearly five hours per day in miscellaneous social doings, but they were abnormal cases.

The Sunday report is interesting. About 60 per cent. study on Sunday, but only an average of 4 hours each. The average for the group is 2 1-2 hours, so that including this the average girl gives 44 hours a week to purely scholastic work. An hour and a half was devoted to religious work and attendance upon services, practically nothing was done at extra-curricular work, and apparently the average girl dresses a little more slowly or a little more carefully, sleeps an hour longer, visits a little more, and gives a little more time to recreation. The most surprising extreme was 14 1-4 hours to recreation on the part of one student.

QUARTERLY PAY NOW FOR RETIRED TEACHERS

Hereafter teachers in Connecticut who retire from membership in the teachers' retirement fund will receive their refunds of money paid in and interest in four quarterly installments, instead of in one lump sum. This decision was made at the annual meeting of the teachers' retirement board, recently held at Hartford.

It was voted to retire seven teachers, two of whom had completed 44 years of service. The smallest period of the seven was 37 years. The largest monthly allowance paid a member of the group is $51.26. A fund of $5,859.37 was set aside to provide for the seven pensions.

Permission was granted one district in the state to continue a member in the service after she had become 70 years old. The report of the actuarial examination of the pension fund, as of July 1, 1923, made by Miss Dorothy M. Shanley, assistant secretary, shows a surplus of $8,962.37. It was decided to make the interest rate to be credited to accounts as of Dec. 31, four per cent. on quarterly balances.

All members of the board were present and Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham was elected chairman to succeed Burton Mansfield, former insurance commissioner.

STATE COMMERCE CHAMBER STRONG FOR LOWER TAXES

The Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, by a referendum vote of its members, is in favor of an immediate reduction in taxes by Congress in preference to the passage of a soldier bonus bill. Announcement to this effect was made at the executive offices by President Stanley H. Bullard. The vote cast, Mr. Bullard said, was practically unanimous, the exact figures being 533 in favor, 2 opposed and one doubtful. This vote represents 69 per cent. of the membership of the Chamber, which has a combined "group" membership of twenty thousand business men and women.

The referendum took place last week and called the attention to the Chamber members to the urgent necessity of recording their views on these two important measures.

"The voting record on this referendum is the largest in the history of the Chamber," Mr. Bullard said, "and the votes recorded therein represent practically every group of business in this state, and a number of public spirited citizens. It is, therefore, indicative of the general feeling among the citizens of this state that Federal taxes should be reduced in preference to passing a bonus bill.

"The State Chamber, in opposing a bonus at this time, is only reiterating its previous stand which was in the form of a resolution adopted at the 1923 Annual Convention. The patriotic and valuable service rendered the country by our Connecticut boys during the World War can never be measured in terms of money. Such a measurement of service would be contradictory of all principals of citizenship." Continuing he said, "Present economic conditions are such that any further drain upon the treasury of our Government will have a disastrous effect upon business; it will interfere with the proposed revision of tax laws, and further, will prevent the restoration to productive industry of the great wealth which has been flowing into tax exempt securities.

"Repeal of the oppressive surtaxes will create a new channel of prosperity, and everyone, the ex-service man especially, will prosper by the increased opportunities which will result."

Speaking of the disabled veterans, Mr. Bullard said: "The State Chamber has repeatedly gone on record in favor of the Federal Government appropriating as much money as is needed to care for and to rehabilitate the disabled, and to provide adequately for their dependent relatives. During the past several months when so many veterans have completed their vocational training the cooperation of the State Chamber was asked in placing these men in steady employment. Lists of names of these men were sent to all members with an appeal that they give preference in employment to veterans, and the response has been gratifying. There are more to be taken care of and we will do everything we can to place them in suitable positions."

The resolution which was adopted by the State Chamber at its Annual Meeting in 1922, and to which Mr. Bullard refers, is as follows:—Resolved that the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce demands the prompt enforcement and expeditious and businesslike administration of all laws which have been passed to provide for those members of the American forces on land and sea who suffered disabilities in the World War, and the dependents of those who died in the service and strongly urges such supplementary legislation as may be necessary to pay in such cases the full measure of the debt of a just and grateful people.

Resolved: That service to one's country, by male citizens in time of war, is a patriotic duty inherent in the relationship between the individual and the State and indispensable to the preservation of organized government, and any attempt to measure the value of such service in terms of money is subversive of the fundamental principles of citizenship and impossible in practice.

Resolved: That, because it is thus contradictory to the underlying principles of citizenship, and because the economic conditions of the country and the world are such that further drafts upon public resources might harm our financial and industrial stability and in many instances harm the beneficiaries more than it would aid them, the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce is opposed to any grant of public funds to ex-service men which is not graduated according to the individual needs and disabilities of its recipients.

HARVARD BULLETIN PRAISES WARREN LEE GOSS' BOOKS

Under the title, A Veteran Writer of Boys' Stories, Harvard University Bulletin has the following concerning a former Norwich resident and a member of Sedgwick Post, G. A. R.:

In the long list of Recent Books by Harvard Men, which the Bulletin printed a few weeks ago, President Eliot's name led all the rest. There are many reasons why Mr. Eliot should head almost any roll of Harvard men, but in this instance the academic seniority of the authors determined the arrangement of the 180 titles, more or less, which were given on the pages of the Bulletin. After President Eliot in the list came the late James Schouler, '59, whose work on The Law of Wills, Executors, and Administrators, has been revised by a Harvard man almost forty years younger than the writer of the well-known legal treatise. The next name was Warren Lee Goss, '59-60, who has just written Jack Gregory, the story of a boy's adventures in the American Revolution.

Who's Who says that Mr. Goss was born, August 19, 1835. He is, therefore, in his 89th year. We hasard the guess that not many men of that age, or of any age, for that matter, could write a story for boys which would have the large sale Jack Gregory will have, if it proves to be as successful as the other boys' books Mr. Goss has written. Among his titles are: In the Navy; Tom Clifton, a story of adventures in Grant's and Sherman's armies; Jack Alden, adventures in the Virginia campaigns, 1861-65; Jed, a boy's adventures in the army; A Life of Grant for Boys and Girls; and The Boys' Life of Gen. Sherman. All of these books are connected with the Civil war. More recently Mr. Goss has put out Jed's Boy, a story of the World war, and, latest of all, Jack Gregory.

Mr. Goss' interest in the Civil war is natural, because he took part in that conflict; he fought in the Union army and was a prisoner for a long time at Libby, Belle Isle, Andersonville, Charleston, and Florence, S. C., names which are familiar to people whose memories go back fifty or sixty years. His Recollections of a Private, prepared soon after the Civil war, first gave him reputation as a writer; they were published in the Century Magazine and afterwards reprinted in book form. Mr. Goss was fifty-three years old when he wrote Jed, his first boys' book, and the others have followed at intervals during the succeeding thirty-five years. More than 50,000 copies of some of them have been sold.

We envy a man, who, approaching ninety, can write wholesome fiction which appeals to readers seventy-five years younger. He must have the abiding spirit of youth.

JAIL SENTENCE WITH FINE FOR TRANSPORTING LIQUOR

Tony Arionchuk of New London was found guilty in the criminal superior court here Wednesday morning by Judge C. L. Avery on the charge of transporting liquor illegally on Sept. 15, 1923. Charges of reputation and keeping with intent to sell were nolled.

Arguments were made by Attorneys Thomas E. Troland and Warren Burrows for the state and by Clayton B. Smith for the accused.

Court adjourned till the afternoon after sentence had been pronounced.

ODD FELLOWS DEBATED THE PROHIBITION QUESTION

One of the best meetings in several months took place Tuesday night at Odd Fellows Hall when members of Shetucket lodge, No. 37, I. O. O. F., listened to a heated debate on the question, Resolved—That Prohibition is a Success. The affirmative was taken by Howard Bishop and the negative by Walter McNeely. When all arguments had been made the judges, Frank Q. Smith, John J. Parsons and Frank L. Arnold, declared that Mr. Bishop had proved his point, and decided for the affirmative. The opinion of the judges met with the approval of the large assembly.

Following the debate Archie Perry chairman of the entertainment committee, favored the lodge with the first installment of a continued story entitled, "The Adventurers of Tom, The Tow-head." This story will be continued throughout the coming weeks one chapter to be written by members of the lodge, being given at each meeting. The first chapter was a thrilling one and it is expected that the coming chapters will be equally as good.

For several weeks the entertainment committee has been keeping something in the dark and during the meeting Tuesday night the members were informed what was in store for them beginning next Tuesday evening, this being the opening of a mock trial. The case is made up as follows:

Constable Howard Bishop recently ran a bootlegger to earth in the person of Edward Smith and has him locked up awaiting court next Tuesday night. Judge Edward Kinney will be on the bench for the case and Prosecuting Attorney Frank Q. Smith with Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John J. Parsons, will endeavor to prove the guilt of the prisoner. Notices for the trial have been sent to the jurors by Walter McNeely, clerk of the court. The prisoner will be ably defended by Attorneys Archie Perry and Harry N. Howard.

The trial will last for three weeks and interest is running high, the members being equally divided, for and against the prisoner. On the third Tuesday night of the trial the charge to the jury will be made after judgment is passed a big time will take place. To make the evening a banner one members have been asked to invite their sweethearts, wives or friends to the trial on the third Tuesday and refreshments and a social time is in store for all.

During the business session which was largely confined to that of routine nature Noble Grand Walter Kelly was in the chair.

POETRY

Tonight

Swiftly walk o'er the western wave,
Spirit of Night
Out of the misty eastern cave
Where, all the long and lone daylight,
Thou wovest dreams of joy and fear,
Which make thee terrible and dear,
Swift be thy flight!

Wrap thy form in a mantle gray,
Star-inwrought
Blind with thine hair the eyes of Day;
Kiss her until she be wearied out.
Then wander o'er city and sea and land,
Touching all with thine opiate wand—
Come, long-sought!

When I arose and saw the dawn,
I sighed for thee
When light rode high, and the dew was gone,
And noon lay heavy on flower and tree,
And the weary Day turned to his rest,
Lingering like an unloved guest,
I sighed for thee.

Thy brother Death came, and cried,
"Wouldst thou me?"
Thy sweet child of Sleep, the filmy-eyed,
Murmured like a noontide bee,
"Shall I nestle near thy side?
Wouldst thou me?"—And I replied,
"No, not thee."

Death will come when thou are dead,
Soon, too soon—
Sleep will come when thou are fled;
Of neither would I ask the boon
I ask thee, beloved Night—
Swift be thin approaching flight,
Come soon, soon!

—Percy Bysshe Shelley.

My Little Town

My little town in summer
Dons a soft, leaf-shadowed air,
And every street grows blossom-sweet
And every garden fair.

And all the little houses,
Their windows open wide,
Are talking to their neighbors
Of the loveliness outside.

My little town in winter
Wears a plain, unbending mein,
And gaunt and bare its houses stare,
With drifted lawns between.

But when the winter evenings
In cold gray settle down,
And home-bound feet in every street
Pass through my little town.

Then from each lighted window,
The little homes begin
To whisper to their neighbors
Of the warmth and joy within.

TAX BILL TO HAVE PRIORTY OVER BONUS IN THE HOUSE

House Republicans in Conference Last Night Instructed the Ways and Means Committee to Report the Tax Bill Before Taking Any Action on the Soldiers' Bonus—Proposal to Have a Bonus Bill Reported by February 25 Was Rejected, 109 to 87.

Washington, Jan. 10.—House republicans in conference tonight instructed the ways and means committee to report a tax bill before taking any action on the soldiers' bonus.

Under the instructions from the conference, the committee will report a revenue bill, containing changes in tax rates as well as administrative amendments, by February 11 and then will determine whether enactment of a bonus bill should be recommended.

Representative Fish, of New York, a former service man, attempted to have the conference instruct the ways and means committee to report a bonus bill by February 25, but on a record vote his proposal was rejected 109 to 87.

A resolution by Representative Fairchild of New York, calling for the report of a bonus bill, "as soon as possible," was voted down 100 to 87.

Representative Longworth, the party leader, offered the motion to give the taxe bill right of way. It was adopted by a vive voce vote.

Two hours of heated debate during which the bonus and taxation were discussed preceding the voting. No sooner had the Longworth program been adopted than Mr. Fish proposed that the conference go on record in favor of the enactment of both tax and bonus bills but Representative Lehlbach, of New Jersey, moved that the Fish proposal be tabled and another roll call was had on the Lehlbach motion, which carried 97 to 94.

STATE HIGHWAY DEPT. READY FOR SNOW

—Hartford, Jan. 10, 1924

Comprehensive plans to keep snowbound Connecticut roads open to traffic during the approaching winter have been prepared by the state highway department. The problem of maintaining the efficiency of the motor transportation routes of the state, although a tremendous one, has been met by the state in former years with satisfactory results, and if present plans are fulfilled the state will see that its principal roads are kept as free from blockades as possible this winter.

Added equipment has been secured for the work this year, in the form of motor trucks, plows and scrapers and the attitude of the department's maintenance forces at this time is "Bring on your snow." After a most strenuous winter a year ago, when one serious storm after another piled itself up on the state, the coming season will hold small fears for the average highway department repairman.

The total cost of snow removal for the winter of 1922-23 to the state was $175,021.78 for 1,508 miles of highway kept open, or an average of $116 per mile. It is proposed to clear an additional 300 miles this winter, making a total mileage on the snow removal aid roads in the state are on the program of 1,800 miles. All federal program for the winter.

That the removal of the snow from important, thoroughfares has become more important each year is shown by the fact that in 1920 the total distance of roadway kept clear during the winter was 800 miles. In 1921 the mileage was increased to 1,000 and a year ago 1,508 miles were kept open throughout the winter.

The snow removal organization of the highway department, which is under the direction of Superintendent of Repairs G. E. Hamlin, consists of approximately 1,000 men. All the snow removal on trunk lines and state-aid roads is by state maintenance forces. The only contracts are for the hire of trucks and teams in emergencies. Cities and towns, of course, take care of their own streets.

For this work, the state is divided into eleven districts, each with a supervisor in direct charge. Each district is divided into sections, with a foreman in direct charge. During snow periods each supervisor reports to the Hartford headquarters at least once a day, giving the condition of the roads in his territory so that travel can be directed from the Hartford office, which is invariably flooded with requests for information. The reports are given to the newspapers as well as to auto clubs.

The snow removal organization is instructed to begin work when the snow reaches a depth of three inches. When additional men are available, the first-call men are relieved when possible, but it is often necessary to retain the original force for a period long beyond the ordinary work day. This is a condition little appreciated by the public.

The forecaster of the Hartford office of the U. S. weather bureau keeps in touch with the highway headquarters and advises of approaching snow storms. Notification of these forecasts is transmitted to the supervisor of the several snow districts by telephone.

WOULD DETAIL ONE MAN TO MAP OUT ROAD DETOURS

Hartford, Jan. 10.—The board of control today approved a plan presented by State Highway Commissioner John Macdonald to have one man in the department, ranking as a supervisor, who will have complete charge of mapping out and maintaining detours around highway construction of keeping the detours posted and the public fully informed.

As developed in the board meeting today the plan, when effective, will remove from Connecticut the terrors of the detour. The new supervisor will inspect all roads which can be utilized to divert traffic from the routes under construction. In some cases going back of the actual construction for some distance so that the most direct detour can be mapped out. In so far as possible other parallel main arteries will be used. When detour roads are found to be in bad condition the new supervisor will see the district supervisor and have repairs made. He will be responsible for posting all detours in such a manner that a motorist unfamiliar with the road cannot get lost.

A start toward keeping the public informed of detours was made last summer when lists of construction work in the state were published weekly by the highway department. However, this will be the first organized attempt to see post and condition the roads that the presence of a detour will not discourage motorists from trips for pleasure as well as business.

BOY DROWNED WHEN HE FELL THROUGH THIN ICE

Durham, Jan. 110.—Venturing out on the thin ice, unmindful of the protests of his companions, Frederick Chatfield, Jr., 11 years old, was drowned this afternoon in Mill pond. First aid treatment failed to revive the boy when he was taken from the water by people living nearoy who were attracted by the cries of his chums. This is the first death by drowning reported in the county this year.

TO KEEP HIGHWAYS CLEAR OF SNOW THIS WINTER

Hartford, Jan. 10.—The highways of Connecticut will be kept clear of snow this winter if present plans of the state highway department materialize. Approximately 1,800 miles of roads are on the program for the work of the department and added equipment has been secured to take care of emergencies. In the winter of 1922-23 about $175,021.78 was spent for clearing 1,508 miles of highways at a cost of $116 per mile.

BUTLER RIPPING UP THE PHILADELPHIA POLICE DEPT.

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—Four lieutenants, two acting lieutenants and two sergeants of the police force were today suspended by Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, the new director of public safety, who is making a determined effort "to clean-up" vice and bootlegging conditions in Philadelphia.

The time limit in which General Butler gave the police to have the city as "clean as a hound's tooth" expired at 5.30 o'clock this afternoon. Shortly thereafter he summoned the eight men to his office. Announcement of the suspension of the officers followed quickly. Five days were given them to answer the accusation.

The director of public safety has the right to suspend, prefer charges and demote men in the service. They have no appeal, unless proof can be submitted that they have been illegally dealt with.

General Butler announced his action had been approved by Mayor Kendrick.

Raids were made by police in various sections of the city as the 48 hour "cleanl-up" limit expired. The seriousness with which the underworld took the activity of the new director was attested by the reported sale of 500 of his photographs to denizens of the tenderloin.

One of the large liquor seizures of the day was made when a sound of dripping water in a supposedly vacant garage led to a police investigation, which revealed two large stills, six five-gallon jugs of moonshine, 14 bags of sugar, a quantity of yeast, 24 barrels of mash and some empty barrels.

That the police raids will not be confined to saloons but will be carried into hotels and clubs where liquor has been openly displayed in the past was emphasized by Superintendent of Police William B. Mills. "The day is past in Philadelphia when with the knowledge of the police banquets can be held in high-class hotels at which those attending can go into an anteroom and liquor up."

City council today voted Director Butler a $3,000 raise in pay, making his salary $115,000 a year. The measure, however, must pass second reading.

LUTHERANS REAFFIRM FAITH IN HOLY SCRIPTURES

New York, Jan. 10—Resolutions reaffirming "faith in the holy scriptures, the divine and infallible rule of faith and life, and in Jesus Christ as the true God and the only and all powerful Saviour and Redeemer," were adopted today by the national Lutheran Educational conference. The resolutions added that Protestantism was threatened with schisms over faith in the revealed word of God and in the diety of Jesus Christ.

"This faith," the resolutions declared, "underlies and shall continue to underlie all instruction in our academies, colleges and theological seminaries."

Earlier in the day attacks on dogmatism were made by Dr. Charles J. Smith, president of Roanoke College and Dr. O. H. Ponkoke of Milwaukee campaign manager of Lutheran institutions and colleges.

G. A. Andreen of Austana College, Rock Island, Ill., was elected president of the conference.

VIRGINIA G. GILDERSLEEVE DEFENDS THE COLLEGE GIRL

New York, Jan. 10—Defending the college girl against charges of cigarette smoking and liquor drinking, made yesterday by Dr. Charles J. Smith of Roanoke College, Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College, Columbia University, today declared these harmful habits were much less prevalent in colleges than outside college walls.

"President Smith's views about young women are unduly pessimistic," she said. "It is true that a great many of the younger generation do foolish things at times, but so have they always done them in the past. For the young women of the present I have great respect. They seem to me on the whole an adorable lot."

The accused will be given a hearing in the police court on January 17.

Bill for Creation of Board of Tax Appeals

House Ways and Means Committee Approves Provision in the Mellon Tax Bill.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Tentative approval was given today by the house ways and means committee to the provision in the Mellon tax bill for the creation of a board of tax appeals—one of the important proposals in the treasury draft.

Committee members reported that at their executive session practically no opposition had been voiced to the treasury's recommendation and democrats and republicans joined in predicting that establishment of the board would be recommended.

The committee turned from its consideration of administrative features of the tax bill long enough to order a favorable report of Chairman Green's resolution proposing a constitutional amendment which would put an end to issuance of tax free securities. Such a proposal received house approval in the last congress but failed of action in the senate.

With the tax situation very much in the air, the breach between Secretary Mellon and some of the republican members of congress was further widened today by Senator Couzens, of Michigan, and Representative Frear, of Wisconsin, who made public letters to Mr. Mellon in which they took sharp issue with his views on fiscal matters. Senator Couzens took Mr. Mellon to task again for his recommendations for surtax reduction, while the Wisconsin representative ridiculed his views on the tax exempt securities question.

ARRANGING SETTLEMENT FOR SALE OF STOCK "SHORT"

New York, Jan. 10—Several conferences were held today between New York curb market brokers and members of the Mammoth Oil Company stock syndicate in an effort to arrive at a private settlement price for the 3,300 shares which the brokers were said to have been "short" when trading was suspended in the stock recently.

The last transaction recorded on the curb in the stock was at 58, the highest price reached during 1923. It is understood that brokers who had sold the stock "short" have objected to paying that price.

While no official announcement has been made by curb officials since the suspension, it was stated, that the limited trading supply of the stock was in effect a "corner" and that the "shorts" will be forced to obtain stock from either the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, which owns the Mammoth Oil property, or from the syndicate which offered the stock publicly, said to still retain 275,000 shares in the company.

Investigation of the stock by the curb followed testimony at the senate inquiry into the sale of the Teapot Dome Naval Reserve recently that Harry F. Sinclair, noted turfman, and associates, had repurchased practically all of the stock originally sold to the public.

MEXICAN REBELS CAPTURE IMPORTANT MINING TOWN

Mexico City, Jan. 10.—(By the A. P.)—The capture this morning of Pachuca, capital of and the most important mining town in the nearby state of Hidalgo, by rebel forces under General Marcial Cavazos, Nicolas Flores and Otilio Villegas was confirmed at noon today by the war department.

In making the announcement the hope was expressed by war department officials that the rebels would attempt to hold the city, which is 55 miles northeast of the capital, as 2,000 federal troops from Mexico City and vicinity have been sent to Pachuca for the purpose of surrounding and wiping out the invading forces.

Following the recent defeat of the rebel general, Marcial Cavazos at Actopan the federal forces were sent from Hidalgo to the Vera Cruz and Puebla fronts leaving Pachuca virtually ungarrisoned. This gave the rebels an opportunitity to occupy the city also most without resistance according to the war office.

QUESTION OF REPARATIONS DISCUSSED BY HERR STINNES

Declares That a Sound and Honest Settlement Based on Facts Must Be Found—Confident That Americans Will Not Lend Money to Either Germany or France to Make War on Each Other—Positive That Money is Waiting in America to Be Put Into Good Use as Soon as Germans and French Present Themselves Before the United States in Complete Accord.

Paris, Jan. 10.—By the A. P.)—Herr Stinnes, the German industrial magnate, has discussed the questions of reparations with a special correspondent of the Journal Des Debats, who visited him at his home in Mulheim on the Ruhr, with particular reference to the attitude to the United States.

"I am persuaded," Herr Stinnes said in the course of the interview, "that the mere fact that the Germans and French present themselves before the United States in complete accord as to the reparation settlement would open up considerable perspectives. Americans will not lend us money to waste in making war between ourselves but I am convinced that when we reach an agreement money will be forthcoming at conditions which will surprise us. The money is there waiting to be put into good use.

"My son is at present in America. He is perfectly aware of the situation. We (probably referring to his firm) who formerly enjoyed unlimited credit in the United States no longer find lenders. Because we have now taken the place of the reich for a settlement of its debts. The only difficulties between America and France and America and Germany are the difficulties existing between France and Germany."

The agreements between the Ruhr industrialists and the inter-allied mission of control Herr Stinnes pointed out, were the first steps toward a reparations settlement, but the effect of this was to throw upon the Ruhr industrialists the burden of Germany's debt.

"We agreed to pay for the reich until April 15," he continued, "but this is the extreme limit, and a sound and honest settlement based on the facts must be found in the meantime."

Outlining his idea of such a settlement, he said Germany was unable to pay huge sums. The only possible method consisted in deliveries in kind; the governments should fix in gold amounts such payments, the delivery of which should be assured by long term contracts between allied and German industrialists.

The German government would pay German mines and factories for deliveries to be handed over to the allied industrialists who would pay their own governments the sums thus paid to the reparations account. He insisted that the long term contracts must be between the industrialists and not the governments.

Asked about the plan proposed by Dr. Arnold Rechberg, the German industrialist, which provided for acceptance by France of shares in German industries, Herr Stinnes declared that if contracts between the industrialist were concluded then an exchange of shares between the different industrial concerns might be contemplated.

"But," he added, "it is nonsensical to talk of compelling the industrialists to grant participation in their business to the governments."

"Time presses," he concluded, "there is need of honest efforts to find an immediate basis of settlement. Advantage should be taken of all the possibilities opened up by the agreements signed at Duesseldorf. There are two alternatives. Another war between Germany and France, or a sound Franco-Germany agreement. All my efforts are for an agreement."

MRS. ERNEST BALLOU'S SUIT AGAINST MRS. LELAND STERRY

Ballston Spa, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Her husband neither smoked, drank nor stayed out late until he re-entered the employ of the Leland Sterry family at Saratoga Springs as chauffeur, Mrs. Ernest Ballou testified in supreme court here this afternoon. Mrs. Ballou took the stand during the first session of the trial of her suit against Mrs. Leland Sterry, widow of the Saratoga and Palm Beach, Florida, hotel man, for $50,000 damages for alienation of her husband's affections. Mrs. Ballou was on the stand when court was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Sterry appeared in court unaccompanied.

The chauffeur's wife testified as to their life since June 5, 1911, when they were married. Her husband first entered the Sterry employ in October, 1921, she said, but did not go south with the family that winter. When the Sterrys returned in May, 1922, he again obtained his position as chauffeur.

Until May, 13, 1922, Mrs. Ballou testified, her husband neither smoked, nor drank and "always came home." After that date, she said, his habits changed and he began to "stay out late." They she said she found his pajamas by the Sterry garage; later she noticed the odor of Mrs. Sterry's perfume about his clothing; and finally, he began, awake and asleep to talk about "his Sterry." The court refused Mrs. Sterry permission to testify as to what he said.

43 PERSONS PERISHED IN SINKING OF BRITISH SUB

Weymouth, England, Jan. 10.—(By the A. P.)—The British submarine L-24 was lost today in a collision with the dreadnaugh Resolution off Portland.

So far as is known all on board the L-24, numbering 43, perished.

Details are meagre, but it seems that the Atlantic fleet was leaving Weymouth in various groups, including several submarines, for the spring cruise, when the Resolution, belonging to the royal sovereign class, rammed the L-24, which was a mine-laying vessel, and had fourteen live mines aboard. The accident occurred in a fog, when the vessel had opened out in the channel.

Another report says that the collision occurred when a combined attack on the fleet was being carried out by submarines from Portland, Portsmouth and Plymouth. The L-24 sank immediately, and although salvage vessels hurried to the spot and the whole area was searched by the mine-sweeping flotilla, no trace of the ill-fated vessel was found.

There is a possibility that there may be some survivors. If the crew was able to close the watertight compartments they may survive for 48 hours.

This was not the only accident, for the submarines K-3 and K-13 also collided near the same place, both being slightly damaged.

The admiralty has issued a list of the names of those aboard the L-24, which carried many extra men for training purposes.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1062

As disclosed by the compilation of school enumeration returns taken the past fall, the town of Windham, which includes the city of Willimantic, is fast becoming cosmopolitan in population. According to the summaries, 67 per cent. of the children enumerated were either born in foreign countries or are children of foreign born parents. 33 per cent. are English speaking of the Saxon race, Americans, Irish, English and Scotch.

A remarkable growth has taken place in the number of Polish, Russian, Italian, Hebrew and Syrian residents. Some twenty years ago there were only five Polish families, four Italian families and one Syrian family in the city.

A decade ago the greater number of residents were French-Canadians, with Americans and Irish next in order. The first named class of people still appear in the greatest numbers, but in proportion to the population of the town twenty years ago, the population of the three above mentioned nationalities has decreased closely followed by the Italians.

Statistics as compiled by Superintendent of Schools E. A. Case from the returns of the enumerators show that 3,448 children were enumerated. As even 3,000 of that number are in the city of Willimantic. Based on the multiple of 4.54 allowed by the state board of education in years past, the population of the town should be at the present time 15,400 and that of the city of Willimantic 13,651.

The enumeration completed for 1923 by the enumerators shows a total of 3,463 children between the ages of 4 and 16 years distributed as follows: First District 1196. Second District 1304; North Windham 53; Windham Center 50; South Windham 78; Bricktop 87; Warner District 86; Back Road 19; Jerusalem 19; Christian Street 10. Of these there are in public schools, 1585. In private schools there are 1236 and 552 are not attending any school. Children under five years of age who are not attending school number 277. Between 5 and 7, 101; between 7 and 14, 17 and between 14 and 16, 188.

One hundred and thirty-two of those not attending school are employed, 163 working certificates having been granted during the previous twelve months.

After checking up the enumeration list in order to get it as correct as possible the town will be able to collect from the state its enumeration grant, which for the current year is $7,454.50.

By securing the addresses of the children, Secretary Case was able to plot the location of each child in the city so that the abnormal congestion of children in certain localities may be shown, as well as the location of children in respect to school buildings and desirable locations for the needed new buildings.

97 children live in one block bounded by the Brick Row, Yellow Row, Arnold's Lane and Main street; 50 children in Jackson Place; 43 on Caprey Hill; 126 on Ives street—in a total of 23 houses and 48 on Elm St., from Main to Bolivia street; 29 the full length of Church street; 23 on Windham Road and only 11 on Bellevue street. It is deemed advisable to establish a school plant in the Shetucket Park section, on a lot no smaller tah nine or six acres, due to the tendancy to growth in this part. There are now 495 children on the south side of the river, within the city limits and 86 in the adjacent Warner district.

The enumeration as analyzed according to the racial inheritance of the children shows: French 31.4 per cent., Polish 15.6, Irish 9.4, Italian 7, Russian 3.6, Syrian 1.7, Swede 1.2 The group formerly considered distinctly American now comprises 22.2 per cent. of the child population. There is a general tendency to remain in school beyond the compulsory age, in all of the schools.

Acting upon the plan being carried out in other cities in the renaming of schools after some noted educator, local philanthropist or benefactor, the town school committee is to take action on the matter and has invited the principals and teachers of the Windham street and the three schools at Windham to devise some sort of method to follow in selecting new names for the schools. The Natchaug and possibly the "Oaks" schools will retain the names by which they are known.

Since the football squad of Windham High school has made such a wonderful showing and with the basketball team playing a fast game this year, there has been a large increase in the number of patrons who attend the athletic events at the school and an dit is now necessary to provide additional accommodations for spectators. The properties committee of the school board is conducting an investigation of the state of affairs and will make a report at the next meeting of the school committee. It is thought that three or four bleachers will be erected on both sides of the gymnasium floor in the basement of the school. Something in the line of better seating accommodations will be welcomed by the fans who have been forced to stand in crowded numbers between the wide concrete supports which surround the gym.

Among certificates of organization filed this week in the office of the secretary of state was that of the Frank Pariszek Manufacturing Co., Inc., of Willington. The mystery of the Ku Klux Klan notice received Wednesday morning by a Jackson street family has been solved. A neighbor of the family in question lays the blame to several children whom he had seen acting queerly about the house the previous night. From what could be learned the warning read. "Everybody has eye on you." The warning might have been more to the point if the Ku Kluxers had simply addressed a copy of "Pull Your Blinds Down, Marion," to the female members of the family.

SECOND AMERICAN ROMANCE OF AUSTRIAN NOBLEMAN

New York, Jan. 10.—Count Ludwig Salmhoogstraten, Austrian nobleman, whose secret marriage last Tuesday by a deputy city clerk to Miss Millicent Rogers, 26-year-old heiress, was revealed yesterday, admitted to newspapermen, whom he received in his Ritz Carlton rooms today, that the marriage was his second American romance.

Information that he had planned as late as last September to marry Mrs. Grace Sands Montgomery Coffin, a New York divorcee, was contained in a deposition the count had filed with his marriage license. The deposition was an official document, issued by the magistrate's office in Vienna, testifying that he was legally ivorced from his first wife and that there was no impediment to his marriage to Mrs. Coffin.

The count denied reports that Colonel and Mrs. Henry Huddleston Rogers, his millionaire parents-in-law, and heirs of the late H. H. Rogers, Standard Oil pioneer, had not been notified of the marriage or that the ceremony had been performed without their permission.

The nobleman, after first declaring that Colonel Rogers had no objection to the wedding, later averred: "I think they wanted her to marry somebody else." He explained, then, that he believed their opposition was due to the fact that he was an Austrian and served as a cavalry officer in the Austrian army during the world war.

It was learned today that Count Salm-Hoogstraten has, in addition to many other activities, appeared as a leading man in motion pictures. He now is engaged in the sale of antiques, he said, and is interested in a Mexican oil venture.

The count and countess will remain in New York for several weeks at the request of the countess' parents, it was understood. Then they will go to Vienna.

TO CUT COMMUNICATION WITH BUCAS ISLAND

Manila, Jan. 10.—(By The A. P.)—Orders to cut off all communication between the mainland and Bucas Island, whence reports yesterday told of the slaying of nineteen constabulary soldiers by religious fanatics, have been sent to the governor of Surigao province, island of Mindanao. The orders emanated from the executive bureau here.

The object of the move is to prevent the fanatics from coming to the mainland, possibly to attack inhabitants there, and to hold them in one place until the force of constabulary now enroute to reinforce the Surigao patrol can arrive.

REP. LEADERS CONSIDER CAMPAIGN IN INDIANA

Washington, Jan. 10.—Republican campaign plans in Indiana were considered at a series of conferences here today among prominent party leaders but statements of conclusions reached were withheld.

A quite general belief was apparent that Senator Watson, of Indiana, would refrain from becoming a candidate against President Coolidge for the Republican presidential nomination, but Mr. Watson declined to make known his position until tomorrow when a statement from William M. Butler, of Massachusetts, campaign manager for President Coolidge, is also expected.

Numerous Indiana and other republican leaders participated in the conferences today, the principal question being the selection of a Coolidge manager for Indiana. For this post, Ewing Emerson, of Vincennes, a state central committeeman, said to have been suggested by Clyde U. Walb, state chairman, was reported to be leading in consideration.

Indiana leaders participating in the conferences included Senator Watson, Postmaster General New, Chairman Walb, Joseph Kealing, republican national committeeman; Henry Lane Wilson, former ambassador to Mexico, and George Lockwood, secretary of the republican national committee.

As the discussions had to do primarily with the choice of a Coolidge state manager, it was the general view that Senator Watson would forego any plans to announce himself a candidate for the presidential nomination.

Factional differences between the friends of Senator Watson and Postmaster General New were said to have figured in the conferences. Mr. New conferred alone with Mr. Butler, who had separate meetings early and again late today with Mr. Kealing and Chairman Walb.

At the Palace.

Marty Dupree and her company of fun makers started the last half of their week's engagement at the Palace theatre with a complete change of programme on Thursday. The programme for the last three days is fully the equal of the first half and the company played to large houses at both afternoon and evening performances. The comedy and dancing numbers are up to the minute and the whole programme is a continual round of laughter. Benny Drohan, the perfect fool, is at his best and without doubt is one of the best laugh provokers that has hit the local stage in some time.

The feature picture is a story by Booth Tarkington, internationally famous as a novelist and dramatist, who has no equal as a writer of stories about the younger generation. And William Beaudine has won fame in motion picture circles as the greatest director of "kid" stories.

The creative genius of both is responsible for one of the most intriguing pictures which has ever reached the screen. It is Penrod and Sam which is now being shown at the Palace theatre. The picture has been acclaimed a classic of American boyhood.

Penrod Schofield, the youthful hero of Tarkington's stories, is without a doubt the best known figure in present-day fiction. His popularity with the reading public is due to the fact that he has been drawn with rare fidelity by the author.

Penrod and Sam is filled with screamingly funny situations, due to the propensity of Penrod and his chum Sam of the duo is portrayed by Joe Butterworth. The two are accomplished actors and live, rather than act, their parts. The adult roles in the production are enacted by Madys Brockwell, Rockliffe Fellows, William V. Mong, Gareth Hughes and Mary Philbin, among others.

A special kiddie matinee Saturday morning at 10.30 a. m. is also on the program when a two-hour show will be given the children at 10c admission charge.

BREED THEATRE

The very magnitude of "Monna Vanna," Maurice Maeterlinck's drama which William Fox presented for the first time last night at the Breed theatre makes one gasp with amazement at the rapid succession of thrilling scenes.

The story itself is familiar to thousands who have read the lay in manuscript or seen either the dramatic production or the opera of "Monna Vanna." When Maeterlinck wrote the story shortly after his marriage he amazed the whole literary world by the drama which has since been produced on the stage both in Europe and in the larger cities of America.

In screen form the "Monna Vanna" is one of the finest photoplays shown here this year. It has everything necessary for a successful picture and will delight even the most captious theatrogoer. If you find joy in the theatre don't fail to see this stupendous screen version of Maeterlinck's drama.

Monna Vanna will be shown at the Breed theatre for the remainder of the week and an enlarged orchestra will render a specially selected musical program every evening. Other pictures on the bill include Edna Murphy in "Her Dangerous Path" and the Pathe News.

STRAND THEATRE

Detective work is the hobby of Martha Mansfield, who will be seen in a leading role in "The Leavenworth Case," a Whitman Bennet special production at the Strand Theatre today and Saturday.

Miss Mansfield is now studying the Bertillion system of identification which is a requisite for all sleuths seeking to work efficiently. Miss Mansfield reports that the study of finger-prints is highly interesting not only because it is such a sure means of identification out also because she believes that the formations of the lines and whorls may be shown to be sure indices of character and ability.

Miss Mansfield plays the role of Mary Leavenworth, one of the two nieces of wealthy Ira Leavenworth, who is found shot to death in the sound-proof apartment of his home. All doors and windows are securely fastened. A key, a woman's handkerchief and a letter are unearthed as clues. Suspicion immediately turns to the nieces. A strange visitor of Mr. Leavenworth's is suspected. Finally, Robertson, a private investigator, is called in to solve the mystery. Who the guilty party is and how that person was revealed, bring the film to a startling conclusion.

Seena Owen plays the role of the second niece, Eleanor. Wilfred Lytell is seen as Anderson. Bradley Barker has the responsible part of Raymond, an attorney, and Paul Doucet is seen as Harwell, the private secretary to Mr. Leavenworth.

"The Leavenworth Case," a Whitman Bennett special production, is based on the famous story of the same name by Anna Katharine Green, America's premiere writer of detective fiction.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Sneak thieves are operating in Danielson again—pilfering from cars left parked in streets in and around the business center. Chief John McFarland said Thursday morning that reports of thefts from two different cars have been made to him this week and that he had learned of another case in which an attempt was made to steal spare tires off a machine, but the timely approach of the owner prevented the tires being taken away, though they had been loosened from the carrier on which they were mounted.

The risk zone appears to be in Main, Center and Academy streets, about the railroad station, and in other places where parking is generally practiced. Equipment was stolen from one car Wednesday night while a car was parked in Academy street between Main and Mechanic. From a car left in Center street a fine new robe was taken.

In detecting those responsible for this thieving the police will welcome the co-operation of citizens, as it is manifestly impossible for the officers to be on watch over every car every minute. Information that will lead to the arrests of the thieves, who have been bothersome at times for months past, will be appreciated by the officers, and motorists will be delighted to see the thieving crowd cleaned up.

With Everett Harrington safely back in the Norwich State hospital many throughout this territory breathed a sigh of relief Thursday. Police say they were fairly bombarded with inquiries as to whether Harrington had been apprehended, these coming largely from women and boys who were greatly frightened over Edward Pinkham's experience with Harrington.

It was recalled Thursday that Harrington was the "wild man" who had Goodyear in a state of excitement about two years ago and that a searching party eventually found him lying out in the open and in a bad way, from having sustained a broken leg in his ramblings. It is also recalled that as a boy going to school, he once gave evidence of being irrational by tying to a chair the woman in whose home he was living and then going away with the horse and buggy kept at the place. His recent outbreak is regarded as having established for good and all that he is not a safe person to be at large and that he is at Norwich, undoubtedly, for an indefinite stay.

While ice dealers do not show any fear that a crop will not be obtained for use in Danielson during the present year, the subject of mild weather and its holding back of an ice supply is becoming a topic of very general interest and discussion.

This, indeed, is rather an unusual January when a morning like that of Thursday brings a card from Tampa, Fla., to a local resident making mention of the fact that the mercury touched 88 down there last Sunday morning. The thermometers here were showing higher readings when the card was being read in town and suggesting that New England isn't so bad this winter.

People familiar with the ice business here will tell you that crops have been cut time and again as late as February and there have been years when an unlimited supply of heavy ice was obtainable at late as March, so there need not be any worrying so early in January because the ice is not housed yet.

Being in financial straits, Ralph Demoylle was having difficulty Thursday in raising the $100 fine imposed upon him in the superior court, after he had pleaded guilty to criminal negligence when he was driving the truck that struck and killed Julian Benac, a state highway flagman, at the head of Reynolds and Stearns streets on the afternoon of October 29. Demoylle has been in Brooklyn jail awaiting trial since the accident, a fact that was taken into consideration Thursday by Judge Hinman when the case was disposed of in the superior court.

County Agent F. L. Davis has given notice that he has secured W. H. Darrow, extension fruit specialist of the Connecticut Agricultural college, to give a pruning demonstration at the farm of Adelard Laframboise, who lives on the road leading south by the fair grounds in Brooklyn at 1.30 this (Friday) afternoon. Mr. Laframboise has agreed to conduct this as an orchard management demonstration. County Agent Davis is urging all interested persons to attend.

Enthusiasts for skating, especially children, were flirting with death Thursday in going out onto the frozen surfaces of bodies of water only thinly covered with ice. Warnings against the risks taken by skating under such conditions as now prevail appear to have little effect on a great many young people, and only another drowning accident, it appears, will serve to bring prudence into the place now occupied by recklessness.

Market conditions have again caused an upward fluctuation in the prices being asked for hard coal in Danielson. A little more than a week ago some grades of hard coal were obtainable as low as $16 per ton, but there has been a recent advance to $18.50, because dealers have been forced to buy a supply at a higher price.

F. Clifford Davis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Clifford Davis, is dead at the Davis home on Elmville road. The child was one year and nine months of age and had been ill for some time.

Peter A. Farnum of Pawtucket was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will be here next Tuesday from 10 to 13 o'clock to conduct the usual clinic at the health station in the town hall building.

Cashier F. E. Storer of the Windham County National bank announced Thursday that a supply of the new income tax forms have been received and are available for the public.

An effort is being made to get out all the members for the meeting of the Danielson chapter of the Red Cross to be held this (Friday) evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Call.

Members of the Roundabout club are to meet this (Friday) afternoon with Mrs. D. Fred Kenworthy.

The optimists scented an early forecast of spring in Thursday's delightful weather.

Frederick S. Benson of Fall River was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Thursday.

Frederick E. Kies filed his resignation Thursday as a deputy game warden. Warden Kies has found that his health will not longer permit of the long and hard traveling that the duties of a game warden entail.

Danielson obtained a great deal of publicity, not particularly of a desirable variety, out of Everett Harrington's episode. The story was featured in big city daily papers all through the east Thursday.

Careful watch is being kept by those having faith that the groundhog might venture out on a day like Thursday and indicate that the backbone of this winter, if it ever had one, is broken.

This week, cars bearing 1924 registration of New York, New Jersey and New Hampshire have been seen in this territory. Massachusetts and Rhode Island plates for '24 have been common since the first day of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. John Baton of Wauregan are going to Florida in a few days to remain for the balance of the winter.

PUTNAM

When the superior court opened here for Thursday's session, Ralph Denoyelle of Providence was presented and pleaded guilty to a charge of criminal carelessness in operating a big motor truck that struck and killed Julian Benac of Danielson on the state highway at the head of Reynolds street in that place on the afternoon of October 29 last. In default of bonds, Denoyelle has since been held at the county jail in Brooklyn.

Following Denoyelle's plea of guilty State Attorney Charles E. Searls outlined the case for Judge Hinman, who was presiding, and said that the question seemed to be whether Denoyelle was guilty of gross, wanton and criminal negligence in operating the truck. The case had been very thoroughly gone into by the state's attorney's office. It had been ascertained that Denoyelle never had been in trouble before. He has a family and he has been in jail going on three months. Considering that the dead cannot be brought back to life and that good results were not likely to be obtained for him, the state or the public by inflicting further imprisonment, the state attorney suggested that the court impose a fine of $100 as answering the purpose of justice, which suggestion was accepted.

In passing sentence Judge Hinman said to Denoyelle that the principal difficulty with the accused seemed to be in his manner of recklessly disregarding the safety of the public when operating a motor vehicle while more or less under the influence of liquor, of the effects of previous indulgence, which indulgence, even in small quantity, is a dangerous proposition. Drinking by drivers is not to be encouraged because it is a menace to the safety of the public. This is a lesson you should learn above all others. Only for the reason you have been in jail for nearly three months and because you may have to stay there longer in working out your fine if you are unable to pay it protects you from getting a further sentence in jail. The fine imposed was $100.

Following the disposal of the Denoyelle case, that of the state vs. Edgar E. Auger, of this city was taken up, the accused faced a charge of abusing a female child, Miss Grace Louise Belisle, 14, of Dayville. Attorney Arthur G. Bill of Danielson assisted State Attorney Searls with the prosecution and Attorneys Thomas M. Shields of Norwich and Irving H. Miron of this city were counsel for Auger.

Miss Belisle was the first witness for examination by Attorney Bill. She testified that on the evening of Sunday, October 14, last, with her sister, Miss Bernice Belisle, she came to Putnam and attended the first show at a picture theatre. At 1.45 she and her sister were going along the street when an acquaintance of her sister's, Danielson LaBonte of this city, spoke to them and there was conversation as to where they were going. Witness said that they were returning to Dayville and LaBonte asked if they cared to ride home with him. They accepted, Miss Belisle said, on his agreement to take them directly home. In LaBonte's car with him at the time was Auger, but witness did not know him then, nor did her sister, believing him to be another acquaintance known to them as "Dad" and they so addressed him during the time the party was together during the evening. It was not until the following week that "Dad" was identified as Auger.

The party of four—LaBonte, Auger and the Belisle girls—all found places in the little coupe LaBonte was driving. Miss Bernice sat next to the driver. Auger on the opposite end of the seat and Miss Grace Louis in Auger's lap. So the party proceeded out of the city through Park street and down what is known as the Lake road, to Dayville. No stop was made until upper Attawaugan crossing was reached and then only because a freight train came along. The car immediately proceeded. Auger, the witness said, began to complain that his cot was numb from riding in such crowded quarters and asked that the car be stopped that he might get out and stretch a bit.

Accordingly a stop was made at Wildwood park, deserted at that time of year. Witness said she had to alight from the car in order to allow Auger to get out. He followed and almost immediately began to force her away from the car, going in the direction of the pavilion. She did not go willingly, she said, but he put his left arm about her and his right hand over her mouth and forced her to go along. She was forcibly led along, she testified, until brought to the rear of the shooting gallery, a lonely spot about 200 feet from where the car was parked. All the time, she said, Auger held her tight with his arm and kept her from screaming by pressing his other hand over her mouth. He continued to prevent her making any outcry, she said, while she was being forced to the ground and until the assault upon her, which she described in detail was completed. Then, when she burst into a fit of angry passion Auger told her she was not civilized, she testified. Returning to the car she told her sister that she would not ride home in the machine with Auger as a passenger, but with the party seated differently than on the first part of the trip she did finally consent to go along and rode as far as the four corners near the carhouse at Dayville, where the girls left the car. Witness said she did not reveal that Auger had assaulted her until the following Tuesday morning, when her mother found her crying and at her request she told of her experience with Auger. The witness will be 15 years of age April 6.

On cross examination by Attorney Shields, Miss Belisle admitted she knew LaBonte from seeing him at Wildwood park and that he was married. She did not know Auger, but believed him to be another young man known as "Dad". She had never ridden with LaBonte before. Miss Belisle insisted during the cross-examination, which was very searching, that she had used her utmost physical strength to avoid being forced away from the car and down toward the shooting gallery by Auger, and that she struggled every minute until she could resist no more and was overcome. She denied having sat down on a bench near the pavilion with Auger, as he later testified they did, and only moved over toward the shooting gallery when he suggested that they were too close to another couple sitting nearby in the dark. Insisting that Auger was forcing her to go every foot of the way, she said that the unknown couple who were sitting nearby made no attempt to interfere or help her in any way. She made no outcry, she said, because Auger's hand over her mouth prevented her doing so. Asked by Mr. Shields as to whether she had previously had ever indulged in any such relations as she accused Auger of having had, she entered a positive "no".

Miss Bernice Belisle, 17, the next witness described the trip to Putnam and back to the lake as did her sister and said that she sat in the car with LaBonte while the other couple were out of the machine. She estimated they were gone about five minutes, which practically agreed with the estimate of her sister. Auger and LaBonte as to the time the couple were out of the car.

Danial LaBonte, driver of the car described the trip from Putnam and told of stopping at the lake. He said that Miss Belisle returned to the car in an angry mood, but did not appear to be weakened or to have been subjected to any rough handling and she said nothing about Auger attacking her, though she did declare she would not ride in the car with "that thing" referring to Auger. She was finally induced, to get in and ride to the four corners. LaBonte said he heard no outcry or disturbance while Auger and Miss Belisle were out of the car.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Belisle, of Dayville, parents of the complainant against Auger, were other witnesses for the state and it was brought out in their cross examination that there had been conferences between them and Auger and his counsel, relative to settling the case out of court, Mrs. Belisle suggesting at one time that $500 would be a satisfactory amount, though she would do nothing without consulting counsel. Nothing came of these conferences as to bringing about a settlement.

On the witness stand, Auger's defence was a complete denial that he had done other than walk away from the car with Miss Belisle and that she came along willingly. He said they sat for a time on a bench near the pavilion, but there was another couple nearby and he suggested moving on a bit. He said that he did make an indecent proposal to Miss Belisle, but she flatly refused it and that ended everything, she saying that she wanted to go home, he protesting it was still early, but she insisted on going back to the car and he walked along with her in that direction. He did not indulge in any familiarities with her at any time, he said.

Court recessed for the lunch period at this point.

The case was completed during the afternoon, Judge Hinman finding Auger guilty and sentencing him to serve nine months in Brooklyn jail, a penalty that might have been much heavier were it not for the fact that the court took into consideration that Auger, 23 years of age, has a wife and two small children and that Miss Belisle is quite a mature girl for her years.

Court adjourned until next Tuesday morning, when the jury will be in attendance for the consideration of other cases on the criminal list.

BEFORE COMMISSIONER FOR MANN ACT VIOLATION

Deputy United States Marshal Joseph M. Parks, of Providence, came to New London Thursday afternoon with a federal warrant charging Steward Lawne of Providence with violation of the Mann act. Lawne, who was a prisoner at the New London county jail, was delivered to Parks and was taken to Norwich, where he was presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson early in the evening, who bound him over to the federal court.

Prior to the arrival of the marshal at New London, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Law of Providence, the latter a sister of Evelyn Foster, the 16-year-old girl who Lawne is alleged to have brought to New London from Providence for immoral purposes, appeared at the police station to intercede for the girl, able to recover a fur overcoat which Lawne is alleged to have stolen from Law and which Lawne was wearing at the time of his arrest.

Lawne came to New London and rented a room at a Pearl street house where he and the girl lived. It is claimed that Lawne then sought male company for the girl.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY ANNUAL MEETING AT YANTIC

The annual business meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, was held Thursday evening in the parish house. At 6 o'clock a supper of tomato soup, saltines, potato salad, rolls, cocoa, pineapple ice cream and sponge cake was served by a committee which comprised the associate members. At each plate were dainty baskets of blue and gold, the colors of the society, filled with candy, each one having a favor. Gold colored candles were on the table, at which nineteen members and two guests were seated.

At the conclusion of the supper hour the election of officers took place. Mrs. John Kilroy was unanimously re-elected branch secretary. Others elected were: Secretary, Miss Marion Gibbs; treasurer, Miss Lois Manning, (re-elected); chairman, Mrs. Ellis Bentley; vice-chairman, Miss Rose Matassa. A social hour with games followed.

Ince's "A Man of Action", evidently decides in the conclusion that the "kick" is worth the fight out of his life for, smarting under taunts of his lovely young sweetheart, he determines to get the fillip he has missed. How he more than succeeds is vividly and mirthfully depicted in the latest Thomas H. Ince mystery-comedy now running at the Broadway theatre. Marguerite de la Motte, Raymond Hatton and a splendid cast interpret the swift action.

THE CHARM OF KREISLER

What is the charm of Kreisler?—who may be said, indeed, to stand absolutely in a class by himself. Some would tell you it is his wonderful power as a musician. Others his extraordinary dexterity with the bow. Others will tell you it is the exquisite taste and musicianly feeling that he exhibits when he plays.

For my part, I think one of the great reasons of his tremendous and well deserved popularity is that he never, under any circumstances whatever, forces his instrument for the sake of some effect. He keeps it absolutely within its legitimate scope, with the result that he develops a tone of surpassing beauty, and of almost uncanny musical sweetness and quality. How many players are there of whom this can be said?—that they never force the instrument, whether it be a piano, a violin, a 'cello or even the human voice, for the sake of making a momentary effect upon "the groundlings". Indeed but few.

That, to me, is one of Kreisler's greatest charms—that he does not attempt to produce a 'cello tone from a violin, just as some singers force the voice so as to produce an astonishing volume of tone, which presently results in their inability to sing a piano passage, or even mezza voca.

Kreisler to me, is more than a superb and unparalleled violinist. He is a standard for this generation as to the positively enthralling music which can be produced by a man wholly sincere, disdaining all tricks—so common with many violinists—who gives you the compositions of the masters with all his soul.—Music Reviewer for Musical America, N. Y.

ULTIMATUM TO BOOTLEGGERS OF WILLIAMSON COUNTY

Marion, Ill., Jan. 10.—Sheriff George Galligan tonight issued an ultimatum to alleged bootleggers of Williamson county to give up their illicit traffic. Conditions growing out of a "bootleggers' war," resulted in national guard troops being ordered to Marion this week.

A move looking to a request for withdrawal of the troops remained at a standstill today, Sheriff Galligan declaring that he would not request their withdrawal until assured of co-operation on the part of the citizens.

Despite the order of Division Chief W. W. Anderson, of the general prohibition agents, that all raids in the county should cease, and that hereafter all raids should be conducted by federal agents only, Young in a statement stated that "with or without federal aid, we're going to continue the raids, and I'm going to lead them."

Affidavits concerning 100 alleged attacks upon Italian residents of the county, chiefly at Herrin, were obtained today by John Picco, Italian consul at Springfield, who asserted that if his investigation yielded competent proof, legal action will be taken against the Ku Klux Klan raiders.

CHECKING OIL POLLUTION.

How far it will get no one knows but the movement is on for federal legislation that will put a stop to the pollution of navigable waters by the discharge of oil and possibly other refuse.

Along the coast, and particularly near harbors where vessels are disposed to clean out their bilges and oil tanks, the refuse has become a great nuisance. Not only does it become attached to vessels, but it lines the shores and is a great detriment to bathing beaches, while it is an economic menace because of the havoc that it raises among the fish.

It is one of those things that might be ended without legislation if the steamships which are responsible for the pollution would consider what they are doing and stop it, but the slight prospect of such a thing makes it necessary for protection to be provided by resorting to more law.

What is needed is legislation that will require captains to clean their ships in such a way or at such points that it will not work a hardship upon others. The large increase in the use of oil as fuel is responsible for the protests that have arisen against the pollution, but in addition to the opposition to the oil there are those who see the opportunity to broaden the legislation and include other forms of pollution. Such a move would be so much more extensive and lead to so much opposition that it seems highly probable that whatever action is taken will be confined to stopping the flood of black oil that now besmirches the shores and harbors.

The menace has gotten to the point where it is rousing many organizations, many health authorities and many communities to voice their demands for relief. It is a logical plan that is made for a check on casting down such filth to injure others, personally and propertywise, and to so seriously affect the existence of fish and water birds. The time has come when some other means of disposing of such refuse should be developed.

CUMMINS DEFEATED.

The insurgent group in the republican party has made good its threat in regard to the organization of the interstate commerce committee in the senate. It insisted from the first that Senator Cummins, probably the most qualified man in the senate for the position, should not be chairman of the committee. Though a mere handful of radicals they were nevertheless strong enough to prevent the chairman's reelection though unable to get into the position any of those in their group. It was by throwing their aid to the democrats that the minority party gets the chairmanship of this important committee.

The whole matter has hinged on the question of transportation. The radicals are particularly bitter against the railroads. They have chafed ever since the transportation act was enacted and they have set their minds upon bringing about its repeal. As might be expected there are those who favor certain amendments for the act as experience has shown it to be needed. Determined to have their own way or to cause as much trouble as possible the radical group has elected to throw its weight with the democrats and through the minority part and such science of power as they may control to get the desired results.

Chairman Smith of the interstate committee is an opponent of the transportation act. His election means that the committee will now organize and get down to business and it will of course assume the responsibility for the legislation that comes from it. It is an unusual situation and because of that will attract more than the usual amount of attention.

What progress, if any, will be made in connection with the committee's business remains to be seen. It creates a condition that is unpleasant and one that is liable to lead to many complications, inasmuch as the advantage of the chairmanship of the committee doesn't overcome the fact that the control of the committee doesn't go with that office. The senate has turned down the one man in that body who is probably best fitted for the chairmanship of that committee.

STRONGER AS WEAKER RAILROADS.

Once more it has been established that congress enacted constitutional law when it included in the transportation act the requirement that the railroads which earn more than six per cent must turn over half of the excess to the interstate commerce commission for the benefit of those which do not. This was intended as a barrier to overcome the effect of ruling which permitted certain railroads to produce more than a certain income while others were not able to make the good which all were held to be entitled to.

It was a shock for those in charge of the transportation act when the commission announced that it had earned a dollar over six per cent on the value of the property in the year 1923 and nearly $84,000 in excess during 1922. When the commission sought 50 per cent of that amount the road deserved and in its position it had the support of many other roads which took the same view that it did.

It was a case of going through the courts. That test has now been completed and the United States supreme court declares that the section of the transportation act under which the commission sought half of the railroad's excess earnings is constitutional, and therefore must be respected.

That means that the stronger roads, those making profits in excess of the six per cent limit, must expect to be drawn upon for the bolstering up of the weak ones. Under this arrangement consideration doesn't seem to be given to the effects of superior management, but in some aim at stimulating transportation lines in general and bringing them all more nearly to the same level, instead of some being unusually large producers and others earning nothing. Hope is placed in the ability of the lame in certain regions for the better adjustment of the rate problem.

With the decision of the supreme court to guide the transportation act is more firmly established than ever, and a respect for its provisions are to be expected until such a time as there is a change in its provisions.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

That conditions are improving in general in connection with the operation of trolley lines is to be gained from the fact that the trolley lines of the country spent more than $200,000,000 for new plant and equipment and maintenance material in the past year and in the extension of lines. That indicates a welcome change from the days when lines were being junked and operations stopped because it was impossible to make ends meet because there was too great a burden of expense, and because reduced patronage prevented the revenue from equalling the operating costs to say nothing of profits and extensions.

The day has not come when all trolley lines are on easy street. By tackling the problem in such a way as to cut operating costs and to bring about a large patronage through lowered fares many of them are able to see daylight, though it is quite evident that such increased efficiency is not able to get them back to the old days of the nickel fare.

Out in Toledo the experiment of running the trolley lines by the city has been underway and as in so many instances a greatly reduced fare was anticipated. The test up to this time has shown that the seven-cent fare is not sufficient to meet requirements and the announcement has been made that each fares will probably be increased soon to eight cents with tokens between seven and eight. It is a repetition of what occurred in Seattle and other cities.

That trolley lines are able to show increased returns for extensions, equipment, or possible low fenders is gratifying. It means much to the millions of those depending upon such service, but it is still evident that this improvement doesn't mean that they are as yet out of the woods.

INTERPRETING LENIENCY.

How the misapprehension of justice, or the treatment of those involved in crime, has its effect upon others, even to encouraging them in the belief that they can even go to the extent of taking life and escape the penalty is disclosed by a Philadelphia murder trial.

Found guilty in the second degree, the woman sentenced: "Mrs. Foster killed two and got four; I have to go to jail."

She had been sentenced from 10 to 20 years in the state prison and from her exclamation had apparently based her desperate act of killing a teenage friend upon the experience of another in escaping punishment. That the circumstances varied, that the jury in one instance failed to do its duty while it measured up to its responsibilities to the public in the other, that taking the life of another is a serious crime apparently got little consideration in the mind of the convicted woman. In her desperation she had been guided by the fact that another had gone free, instead of being impressed upon one who had done the same thing she contemplated.

It is one of those instances which go to show that the policy of leniency may have a decidedly different effect than intended. Too often it is taken in the wrong spirit by the person to which it is extended, and at times it is given the unfortunate interpretation that this Philadelphia woman applied to it. The proper protection of the public is seriously handicapped under such circumstances. Those originally inclined failed to get the very discouragement that they need when inclined to carry their acts to the point of desperation.

LETTING IN LIGHT.

"Caramella said she thought I looked pale tonight," reported the newly engaged man to his sympathetic sister. "She said she just knew I was coming down with something. I believe there is a sort of an ache in my head and I remember that I did sneeze once this morning! Do you suppose—"

"Nope," the sympathetic sister told him decidedly. "There is no more chance of your being ill right now, Egbert, than there is of your being MS to small Calvin Coolidge for a pit while he reads and catches his breath. You merely are suffering from the absorbed attention of your fiancee and no doubt you are watching her just as closely. When a girl becomes engaged she is so charmed with the novelty of finding a complete human being belonging to her that she watches it like a hawk. The most robust, flamboyantly healthy man hasn't a chance for his life.

"How are you, dearie, tonight?" she will begin, gazing at him searchingly, "right after you left last evening it came over me that it was simply wicked of me not to have told you to stop and buy a throat gargle, a plaster and some aspirin as you passed a drug store! You looked just dreadful, so pale and sort of haggard and I knew you were going to develop a cough! Have you coughed today? Why, that's queer—well, anyhow, you'll begin this evening, I know. You're just the type to have an awful cold and you never can tell what a cold will lead to! I have been so worried about you! Does your head ache? I want you to promise me that the minute you begin to feel worse you'll stop and go right home to bed!

"You've got to take care of yourself for my sake, Maxwell, if not for your own. Do you feel a pain anywhere? Well, I am sure you will presently. Dear me, I am so worried!"

"After a dose of this sort of thing the healthiest man is apt to be dubious.

"When Caramella begins the regulation 'Fiancee's Patter Song' just let out a good plain roar and say that while you are much obliged she's got the wrong number.

"Of course, if a man is a stern, strong character and can grit his teeth and live through it he eventually will emerge shortly after undertaking matrimony into the land of comfortable neglect. Dearest has become accustomed to having him alive whenever she looks at him and so see gradually acquires the knowledge that even though he does belong to her he has as good a chance of surviving as most people.

"I have even known quiet, devoted wives to smother a yawn when John or Mary tried to relate his symptoms at the dinner table. When Tilly Jerome was back here visiting this fall she got a telegram right in the middle of a bridge party in her honor. It was from her husband and he said please to return home at once because this time he knew whatever he had was going to be fatal. As we were all primed to spring for her trunk and suitcase and ticket Tilly shrugged her shoulders and began to deal cards at her table.

"I expect," she said languidly, 'that Otis has eaten too much cake again and has a pain in his stomach. Whenever he does he is certain that he never will live through the operation for appendicitis. You see, I was foolish enough, when we were engaged, to get all wrought up once on a similar occasion and Otis liked the fuss so well that he resorts to the most desperate subterfuges to make me miserable about him. It would be so much simpler to give up sake and save telegram fees. I'll make it no trumps!

"Oh, yes, Otis lived all right and Tilly justified herself to us. All the married ones understood the situation right from the start and the rest of us sort of calmed down after we had thought it over. I'll bet right now that you are looking anxiously at Caramella when you reach there suggings and saying that she really must rest more—you know she is working too hard and tiring herself all out, because when she turns her head just so you can catch a sort of violet shadow beneath her eyes and it worries you so! When you've been married five years, though you love your wife to distraction, you won't be in the least worried about her when you come home and hear her relate how that dope she had cleaned the attic, the entire basement and maybe shoveled the coal pile over to another place she liked better. Don't worry about being sick, Egbert!"

"Well, it would be better for you if you had Caramella's sympathetic nature!" declared the indignant brother very haughtily.—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Marquis Curzon, who celebrates his 65th birthday today, is one of the outstanding figures in British public life and a man who probably would have reached the premiership ere this, had it not been for the rise of the Labor party to power. The son of a clergyman, he was educated at Eton and at Oxford University. He began his diplomatic career as private secretary to the late Lord Salisbury. This was the stepping-stone to greater things, culminating, in 1899, in his becoming Viceroy of India, followed twenty years later by his appointment as Foreign Secretary in the British cabinet in which post he has made his greatest reputation. Very early in his career Lord Curzon was christened "the young man in a hurry." And yet it is a fact that his energy is tremendous. He takes sport, too, very seriously. Lord Curzon has married twice, both wives being American. The first Lady Curzon, who died in 1906, was a daughter of L. Z. Leiter, the Chicago merchant. The present Lady Curzon is a native of Alabama, and is noted for her beauty.

WHERE DO YOU FIT?

Where do you fit in this world of ours,
With its hustle and bustle and work;
Are you one of the throng that helps it along—
Or are you with those who shirk?

Do you hit the job with a smile or frown;
Do you carry a grouch all day;
Are you one of the flock that watches the clock;
Are you workin' for more than pay?

Is your job man-sized and worth the while,
When you've tallied up your score;
Are you keepin' fit and doin' your bit,
And perhaps a wee bit more?

Are you one of the average just drifting along;
Are you listed as Profit or Loss;
Are you stallin' for time or startin' to climb;
How much are you puttin' across?

Just pull up your slack and count up your score,
Locate what you're aimin' to hit—
Don't waste ammunition and all your ambition
But find out just where you fit.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

To determine his net income a taxpayer must first compute his gross income. Regardless of the amount of net income, upon which the tax is assessed, a return is required of every individual whose gross income for 1923 was $5,000 or more. Gross income includes salaries, wages and compensations for personal services rendered, and "gains, profits, and income from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, sales, or dealings in property real or personal, * * * or the transaction of any business carried on for profit, or gains of profits and income derived from any source whatever." Net income is gross income less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, contributions, etc.

Taxpayers may be divided into four general classes—the wage earner or salaried class, business, professional and agricultural. All compensation for personal services received by a salaried person or wage earner is income, including salaries, commissions, bonuses, fees, pensions paid retired employees and tips.

The gross income of the usual business consists of the gross profits on sales, together with income from investments and from incidental or outside operations or sources. The return must show the gross sales, purchases, and cost of goods sold. To reflect net income correctly in any business in which the production, purchase, or sale of merchandise is an income-producing factor, inventories are necessary at the beginning and end of each taxable year.

The lawyer, doctor, architect, author, dentist, clergyman, or other professional man must include all fees, salaries and compensations for professional services.

The farmer is required to report as gross income all profits derived from the sale or exchange of farm products and livestock, whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold. The fair market value of groceries or merchandise exchanged for farm products must be included, also profits from renting a farm on the crop-share basis, and the rental and sale of farm lands.

Carrie Jacobs Bond, song composer, is seriously ill at her home in Hollywood, Calif. Mrs. Bond has been ordered to take a sea voyage and if she is sufficiently recovered will sail January 29 for Hawaii.

THE AMERICAN PEACE AWARD
347 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

If you wish to express a fuller opinion also, please write to the American Peace Award on a separate sheet.

The plan, in brief, as officially submitted to the public by the policy committee, follows:

"I That the United States shall immediately enter the permanent court of international justice, under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

"II That without becoming a member of the league of nations as at present constituted, the United States shall offer to extend its present cooperation with the league and participate in the work of the league as a body of mutual counsel under conditions which:

"(A) Substitute moral force and public opinion for the military and economic force originally implied in articles 10 and 16;

"(B) Safeguard the Monroe Doctrine;

"(C) Accept the fact that the United States will assume no obligations under the Treaty of Versailles except by act of congress;

"(D) Propose that membership in the league shall be opened to all nations;

"(E) Provide for the continuing development of international law."

Stories That Recall Others

How They Did Fall!

A hunter once journed in the tamarack swamp describing one of his duck hunts, as follows:

"I snuck along the fence, reached out an' got my gun and—you'd ought to of seen 'em fall."

Absolute Lard!

A young woman who had spent her entire life in the city was taking an examination for a license to teach in the rural schools. Among the many subjects that she had to write about was agriculture. All went well until she came to the following question:

"What are the breeds of lard hogs?"

Her answer was, "The breeds of lard hogs are Ayrshire, Jersey, Holstein and Guernsey."

She had named four breeds of dairy cattle.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Arrested Man—"What made you so keen to catch me?"

Policeman—"Because as I came up the street you called out: 'Look! Here comes old Tatty'."—London Tit-Bits.

Judge—"You are charged with pouncing on a chicken and running off with it."

Prisoner—"I guess it must be in me blood, yer honor, me ancestors landed on Plymouth Rock."

Jinks had been out the night before, and was late at his desk.

Employer (sternly)—"Well?"

Jinks (sadly)—"Not very, sir!"—London Tit-Bits.

Medium—"I can tell you about a buried treasure."

Patron—"Please don't. My husband is always touting that in my ears—about his first wife."—Boston Transcript.

Foreman—"Don't you see that sign, 'No hands wanted?'"

Applicant—"Oh, yes, but I promised the princess I'd have one up for a job today, and that's why I applied."—Tit-Bits.

Women now comprise the majority of all employes in the vast textile industry of England.

The women of Lapland are among the smallest in the world, averaging only four feet, nine inches in height.

Miss Hilo Marshall, a twenty-year-old stenographer, has written a novel which is attracting considerable attention in London.

WHY WOMEN LOOK 40 AT 60

With dark circles under their grey sallow complexions, drawn expressions, drooping shoulders, a lagging step, many women of forty have the appearance of women of sixty. In most cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms as headaches, backache, nervousness, dizziness, and irregularities which indicate ailments peculiar to women. If all women so afflicted would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound it would restore them to a normal healthy condition, and the premature signs of age will soon disappear.

New Cough and Cold Remedy

In Lozenge Form—Acts Quickly—Folks Everywhere Using Them.

Old folks, middle aged people and children are now using a wonderful new form of Cough and Cold Remedy in pleasant lozenge form. The quick effects produced are said to be due, not only to the rare potency of the ingredients, but to the fact that the lozenges dissolve slowly in the mouth, thus carrying constantly soothing, healing medicament to the inflamed membranes of the throat and congested parts.

The very first lozenge loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon the phlegm will thin out. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold. This remarkable new form of cough and cold remedy is sold by most druggists under the name of Hemeph's Honey and Tar Cough Lozenges. For sale at Lee & Osgood Co.

NORWICH SPORTSMEN CONDUCT ANNUAL BANQUET WITH SUCCESS

With County Game Warden R. B. Chappell of New London, A. J. Williamson of Bridgeport, secretary of the State association of Fish and Game Clubs, and others as guests, the Norwich Fish and Game association held its annual banquet Thursday evening at Odd Fellows hall with an enjoyable programme for the 125 men present.

President Arthur E. Story made a capital toastmaster. Swahn's orchestra played during the banquet and Hermon J. Gibbs was song leader.

The following menu was finely served by members of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F.:

Tomato Bisque

Saltines Rolls

Escalloped Oysters

Celery

Roast Capon, Cranberry Sauce

Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips

Boiled Onions

Cake Ice Cream Coffee

Cigars

After several clever Scotch numbers given by Fred (Scotty) Power in costume, Secretary William W. Ives read letters of regret from Rev. R. H. Dessureault, president of the Occum club, Karl C. Kulle of the state commission, Lieut.-Gov. Hiram Bingham, Chairman Everett H. Dawley and Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state commission.

A report from Superintendent Titcomb was read by Lee Roy Robbins at the request of President Story, in which Mr. Titcomb spoke of the work of the commission in hatching brook, brown and lake trout so that during the coming summer the production of fingerling trout should materially exceed that of 1923. He spoke of liberating 300,000 shad in the past season and of the desirability of propogating smelt, tom-cod and flatfish. The commission wants information from anglers as to where smelt are caught in large quantities during the spring run, where tom-cod are caught in quantities in February and March and where in the Sound the flatfish were formerly abundant but now scarce. The commission hopes to hatch two or three hundred million perch eggs this spring for re-stocking.

Regarding game, Superintendent Titcomb wrote as follows:

Most of the hunters will agree that the ruffed grouse has come back and is as abundant as it has been for 15 to 25 years. This means that the decimation of this valuation game bird was not due to the gunners. There has been some snaring this year, but I think it has been limited to very small areas and that the marketing of grouse has been cut down to a very small amount. Whenever the hunters see any snares they should not destroy them, but notify a warden so that we can have them watched until the snarer is caught.

The commission is very much impressed with the fact that in order to keep up our supply of song, insectivorous and game birds it is necessary for all of the hunters to co-operate in the destruction of vermin. The vermin which produce valuable pelts should be killed during the season when the pelts are productive, but the trappers who are after the revenue from the pelts should be encouraged to shoot crows, red squirrels, the greater horned owls, and by all means the hunting house-cat, and the hunters themselves should lose no opportunity to take a crack at these species of vermin which are of no value but are so destructive.

We have a new specimen of vermin to add to our list, viz:—the common European hare which was introduced into New York state and is rapidly spreading throughout the western part of Connecticut so that now it is not uncommon to run across them in Fairfield and Litchfield counties. This hare has acquired the local name of "Jack rabbit," but it is not the western Jack rabbit and is the most destructive of the hare or rabbit family which we now have in the state. It probably weighs at least twice as much as the ordinary snowshoe rabbit and is very destructive to appletrees. It should be treated as vermin and shot on every occasion. I think it would be a good idea if some of the sportsmen would organize hunting parties to go after these giant hares. I think they would furnish as good sport as fox-hunting, if the dog is put upon their tracks and will be sure to come around with the hunter more quickly than does the fox.

Owing to the limited area of the game farm, for rearing pheasants by the use of hens, prohibiting expansion along that line we adopted last summer the incubator and brooder method, which had been tried in Massachusetts for the last three years, with very encouraging results. We do not feel sure yet that it is going to be the method of the future, although it looks as if we could produce more birds on a smaller area and at less expense than by the method commonly practiced, and the experiment will be continued another season before we expend any more money in extending the incubator and brooder plants.

We have had some complaints about the warden system and we naturally expect that with the increased interest in this whole subject and the improvement in the fishing and hunting which naturally results in an increased number of anglers and hunters in the field, we have a big proposition. Drawing a circle around the center of the state, with a 100-mile radius, discloses that we have a population of about sixteen million people within the area thus circumscribed. We have within the state about forty thousand hunters, possibly more, including land holders who are not required to take licenses.

My long experience with the warden system has thoroughly satisfied me that a paid service of a few men is far better than a volunteer service with a large number of wardens. Some of the volunteers have done good work, but not commensurate with the detail involved. The limitation to ten deputies to a county has caused some complaint, much of it coming from certain deputies who were dropped, but we endeavored to select those who had the best records and I feel that the service during the past year has greatly improved over the previous year. The total number of wardens for the area to be patrolled exceeds that of New York and many other states. We cannot attempt to enforce the laws, even if we have ten times as many wardens devoting full time to the job, unless the sportsmen respond and do their part. We receive a great many letters from men complaining that they have not been overhauled by wardens or that laws are being violated, but they do not want their names used and they do not give any specific information. Such complaints when not specific do not aid very much. The man who would be willing to act as a volunteer deputy certainly ought to be willing to give specific information when he runs across it in connection with his hunting and fishing trips.

The Sportsmen's News will give information as to the number of arrests and convictions from time to time. I hope that through this medium every member of the various sportsmen's associations will read the information. Most states through their sportsmen's associations and state leagues publish some kind of a magazine or newspaper, and I feel that Mr. Blackadar deserves great credit for starting one in this state as a private enterprise. It is a very unusual and instructive sheet and could be made more so if the various sportsmen interest themselves in it. I do not think there is any money in the proposition for Mr. Blackadar, but believe that if the sportsmen support the public spirited efforts by subscribing to this paper, either as an organization or individually, he will be able to maintain a very creditable publication, and some of the propaganda and information which we want the sportsmen to have will reach all of those interested, through such a medium.

Musical Numbers

Oscar Heinrich, who was accompanied on the piano by his teacher, Hugh Kinder, entertained the gathering with two well rendered tenor solos, and Mr. Kinder was heard in two baritone solos which won deserved applause.

County Game Warden Chappell, who was introduced by President Story as the best officer the county has had, interested the members as he spoke of what the hunters and anglers can do in cooperating with the wardens. He acknowledged the help that farmers give in reporting violations of the game laws and said that three cases that had come before the Norwich court where men were fined had been very valuable lessons. Give us the tip, said Mr. Chappell, and we game wardens will get there. The wardens are the sportsmans friend. Speaking of trapping he said that hunters should realize that the traps catch many of the vermin that are destroying game.

Wild Swan Shot

Game Warden Chappell brought to the meeting a beautiful specimen of a wild swan that had been shot Thursday by a 17 years old boy at Groton Long Point. This bird is protected by both federal and state laws, but the boy had shot it and then brought it to the game warden's office so that it was apparent he had no intention of breaking the law or evading the consequences of doing so. He got a good talking to the game warden said.

The state board has distributed in the past year over 450,000 brook trout, 11,200 lake trout, 1,064 pickerel, 212,459 perch, 2,952 bass, 10,375 bullheads, 67,10 pheasants, 400 Hungarian partridge and 2,883 pheasant eggs.

Recitations by Frank T. Maples, which brought enthusiastic applause were followed by remarks by Robert Symington of Meriden and by Scout Executive F. A. Benton, who spoke of instruction given Boy Scouts as to forest protection. The Norwich Scouts, he said, had extinguished four forest fires in the past year that burned over 800 acres.

Secretary Williamson of the state association, spoke briefly, commending the good work that is done under the present system of game wardens and George S. Brown of Jewett City, a well known fishing authorities, gave instances of the success of putting out advanced bass fry in ponds.

GIRLS PRESENT REASONS FOR THEIR WALKOUT

Representatives of the eight girls of the office force of the city gas and electric department who walked out on Saturday, Dec. 22, presented a statement to the Bulletin Thursday, requesting its publication.

Their communication challenged the accuracy of previously published reports of the trouble at the gas office, including a statement issued by General Manager C. W. Taggart, by declaring that "anything that has been published in the newspapers in regard to the matter has no bearing whatever on the case and statements have been made just the reverse of what they should have been."

The following is the statement submitted by the girls:

On Dec. 13, unsigned notices—the substance of which follows—were posted up.

Commencing Dec. 17, the following office hours will go into effect.

8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. five days per week.

8:00 a. m. to 12.00 m. Saturdays.

One hour allowed for dinner.

Two weeks a year allowed for vacation and six days a year allowed for sickness. Any further time off to be at the expense of the employe.

Previous to Dec. 17 the hours were from 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., five days per week; 8:30 a. m. to 12:00 m. Saturdays.

One and one-half hours for dinner and no time limit for sickness.

Under the new rules, owing to the trolley schedule, it would be necessary for one of us to come on the trolley arriving at Franklin Square at 7:40 a. m. in order to be at the office at 8:00 a. m. Four of us would be unable to go home to dinner and return in one hour.

None of us objected to the extra hour per day added, or, in fact, to working overtime, but did think the hours should be arranged to conform with the convenience of all the girls. The clause allowing six days per year for sick leave we did think objectionable.

One of the girls mentioned to Mr. Maples that she had just read his orders and he replied they were not his orders.

Then the question of taking the matter up with Mr. Taggart was mentioned but, considering the antagonistic attitude he always displayed toward every one of the girls with two exceptions, it was decided finally to speak to one of the commissioners to find out if some different arrangement could be made.

All of the girls, with the exception of the Misses Bliven who were not informed of our decision, wanted to go either to James L. Case, president of the commission, or to Martin M. Jensen, secretary.

Finally, Miss Bowen, assistant to Mr. Maples, went to Mr. Jensen in our behalf as the new rules did not affect her as she had taken no time off for lunch for the past two years and had no vacations in four years. Mr. Jensen stated that, inasmuch as the commissioners had criticized Mr. Taggart at a recent meeting, it would not look well for them to interfere. However, he did state that, had that notice been brought before the commissioners, the sick clause would have been voted down.

The next morning one of the girls informed Mr. Taggart that she could not live up to the new rules. He treated her very abruptly and informed her that he had nothing to say about the office, Mr. Maples was in full charge and if she had anything to say, she could say it to Mr. Maples. When asked if what would be agreeable to Mr. Maples would be agreeable to him, he replied that it would.

On the strength of that conversation Mr. Maples inquired as to the most convenient arrangement of the hours and changed them accordingly, namely:

8.15 a. m. to 5.15 p. m. five days per week, 8.15 a. m. to 12.15 p. m. Saturdays; 1 1-4 hours for dinner and eliminated the sick clause.

That noon Mr. Maples informed Miss Bowen that Mr. Taggart had instructed him to discharge her immediately for consulting Mr. Jensen.

When we returned from lunch, Miss Bowen informed us of her discharge and, as she had gone to Mr. Jensen in our behalf, we felt it our duty to leave also.

On leaving the office, we immediately called on the mayor and stated our case. He was very much surprised to learn that Mr. Taggart was in charge of the office as he understood that Mr. Maples was in full charge of it. He advised us to inform Mr. Case, president of the commission, of the matter and he (the mayor) would take it up with the commissioners.

Following his advice, we called at Mr. Case's office and explained the situation to him; namely, that Miss Bowen had been discharged without notice for consulting Mr. Jensen in our behalf and that we would not return to work unless Miss Bowen was reinstated and Mr. Maples given charge of the office as it had reached the point where Mr. Taggart's attitude toward us was unbearable.

Mr. Case then called on Mr. Taggart and when he returned, informed us that Mr. Taggart refused to recall Miss Bowen's discharge. Mr. Taggart stating he would get through first—but, at Mr. Case's request, he would give her thirty days' notice. Mr. Case also stated that Miss Bowen did perfectly right in going to Mr. Jensen and that no one knew any better than he did how hard Miss Bowen had worked for the department during the past six years. He told us we could call a commissioner's meeting and present the case to them. He also requested us to report for work in the morning which we did.

A letter asking for a Commissioners' meeting to be called the earliest possible date was mailed to Mr. Case, Saturday, Dec. 15. The meeting was held Friday, Dec. 21, at which Mr. Maples, Miss Bowen and two of the girls as representatives were present.

Although Mr. Taggart discharged Miss Bowen without notice, the commissioners were very indignant because we refused to work a notice and they voted not to grant the request of Mr. Maples and ourselves. Therefore, we resigned Saturday noon and Mr. Maples realizing the injustice of the decision, was man enough to stand by his convictions and he too resigned.

Anything that has been published in the newspapers in regard to the matter has no bearing whatever on the case and statements have been made just the reverse of what they should have been.

Our efficiency was not called into question in any way as Mr. Taggart informed us that he was sorry we were leaving.

President Case Declines Discussion

When a reporter saw James L. Case, president of the commission, Thursday evening, he stated that he had read the article referred to, but that it did not seem to him that, at this time, it was advisable for him to discuss the subject through the columns of the press.

He further stated, that, in as much as Mayor Waters had appointed a special committee composed of members of the city council, to discuss the affairs of the department with the commissioners, he felt that any further statement from him would be out of place.

Cottrell and Sons Co., of Westerly, on the ground of mental incapacity and undue influence was completed before Judge Newell Jennings in the superior court in New London late Wednesday afternoon. The case has been occupying the attention of the court for a month, the trial having been first begun in this city and then transferred to New London.

Wednesday afternoon Attorney Herbert W. Rathbun, representing the will, finished his argument and he was followed by Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, state attorney for Hartford county, counsel for Mrs. Cottrell, who made the closing argument.

After an agreement that both sides would file briefs in one week and return briefs in another week, Judge Jennings took the papers and reserved decision.

EMPLOYED BOYS GOING TO HARTFORD CONVENTION

The Employed Boys' Brotherhood met in regular session Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A., a fine supper being served at 6.15 o'clock. President Albert Leffingwell was in charge of the meeting and introduced as the speaker of the evening, James L. Case, one of the directors of the Y, who spoke on Something Worth While.

In his talk Mr. Case spoke of the foundation of character, the value of knowledge of ability and results of application. The talk was greatly enjoyed and a vote of thanks was given at the close of the remarks.

The twenty-five members present voted in favor of going to Hartford on Saturday to attend the State Convention of Employed Boys' Brotherhoods to be held at the Hartford Y. M. C. A. Transportation is to be provided free for the members and it is expected that a party numbering about 30 will leave the local association building Saturday afternoon about 1 o'clock. The return trip will be made late in the evening.

Why Cough Your Head Off

Make Your Own Cough Mixture for the Whole Family and Save Money. It's Easy.

When you can make in your own home a wonderful cough mixture far ahead of any you can buy ready made, why not do it?

This home made mixture will stop the most stubborn cough and is fine for chest colds and acute catarrh. Children love it.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make half a pint—that's all there is to it.

Like a soothing, healing poultice one costly substance in this home made cough mixture spreads itself completely over the membrane of the throat. This causes the most stubborn hang-on cough to cease almost instantly. No ordinary slow-acting cough syrup contains this expensive ingredient.

Any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

SHOWER WAS GIVEN FOR MISS GENIE ROULEAU

People from Norwich, New London and other cities were at the home of Mrs. Lucy Flynn, at 108 Howard street, New London, Wednesday night when a shower was given Miss Genie Rouleau of Norwich in honor of her engagement to Peter J. Flynn, assistant in the firm of Cummings & Ri of Norwich.

Over 100 young people were present and there was a fine display of gifts for the bride-to-be. Refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening spent.

Mr. Flynn was a guest for the evening of his brother, Edward Flynn, and others at a theatre party in New London, and after the performance the party was surprised to see a large bus at the theatre waiting to convey them to the residence of Mrs. Flynn. The happy time continued until late into the evening, and dancing was enjoyed.

Among those from Norwich attending the party were Miss Julia Dunleavy, Miss Mabel Wilbur, Miss Arline Lacomb, Mrs. William Donnelly, Mrs. Reardon, Miss Latham, Gene Rouleau, and Edward Rouleau and Charles Blake of Norwich, Charles Davis and Roy Harper of Stonington; Albert Jones and Marion Clarke of New London.

KASHMIR SHAWLS

It is said that sixteen thousand looms were once engaged in turning the undercoat or "pashm" of the Tibetan goat into costly shawls such as Nabob uncles brought home. India and Queen Victoria delighted to bestow as wedding gifts. There were patterned shawls, woven in one piece or in segments afterward sewed together, and shawls covered with needlework, often fine enough to hide the workers. From the fifteenth century the Kashmiri had made shawls for themselves; during the nineteenth they were weavers for Europe. They were treated like slaves and were not allowed to leave Kashmir. At the dictates of the French company that controlled the market they made the shawls square rather than scarf-like, and they altered the patterns to please the taste of Paris designers. After the Franco-Prussian war, money was scarce and fashions changed. The old weavers died and the younger men lacked skill. Even yet native merchants buy up wool and hire workers to weave square shawls and adorn the borders with embroidery, but one of the most beautiful of textile arts exists in the old sense, no longer.—Asia Magazine.

HOPPE WINS FIRST BLOCK IN MATCH WITH COCHRAN FOR BILLIARD TITLE

Boston, Jan. 10 (By the A. P.)—Willie Hoppe, world's champion 18.2 balkline billiards player, won the first block of his 1500-point three-night match with Welker Cochran, challenger, tonight, 500 to 376. Cochran, playing brilliantly at times, failed as conspicuously at others, having a total of six blank innings.

Hoppe went out with an unfinished run of 43 in the nineteenth inning. Throughout he played consistently good billiards, although only one of his runs, in which he tallied 109 points, approached Cochran's high run of 142.

The champion took the lead in the opening inning when he ran 90 against 6 for the young Pacific coast star. He was never overtaken.

Cochran, playing his best, ran 142 in the 13th inning and cut Hoppe's lead to 32 points. But from the fifteenth inning to the end Hoppe set a pace which Cochran was unable to follow.

The score by innings; high run and averages:

Cochran: 6 34 12 0 0 17 0 1 2 0 142 9 0 2 85 45 2 4 23—376. High run 142; average 19 15-19.

Hoppe: 90 0 14 7 48 0 10 75 0 0 2 83 0 1 109 5 3 10 43—500. High run 109; average 26 6-19.

Hoppe's last run was unfinished.

NUGGETS LOSE HECTIC GAME TO COMBAT TRAIN

The Nuggets closed the indoor baseball league with a heartbreaking defeat when the Combat Train staged a wild rally in the ninth inning and tied the score and then won out in the tenth inning. The Nuggets went into the ninth inning with the score 14 to 7 in their favor and then the soldiers ran wild, scoring seven runs. There was a heated argument regarding the score and then it was finally decided to play another inning but not until Al Pineault had quit his teammates and refused to play. The remainder of the team being good sports continued the game and it was Duke Shea's hit that won the game.

The battery for the Nuggets was Faber and Sank and for the Combat Train Dixon and Tombari.

ONTARIO TEAMS BARRED FROM PLAYING IN U. S.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 10.—Officials of all clubs of the United States Amateur Hockey association were notified tonight by Roy D. Schooley, secretary-treasurer, that under no circumstances were they to schedule exhibition games with teams of the Ontario Hockey association until further notice. Mr. Schooley explained that on December 20 last the Ontario association had decided to discontinue exhibition games after officials of the United States association had found it impossible to attend a conference called by the Canadian officials, to discuss migration of players from Canada to this country.

"We will see that their wishes are strictly lived up to and that none of their teams come into the United States for the time being," he added. "As I understand it, this affects only those teams that are members of the Ontario Hockey association and not clubs affiliated with other leagues under the Canadian Amateur Hockey association."

COLLEGE HOOPSTERS TO GET UNDER WAY TONIGHT

New York, Jan. 10.—With a field of six strong quintets striving for honors, the Eastern Collegiate league basketball race gets under way tomorrow night when Pennsylvania invades Columbia's court.

So far this season, Columbia has shown exceptional strength, conquering both Army and Navy fives, and looms as one of the strongest contenders for the league title. The Quakers have not displayed the form which carried them to several championships a few years ago but are expected to give the locals a stiff test.

Cornell and Dartmouth start their season at Ithaca Saturday, but Yale, the 1923 champions and Princeton do not swing into action until next week. Of these four, the Ellis, with their veteran line-up practically intact, and the Ithacans have shown the most impressive early season ability.

BEST NEWS IN A LONG TIME, SAYS GIBBONS

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 10.—Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul boxer, when informed tonight that a return match had been arranged between himself and Champion Jack Dempsey, declared "it is the best news I've heard in a long time.

"It means that I am going to be the next heavyweight champion of the world, which is the acme of my ambition," Tommy said.

"Ever since my fight with the champion at Shelby, Montana, I have tried hard to get a return match, for I honestly believe I learned more about him than he did about me. I feel sure that I can defeat the champion and this will be my continual thought until time for me to climb into the ring."

Unless there are restrictions in his Dempsey contract, Gibbons said he plans to engage in several fights before meeting the champion.

COLUMBIA SIGNS TWO YEAR AGREEMENT WITH ARMY

New York, Jan. 10.—Columbia and Army have signed a two-year football agreement for games in 1924 and 1925, it was announced tonight by Robert W. Watt, graduate manager of athletics at Columbia.

This year's game will be played November 15 at West Point.

The agreement marks the first gridiron relations between the two institutions since 1890 and, according to Mr. Watt, is likely to develop into an annual feature.

The Columbia game completes Army's nine-game schedule for next fall, one of the stiffest the cadets have ever faced. Besides the annual games with Yale, Notre Dame and Navy, it includes contests with St. Louis, Detroit, Boston university, Florida and Norwich.

New York, Jan. 10.—The winner of tomorrow night's 15-round match between Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., and Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, will have a chance to battle Johnny Dundee, for the junior lightweight title at Madison Square Garden, it was announced today. Bernstein lost this crown to Dundee recently.

Plainfield vs. Flotilla.

The Submarine Base basketball team will meet the Plainfield quintet on the latter's floor Friday night. Included in the "Sub Base" lineup will be two former Annapolis stars. Manager Arnold of the Sub Base team has been rounding his men into shape for the last few weeks and when Friday night rolls around they should be in tiptop form. The Plainfield team was given a fast workout last night by Coach Belan. Several new plays were developed which will be used Friday night.

By past performances the Sub Base team should be one of the toughest propositions that the Plainfield quintet has run up against this season.

In the preliminary game the Buddies will lineup against the fast Central Village A. C.

Bantams at Scotland.

The Baltic Bantams play at Scotland this evening against the Scotland A. C. five in what is expected to be a fast set-to. The Bantams will leave Baltic at 6 o'clock and go to Scotland where a supper will be served and after the game there will be a dance.

Manager Collins of the Bantams wishes to know what is the matter with Central Village in regards to a game for Tuesday evening. He is also waiting to hear from the Norwich Y. M. C. A. team.

Diamond Elected Captain.

Greencastle, Ind., Jan. 10.—Kenneth C. Diamond, of Greenfield, Mass., has been elected captain of the 1924 DePauw University football team, it was announced today. He plays right guard.

SPORT NOTES

Ed Strangler Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, meets Michael Romano, Italian heavyweight, in Chicago, the 16th.

Billy Gibson's string of champions has been reinforced by the addition of Kurt Prenzel, welter and middle weight title holder of Central Europe.

The National league used 42,756 baseballs during the last season. New York using the most, 7,666. Most of these went out of the park as souvenirs.

Ned Gourdin, former Harvard track star, and the holder of the world's broad jump record, has started training with the Harvard track squad in preparation for the Olympic games.

Walter Hagen set aside all rumors about not competing in the British open championship when he announced at Bellair that he would sail for England June 10, expecting to enter the meet at Horlake.

Willie Hoppe, champion 18.2 billiard player of the world, arrived in Boston Tuesday and played the first of three exhibitions before his challenge match with Welker Cochran. The championship match will be held today, Friday and Saturday and will be a 1,500-point match.

The University of Michigan is the only college holding records of producing eleven all-American football players. They are Allmendinger, Kipke, Vick, Steketee, Smith, Maulbetsch, Craig, Benbrook, Wells, Schulz and Heston. All these players were developed by Coach "Hurry-up" Yost.

The Cincinnati boxing commission has decided that Battling Siki, the Senegalese, cannot box in Cincinnati unless he has been reinstated by other commissions which have barred him. Cincinnati fight promoters have been endeavoring to arrange a match for Siki there.

Shortstop Charles Pechous and Outfielder Joe Shannon of the Toledo American association ball club were traded Tuesday to the Des Moines club of the Western league for Catcher Bernard Hungeling, who was with the Brooklyn club last year. Hungeling was sold by Brooklyn to Des Moines.

The New York athletic commission has modified its rule barring newspapermen from occupying the two sides of the ring on which judges are located at boxing bouts. Hereafter clubs which provide raised and railed off platforms, six feet in length, for the officials will be allowed to seat writers in the remaining space on those sides.

Willie Shugrue has two good offers staring him in the face. He is wanted for a star bout in Lynn, Mass., next week against Terry Parker, the lanky featherweight whom he defeated in Hartford one night last fall. The Pioneer A. C. of New York wants him for a semi-final but Brother Joe isn't going to sign him up for any bouts with unknown opponents. Willie is in fine fettle after his victory over Charlie Kohler Friday and spent Tuesday painting a chicken-coop.

President Dan O'Neil of the Eastern league conferred with Jack Kearney, head of the Bridgeport club recently. The topic of the conference was not made known by either, but it is said that the league executive went to Bridgeport to hasten a decision by the present owners of the franchise as to whether or not they intended to remain in the circuit. Kearney admits that he has several offers to sell the club and says that he may dispose of the franchise in a few days.

Georges Carpentier found rugby football more strenuous than fighting when he essayed a comeback recently on the football field at Nantes, France. He was completely winded at the end of ten minutes' play and apparently entirely out of form. His team lost, 24 to 3. Georges has gained ten or twelve pounds since his last appearance in the ring, against Joe Beckett, and most of the excess avoirdupois is around the waist. In the opinion of experts, he will have to undergo some strenuous training if he is to make any sort of showing in America.

The directors of the Pittsfield baseball club of the Eastern league have elected J. McArthur Vance, president, and Dr. Thomas F. Curtin, vice president. D. J. Haylon, who has been president of the club for four of the last five years, will continue to represent the club as a member of the board of directors of the Eastern league, of which he is treasurer. The directors will elect a manager for 1924 in a short time. Leon Wakefield has been re-elected secretary and Leroy P. Ogden, treasurer. Mr. Vance was president of the club in 1920.

A testimonial to the late Billy Miske, heavyweight pugilist of St. Paul, will be presented at St. Paul, Minn., January 16, in the shape of a fistic entertainment sponsored by sports writers of Minneapolis and St. Paul. Proceeds from the fight card will be used to purchase a monument for the late boxer's grave and as a purse for the widow. It was to provide for his family after his fortune had been swept away in a business venture, that Miske fought several fights though suffering from Bright's disease. Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, and his brother, Mike, once the famed "Phantom," have offered their services in any capacity desired.

ANOTHER GIBBONS-DEMPSEY BOUT IS SLATED TO TAKE PLACE NEXT JUNE

New York, Jan. 10.—(By The A. P.)—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, will fight a return title match in New York, probably early in June, Promoter Tex Rickard announced today, after a conference with Eddie Kane, Gibbon's manager.

Rickard came to a definite agreement with Kane after an hour's conference at Madison Square Garden.

Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, has not yet signed articles with Rickard but several days ago he assured the promoter there would be no hitch in arrangements if Gibbons was signed.

Gibbons has been seeking a return fight with Dempsey ever since he stayed the limit of 15 rounds with the champion in their battle in the Montana boom town of Shelby last July 4. Dempsey was awarded the verdict on points but it was the first time since he became titleholder that anyone had stayed the full route with him.

Several promoters had been dickering for the return fight, the latest offer having been made by James Mullen, of Chicago, who asserted he had negotiations well under way. Both Kane and Kearns, however, denied that they had given Mullen any definite assurances.

Kane, who barely made expenses at Shelby as a result of the financial debacle of the fight there, indicated he was well satisfied with the promoter's proposition.

Kearns declared he would have no hesitancy in signing for Dempsey if terms and conditions are agreeable. It was understood, however, that he already has come to an understanding with the promoter.

"Rickard informed me over the telephone that he had reached an agreement with Kane," said the champion's manager. "The proposition sounds good to me. I have assured Rickard right along we are ready to fight any one, particularly Gibbons, because of his good showing at Shelby. I am leaving for Hot Springs, Ark., tomorrow but expect to return to New York shortly to go into details on the bout. I expect no difficulty coming to terms with Rickard."

Kearns said any date and place were agreeable to the champion but mentioned Decoration day as a favorable time.

According to Rickard, he has no definite site planned but his choice would be limited to the two baseball parks here and Boyle's thirty acres in Jersey City. The promoter staged fights at both the polo grounds and Yankee stadium last season.

OVER 1200 BLIND PEOPLE IN STATE

The state board of education of the blind has compiled the reports regarding the blind, which have been sent in by the selectmen of the various towns in compliance with the General Statutes, and has found there are more than 1200 blind people in this state. Of this number about 300 are 50 years of age and over; 375 are between 20 and 50 years of age and 125 are under 20 years of age. Nearly 450 of the blind are foreign born. Of the group between 20 and 50 years of age about 205 are men and 170 are women. Of the group of over 50 years of age, however, about 365 are men and 435 are women. Of those who are over 20 years of age approximately 300 are now or have been married.

The oldest blind person in the state is Mrs. Sarah Bradway, of Eastford, who is 105 years old. She is a real daughter of the American Revolution and is pensioned by the federal government. She is totally blind and resides with relatives.

STORAGE CASE ENDED IN SUPERIOR COURT

Evidence was concluded and the arguments were made Thursday in the superior court here before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the trial of the suit of Leroy Churchill Potter of New London against Thomas J. Horrigan of Meriden for $1,500 damages for the alleged loss of household goods placed in storage with Mr. Horrigan on April 4, 1917. Judge Brown took the papers and reserved decision.

Attorney G. C. Morgan, counsel for Mr. Potter, amended his complaint Thursday and Attorney Danaher for the defendant amended his answer. During the trial of the case Thursday, Judge Brown reversed his decision of the day before and allowed Mr. Potter to testify to the value of the goods.

The defense of Mr. Horrigan was that he had been obliged to burn some of the household goods because moths had got into them and that when Mr. Potter came to claim his goods in 1923 he (Horrigan) agreed to allow Potter $90 for the goods that could not be located then and Potter agreed to pay the amount of about $100 for the storage charge and take his goods away.

Arguments were made by Attorney Danaher for the defendant and by Attorneys Morgan and Abel Tanner for the plaintiff.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

THE MAGIC ACORN

One morning Little Jack Rabbit crept out of a hollow stump in which he had spent the night and hopped away to Bramberry Cross to see the old woman who owned a white horse. By and by, after a while and maybe a mile, he came to the town. There stood the white horse, but the old woman was no where in sight and the reason for this was because she had gone to the jeweler to fix the rings on her fingers and the bells on her toes.

"But she won't be gone long," said her white horse.

"I can't wait," replied the little rabbit and off he hopped.

By and By he came to a tall oak tree. All of a sudden, he heard a sweet voice say, "I am the spirit of the tree and my name is Dryad. When the tree dies, I also perish," and the sweet voice faded away like the wind among the leaves.

"Where are you?" asked the bunny rabbit, and from out of a little door in the great tree trunk came a little fairy dressed in a green gown with a crown of oak leaves.

"Take this acorn," she said, "it has magic and will keep you from harm. Remember the Dryad of the Wood who gave it to you," and she closed the door and he saw her no more.

As he was about to resume his journey of adventure, a queer shaped animal crawled along the ground. All of a sudden, the dry leaves caught fire, and as this strange like lizzard crawled into the flame, it turned and spoke:

"I am a Salamander and fire cannot burn me," and with a swish of his long tail, this strange animal put out the fire.

"Don't you think I would make a good fireman?" asked the Salamander and he explained how the ancient men of Greece and Rome had written stories about him and how one man, when a little boy, on finding a Salamander in the kitchen stove, had asked his mother to put more wood on the fire.

"Goodness me," exclaimed Little Jack Rabbit, "I never would have believed it if I hadn't seen you crawl into the flames!" Then the bunny boy turned away and hopped out of the forest. By and by, he heard a Little yellow bird singing:

"The rose is red, the violet blue,
I've nothing to do today, have you?"

"Indeed, I have," replied the bunny boy. "I'm seeking my fortune. Can you tell me where I may find it?"

"Not far from here," replied the little yellow bird, "you will find a dead tree. Look carefully under the roots and you will find a little gold box."

It took the little rabbit less than forty hops to find the place. And the next minute he had uncovered the tiny gold box.

"I wish I could send it to mother," he sighed, half aloud.

"I'll take it to her," twittered the pretty yellow bird, and away he flew to the dear old Bramble Patch.

HEMP FIRE AT C. V. PIER, NEW LONDON, CAUSES LOSS OF ABOUT $30,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 10.—The vagrants who are constantly appearing in New London and who are nightly seeking shelter at the police station, are to be provided with more comfort than at any time in the history of New London's police department for today three double bunks were erected in the tramp room and are now ready for occupancy by the knights of the road. Heretofore the vagrants have been compelled to rest their weary bones on the concrete floor. The bunks are of the engine house type, double-deckers. There have been more tramps seeking lodgings at the police station the past week than during any like period in a year. With the facilities offered at the police station and those provided by the E. F. Learned Mission, the unfortunates will be amply cared for through the remainder of the winter.

A serious fire occurred this morning in the yard of the Central Vermont railroad at East New London, when a carload of hemp became ablaze and before it was extinguished a loss of about $30,000 suffered.

When the freight handlers arrived at the pier this morning they were assigned to the task of transferring freight from the pier to freight cars. Among the freight was a vast quantity of hemp. Eighty-five bales of the hemp was loaded into a freight car, which was close to a point where track workers were engaged making repairs and to accomplish this an acetylene torch was used. A spark from the torch was forced through the air, entered the open door of the car, unnoticed, and lodged among the bales of hemp. The cargo was immediately ablaze and a telephone message to fire headquarters caused the Thomas Hose company to respond to a still alarm. When the firemen reached the railroad yard the car was a mass of flames and it required a large quantity of water to extinguish them. The bales of hemp were valued at $450 each and 60 of them are a total loss. The cargo was consigned to Chicago.

The first New London physician summoned before the grand jury at Hartford, investigating the eclectic physicians of the state in an endeavor to rid Connecticut of fake doctors, is Dr. A. Paolilo, 59 Truman street, a so-called, natureopathic.

Dr. Paolilo was served with a subpoena to appear before the grand jury by County Detective William Lewis, the doctor leaving New London this forenoon to comply with the summons, which ordered him to present himself and bring with him all diplomas etc., he has received from any source.

Bank street merchants displayed carelessness in the closing of their places of business last night for three entrances were discovered unlocked by the police. Patrolman Patrick Sheehan discovered the rear entrance to the Schwartz Furniture company store and the side entrance to the McCormick clothing store unfastened and Patrolman Howard Sloan discovered the entrance to the market of A. H. & A. L. Burr unlocked.

The funeral of Richard H. Johnson, whose death occurred the 7th, while visiting relatives in Montville, was held this afternoon at his home in Niantic. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles F. Eldridge. Burial was in Union cemetery, Montville.

Mrs. Lena Krause of Lyme, a patient at Lawrence hospital, was able to return to her home today.

Nettie Reed Gear has sold a house and lot, corner of Huntington and Reed streets, to Michele Guillarini.

The automobile owned and operated by William G. Bishop, chief petty officer at the submarine base, was damaged yesterday afternoon when struck by a commercial car owned by L. C. Gadbois and operated by Thomas Flynn. Bishop had caused his car to come to a stop at the corner of Bank and Howard streets to await a signal from the traffic officer stationed there and while the car was motionless the commercial truck crashed against it.

Miss Julia A. Trumbull died suddenly yesterday at the residence of her cousin Miss Lillian Daniels, 146 Ledyard street. This evening at 7.30 o'clock funeral services were held at Miss Trumbull's former home.

The funeral of Mary E., 17-months-old daughter of Mr and Mrs. George Carver, 26 Harrison street, whose death occurred in Baltimore several days ago from pneumonia, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent of the State Farm for Women, at Niantic, appeared at the police station last night and requested that she be accompanied to the Hotel Winthrop by an officer, as there was an inmate of the farm, Teresa Stewart, who was stopping at the place. Patrolman Sheehan accompanied the superintendent to the hotel where the girl was found and given into the custody of Miss Hazard. The girl was returned to the institution during the night.

Another important transfer of realty in New London's business center took place late yesterday afternoon when the three-story brick structure at 86-88 Bank street, owned by John F. Hooper, was acquired by Samuel Chertoff, proprietor of the New London Lighting & Fixture company. The ground floor is occupied by Joseph Garn & Brother, wholesale tobacconists, and the upper two stories are occupied as apartments. The property has a frontage of 22 feet and a depth of 133 feet, abuts on the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and had been owned by Mr. Hooper 35 years, the owner having occupied the ground floor as a cafe for many years.

Mrs. Emma E. Hayford, wife of Solon J. Hayford, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of her daughter Mrs. P. J. Stevens, 44 Twelfth street, with whom she had made her home. Mrs. Stevens is the only surviving relative of Mrs. Hayford. This afternoon at 2.30 o'clock funeral services were held at her residence, Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. The body was forwarded to Hardwick, Vt., for burial.

Andrew J. Wilson, 40, of Station 7, Waterford, died at Lawrence hospital this morning of toxima which resulted from burns sustained at his work at the plant of the New London Ship & Engine company a week ago. He is survived by his wife, a son, George Wilson and three daughters, Misses Natha, Jane and Elizabeth Wilson, two brothers, William Wilson of Brooklyn and Samuel Wilson, a sailor and whose present location is unknown. Mr. Wilson sustained the fatal burns when he entered a tank to do some welding. A torch which he placed near him ignited his clothing and before he could get from the tank and extinguish the blazing garments he was terribly burned about the back, neck and shoulders.

Louis Goldbium, a New Yorker, endeavored to beat the Connecticut law as to registration of automobiles but he didn't succeed, for he and his car were involved in an accident on Main street, yesterday noon, and then it was ascertained that Louis had the scheme that cost him $10 in the police court today. Goldbium said his car was of New York registration; but that he supposed he could operate it in Connecticut for a period of thirty days without taking out registration in this state. He is a pedlar and came here from Bridgeport. He was set right as to registration and when he or some insurance company has paid for the damage the Goldbium car occasioned to the machine it snarled up with, the incident will be closed.

The police officers of New London feel that they are putting in more time at their duties than any police officers in the state are obliged to work. The officers here work seven days a week and they work overtime, too, if they are called upon, without any additional compensation, for it is an understood thing that a policeman is always on his job when his services are required. The officers have no protest to make because of their long days, but they want an arrangement made by which they may have a couple of days off each month and they insist that such a vacation could be arranged for them without any impairment of the efficiency of the force, if the proper effort was made. In nearly every city in the state, because they work seven days a week, the officers are given a couple of days to rest up. Members of the council here have been approached to sound them as to the new order of things and the information obtained was to the effect that the officers were considered to be entitled to the respite they demand. When the matter will be brought up for consideration of the council is not known, but the officers are busy with it now.

The Masonic club members met last evening and elected the officers as follows: President W. D. Fesler; vice-president, E. T. Streeter, Jr.; secretary, Billy Kingdon; treasurer, O. D. L. Burrows; managers, for three years, L. A. Rounds, S. B. Mondell and John G. Arnold; for two years, H. P. Ahlte, William L. Cone and Herbert G. Huntley; for one year, G. S. Gadbois, Fred Edgerton and H. A. Edgcomb. The club decided to have radio concerts every week and a ladies' night each month. The club feasted after business was transacted.

The white collar element is beginning to appear at the police station seeking lodgings. Last evening there were several well-dressed men lodging at the station and there were also men of the higher class of intelligence at the Learned Mission. Supt. Mansfield said today that the mission's facilities to lodge the strollers are not equal to the task of caring for all who seek beds there and that he frequently finds accommodations for them at the Y. M. C. A.

Counsel for the state are today summoning witnesses for the case of the state against Dr. Charles A. Gasson of Waterford, formerly of New London, who is to be tried in the superior court Tuesday next before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury. Dr. Gasson is charged with having performed an illegal operation upon a young girl of this city. The state will have some dozen witnesses and the defendant will, it is expected, have as many more.

James E. Lee and a woman named Barry, both colored, were arrested this evening for intoxication. The woman is also charged with stealing $36 from Lee's person. The pair will have a chance to tell what happened, tomorrow, in the police court.

Officer Graham made a call on Jimmy Bower's place on North Bank street this evening and came away with a can of alcohol, the possession of which Jimmy will have to explain tomorrow.

JEWETT CITY

Olin F. Miller has rounded out a 26 year record as station agent for the New York, New Haven and Hartford company at Jewett City. His efficiency account shows a clean sheet. In honor of the anniversary Mr. Miller gave a supper at the home of Mrs. William Barr Wednesday evening, at his official staff. The guests included Postmaster and Mrs. Daniel F. Finn (Mrs. Finn was for many years his chief operator); Miss Margaret Grant, first trick operator; Miss Rose Sharkey, second trick operator; Alec Raney, milk messenger and baggagemaster; William Driscoll, chief clerk; Miss Mary Driscoll, cashier; Miss Gladys Bray, emergency operator; James H. Morey, yard clerk; Charles Stafford, a former clerk, and E. H. Hiscox, his friend the "paper" man.

Mrs. Barr fairly excelled other successes with her menu, which included:

Right of Way Cocktails
Chilled Orange with Maraschino Cherry
Roast Stuffed Spring Chicken with Giblet Gravy
Mashed Potatoes
Creamed Bermuda Onions
Mashed Rock Turnips
Stuffed Queen Olives
Dressed Native Celery
White Cottage Bread
Nut Cake Fruit Cake
Fancy Cookies
Nabisco Wafers
Raspberry and Pineapple Jello with Whipped Cream
Tea
Robert Burns Cigars

After the supper, Mr. Miller conducted the party to his new apartment in the Maynard block. Here the entertainment was as varied as pleasant. There were a few games of cards. A number of exhibition waltz figures with Mr. Morey and Mr. Driscoll acting as partners to Miss Bray with the latest music on Mr. Miller's new Victrola. Several sets of handsome photographs were to be seen of views from the Pacific slope, collected by the host on a recent trip to California, at which time he enjoyed as traveling companion the company of his chief clerk, Mr. Driscoll. Second to no other part of the things of interest to his railroad guests were tales of old and new locomotives. Included in the ancient types were the names familiar to the older guests such as the "Ware", "Nathan Hale" and "Governor Jewell."

During the evening Mr. Driscoll acting for the company of employes, presented their "boss" a purse of gold. Best wishes all around was the order of the parting hour.

The meeting of Anne Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. M. Brown. Thirteen members and one visitor were present. The regent, Mrs. Henry E. Olson, presided. During the business meeting Miss Alice A. Brown was appointed chairman of a committee on conservation and thrift. In response to an invitation to contribute toward the Harding memorial, it was decided that each member could do so individually through the chapter treasurer. The regent was appointed delegate to attend the National D. A. R congress in April. The alternates are: Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. J. H. Tracy, Mrs. F. C. Whiting, Mrs. A. C. Ladd, Miss M. A. Burdick, Mrs. J. P. Post, Mrs. J. E. Crary, Mrs. E. A. Faust, Mrs G. H. Jennings and Mrs H. C. Bliss.

Mrs Ladd read a most interesting paper on Old and New England Life and Thought. By request, Mrs. Brown gave a talk about her trip to Washington at the time of the laying of the cornerstone of the Washington Masonic memorial. The talk was illustrated by kodak views, and the trowel presented A. M. Brown as grand master of the state was an object of interest. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

Miss Alice Blair is spending a week in Boston.

Thursday in Jewett City was like a day in early spring. The mercury rose to 52. A flock of hens were soon scratching and feeding in a Main street garden, as in summer. People on the streets were without overcoats or wraps. Furnace fires ran low and soon the grasshopper may become a burden. The two hundred tons of ice, left over in the Dorrville houses, looks good to its owners.

Among some cherished papers, a Jewett City woman has found an artistically printed—Donation visit, New Year's Eve, 1841. You are respectfully invited to make Rev. E. Cook a Donation Visit on New Year's Eve. 1841. In behalf of the church and society.

GALES FERRY

The January meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society was held at the home of Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt, Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. W. D. Woodward, the president, presiding. The meeting opened with singing hymn, Faith of Our Fathers, with Miss Satterlee at the piano. The devotions were conducted by Mrs. Harmon L. Perkins. A solo, I've Found a Friend, was beautifully sung by Mrs. Robert Townsend, of Uncasville, sister of Mrs. Hurlbutt, who accompanied her, at the piano. Then followed the roll call and minutes of the last meeting by the secretary, Mrs. Fanny A. Molthrop; singing, O, Master, Let Me Walk With Thee, preceded selections from the Scrap Book, read by the members alternately, paragraphs from the study book, The Child and America's Future, were read in the same manner. Mrs. Nelson Parker conducted the missionary enigmas, and gave artistic cut out, desk calendars, with each enigma number. The closing hymn was O, Beautiful For Spacious Skies.

A social hour followed, during which the hostess served tomato bisque, saltines, sandwiches and small cakes. She was assisted by Mrs. Andrew P. Miller and Miss Laura McGuire.

A most unusual sight, for Jan. 8, at Gales Ferry on the Thames, was a large three-masted schooner, light, under towage, going down the river Tuesday morning. The river was free of ice, and the water was very blue, in the sunshine.

Miss Susan Mathewson was a guest at dinner Sunday, of her nephew, attorney Earl Mathewson, and Mrs Mathewson, of Laurel Hill, Norwich.

TO FILE MEMORANDA IN DEFENSE OF FORBES

Washington, Jan. 10. — Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' bureau, through his counsel, James S. Easby-Smith, obtained permission today from the senate veterans' committee to file memoranda in reply to certain statements concerning Forbes made in the report to the committee by its general counsel, John F. O'Ryan, of New York.

The first of the memoranda, filed today, relates to the award of the contract for the construction of the hospital at Northampton, Mass., to the George A. Fuller construction company, on its revised bid of $2,117,000.

The Pontiac Construction company, of Detroit, Mich., which was represented here by Elias H. Mortimer, star witness against Forbes, obtained the contract for constructing the foundation for this hospital. O'Ryan, in his report said the Pontiac company also sought the contract for the superstructure, but its bid was very high and all bids were rejected because they were too high. According to the O'Ryan report this happened, before Forbes and Mortimer had their break on September 20, 1922, and that in October, 1922, after the break, Forbes awarded the contract to the Fuller company, which was the original low bidder.

Mr. Easby-Smith presented letters signed by Forbes and Captain F. Charles Starr of the army quartermaster corps, which handled the hospital work for the Veterans' bureau, as well as extracts from Captain Starr's diary which show that the bids actually were not rejected until seven days after the break between Forbes and Mortimer and that then the Fuller company was directed to begin work on revised plans made by the quartermaster corps.

Captain Starr's diary extracts show that the Fuller company signed the contract on September 28, 1922, but that Forbes did not sign the contract until October as he was absent from Washington.

"Surgical Conditions" was the subject of the address by Dr. Arthur T. Jones, president of the Rhode Island Medical society, at the annual meeting of the Washington County Medical society which began at 11 o'clock Thursday morning at the Elm Tree Inn. The annual meeting was called to order by the president, Dr. John Budd. At the business session the following officers were chosen: President, Dr. Francis E. Burke, of Wakefield, R. I.; first vice president, Dr. Michael M. Scanlon; second vice president, Dr. John Warden, Ashaway; secretary and treasurer, Dr. William A. Hilliard; standing committee for legislative work, Dr. John Champlin, Dr. Milton Duckworth.

At the parsonage of Grace Methodist church Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, Rev. M. S. Stocking, officiating, Miss Elizabeth Crandall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Crandall of 143 High street, became the bride of Frank E. Saunders of 21 Granite street. The attendance were Miss Edith M. Crandall, sister of the bride, and Hobart C. Saunders, a brother of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Saunders left Westerly Wednesday evening on the 7:17 train for a wedding trip to New York and on their return will reside at 21 Granite St. The bride has been a bookkeeper at the Victor laundry; the groom is a well known cabinet maker in Westerly.

At the home of his daughter, Mrs. James J. Russell, 326 Academy avenue, Jersey City, Wednesday morning, occurred the death of Oscar F. Sheffield, who was born in Stonington and was well known in Westerly. Mr. Sheffield was a visitor in Stonington last summer just previous to the death of his brother, Capt. Edward Sheffield. In the summer Mr. Sheffield was a visitor in Westerly making his stay on the Watch Hill road, where his wife died several years ago. He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Mason A. Pendleton and a brother, Arthur G. Lord of Stonington. For many years Mr. Sheffield was an express messenger, running from New York to Albany.

While coming into Westerly Thursday morning about 9 o'clock Max Sternlieb, a clothing manufacturer of Norwich, residing at 223 West Main street, was the occupant of a Buick touring car, 4475 Conn., driven by his chauffeur, Edward A. Rouleau, 288 Main street also of Norwich, which crashed into the curbing of the sidewalk under the West Broad St., railroad bridge junction of Liberty and West Broad streets. The front and rear right wheels of the automobile were smashed, the spokes of the forward wheel being broken off as the car continued on its way before it came to a stop near the traffic beacon at the junction of Mechanic and West Broad streets. Neither of the occupants were injured.

As the automobile came down Liberty street at a speed said to be 45 miles an hour, an automobile owned and driven by Westerly Probate Court Judge Edward M. Burke was about to be driven into a gas filling station and narrowly escaped being struck by the Buick car, which the judge said later was being operated at an excessive rate of speed. Both the chauffeur and Mr. Sternlieb said that they were not aware that their automobile was proceeding at an excessive speed rate. The accident happened at a time when the highway was wet and slippery from the frost which had worked its way to the surface of the highway. This spot is a dangerous one. Shortly before the school children from the electric car had crossed the highway on their way to the West Broad street school and as is the custom had been aided across by Patrolman Francis McGuenas who was returning down the street at the time of the crash. Officer McGuenas made his investigation of the accident, taking the names of the occupants who were en route to Hope Valley, the facts of the case and names of witnesses. This (Friday) morning Mr. Rouleau will probably be presented before Judge William A. Wilcox in Stonington Town court by Prosecuting Attorney George R. McKenzie on complaint of operating car at excessive speed. The point at which the accident happened is cared for in the rush time of summer traffic by having an officer stationed there.

Mrs. Paul Jennings left Westerly Thursday noon for Boston, for a visit with her daughter, Florence, a student nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital.

Jacob Rickert returned to Westerly after several days visit in New York where he attended the National automobile show in the 258th field artillery armory, the largest enclosed space in the world.

Wednesday afternoon Max and Trowbridge Cottrell, sons of Arthur M. Cottrell, left Westerly to return to their school duties at Southbridge, Mass.

William Geary was a business caller in Boston Thursday.

Charles Mayne is substituting in the Segar store during the absence of Ralph Curry, who is detained at his home in Bradford by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. Segar of Westerly left town Thursday morning for New York where they are to visit the National automobile show.

George Coney of Potter Hill is on his duties Monday as stage manager of Bliven Opera House.

Mrs. Caroline Kenecky of Canonchet, R. I., was a visitor Thursday in Westerly and Pawcatuck.

Max Raithel of Westerly has returned from a visit in New York where he attended the Motor Boat show.

Mrs. Jessie Davison of the West Side and Mrs. Charles S. Larkin of Westerly returned Thursday night from a several days visit in New York.

Thomas Fontana and Clifton Hall are in New York City attending the National automobile show.

Elsior Metaiver of the West Side and Joseph Grille of Westerly were automobile visitors in Providence on Wednesday.

Has Used Allen's Lung Healer For Six Years

And found it an unfailing remedy for lung colds.

If everybody would follow Mr. McKenzie's example the mortality from pneumonia and consumption would be greatly reduced.

READ HIS LETTER

West Lynn, Aug. 22, 1923.

Having used Allen's Lung Healer for the past six years I can honestly say it has proven an unfailing remedy for a cold or cough on the lungs. If I neglect a cold for a few days it goes down into my lungs and I have a bad cough. Then I get a bottle of the Lung Healer and in a few days the cough is gone. It is the only medicine I ever used that reaches my lungs and cures the cough so quickly. I am sure it has saved me from a great deal of suffering and sickness and I heartily recommend the use to anyone suffering with a lung cough or cold.

TEN SEPARATIST LEADERS LYNCHED IN THE PALATINATE

Berlin, Jan. 10.—(By the A. P.)—Not less than ten separatist leaders have already fallen victim to lynch law in the Palatinate, according to reports received here, although official quarters have not yet been apprised of the extent to which the populace is meting out summary justice to the secessionists.

Authentic details of the killings at Speyer, including the assassination of Herr Heints, "president of the autonomous government," were unobtainable in Berlin up to a late hour.

An apparently inspired bulletin issued here blames "the brutal provocations of the separatists, who are openly terrorizing the populace with the connivance of the French authorities" for the sanguinary clash at Speyer.

Flattery when practiced as a fine art is called tact.

1000 EGGS IN EVERY HEN

If You Keep Chickens CUT THIS OUT

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry expert and breeder, for nearly eighteen years editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet it has been scientifically established, that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute egg germs in her system—and will lay them on a higly profitable basis over a period of four to six years' time if given proper care.

How to work to get 1,000 eggs from every hen; how to get pullets laying early; how to make the cold hens lay like pullets; how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production; make slacker hens hustle. These and many other money making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, one copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. Eggs should go to a dollar or more a dozen this winter. This means big profit to the poultry keeper who gets the eggs. Mr. Trafford tells how. If you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and send it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 858 P. Herald Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y., and a free copy of "The 1,000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.

TWO UNFORTUNATE ECONOMIC MISTAKES.

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

One day last fall a crowd of about 150 farmers, attending a farm bureau meeting at Imbler, Oregon, got up a dinner for themselves.

It was not a fancy dinner, but a good, substantial, nourishing one, well cooked, well served, ample for all in unstinted portions. The farmers supplied all the materials except the coffee and the sugar for it, at exactly the prices they, the said farmers, could have sold those materials for to the butcher and the grocer and the restaurant men. The coffee and sugar they paid regular retail prices for.

The dinner consisted of roast beef, mashed potatoes and brown gravy, bread and butter, apple-pie, coffee with sugar and real cream—no "top-milk" for them, thank you!—and winter-banana apples. The dinner was cooked and served by women of the village, whom the farmers paid for the labor of preparing, cooking and serving.

And the entire cost of that dinner to each person served, including this labor, was fifteen and eight-tenths cents.

Later investigation in the city of Portland showed that a similar dinner, served at what was considered a "medium-priced" restaurant, was $1.50—almost ten times as much. No, that city restaurant dinner wouldn't have been exactly "similar," either. It wouldn't have served as ample portions of beef, nor as good bread, nor as good butter, nor as good apple pie, nor real cream for the coffee. Considering the quality, it is reasonable to say that the ostensibly similar restaurant dinner actually cost considerably more than ten times as much, value for value.

Now, this little occurrence out at Imbler, Oregon, teaches either two or two dozen things, I'm not quite certain which. However, two are enough to try to comprehend, both at the same time. Let's consider just two, for this talk.

1st. In this case—and there is no reason to suppose that it is anything but the usual case—it will be seen that the farmer gets about ten cents of the dollar which the consumer pays when he eats at a public restaurant. In truth, he doesn't get that much, for the fifteen and eight-tenths cents which each of these Imbler Farm Bureau people paid for their dinner, not only paid for the food, sold at current farm prices, but also for the labor of preparing, cooking and serving it. This cost, carefully figured out, amounted to an even three cents of that fifteen and eight-tenths. That reduces the actual value of the food consumed, the food material which the farmer produces and sells, to twelve and eight-tenths cents. This is considerably less than one-tenth of the restaurant price.

Some years ago, when a well-known farm paper made the flat assertion that the farmer received, on the average, barely 35 cents of the dollar which the average consumer paid for that farmer's produce, there was a howl of protest and denial from the so-called "business interests." The assertion, they declared, was bare-faced untruth; it was not based on facts; it was a wicked attempt to stir up "class" hatred; it was absurd. Well, since then, a good many professional statisticians have been compiling and classifying facts and deducting results. And they practically all arrive at the same conclusion, to wit, namely, that is to say, that thirty-five cents is rather an over than an understatement of the share which the farmer gets of the ultimate consumer's dollar.

This Oregon test shows that he doesn't get even ten cents of that ultimate consumer's dollar, for the food which he produces in the form of beef, potatoes, apples, butter and cream. He gets only a little over ten cents on the dollar for the food, plus the labor of preparing, cooking and serving it, which surely ought not to cost any more in a modernly arranged restaurant kitchen than in a farm bureau shack out on the fair-grounds. Nor is there any reason why that labor item should be charged against him. He doesn't get it, he pays it, whether in a restaurant or at a farm bureau dinner.

The actual food cost those Imbler farmers twelve and eight-tenths cents. That, it may be assumed, is practically what it would have cost the canny buyer of the restaurant. The labor of preparing, cooking and serving it cost the farmers three cents more for each dinner. What that labor costs the restaurateur we don't know and he won't tell. But we may be sure he's hiring his help just as cheap as he can, no matter where his sign swings. And, if he can't hire it as cheap as a lot of Imbler farmers, it looks as if he wasn't as fit for his business, eh?

Now please let the first lesson sink into your mind, whether you are a farmer on a hill farm or a city shop-worker living on a side street.

That lesson is, in brief, that the farmer gets an almost negligibly unimportant fraction of the price which the consumer pays for food. The rest of what that consumer pays goes for

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS FIRM

New York, Jan. 10.—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone today despite an unusually large volume of profit-taking and bear selling in various sections of the list, particularly in some of the motors, chemicals and tobaccos. Bullish demonstrations again took place in a number of the low-priced rails but with the exception of Missouri Pacific preferred, which closed 3 points higher, the gains in most cases were materially reduced or cancelled in the afternoon realizing sales.

Operators on the long side were favored with a series of favorable trade developments. These included an increase in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation for th first time since last March, higher lead, zinc and crude oil prices a further decrease in crude oil production, overnight announcement of the Ray-Chino Copper merger and low money rates, call funds being available at 4 per cent., for the first time since Oct 30.

Apparent proof of reports that there has been heavy European buying of American securities was seen in the brisk demand for dollar bills in London which sent demand sterling down 1 1-2 cents to $4.37 7-8. French francs slumped 3 points to 4.62 1-2 cents, another low record for all time, despite the raising of the Bank of France discount rate from 5 to 5 1-2 per cent., which was construed here as an attempt to strengthen French exchange. Japanese yen sold at their lowest price in 10 years in further reflection of the heavy imports necessitated by the ravages of the recent earthquake and uncretainty over the political situation engendered by the recent cabinet crises.

U. S. Steel crossed par on the tonnage announcement but fell back later to 99 5-8 where it was off 17-8 on the day. Independent steels made a better showing, Gulf States rising 1 1-2 points and Crucible and Republic, 1 each.

Some good gains were recorded among the food, equipment, rubber and oil shares. Corn Products climbed nearly 2 points to 161, the highest on record, and then eased to 159 1-2. Baldwin and General Electric moved up large fractions. Goodrich Tire preferred advanced 3 points and the common and Goodyear common, 1 each.

Quick absorption of the St. Paul bond issue was regarded as an indication of banking confidence in that road, the stock issues making further progress on a large turn-over. Recent strength of New Haven was associated today with reports that the New York Central Railroad was negotiating for its New York, Ontario & Western stock. Rock Island climbed 27 points to 161 on an initial outburst of buying but forfeited a large part of its gain later.

The sharp break in U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was traceable to unconfirmed reports that the stock was being discriminated against as loan collateral. It dropped from 82 7-8 to 75 7-8, closing two points above the low price for a net loss of 5 1-8 points. Schulte Stores broke nearly 3 points and Tobacco Products 1 1-8. U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Can, Great Northern preferred and Mack Truck all dropped a point or more.

Call money opened at 4 1-4 and then eased to 4. The money was still on a 4 3-4 per cent. basis with business quiet.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 10.—Led by the oils, which were influenced by the further reduction in crude output and a series of crude oil advances, stock prices moved up sharply in today's active curb market.

Gains of 2 to 5 points were registered by Prairie Oil & Gas, Standard of Nebraska, South Pennsylvania Oil, Galena Signal and Illinois Pipe while other Standardar Oil issues improved fractionally. Penn-Mex fuel broke more than 4 points in reflection of the reported seizure of its New Mexican well by the rebel forces.

Kreuger was the weak spot of the industrial list, dropping more than 3 points. Centrifrugal Cast Iron Pipe yielded in sympathy with the weakness of U. S. Cast Iron Pipe on the "big board." Dubilier Radio and Gillette Safety Razor each moved up about a point. Great Western Sugar moved up 1 points on a small turnover.

MOONSHINE EQUIPMENT FOUND ON TWO FARMS

Moonshine equipment was found on the farms of William Tuska of Chesterfield and Peter Truken of Waterford when State Policemen Leon A. Schaffer and Fred T. Caron raided the places Wednesday.

A half mile to the rear of each farmhouse, were dug-outs well concealed by natural growths, and in them elaborate stills with a quantity of the manufactured product and some raw material. Discovery of them by the state police led to the men's arrests and subsequent arraignment. Before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton they pleaded guilty. Each drew a fine of $200 and costs and a 30-day suspended jail sentence was given Truken.

The farm of Truken was the first raided. The farmer was located at his place at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Police confiscated in the raid on that place a ten-gallon still, 50 gallons of mash, 10 quarts of liquor.

A bigger haul was made at 8 o'clock in the evening. Investigation into Tuska's moonshining dug-out revealed an elaborate still of 30-gallon capacity, 350 gallons of mash, and 35 gallons of moonshine whiskey, all of which was confiscated and presented as evidence against him.

ANNOUNCE WINNERS IN TROOP No. 7 TREASURE HUNT

Wednesday night Troop No. 7, Boy Scouts, met at their quarters on High street with about 30 scouts present. Scoutmaster J. L. Kadish and assistants, Edward Land and Alfred Levine, summed up the reports of a treasure hunt that had been very carefully laid out for this troop. The boys were given instructions and sent out singly to follow this intricate and devious course all over Norwich and vicinity and in addition to the trail signs known to scouts only, an exceedingly difficult ode was used equal in its difficulty of interpretation to the one in Poe's Gold Bug.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton presented the prizes; a scout axe, given by a troop; and a canteen and housewife as second and third prizes. Albert Bloom won the first prize and read his account of the hunt. His hunt took nearly three days before he found the treasure. Rudeford Swartsburg came in second and A. Resnik third.

The scout executive gave a talk on nature study and the troop played some interesting games. Troop No. 7 challenges any troop in the city to a scout contest.

NORWICH-HALLVILLE LINE WILL STOP NEXT TUESDAY

Tuesday, Jan. 15, is to be the date when operation of the Norwich-Hallville trolley line is to be suspended, according to a notice issued Thursday by Receiver Robert W. Perkins of the Shore Line Electric Railway Co.

Receiver Perkins made the following announcement:

To insure the safety of the public, and to protect the receivership estate, I have, as a result of careful examination of the physical condition of the track and roadway on the Norwich-Hallville line, decided to suspend operations at the close of business on Tuesday, Jan. 15, and, for the same reason, have suspended operations beyond Mansfield's station, in Poquetanuck, beginning today.

Under order of the court, this operation could have been suspended many months ago but we have endeavored to serve the public just as long as we could do it without detriment to the receivership estate. The time has now arrived when action had to be taken, either in the direction of wasteful expenditure of money or abandonment of service, hence, the decision above announced.

WORCESTER MAN OFFICIATES AT B'NAI BRITH INSTALLATION

Rose of New England Lodge, No. 898, I. O. B. B., and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the lodge held a joint installation of officers Thursday evening at The Venice, West Main street. The officers were installed by Archibald M. Hillman of Worcester, past president of the grand lodge, as follows:

Rose of New England lodge: President, Morris Sussman; vice president, Abner Schwartz; secretary, Max Hanover; treasurer, Dr. Paul Schwartz; monitor, Harry Saloman; Assistant monitor, Josiah Greenstein; warden, Herman Sears; guardian, J. Weisinger; trustees, George Greenberger and David Shereshevsky.

The president of the auxiliary, Mrs. B. Pasnik; vice president, Mrs. M. B. Tennen; recording secretary, Miss A. Shereshevsky; financial secretary, Mrs. B. Saloman; treasurer, Mrs. R. Mandell; guardian, Mrs. B. Levine; sentinel, Miss A. Rabinovitch; guide, Miss E. Goldberg; monitor, Mrs. B. Smith; trustees, Mrs. M. Land, Mrs. L. Rabinovitch and Mrs. S. Silverberg.

The installing officer was assisted by Dr. Schwartz and Mr. Silverberg.

Following the installation Mayor Milo R. Waters, a guest of honor, was presented to the large gathering. Mayor Waters spoke briefly on the civic spirit shown by the B'Nai Brith in all local public movements, including the Backus hospital drive, the Boy Scouts and the Salvation Army. In closing he urged the members of the lodge to strive to make Norwich one of the best and most prosperous cities in the state.

Morris Sussman, the new president, in his address said;

It is a privilege to me to address you here tonight. I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for the honor bestowed on me in electing me president of Rose of New England lodge. I will here try to introduce myself to you just as I am. I have been the victim of child labor and, therefore, did not have the opportunity of getting a college education, nor even a high school education. I have had none of this, nevertheless, I stand on my record in this community for the past 20 years since I have taken active interest in different civic, charitable work and also in work along social lines.

I appeal to the brothers and members of this organization to help us, meaning you and every other member of this organization, to attend our meetings. When serving on a committee fulfill the duty to the best of your ability. Don't let "George do it." The purpose of this administration is to unite all Jews of this city. No. brothers, with the staff of offices of which I have the pleasure of heading for this coming year, we cannot help but be successful.

Max Hanover, the secretary, also addressed the gathering, and there were brief remarks by a number of the officers of both lodges. Mr. Hillman, the installing officer, was presented and gave a very interesting and inspiring address in which he dwelt upon true Americanism as taught by the B'Nai Brith. He urged Rose of New England lodge to become worthy of the Rose of New England, known not only for its beauty but for its great civic spirit and fine people.

After the business meeting, through the cooperation of Manager William Harding of the Palace theater, Miss Marty Dupree, and her entire troupe, including the comedians, Ben Drohan and Frank Murray, entertained those present at the gathering. The two comedians brought down the house with their clever song number, Mr. Gallagher and Mr Shean.

The members of Miss Dupree's cast who appeared in the troupe's program were Miss Marty Dupree, Miss Madeline Boland, Bennie Drohan, Frank Murray, George Brown, Louis Carron, Miss Francis McCarthy, Miss Marie Rostella, Miss Edna DeSaulas and Wallace Melvin. Mayor Water took occasion to compliment the troupe for their excellent program.

The programme of the evening was brought to a close by the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour, a five piece orchestra furnishing the music. The members of the orchestra were, Miss Lillian Stockdale, piano; Henry Bryman, violin; Eli Jacobson, banjo; Saul Burnick, drums; Leonard Suntheimer, saxophone. Refreshments were served.

CONGRATULATES POSTOFFICE ON CERTIFICATE SALES

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey has received a letter of congratulations from F. C. Ayres, director, U. S. Savings Organization, First Federal Reserve district on the success achieved by his office in December in connection with the issue of treasury savings certificates.

During December there were sold for cash and issued in exchange for the 1919 war savings stamps which matured on January 1st $9,080, worth of treasury savings certificates. Mr. Ayres states that this is a record to be proud of and gives to our community a per capita average which compares favorably with any in New England.

Postmaster Bailey declares that the new issue of treasury savings certificates which went on sale December 1st last, is proving very popular as an investment. He learns from Director Ayres, that incomplete returns for December indicate an investment of nearly $1,000,000 for New England and upwards of $35,000,000 for the entire country.

He wishes to remind his patrons to look up their 1918 and 1919 issues of war savings stamps and bring them to him for cash redemption or exchange to treasury savings certificates without delay. The further accumulation of interest ceased when these issues matured on Jan. 1, 1923 and Jan. 1, 1924, respectively, but there are still many stamps of both issues still outstanding.

Any money involved in these securities is now idle and should be reinvested in treasury savings certificates at once so that it will continue to produce an income for the owner and be safe from every possibility of loss.

Postmaster Bailey said that many people have been inquiring for Harding stamps. He has received quite an invoice of these stamps and the postoffice is now ready to take care of the demand of this particular stamp.

CHAIRMAN HIGGINS SHOWS WHAT JITNEY MEANS

In order to make clear the differentiation between jitneys and other public service motor vehicles, in order that the separate provisions of the motor vehicle laws may be readily applied to any such public service motor vehicle, Chairman Richard T. Higgins of the public utilities commission of Connecticut has issued the following definition of a jitney, which has the approval of the attorney general:

"Section 1 of Chapter 77 of the Public Acts of 1921 reads as follows:

"The term 'public service motor vehicle,' shall include all motor vehicles used for the transporation of passengers for hire. The term 'jitney' shall include any public service motor vehicle operated in whole or in part upon any street or highway in such manner as to afford a means of transportation similar to that afforded by a street railway company by indiscriminately receiving or discharging passengers; or running on a regular route or over any portion thereof or between fixed termini.'

"The definition of a jitney as stated in said section is very broad and comprehensive in its terms, and any material refinement or modification of that definition is liable to lead to a violation of the plain intent of the statute.

"The first part of the definition defines a 'jitney' as a public service motor vehicle operated in whole or in part upon any street or highway in such manner as to afford a means of transportation similar to that afforded by a street railway company. This definition is further amplified by stating three specific conditions, independent of each other, pertaining to its operation, which would make it a 'jitney.'

"Indiscriminately" Stopping.

"First, by indiscriminately receiving or discharging passengers. This clearly indicates that a driver of a motor vehicle who starts out with the expectation of picking up, receiving or discharging passengers for hire along any route, street or highway, is operating a jitney, as distinguished from the driver who is hired to transport a passenger or passengers from one specified point to another specified point, taking on and discharging no passengers between the specified points; or, in other words, carries no more passengers than he contracted to take when starting.

"Second, 'running on a regular route, or over any portion thereof.' This condition clearly indicates that any person or corporation operating a motor vehicle transporting passengers for hire and running over a regular route, whether indiscriminately receiving or discharging passengers or not, is operating a 'jitney.' In construing this condition it is necessary to determine what is meant by 'regular route.' A regular route is a route over which the motor vehicle is operated daily or at substantially regular stated intervals. This strictly speaking, would include the transportation of a limited but regular number of individual passengers from any definite point to another for hire.

"Third, 'running' between fixed termini. This condition must of necessity be liberally construed, and the term 'fixed termini' be interpreted to mean regular fixed termini and not a 'fixed terminus' for each individual trip; otherwise it would include practically all public service vehicles transporting passengers for hire.

Classes of Public Service Vehicles.

"It is apparent from section one above quoted and from other sections of the motor vehicle laws, that it was not the legislative intent to include as jitneys all public service motor vehicles transporting passengers for hire. It was not the legislative intent and is not a reasonable construction of the statute to include as jitneys:

"First, so-called taxi services where a public service motor vehicle is engaged to transport a passenger or passengers from and to points designated by the passengers.

"Second, livery service where a person or persons may hire a public service motor vehicle to transport a designated number of passengers on occasional irregular or uncertain intervals, from and to designated points, for hire, and at rates usually in excess of those of the regular transportation agencies.

"The main object of the jitney law was to eliminate unfair and unnecessary competition, and to limit and control public service motor vehicle transportation in competition with existing transportation facilities. Having in mind the above 'main object,' the state departments charged with the duty of executing the laws pertaining to public service motor vehicles are warranted in making such reasonable departmental rulings as will best meet the legitimate demands and necessities of the public.

Definition of Jitney.

"As stated before, the statutory definition of a jitney is very explicit, and yet a too rigid interpretation of the statute might include as jitneys a class of service not intended and not for the best interests of the public to be so restricted and controlled. Therefore, adopting the policy of elimination in more explicitly defining a 'jitney,' or service known as 'jitney service' the following:

"First, taxi service, generally found in populous centers, transporting passengers from and to points designated by the passengers themselves, and receiving and discharging no passengers en route while the vehicle is occupied by the original passenger or passengers.

"Second, livery service, where a person or persons hire a public service motor vehicle to transport a designated number of passengers on occasional irregular or uncertain intervals from and to designated points for hire and at rates usually in excess of those of the regular transportation agencies; but, when a public service motor vehicle is used for the transportation of passengers daily or at stated intervals (excepting school children, hereafter mentioned), between fixed termini and over a given route, or is engaged in indiscriminately receiving or discharging passengers along any route, street, or highway, it becomes a jitney and is not authorized to so operate without a certificate from the public utilities commission.

Transportation of Pupils.

"Third, the transportation of school children when the transportation charges are paid for by the municipality and none but school children are transported in such service.

"Fourth, cases where a manufacturing company or other employer of labor uses its own motor vehicle to transport its employes from and to their homes and place of business as a part of its (the employer's) overhead expenses, and without charge or contribution from the employes so transported; but in no instance to transport other than employes.

"Fifth, emergency cases where a large number of people are congregated in connection with some celebration or unusual event and existing transportation facilities are inadequate to take care of necessary transportation. It is impossible to lay down any specific rule for emergency cases, but each such case should be promptly determined by the commission at the time, upon application, as to whether the service required should be performed as jitney service or what is termed in the motor department 'O' marker service. In the performance of emergency service, carrying passengers for hire between fixed termini and over a regular route, such service should not be performed until after application is made to the commission and its ruling in the premises is obtained. It may be found necessary in certain emergency cases in the interest of the public that the service should be performed by motor vehicles carrying O markers.

"The regulatory powers of the commission pertaining to rates, schedules, etc., of jitneys are not involved in defining what is a jitney under the statute."

MUTINY OF STATE CONVICTS IN COAL MINES IN ALABAMA

Are Using Dynamite to Blow Up the Machinery—Firmly Entrenched, They Have Defied the Guards to Enter—66 Miners are in the Mines Refusing to Work, 54 Negroes and 12 White—No Reason For the Outbreak Has Been Given.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 11.—State convicts who mutinied at the Thomas Weller coal mines at Aldrich, in Shelby county, are using dynamite to blow up the machinery and have defied guards to enter, according to reports received here. L. A. Boyd, head of the state convict board, said that the prisoners were firmly entrenched.

Sixty-six miners, according to official reports, are in the mines refusing to work. Nineteen others, part of the day shift, left the mines.

Eighty-five miner-convicts went into the mines this morning and immediately told guards, it is said, that there would be "no coal mined today." No reason for the outbreak was given, according to state officials. Of the sixty-six men who remained inside, 12 are white and 54 are negroes. Darium Thomas, president of the company, said that no warning was given by the convicts.

DIVERS SEARCHING FOR BRITISH SUBMARINE L-24

Portland, England, Jan. 11—(By the A. P.)—Divers made a number of unsuccessful descents off Portland bill this afternoon in an effort to learn whether an object located in thirty fathoms of water is the British submarine L-24 which sank yesterday after a collision with the dreadnought Resolution. Tonight there was nothing to give hope that there would be any survivors among the members of the submarine's crew.

The divers were greatly handicapped by huge seas and made their descents at great personal risk. They will continue to search further tomorrow.

An underwater examination of the Resolution shows that the bow chain of the battleship was cut through, and, while the battleship itself was not seriously damaged, there are marks showing that she must have struck the submarine with tremendous force. It is supposed the underwater craft was struck high up, which would explain why no oil floated up because the oil tanks are at the bottom of the vessels.

The end of the crew is believed to have been mercifully swift, as the sea pouring in on the batteries would have created fumes, asphyxiating the men almost immediately.

CONSIDER LEGISLATIVE AID TO AMERICAN FARMERS

Washington, Jan. 11.—Legislation designed to give emergency aid to American farmers was considered today by both the senate and house agriculture committees, the witnesses in both cases being representatives of the great northwestern wheat sections. The bills under discussion were the Norris-Sinclair bill, proposing a $100,000,000 corporation to deal in farm products and the Burtness bill which would create a fund of $50,000,000 to finance a change to diversified farming.

John N. Hagan, state inspector of grades, weights and measures of North Dakota, told the senate committee that planters in the spring wheat belt have sustained a loss of $5 an acre for each of his last five years, and other witnesses from the state described a survey which indicated that nearly 90 per cent. of the farms now carry mortgages or other lien liabilities.

ACTION BY THE HOUSE IMMIGRATION COMMITTEE

Washington, Jan. 11—Restriction of immigration to this country on a basis of two per cent. of the foreign citizens of each country here in 1890, with an annual minimum quota of 200 for each nation was voted today by the house immigration committee in drafting a new bill.

The provision in the Johnson bill providing for admission also of two per cent. of the blood relatives of citizens now here was stricken out. A provision was agreed upon, however, allowing unrestricted entry of the wives or husbands of citizens, their children under 18 years of age and their mothers and fathers over 56 years of age.

Both the proposal to admit two per cent. of the relatives and one to fix the basis of restriction at three instead of two per cent. of the foreign born here in 1890 were defeated by votes of 7 to 6. The provision's approved today, however, are subject to amendment when the bill is taken up as a whole again by the committee.

STONEHAM INDICTED FOR USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

New York, Jan. 11—Charles A. Stoneham, part owner of the New York Giants, and several others were indicted in the federal court today on charges of having used the mails to defraud in connection with the conduct of C. A. Stoneham and company and E. D. Dier and company, former brokerage houses.

Others indicted were Stoneham's brother, Horace A. Stoneham, his brother-in-law and former partner, Ross F. Robertson; Leo J. Bondy, attorney for Stoneham and former attorney for E. M. Fuller & Co., in which case Stoneham is also under indictment; Elmore D. Dier, former head of E. D. Dier & Co., and Fred Andrews, Bernard A. Andrews and August F. Stroh, employes of Dier.

The indictments were found last September and were ordered sealed by the court. The indictments followed several weeks of investigation by the grand jury. They were ordered unsealed this afternoon.

URGES PRIVILEGES OF SELF-GOVERNMENT TO PORTO RICO.

Washington, Jan. 11—Further extension of the privileges of self-government to Porto Rico, including power to elect its governor, was urged before the house today by Commissioner Davila. The island had no complaint to lodge, he said, praising the administration of Governor Towner, who, he declared, "might be the choice of the people, had they the right to elect an executive."

Speaking of the joint commission of the Porto Rican government now en route here, Mr. Davila said its purpose was to "develop and promote the mutual feelings of cordiality and affection which ought to prevail among people living under the folds of the same flag," as well as to recommend modifications in the present laws governing the island.

COURT ACTION AGAINST COMMONWEALTH CORPORATION

New York, Jan. 11—Supreme court justice O'Malley today signed an order requiring officers of the Commonwealth Hotel Construction Corporation and its subsidiary, The Broadway, 7th avenue and 56th St., Hotel Realty Corporation, to show cause why the further sale of their stock and securities should not be enjoined.

The order, returnable next Thursday, was issued at the request of Deputy State Attorney General chambers, who charged that entire hotel project was a stock jobbing scheme; that millions of dollars of the more than 28,000 stock buyers in all parts of the United States had been dissipated and that fraud had been practiced in the management of the concern's affairs. He said stock sales in the past seven years exceeded $5,000,000.

Chambers said tonight that the postal authorities were investigating the stock selling methods of both companies.

Chambers asked the court to enjoin the sale of property comprising an entire block at Broadway, Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth streets and seventh avenue, on which the commonwealth Corporation advertised it planned to erect a 2500 room cooperative hotel.

Today's action followed numerous conferences between Attorney General Sherman, chambers and officers of the companies, including Newman Erb, president of the Ann Arbor railroad, and president of the Broadway company and finance committee chairman of the Commonwealth Corporation.

CONTRACT TO RAISE 68 GERMAN WARSHIPS

London, Jan. 11.—A Queensborough, Kent, firm today entered into a contract with the admiralty to raise 68 German warships sunk at Scapa Flow. Most of the warships when raised will be sold to ship breakers while the others will be used by the admiralty for target practice.

At the conclusion of the war the German warships were taken to Scapa Flow, an expanse of the sea in the south of the Orkneys used by Admiral Jellicoe as his chief naval base, to be interned there. On June 21, 1919, the German crews scuttled the vessels and the entire fleet with the exception of the battleship Baden, five light cruisers and some smaller vessels settled to the bottom.

KU KLUX KLAN HAS EXPELLED ITS FOUNDER

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 11.—William Joseph Simmons, founder and emperor of the Ku Klux Klan, and Edward Young Clarke, at one time acting imperial wizard of the organization have been banished from the klan for their active opposition to the regime headed by Dr. H. W. Evans, imperial wizard, it was announced today.

Clarke declared in a statement, he was not surprised at the development, asserting that, "the attempt was made because Evans and his associates are desperate and realize it is only for a short time they will be able to hold the reins of the organization and trample in the dust all the foundation principles and ideals of the knights of the Ku Klux Klan."

Officials at the imperial palace declined to comment on the reported expulsions, but confirmation on the reports here came from persons closely associated with Dr. Evans. It was stated that the banishment was made after grand dragons representing every state in the Union had met in Washington two days ago and signed charges against the two officials.

A copy of these charges was in the hands of Mr. Clarke today. The accusations are said to be lengthy, but the former acting imperial wizard would not make them public, declaring that they were in the hands of his attorney.

The order, it is understood, charged him with "actively attempting to disrupt the organization," and allying himself with enemies of the order and bringing it into disrepute."

It is understood it was charged that the letter Clarke sent President Coolidge "constitutes treason," in that it was "an attempt to disband and break up the order, and bring it into disrepute."

Members of the Simmons faction stated today that the imperial headquarters of the klan had been moved from here in Washington. This was denied by imperial officials here and those representing the order in the nation's capital.

BELIEVE MELLON TAX BILL MUST BE MODIFIED

Washington, Jan. 11—Realizing that modifications probably must be made in the Mellon tax bill if it is to command a majority in the house, republican members of the ways and means committee discussed the question today with Representative Longworth, the party leader.

The conference lasted several hours, but those who participated declined to disclose what had transpired other than to say that the discussion had been general and related solely to procedure. Proposed changes in the tax rates, it was said, were not considered and no decisions were reached.

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking democrat on the committee, who has a substitute for the Mellon plan, declared he was convinced that the republicans were alarmed and were seeking to determine, "whether they will take a licking in the committee or on the floor."

Mr. Garner said he had reliable information that between sixty and seventy republican members of the house were ready to swing away from the administration plan to the support of the democratic proposal, which he pointed out, provides a greater cut in the normal tax rates and a smaller reduction in surtaxes than has been proposed by the treasury secretary and calls for increased tax exemption.

AN ABUNDANCE OF MONEY IN WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 11—Wall street today had more money than it could use.

So great was the accumulation of surplus money that the rate on call loans in the stock market fell below 4 per cent. for the first time since last September and bankers were forced to take back more than $20,000,000 for which they could find no borrowers at the close. The rate on prime bankers' acceptances, which has been holding steady at 4 1-4 bid and 4 1-8 asked since last April, broke to 4 1-8 and 4. In addition millions of dollars were diverted to the purchase of short term treasury notes and U. S. government bonds, sales of the latter on the New York stock exchange totaling $6,500,000, an increase of more than 50 per cent. over the day before.

Three Breaks From New Haven Co. Jail

It is Believed They Had Made A Key to fit the Outer Doors—All Wore Prison Overalls.

New Haven, Jan. 11.—Curtis Boutilier, Edison Boutilier and J. E. Van Vecktor, alias J. Francis Toomey, inmates of the New Haven county jail, escaped from that institution late this afternoon. It is believed that they had made a key to fit the locks of the outer door and piled boxes against the wire fence surrounding the jail to make their get-away.

The Boutilier brothers had two months to serve on a six months' sentence for theft and burglary while Van Vecktor was finishing an unexpired term of less than a month for escaping from the same jail four years ago where he was sentenced after being convicted of forgery. It is understood that several warrants were to be served on Van Vecktor for similar charges in other cities when his term was up.

One of the Boutilier brothers was employed in the cellar of the factory at the jail while the other was working on the third floor. Van Vecktor was a clerk and allowed the freedom of the building. All three were seen on the ground floor of the jail at 4.20 o'clock and ten minutes later they were reported missing. It is believed that they struck out in the direction of Waterbury.

All wore prison overalls and coats of dark blue over their civilian clothes.

BASSETT TO PRESENT ULTIMATUM TO WIFE

Madison, Conn., Jan. 11.—Unsuccessful in seeing his wife who left the home of her mother a short time before he arrived early this morning, Ellsworth Bassett at noon today went into conference with his attorney in the town clerk's office and drew up an ultimatum which will be presented to Mrs. Bassett, demanding that she return to him and offering her his protection and support. This information was given out by Bassett shortly after leaving his attorney, stating that he would reopen the home of his parents, if his wife returned, and would establish his residence there.

Mrs. Bassett, who left Madison before 9 o'clock this morning, is now living in a neighboring town with friends. She is said to be in a highly nervous state and will remain in her present location for a few days until she feels capable of returning to Madison with her child. She insists that she will have nothing to do with her husband. Prior to her leaving the village she was granted leaves of absence from the library and post office, being employed at both places as a substitute.

It is unknown where Bassett is staying. Most of this evening he was at the fire station in company with newspaper men with whom he freely discussed his affairs of the present time.

20 PER CENT. INCREASE FOR BOSTON COMMUTERS

Boston, Jan. 11—Commuters from points within a 18-mile radius of Boston on the Boston and Maine, the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Albany railroads will have to dip down a little deeper in their pockets to pay for their rides to and from business beginning January 15. The state department of public utilities today granted the petition of the three roads for a 20 per cent. increase in the rates charged for twelve ride tickets within this zone, effective on that date.

At the same, the department approved a 20 per cent. increase in rates for sixty ride monthly tickets and a 40 ride pupils' monthly tickets on the Boston and Maine and New Haven but refused to increase on these the forms of ticket to the Boston and Albany.

In its decision the department said that the present commutation fares appeared inadequate and that the commuter was not paying his fair share of the costs of transportation.

Butler Threatened With Legal Restraint

Counsel for Venetian Cafe Claims He is Exceeding Authority in Philadelphia Clean-Up.

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, director of public safety announced tonight that 978 of the city's 1,200 saloons had been closed in his opening offensive for law and order. He stated he intends to close the remainder.

An interlocking agreement for mutual cooperation was effected today between federal prohibition authorities and General Butler, following a conference in city hall between the general and William J. McClure, chief prohibition field agent.

"The federal agents will do everything they can to aid General Butler in his clean-up of the city," Mr. McClure said as he left the conference. "His campaign has met with the unqualified approval of the dry agents [illegible] here."

First signs of co-operation with General Butler from brewing interests came when Adam Scheidt, president of a large brewing concern, voluntarily came to city hall and offered to post a $100,000 bond guaranteeing that all beer shipped on his trucks to be within the legal alcoholic content.

Director Butler accepted the offer.

Prospect of a legal controversy with the Venetian cafe, a Central city saloon loomed up today. This place was raided on Wednesday and since then the police four times have seized truck loads of beer that were about to be unloaded there. William A. Gray, counsel for the proprietors of the cafe, announced that he would confer with the city solicitor, and then seek to arrange a conference with Director Butler to find out the extent to which the police plan to carry their efforts to close the place.

"The police cannot seize beer and soft drinks which conform to government regulations," Mr. Gray declared. "It must be stopped. Neither General Butler nor anyone else has any more right to seize goods which are being taken into the Venetian cafe than they have of picking my pockets.

"If General Butler insists on interfering with my client's conducting an order business, I will go into court and seek an injunction against the mayor, the director of public safety, and every one else concerned to restrain them from this unwarranted action.

New York, Jan. 11.—A warm, rain-laden gale from out of the southwest lashed the Atlantic seaboard today, bringing with it unseasonable tides adn inundating downpours which crippled traffic on land and sea.

Ocean vessels, warned that freezing temperatures, snow squalls and dangerous seas were coming on the heels of the sou'western hastened to port or delayed sailing outbound. Scores of small coastwise craft were damaged at their moorings and the streets of several towns were flooded.

In New York the thermometer touched 59—four degrees above the record high temperature for th date, registered in 1895. The wind velocity ranged from 60 miles an hour a short distance inland to 74 miles at Sandy Hook.

The storm descended over this area during a warm springlike day. Throughout the forenoon the fury of the wind steadily increased, driving before it successive rain squalls which at times resembled cloudbursts. Unmid-afternoon, it diminished; rainy mist rolling up the coast in its wake.

Numerous instances of minor property damage were reported in Manhattan.

REFUSED TO RECOMMEND CHANGES IN HOUSE RULES

Washington, Jan. 11—The house rules committee today refused to recommend a number of changes in the house rules demanded by the republican insurgents and the democrats. As a result, a sharp fight on the floor of the house when the question comes to a head Monday was predicted by various leaders.

On several votes in committee today organization republicans joined the democrats and the one insurgent member of the committee, Representative Nelson of Wisconsin. Democratic committee members among them Representative Garrett, the minority leader, said they would [illegible] their [illegible], while the insurgent bloc will hold a conference tomorrow to map out its program.

The main point at issue today was the question of discharging committees from consideration of legislation. Mr. Nelson proposed that 100 names on a petition should be sufficient to set the machinery in motion, while Representative Johnson, republican, South Dakota, suggested 150 names.

The vote was taken on the Johnson proposal, seven republicans supporting it, while Mr. Nelson and three democrats present voted in the negative. No ballot was had on the Nelson resolution, without opposition from any quarter the committee voted to recommend the creation of a new veterans' committee, to be composed of 17 members, with jurisdiction over legislation affecting world war veterans except bonus proposals and pensions.

JAPANESE YEN DROPS AS BAR SILVER SLUMPS

New York, Jan. 11—The sharp slump in the price of bar silver was reflected in another drop in the Japanese yen in today's foreign exchange market. Both sterling and French bills also fell off, the latter dropping to 4.75 cents, a new low for all time. Demand sterling touched $4.37 nearly a cent below yesterday's point.

While bankers were inclined to believe that the fall in sterling had some influence on the decline in the yen, generally it was believed that the continued large purchases of Japan in this country since the earthquake was chiefly responsible.

The continued declines of both sterling and franc bills generally was construed as due to the transfer of French and English investments into American securities, due to a loss of confidence of those investors in their own currencies.

Senator Watson's decision, which had been forecast for some time, was made known after he had conferred with William M. Butler, campaign manager for President Coolidge, and was followed almost immediately by an announcement by Mr. Butler of the appointment of Ewing Emison, of Vincennes, as the Coolidge campaign manager in Indiana.

President Coolidge will be entered in the Indiana presidential preference primary, according to state leaders who have been conferring here for several days, in connection with the plans of Senator Watson and the appointment of a Coolidge manager for Indiana. The latter has said he would enter every possible republican primary and is known to be preparing for a fight for the Indiana delegation.

In announcing he had determined not to become a presidential candidate, Senator Watson refrained from explanation, but his friends said that his decision was based primarily on a desire for republican unity and success in the coming campaign.

Sterne, however, was blocked in his initial effort, when Justice of the Peace Wilfred F. Keaster, the first man he approached, refused to withdraw the permits.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1052

After being the general topic of discussion for some time the affairs of the police department, will probably be settled at the regular meeting of the common council Monday next.

After the retirement of former Chief Daniel J. Kilkenny last June, Lieutenant Allan MacArthur was named acting chief, by Mayor Charles A. Gates. August 13, Mayor Gates officially appointed MacArthur chief. Patrolman Thomas Grady was advanced to the newly created position of captain and Officer Frank McLean was promoted to lieutenant.

Through some disruption, these appointments were never confirmed by the council as should have been done, according to the city charter. It has been contended by some that the confirmation of the appointments of the officers is not necessary, but others view the matter in a different light. In order that no further arguments need arise in the matter it is thought that the officials will be confirmed next Monday night. The trouble, however, does not end with the confirmation. A contest is being waged between Lieutenant Frank McLean and Patrolman Edward Leahy for the position which McLean now holds. McLean was appointed by a Republican administration on the grounds that he was the oldest member in point of permanent service. If it holds true that the appointments made by Mayor Gates are not legal because they have never been ratified, Patrolman Leahy contends that he has a right to the position of lieutenant, as he leads McLean by a number of years in point of actual service with the department. Leahy was appointed night inspector nearly ten years before McLean, but through political expediency he did not receive the appointment of a regular officer, until a few weeks after McLean. Leahy is a democrat and he depends on the present administration to do him justice. The fight for the lieutenancy is a close one. McLean has gained much recognition as a leading and efficient officer and his removal merits careful consideration.

With the position of lieutenant in a precarious condition and the present talk about the unconfirmed appointments the police department finds itself in a state of uncertainty which is proving detrimental to the mutual interest and efficiency of the members.

Another matter which will undoubtedly be taken up Monday night is the appointment of Supernumerary Officers Roderick Lariviere, who was appointed August 6, 1918 and Arthur M. Hurley, appointed August 13, 1923. The appointments for regular positions alternate in regard to party affiliations and in the order of seniority, according to the city charter, unless there is some good reason why a ranking senior supernumerary should not be appointed.

The police department is now made up of fifteen men, three officers, five patrolmen and seven supernumeraries. Since the appointments of Captain Grady and Lieutenant McLean the department has been composed of only three regular men, Leahy Bombria and William Hurley, Lariviere and Arthur Hurley have been doing regular duty for some time.

Another police department matter to be taken up soon is the appointment of an additional roster of supernumerary officers, so that men can be available at all times for special jobs. At present there are seven supernumeraries but of that number at least two have made it plain that they are adverse to performing special duty and one is absent from the city on a sixty day leave. The police committee have recommended four applications which will be acted upon at the meeting of the board Monday night. When the existing difficulties of the department have been cleaned up and the force is back in ship-shape order, with Chief MacArthur at the wheel, the local force will compare favorably with any of its size in the state for efficiency.

One man, a resident of Willimantic for fourteen years and well known as a peacable and law-abiding citizen, is justly riled at one of his former neighbors who summoned the police to arrest him as a suspicious [illegible] moved from a particular neighborhood and he returned there the other day to call at a home in the vicinity which he had left. The people were not at home and he waited quietly for their return. Everything went alright until a taxi came tearing up the street and a police officer jumped out in haste ready to do battle with some desperate character. It happened that the cop and the man in question were friends and after a brief explanation the officer left laughing heartily, but not so with the alleged suspicious person. He was and still remains incensed at the idea that a woman who had been his neighbor for fourteen years should become nervous at the sight of a harmless, respectably dressed elderly man strolling about in the sunshine, calmly awaiting the arrival of the people with whom he had business.

The high winds which prevailed early Friday morning were the cause of some damage to trees, some of the highways being partially blocked by fallen limbs. The road between Willimantic and Norwich was only half open to traffic near the Lebanon Road in Franklin, a large limb blown down Friday. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

Driven to cover at noon Friday by a bewildering southerly storm of rain, scores of Danielson people severed they never saw it rain harder than at that very moment. Dry clothing became saturated, clinging drapery in less time than it takes to tell about it, for an umbrella was no more effective against the sweep of that storm, than cigarette paper would be for an army tent. Optimistic minds, always looking for the brighter side of things, relieved themselves from worry over their discomfort by remarking they were glad it was not snow.

No material damage was reported following the abatement of the storm, prompting where leaky roofs let water into homes or in kindred instances. Water came down so fast that dirt in quantities sufficient to cover the rails was swept onto the tracks of the trolley line at various points hereabouts and had to be shoveled off before cars could proceed safely. This handicap only threw the cars off time a few minutes during the worst of the storm, however. With the storm there came an unusual high temperature for January, readings as high as 64 being reported in the borough, while many instruments showed 60.

Assessors of the town of Killingly have completed and filed with the town clerk the new grand list, which shows a total valuation of $6,804,306, an increase of $163,309 over the figures for last year. Some of the increase is due to the fact that more motor cars are now owned in Killingly, the total for the town, as shown by the assessors' records being 1,634, the highest in the town's history. Many of these motor cars are used in industry and many more serve to take their owners back and forth to work several miles in each direction every working day.

The board of relief will begin sittings the first of the month to hear any appeals that may be made from the assessments fixed by the assessors.

The second weekly supper and meeting of Danielson Hi-Y club was held in the vestry of the Baptist church Wednesday evenin, at 6 o'clock. Fourteen members of the club and two visitors were present. A very excellent supper was served by Mrs. Minnie L. Allard. Club singing was enjoyed by all during the supper, which was followed by a business meeting.

Phillip Armington, vice president of the club, served as chairman of the meeting. C. H. Starkweather, treasurer of the Danielson Trust Co., gave a very interesting talk on banking, beginning with the history of money and banking, describing some of the processes of banking, and finishing by telling the boys some of the characteristics necessary in a young man who wishes to take up banking as a life profession. Some of the characteristics pointed out by Mr. Starkweather were the ability to refrain from talking about other people's business, absolute honesty, and keen observation.

Robert Terrill was also a visitor at the meeting of the club. Mr. Terrill is considering taking the leadership of the club. The boys had invited him to attend two of their meetings to see what they were doing, and they have urged him to become their leader.

Mrs. Salotti will retire from active work. The business was established here 36 years ago by Joseph Malucelli, uncle of Mr. Cristini, and Louis Bertorelli, uncle of Mr. Bertorelli. PUTNAM

The Putnam Light and Power Company, one of the concerns owned by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, made announcement Friday that its rates for electricity are to be reduced, effective February 1. The new charges will be at the rate of $1.00 for the first kw. 12 cents for the next 14, 8 cents for the next 980, and all over 1,000 will be at the rate of 5c per kw. The schedule showing the new low rates has been filed with the public utilities commission and represents approximately a reduction of 15 per cent. from the rates that have been in force here. The reduction of rates is purely voluntary on the part of the company and will be greatly appreciated by the public. All except very small users of current will be benefited by the reduction and, as the schedule indicates, the more used the greater the benefits.

A. H. Paine, of Pomfret, expressed the opinion Friday morning that the fire that destroyed a barn at his place in that town Thursday night was of incendiary origin. The fire broke out while Mr. Paine was at the Day Kimball hospital visiting Mrs. Paine a patient there. Two children were asleep in the house when the fire broke out and their lives were endangered in an indereet way.

Mr. Paine said that no one had been smoking about the place, his car was in use by himself and there was no apparent cause for a fire to start unless some one set it. Holes were cut through ice on a small pond near the barn, which was a small structure where Mr. Paine kept his car, to get water to fight the fire and protect the house. The property is owned by Ralph Sabin of Pomfret. Aid was telephoned for here, but the firemen did not go on account of the condition of the highways in the vicinity of where the fire occured and the prospect of there not being water enough available to use the apparatus to advantage.

Judge M. H. Geissler presided at a session of the city court Friday morning at which juvenille cases were considered. Two little boys were presented before his honor to face a charge that they were responsible for pulling in a false alarm from Box 24, in the Grove street section, on Wednesday evening of this week. Their guilt was established, one of the boys having broken out the glass in the box, while the other, about an hour and a half later, pulled in the alarm. The boys were placed on probation and warned against further pranks of this kind.

No harder rain storm than that of Friday has visited this city in many a day. At the noon hour the streets were swept clear of people by the sheets of water being driven along by a powerful southwest wind. Limbs were whipped off trees, signs were torn down and other damage done. On the trolley line the rush of water cut away enough dirt to bury the rails in some places, and some cars carried shovelers to clear the iron before the cars could proceed. The unusual January temperature of 62 degrees was a feature of the storm.

Down in New York, where he has been doing independent newspaper work for the past year, Harold S. Corbin of this city has added another triumph to a rapidly growing list by winning a prize offered by the New York Herald for the best story of the week. The peculiar story was so good that it was broadcasted by radio. Mr. Corbin gained his first newspaper experience in this city, where his parents are resident. Later he was with a Worcester paper for several years and more recently was a special writer for a syndicate paper owned in Syracuse. He is possessed of an especially fine style, is a keen observer and has a rich vein of humor. The mark he is making for himself is a source of gratification to his host of friends in Putnam.

That Miss Alede Mioure, daughter of Mrs. Marie Mioure of 11 Water street, and Henry Riel, son of Mr and Mrs. Joseph Riel of 58 Battey street, were married at the Cathedral in St. John, New Brunswick, Wednesday of this week, is the news that reaches the parents of the couple and their friends. Friends were certainly surprised and it is reported that the parents of both were equally surprised.

Mr. Riel, who was formerly an overseer in the Daddy Silk mill, went to St. John, New Brunswick, about two months ago. He came back for a visit at his home here over the Christmas and New Year's season and he and Miss Mioure left the city together, it is reported, on the morning train New Year's. Word of their marriage was the next news received from them.

Miss Mioure was employed at the Putnam Steam Laundry for several years.

Net increase in assets of $61,965.39 by the Putnam Building & Loan association, during 1923, are shown by the annual report of Judge M. H. Geissler, to be presented to the stockholders at the annual meeting Jan. 23. This is by far the most successful year in the history of the organization, exceeding even last year when the earnings soared above anything previously accomplished.

After being in existence for eight years, the association has accumulated assets of $186,264.15, which is an achievement that speaks well for the thriftiness of Putnam; the successful and judicious management of the affairs of the association and when compared with total assets of previous years, demonstrates the healthy growth that the institution has enjoyed.

Its greatest asset is the $174,100 represented in the mortgage loans now on the association books. No conception may be gained from reading figures of this size of the greed; good that has been done Putnam through the loaning of this money, either to build new homes and other structures or to assist some home owner who found himself in straits and needed cash. As these mortgage loans are the association's greatest asset, so is the association one of Putnam's most valuable institutions. As a community builder, considered purely from a public spirited point of view and as a sound, high interest paying investment, the Building and Loan has won general favor.

The association has a total of 2,025 shares outstanding and is now offering shares of the 17th series. After paying a dividend on all of the outstanding shares, amounting to $3,987.33, the association had $3,164.56 left from the net earnings. Of this latter sum $1,044.71 was set aside as a contingent fund and the balance, $2,109.85, creates the surplus fund.

Volley ball as a conditioner and rejuvenator for Putnam's tired business men is announced. Secretary J. H. Corbett of the Windham County Y. M. C. A., with headquarters in this city, will direct the class that has been formed and which had its first workout at the high school gymnasium Friday afternoon. Hopes run high that creaking joints will be limbered up, obese developments reduced, speed give place to lethargy and that there will be a great upward jump in the keenness of every member. Of course, all of this cannot be achieved without exertion and the temporary acquirement of sore muscle and like ailments, but the reward will be better health and a brighter and happier view of life. The members are enthusiastic over the game that holds the promise of doing so much for them.

Director F. C. Ayars, of the United States Saving organization, has written a letter of congratulation to Postmaster Archibald Macdonald on the success achieved by the Putnam office in December in connection with the issue of treasury savings certificates.

The Tabernacle of the Heart will be Rev. S. E. Cozad's subject at the services at the Congregational church Sunday morning.

A Pomfret man complained to the police that his daughter, a widow and mother of four children, had departed for Massachusetts with a man, taking $150 of his money when they went away, in an automobile.

An open meeting of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., is scheduled for next Monday afternoon and each member will be privileged to bring one guest.

JEWETT CITY

A man visited the farming country around about the borough not long ago, getting information relative to the abandoned farms, of Connecticut. In the town of Griswold there is no absolutely abandoned farm. Investigation this week serves to show among other lapses of agriculture activity on many "places", the nothing less than appalling decrease in the head of stock maintained. The figures as compared with thirty years ago, show a falling off of over one-third.

Notwithstanding facts that tend to prove a slacking in Griswold's all-important industry there are many things to be seen on local farms that stand squarely on the side of advancement.

A Griswold farmer, a few weeks ago received a call from three unannounced friends. Among the things they saw was a complete electric lighting system with lamps in the house, barn, stables, coops and pens. The great farm-house was heated throughout by means of a hot air heater in the cellar, burning fuel oil on the nearby woodlot. In a room off the kitchen, after a visit to the various outbuildings, visitors were astonished to find a radio set in operation, where they listened to a concert being broadcasted from Pittsburgh. Ready to return, an automobile, not the one time horse and buggy, landed them in Jewett City in a few minutes. F. L. Kanahan of Lisbon and Arba Browning of Griswold are making use of the ingenious alarm clock device, for lighting their coops to stimulate egg production. Mr. Kanahan has three clocks; one lights up after the hens have been on the roost for three or four hours. After the hens have taken food and scratched around, a second clock dims the light and, later a third clock turns them out. Mr. Browning sets his clock for, 4 a. m. Mrs. Hen thinks it is morning and starts early with her breakfast and egg producing. The scheme of the clock arrangement is that when the alarm starts, the turning key on the back of the clock completes the electric circuit, operating the coops by the time bombs that criminals used to plant in a suit case.

The Eastman street trees are affording a temporary home for a small party of golden crowned kinglets, that have been seen a number of times in the last few days. Mr. Kinglet seldom seen here, is such a little mite of a fellow that observers have found him very hard to pick out in the tall trees. He will stay around here all winter, and take a little flit up to Alaska next spring on a courting trip, where his mate will lay 8 or 5 tiny spotted eggs.

Muffled in his thick coat of feathers, he can stand the severest winters of this latitude; he is living evidence that, given abundance of food, the cold is a secondary factor.

John B. Garand, 66, died Thursday at Backus hospital, where he had been for several months. Mr. Garand was born in Canada. WESTERLY

A raid was conducted by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Sergeant Donald Ferguson at the barber shop and residence of Edwin Shaw, Potter Hill, Thursday night. A gallon of cider in a jug was seized and analysis will probably be made to determine its alcohol percentage.

Friday morning about 9 o'clock Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, accompanied by Sergeant Ferguson and Patrolman Curtin visited unexpectedly with a search warrant the house of Joseph Gabriele, alias, 37 Oak street, where they found two men with drinking glasses. Seventy-nine pint bottles of beer, a pint bottle of cider and a pint of cider in a two-quart jar rewarded their search. Samples of cider were also taken from a barrel in the cellar.

A third raid was made at the store and dwelling of Frank P. Diganci, 191 Canal street, where Sergeant Ferguson accompanied by Patrolmen Curtin and Burke secured samples of wine from a barrel which they took to the police station Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Sharpe of Westerly entertained Thursday night a housewarming party of twenty friends. Cards and refreshments were enjoyed and Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe were presented a handsome Nutting print.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Moore of Westerly were among the passengers landing in New York Wednesday from Southampton, England, from the United States Liner George Washington. Sailing from Bremen, the steamship encountered the gales in the eastern Atlantic which were the cause of the destruction of much shipping along the coast.

Mrs. Jennie Nichols of Brooklyn, N. Y., after a stay with relatives in Westerly, is now visiting in Boston.

Dr. R. C. Dove was in Shannock Thursday.

Miss Dorothy P. Stillwell, after a mid-winter vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stillwell, in White Rock, returned to New York the first of the week for a few days' visit, previous to resuming her duties as accompanist at the Junior Girls' High school, Rochester, N. Y.

Frank Johnson was a business visitor in Boston Friday.

Mrs. Frank Sullivan was a Providence visitor Friday afternoon.

Ralph M. Briggs of Ashaway and Charles E. Sherman of Westerly were in Providence Friday.

Loyal Progress lodge, I. O. O. F., M. U., held their second annual meeting in their rooms in the Stillman block on Thursday night. Following the business session adjournment was taken to the Elm Tree Inn in Pawcatuck where a turkey dinner was enjoyed by the sixty members present.

George W. Maine, employed in a store in Norwich, was presented at a special session of the third district court in Westerly Thursday evening before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, on a complaint alleging non-support of his wife and four children residing in Hope Valley. Officer William Kay of Hope Valley went to Norwich with papers which were turned over to Norwich authorities for service, with the result that Maine made his appearance in Westerly court. He was released in $500 bail until Friday next when his case comes up for a hearing at the regular session of the third district court.

During the past week some fifteen or twenty members of Battery E, 243rd Rhode Island Field Artillery, stationed at the armory on Dixon street have taken examinations to qualify as first and second class gunners and most of the men have passed the test. Later other examinations will be given.

The flashing beacons to be used as silent policemen have arrived in Westerly and it is expected that the work of installation will proceed at once. One of the beacons will be located in Dixon House square in front of the Rhode Island hotel, for use in directing traffic along Broad and up High streets. The marker in place in the square at the present time is so small that it is often not seen by strangers passing through with the result that many autoists involuntarily "cut the cop." The placing of the new beacon which resembles the one in use on West Broad street at present, will make a traffic marker in the square plainly visible at all times, day or night. Awaiting placement in North Stonington a similar beacon has arrived in Westerly and its installation will take place soon.

Mrs. Harry L. Boiles of Westerly, who has been receiving treatment in a New London hospital during the past week, is expected to return home this week.

Maurice Miner of North Stonington was a business caller in Westerly Friday.

Mitchell has had possession of the defendant's store on Canal street for some time, a lengthy conference was held between Judge Turano, Attorney George R. McKenna for the plaintiff and Sheriff Mitchell. At the conclusion, acting under the public statute where a great and disproportionate expense would be involved, an order of sale before judgment was directed by the court by public auction of goods and chattels.

The case of Louis Marchese vs. Angelo Perrone was then taken up. Attorney Dunn called Louis Marchese to the stand and he testified that Angelo Perrone owed him $153, of which $15 was for the sale of half a pig and $30 for the sale of another, together with a year's rent at $9 a month amounting to $108. Demand was made in 1921 and the last time in October, 1923. April 5th the defendant sent him a note in which contra-charges were claimed. Attorney Ledwidge began a cross-examination when objection was made by Attorney Dunn. The case was continued when Attorney Ledwidge said he would have the defendant in court next week. Court adjourned.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
AT THE PALACE

Heading a double feature bill at the Palace Theatre Sunday night will be a decided novelty picture, Vengeance of the Deep.

One of the most amazing thrills in "Vengeance of the Deep", a picture with much of the unusual about it happens at great depth below the surface of the sea. Two divers grope their way through the submarine jungles, unhampered by anything except helmets which generate their own air. They are investigating a treasure chest when suddenly the shell of a giant clam closes upon one of the men with a grip from which there is no escape. His companion, seeing a means of getting aid of him, returns to the surface with the treasure. What happens to the man below is startling beyond description.

The second big feature is "The Bishop of the Ozarks".

There have been thousands of fights staged for the screen, but none have been more dramatic in their outcome now more thrilling in their intensity than the one that occurs in "The Bishop of the Ozarks", a powerful F. B.O. photodrama produced from former Congressman Milford W. Howard's story under the direction of Finis Fox. The fight takes place between Howard, who plays the role of the fighting parson, and Fred Kelsey, seen as a former prison keeper. Through a trick of Howard's in unarming his assailant, the parson is identified by the keeper as a former convict, and this leads to one of the most dramatic, most human and intense climaxes ever written into a photoplay story.

ANNOUNCEMENTS
Strand Theatre

One of the picture events of the season will be the showing at the Strand theatre next Monday of Houdini's sensational international mystery feature, Haldane of the Secret Service, which embodies the story of a great counterfeiting conspiracy and includes a large number of scenes actually made and photographed in foreign lands.

Houdini in this play is the type of super-detective.

Imagine anybody taking passage on an Atlantic liner by swimming for it in citizen's attire fully dressed! Yes, he actually does that and many other feats. His extrication from a whirling turbine of death to which his enemies have bound him with arms and legs pinioned and a halter around his neck, almost cost his life in reality. The wheel itself accidentally broke in pieces, only his lucky star saving him from being crushed by the timbers. And for the first time in this picture he reveals his complete extrication feat of untying himself in full view of the camera.

Houdini admirers are sure to like furthermore his choice of a play-sweetheart in the delightful Adele Ormsby as enacted by Gladys Leslie. That sterling old actor, William Humphrey—the grand stage Napoleon of an elder day—is cast as Ormsby, and Richard Carlyle, Edward Reulden, Jane Jennings, Charles Fang, Myrtle Morse and Irving Brooks complete a most capable cast.

Scenes made in the foreign countries show Westminster Bridge, Eiffel Tower, Glasgow, Hull, Pekin, Shanghai, with the play's characters in them; there are scenes of real magnificence, like the Prince Wong's London party; the first Chinese Tong celebration ever made or fairly attempted; an Apaches' den in Paris, New York social life and harbor life, the life on a liner, and in provincial England and Scotland.

At the Bread.

A photoplay of tremendous import is The Day of Faith, produced by Goldwyn under the direction of Tod Browning from Arthur Somers Roche's novel, which will be the attraction at the Bread theatre, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. In its bigness and universality of its theme it is comparable to The Miracle Man. Its thesis is that if men would believe and live up to, the doctrine, "My neighbor is perfect," the ills and sorrows which confront the world would end and the millenium would be here.

This magnificent story is told in terms of intensely human characters and their reactions one to another. Bland Hendricks, the idealist who promulgates the doctrine, saves from the electric chair a burglar who has sought to break into the home of Marley Maynard when the latter is very ill, causing the latter to die from excitement. His daughter Jane, holding Hendricks responsible, throws her popularity into the scales against his ideality, with the result that Hendricks is tarred and feathered, dying from his injuries. When Jane awakes from her delirium of remorse and horror, she embraces Hendricks' belief and establishes a Foundation in New York to promulgate the doctrine. She is made use of by the richest man in the world, Michael Anstell, whose son has fallen in love with her, to further his power, wealth and power. He backs her foundation financially and everyone in the world but Anstell accepts her doctrine. The millenium is apparently at hand. Anstell is overheard boasting of his duplicity and the world goes mad when it learns it has been hoaxed. Anstell's son is killed, and through his death Anstell comes to embrace the doctrine of perfection and offers again to back Jane. But she tells him it is too late; humanity is not yet ready for the great experiment. She retires from the foundation and finds personal happiness with Barnett, the newspaper reporter originally engaged by Anstell to expose and ruin her, but who became her staunch supporter.

Director Browning has done the best work of his career in this production; it has the tense human drama, the careful characterization and expert handling which have made Tod Browning productions so popular. Goldwyn gave him one of the season's finest casts. Eleanor Boardman, who made a hit in Three Wise Fools, Souls for Sale, The Strangers' Banquet, etc., has the role of Jane Maynard and does the best work of her brief and amazingly brilliant screen career. Raymond Griffith acts the part of the reporter. The noted stage and screen star, Tyrone Power, appears as Michael Anstell and Wallace MacDonald as his son. Ford Sterling, Charles Conklin, Ruby Lafayette, Jane Mercer, Edward Martindell, Winter Hall, Jack Curtis, Henry Hebert and half a dozen others complete the cast.

Other pictures on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

Today's bill consists of Monna Vanna, a William Fox super-special production; Edna Murphy in Her Dangerous Path, and, the Pathe News. Continupus show today from 1.30 to 10.15.

At Broadway Theatre.

The old Spanish gowns worn by Pola Negri in her latest Paramount star picture, The Spanish Dancer, which will be on view at the Broadway theatre Sunday constitute a veritable fashion display, which will enthuse almost every woman screen fan. Some of the costumes worn by the famous star in the scenes taken in the gypsy camp show the strong influence which the Moorish invasion exercised over Spanish life even after it had been repulsed. Later in the story, when Pola Negri as Maritana, the gypsy girl, becomes the wife of Don Cesar, she wears costumes which for sheer beauty have probably never been equalled by the gowns of any other period in history.

Kathlyn Williams, who plays the role of Isabella, queen of Spain, displays gowns designed from those shown in the hundred odd pictures which Velasquez painted of that famous queen. A number of ladies in waiting also appear in the picture. Seven different gowns were designed for each. In The Spanish Dancer, Antonio Moreno is featured. Heading a strong cast are Wallace Beery as King Philip, Gareth Hughes, an ambourer's assistant; Adolphie Menjou, a powerful minister in the Spanish court—Edward Kipling, Robert Brower and many others.

Picture will also be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in conjunction with the regular program of six super acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville.

Inasmuch as there has been and is at the present time, much controversy among leaders of Christian thought regarding the virgin birth of Jesus Christ, it will certainly be interesting to hear from the lips of a Norwich pastor, who has been the minister of the Greeneville Congregational church for twenty-five years, his thoughtful opinion of this very important and vital topic.

HEARING FROM HOME.

The decision of the republicans of the lower house of congress to put the tax reduction bill before the soldiers' bonus must be interpreted as meaning that the members of congress have heard from home.

Such action is of course in accord with the administration plans. It is in keeping with the declarations of President Coolidge, who has urged the passage of the tax reducing plan and has said that he was opposed to a bonus.

There are those who are doing their utmost to throw cold water upon the tax reduction plan by misrepresentation and for the purpose of endeavoring to curry favor with those who hope to profit by having it sidetracked that the money can be otherwise appropriated, but it is impossible to cover up the fact that economic conditions affecting all are involved in the cutting of taxation.

The opportunity is before the country to lighten the burden of the many millions of taxpayers, directly and indirectly. It is a chance that needs to be made the most of for the welfare of the country. It is a step that should be non partisan so far as the distribution of the benefits are concerned, and it is well to remember that it is going to work to the advantage of those who would receive a bonus quite as much as to the good of others.

It is a sound decision that has been reached by the republican conference. Whether it has any significance relative to the bonus or not, it gives recognition to the fact that there is need for clearing the way for this cutting of taxes, instead of doing something that would insure their continuance for a generation and place an unwarranted burden upon this and coming generations.

There is no question but what the people are demanding action that will decrease their federal taxes. They have disclosed it in a way that their representatives at Washington cannot mistake. The conference action indicates a reflection of that attitude on the part of constituents as it should in a government of the people, for the people and by the people.

DISREGARDING PREVENTION.

We know at the beginning of a year that there can be expected just about a certain number of deaths during the twelve months from the different diseases. There will be many afflicted who will recover under proper treatment, but there are those instances where the efforts put forth in behalf of the stricken are unsuccessful.

In such cases it doesn't rest with the individual entirely to say whether they shall get well or not, or whether they shall avoid illness. But if we are to judge by the large number of grade crossing fatalities, it might make no difference if it actually rested with their judgment as to whether they should be sick, or being sick should recover.

According to the American Railway association it is estimated that there will be 400 crossing accidents in the country every month and that the injuries will run to 500 a month. Such figures are based upon records that have been kept and the response of the people to the efforts to overcome such conditions.

Regard the railroad crossings as we may, it is impossible to disregard the fact that there would be few if any accidents at such points if those who are involved in them would take the necessary precautions to protect themselves. It is known that danger exists there. It is fully understood that it is unwise to dispute the right of way with a locomotive, and it is realized that taking chances at such points does not pay. And yet the folly continues. Not only have there been lamentable accidents at such points in the past but there is so much disregard for personal safety that it is possible to claim that they will continue at the rate of 500 a month.

And this needless death rate, a matter entirely within the control of the individual in nearly all instances, continued in spite of the knowledge of the danger being faced and the various methods that are resorted to to provide additional warnings and actually prevent the rushing into the jaws of death. Even the lessons of the many fatalities fail to make it impossible for those who deal with such records to predict with reasonable certainty what is going to happen throughout the year. We know in advance and yet there are instances where it seems the chance to step into eternity cannot be accepted too soon.

THE ANTI-LYNCHING BILL.

Getting a bill favorably reported in congress and getting it passed are decidedly different. There may be times when one may seem as easy as the other, or when the passage is easier to obtain than the report, but there are plenty of instances where favorable reports of worthy bills fail of adoption.

The judiciary committee of the house has made a favorable report on the Dyer anti-lynching bill, a piece of legislation that encountered much opposition when it was before the last congress. It was what some of the democrats regarded as furnishing sufficient reason for launching a filibuster in order to defeat it by preventing it from coming to a vote.

For the past year figures have been presented which show that there was a decided decrease in the number of lynchings. Whether this is any more than the yearly uncertainty must be determined by further experience. It is even possible to regard it as the recognition on the part of the states where lynchings are prevalent that the time has come when better treatment must be accorded to the black man if his services are to be retained in the south.

But whatever the lynching figures were for the past year it is evident that such conditions have developed in that period to show that there is need for the federal lynching legislation, having for its object the checking of such lawlessness and the penalizing of those communities where such deliberate murders are tolerated.

In his annual message President Coolidge gave his support to such a measure. There can be little question but what the sentiment of the country is in accord with the object of the bill. Could congress have had the chance to vote upon it at the last session there is reason to believe that it would have acted favorably upon it. The practice certainly deserves the application of a remedy which the states are unwilling to carry out in certain conspicuous instances.

SIMPLER TAX BLANKS.

In keeping with the promises made some time ago the income tax blanks that are being distributed show that simplification has been accomplished. Single sheets replace the former blanks and under the new form millions of people will be required to go into less detail than heretofore.

This simplification affects only those with incomes of less than $5,000, the blanks for those with larger incomes still containing many questions to be answered and many figures to be supplied.

This is not the first change that has been made in the blanks, but it comes as the result of establishing the fact that much more has been required of the taxpayers than is necessary, and a recognition of the fact that the taxpayer is entitled to as clear and simple a form as it is possible to draft and meet requirements.

In the inauguration of the income tax collection elaborate precautions were taken to guard against the tax dodgers. It was a case where experience suggested such a step, but it is interesting to note that actual experience in the collection of the tax has shown that modification is justified.

There is no question but what Uncle Sam has been endeavoring to get all that was called for, and to trip up those who were disposed to escape his taxation, but much satisfaction will be derived from the fact that it has been possible to ease up on the demands for useless information which nevertheless caused many hours of puzzling to furnish. Having found that it was not required it is a sane move that has been made in eliminating the unnecessary features.

ANOTHER ALLIANCE?

According to reports coming from Europe Mr. Filene might well have included Spain in that list of countries where he will offer a prize for the best plan looking to the prevention of war. Happily rumors are subject to discount in many instances, and it remains to be shown that the stories regarding the development of the Spanish fleet to the point where it will equal that of Italy when brought up to the limit permitted under the terms of the Washington conference are true. They nevertheless furnish an interesting sidelight on the situation across the water and the possible developments in the Mediterranean.

The claim is that an agreement has been reached between Italy and Spain, as the result of the recent visit by the Spanish king to Italy, whereby the Spanish navy is to be rebuilt and increased, with the assistance of Italian experts, so that it will be on a par with the Italian navy. The latter must adhere to the provisions of the naval agreement, but Spain is not bound thereby. When such a strengthening has taken place, with the naval ministries of the two countries working hand in hand, it would mean that there would be available for Italy a doubling of its sea strength while for Spain it would be, even greater, causing the possibility of Mediterranean trouble to loom up.

Whether these reports are founded upon anything more than suspicion will be disclosed in time. In the meanwhile reports are sufficient to put others on their guard and France has already realized it. If it isn't too late, and other efforts fail, there remains the influence that may be brought to bear through the peace award for Europe, or may be the league of nations as it is now organized.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

New York's death rate is lower than ever. That being so the gunmen will feel called upon to redouble their efforts.

"Bok Plan Wins Praise," says a headline. It makes all the difference in the world whose opinion is sought as to what the verdict is.

Plans are being made for some radical changes in the British parliament, but no one knows yet how the cat is going to jump or if it will jump at all.

Let us hope that the shifting of the weather burden man from Hartford to Dayton doesn't mean any unfavorable change in the mild winter we have been having.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Roger W. Babson, the expert statistician, shows conclusively in his "Business Fundamentals" that there is a close logic between the good morals of a people and their business prosperity. This is quite contrary to popular belief in some quarters. That there is any close connection between a prosperity in business and the manner in which he directs his private life they utterly deny. Yet Babson who is a king in his own department, and who has made a careful study of the whole matter has this to say: "True religion is fundamental to our whole business structure; business depressions are a direct result of extravagance, recklessness, waste, greed and irreligion, which develop during boom times. During periods of depression, we repent our wasteful methods, we seek to perform true service in order to get the proper remuneration, and again place reliance on the true values of life." That is to say that a reformation of our habits is a removal of our business prosperity.

"It isn't only the things you get, but how you use them. It isn't only the things you do, but why you do them" that really count in the sum total of human life, says the author of "The World for Sale". Sir Gilbert Parker has coined a great many unique expressions, but no truer epigram has come from his pen. From whatever angle you view it, or whatever spot light you throw upon it, it will stand the test. Suppose a man gets a fortune of one hundred thousand dollars, and gets it legitimately, but hordes it up and lives a miserly life. For all practical purposes is he any better off in life than another man who has just enough to live decently? What practical value has a chest of gold buried in a miser's cellar? Imagine what good the income of one hundred thousand dollars might do if wisely expended and then compare it with the buried chest of gold. "It isn't only the things you get, but how you use them."

It is quite natural for those who intend building in the spring to begin thinking about it in mid-winter. If it is to be a house probably the site has already been secured, but now is the time to have the plans drawn. Long before pick-axe and shovel come into use there must be some pretty tall digging with your brains in getting out the size, shape, appearance and utility of your house and then squaring the whole business to the size of your pocket book, which probably will be the toughest problem of all. If you are an industrious man needing a home of your own, and have a good job that has the appearance of stability, don't get pigeon-hearted if your bank account doesn't measure up to the requirement. Money put into real estate of this character is a perfectly safe investment. All the banks are after first mortgages. An adventure of this kind is good for you and a help to the community in which you live.

If one will read carefully the docket of the criminal term of the superior court now holding its sessions in this city he will find enough food for reflection—and quite serious reflection, too. In all there are sixty-one cases down for trial. Of this number there are 43 whose names we are not sure of getting right when we try to pronounce them—that in itself is enough to make us think. Of the remainder there are some five or six common American names that have been exchanged for some several times as long. But generously not admitting this allowance, the number of foreigners to the whole number of criminals is about 70 per cent. The leading crimes of which they are charged is illegal liquor selling. It must be perfectly plain to all that all efforts should be made to understand that the political liberty which a democracy grants does not mean a license to break the laws for personal gain.

On Tuesday, January 2, the ministers' organizations connected with the Methodist, Baptist, Episcopal and Congregational denominations of New London county met in joint session, and were royally entertained at St. James Episcopal church, New London. It was confessedly one of the most satisfactory and far-reaching in its outlook of any religious gathering of a like character that has been held in this vicinity for many a day. All the addresses were broad-guaged and up-lifting, but even more significant than that was the feeling of brotherly fellowship that pervaded both the forenoon and afternoon sessions. A new impetus would be given to our common spiritual interests if such united fellowship were only more widely broadcasted. It may be that the great hymn of Sabine Baring-Gould (who has just died in extreme old age) is yet to be verified:

"Like a mighty army Moves the church of God."

I have somewhere run across the following sentence: "It is difficult to tell who gets the most out of a good deed—the man who brings it about or the man it is intended to affect." It is quite evident that both of them get some good, but the amount can be determined only by learning the spirit of both the giver and the receiver. What was the motive that prompted the giver? Was it a large-hearted desire to help a needy person? Was it received with a bad spirit and with ill-humor? In that case the benefit is nearly all on the part of the giver. If, conversely, it was given with a great splurge simply for self-advertising the giver, but was received in a grateful, humble spirit, then, evidently, the latter is the one to whom it does the most good. There is no other way in which to measure the comparative value of a good deed.

Is it not a little strange that some keen writer with his finger on the popular pulse has not written a book on "Sudden Transitions?" If he had a sense of humor or of satire he might produce a good seller if not a best seller of the season. We could all contribute something to such a book. The writer remembers a sudden transition that once came to his dog. The dog was wagging his short, stubby tail as dogs do when optimistic. Unfortunately he was standing too near a red-hot stove. Making a little bigger wag than usual the tip end of his tail came in juxtaposition with the heated iron. It was only momentary, but it was fully long enough. Jubilation at once became a howl of pain. The tail began to droop, and the wag was over for the day. It was a sudden transition.

One's observations of by sidewalks, and perhaps his own experience on them, emphasize the meaning of "sudden transitions". One day a very fat man was suddenly introduced to the sidewalk by both feet shooting from under him. "How did I fall?" he said in amazement. "Directly as the weight but inversely as the square of the distance," explained a bystander. "I don't believe it," he said, "I think I've been hit by the Woolworth building." At any rate it was a sudden transition. In a certain state legislature debate was running hot on a certain measure, when one man, who, by the courtesy of the house, had spoken twice, ended his third speech by saying "I'll fight this bill with my latest breath." The debate was postponed to the day following, but this man sat through the second day as mum as an oyster. Some of his colleagues wondered at his silence. One suggested that during the night "he had got religion" and was going to expend "his latest breath" as an evangelist. Another suggested that during the night he had got a wad of something else which he regarded as an equivalent to "his latest breath". In either case it was a sudden transition.

COTTON MILL SITUATION IN NEW ENGLAND.

That northern interests are buying southern mills and erecting southern plants is bound to be of great assistance to the present textile situation of New England, for the principal reason that it is focusing attention on the present textile industrial situation in New England. Until everybody who should be interested—labor, management, legislature and public—realizes exactly the conditions as they exist today, no solution of the existing problem will be found, writes Kenneth Moller in The Boston Transcript.

The only harm that can come to New England through the purchase of southern mills by northern interests is the removal of a certain amount of capital from New England's development and the loss of a small number of spindles. New England need not worry about the further expansion of its textile industry. Its problem is to keep its present mills in operation. New England's development in the industry will come from making more out of what it has rather than by adding to existing mills.

There is nothing to worry about in the actual moving of spindles from New England to the south. Perhaps 100,000 spindles have been or are being shipped to places where owners think they can operate to greater advantage. This loss will not be noticed. It is a sacrifice which must be paid in order to focus attention on the situation as it exists today, to the end that the necessary corrective measures will be put to work to hold the balance of the industry intact.

Seriousness of It the Hope of It.

In belittling the matter of actual moving of spindles from New England to the south and lack of further expansion here, I do not mean to intimate that the situation is not serious. It is serious, and that is the beauty of it. It is so serious that something must be done. It is so serious that every one must give it the closest consideration—everybody connected with the industry, which includes several classes of people; the mill operatives, the mill management, the mill stockholders, the selling houses, the machinery manufacturers, the legislature, the tax assessors, the railroads. There is no doubt in my mind that, each class trying to help and all with a common object, the results will be obtained.

Individuals must be made to understand that not only the existence of the industry but their own existence depends on giving the very closest consideration to the principles set forth. The results would be a textile industry in New England put on a basis so firm that it could not be shaken, and in a way would assure the competitive situation of the New England cotton industry.

Take first the mill operatives. What can they do to help the situation?

We take up the operatives first because the greatest disparity between production costs in southern mills and northern mills is in the labor cost; besides, the wage-earner of the cotton mills is by far the largest class affected.

What Labor Can Do

Labor cost in New England mills must first be reduced by labor itself. Let us consider ways by which this can be done without reduction of wages. There is no question that labor has hurt itself tremendously in the cotton industry in late years. Labor must receive a just return, of course. It will never accomplish this by a high hourly rate. It means nothing that New England mill workers get $20 or $25 a week. How much they get a year—that is the important question. The operatives are foolish to insist on the 48 hour law. They take bread out of their own mouths. How can they expect a New England mill running 48 hours a week to compete with other states running 55 and 60 hours a week?

This is entirely aside from the merits of the 48 hour law. If the operatives want to strive for a 44 hour law, and it may be right let them work for a national 44 hour law and not penalize Massachusetts, pending its passage.

The mill operative can be of enormous assistance in reducing the labor cost in goods by producing more pounds per operative per hour. Take, for example, a weaver. On ordinary print cloths a weaver spends approximately 35 per cent. of her time in filling batteries, and may operate twenty looms. A weaver of this class of goods, if less skilled help filled her batteries, should be able to operate over forty looms. Weaving costs, which are a high percentage of the total labor cost, could be materially reduced by letting the highly skilled weavers do nothing but weave, and supplying less skilled help for filling the batteries, cleaning the looms and doing work of a similar nature. Certainly weavers can greatly stabilize change like this in reducing the cost their jobs by cooperating on a radical of weaving goods.

All the processes in the mill are capable of study along these lines, as I will try to point out when we come to the point of management. The operatives' part in this is to be willing to try to work and to help, with the sole idea of reducing the labor cost in producing a "pound" of goods. The operatives may reduce the cost of goods largely by helping the mill to reduce the expense incurred through waste and "seconds."

Wages and Management

Now comes the question of wages. All other schemes should be tried before wages are reduced. Northern workers should have higher wages than Southern workers. They have very much higher expenses and always will have. I do not think we can ever look for an absolute equalization on this point. New England must pay higher wages and make the difference up in some other way. How much higher the wages must be is something which will have to be determined, but Northern wages must be reduced to a point where, with all other economies and efficiencies taken into consideration, mills can operate on a competitive basis to assure the worker a full year's pay.

It will do no good for the worker to do his share unless the management cooperates to the fullest extent. There is a great deal that the management can do in reducing labor costs is, first to make careful studies as to the machine operations to determine that the job is running as well as it can possibly run and that speeds are set for the absolute maximum production. I do not mean to just take this for granted, but absolutely to determine these features as facts.

After this is done, management must study each job to determine, first, the maximum amount of help required to operate that job; second, the grade of labor necessary to operate that job. I can best illustrate what I mean by the weaving operations. On ordinary print cloths, a weaver spends roughly 35 per cent. of her time in weaving, 45 per cent. of her time in filling batteries and 17 per cent. of her time in resting and miscellaneous work. He knows of mills in which weavers today are operating 50 looms. The batteries are being filled by unskilled labor getting perhaps 50 per cent. or less of a weaver's earnings. The total cost of weaving in this mill has been reduced over 30 per cent by this system. It is difficult to get good weavers. Let the ones who are good do what they can do best. It is not difficult to get labor sufficiently skilled to fill the batteries at a very much lower cost than the price paid to good weavers.

Look at the spinning room. An average spinner on 28 1-2 warp yarn spends 30 per cent. of her time spinning, 15 per cents of her time creeling 35 per cent. of her time cleaning and the balance in resting and doing miscellaneous work. An ordinary spinning job has ten sides. We know of one mill today where the spinners are running fifty sides apiece, while less skilled help is doing the cleaning and creeling. The production is just as good as it was when the spinners were running ten sides.

Taxes, Machinery and Merchandising

The tax burden on New England mills is great. It is probably safe to say that the average mill in Fall River pays a tax of 50 per cent. greater than the average mill in the South. If New England wants to assist its textile industry it is necessary for the citizens to insist that New England mills be relieved of this burden. In one of the large textile centers of New England, taxes today are approximately 75 per cent. of the annual dividends which the mills have averaged since they were built.

The machinery manufacturers must give consideration to every device put out which will reduce labor cost, the operatives per machine or of increasing the pounds per machine of or increasing the pounds per operative. While the textile industry is very highly developed, machinery principles of manufacture have not been changed for years. New England will be benefitted tremendously by further developments along the lines of the Draper looms and the Barber-Coleman warp tieing machine. There is little question that the textile machinery concerns can and will make great progress in labor-saving devices.

No matter how economically a mill manufactures goods it cannot be successful unless the goods are properly merchandised. The commission houses handling New England mill accounts can help tremendously by the proper styling of the mills and a much more intensive study of the markets and consumption of the various classes of merchandise than heretofore has been necessary. This is a very real need, and if properly carried out, as it is being done by some commission houses today, would materially assist the New England mills in their present difficulties.

A great many New England manufacturers with whom you talk will tell you that New England has suffered from southern competition before and has always come out on top and that something will happen which will put New England on a satisfactory competitive basis again. It is difficult to say just what they expect to happen, but it certainly will not happen unless they adopt a progressive attitude and work day and night to put New England on a competitive basis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Moyse Case.

Mr. Editor: A report which appeared in your paper recently contains incorrect statements in regard to the case of Walter Moyse at Framingham, Mass. Kindly print the following authentic information:

"In the case of Walter Moyse at Framingham, the evidence did not show that his leg was broken, but the evidence did show that he was treated for six weeks or more by a physician and surgeon before he and his father decided to try Christian Science. The ruling that the law of Massachusetts requires parents to always provide medical or surgical treatment for their children is without precedent in Massachusetts, and was made in what is called the district court, which is inferior both to the superior court and the supreme court of Massachusetts. An appeal has been taken. In this case, testimony was given to the efficacy of Christian Science by several witnesses, including a well known physician of excellent standing in his profession."

Yours sincerely,

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

TO WALK WORTHY

"That we might walk worthy of the Lord, unto all pleasing," being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God. Col. 1.10. It is well to walk worthy of your church or of your Godly mother, it is better to walk worthy of the Lord, and there is nothing that pleases Christ more than seeing his people in their daily life maintaining a standard worthy of him. This does not mean that we are to be worthy Christians only in crises and emergencies. Walking is the daily humdrum of life. We should "run with patience the race that is set before us" and strive to be the first to reach the goal, so as to receive the victor's crown. We but such running and flying are not may mount up on wings as eagles, the tests of character like every-day drudgery. The man who is faithful in the common places is certain to be faithful in the crises. "He that is faithful in little is faithful also in much," men who know us judge OUR characters more by the many little things than by the one or two great things.

A man in Chicago heard a rescue mission worker make an earnest address, urging his hearers to become Christians. The man, who had been a detective in former years made up his mind that he would shadow the speaker for twenty-four hours, in order that he might decide whether or not he was really what he claimed to be. On the following night he returned to the mission and said, "I am now ready to become a Christian. I heard our brother make his earnest plea last night, and I determined to watch him for twenty-four hours. I believe he is sincere, and I want you to pray for me."

How many of us could stand the test of the detective's shadowing. Would he find us going to places and doing things unworthy of the Lord Jesus? If so, you may be certain that he would not become a Christian on our testimony.

To walk worthy of Christ in the highest standard ever put before man, and the wish to please Him in all things will make the consecrated and self sacrificing.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

Deductions for business expenses form the largest claim in the returns of many taxpayers. All the ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in carrying on any business, trade, profession or vocation are allowable deductions.

Typical expense of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for hire of employes, rent, light, heat and water, telephone advertising, insurance, delivery expenses, the cost of operating delivery wagons and motor trucks, and incidental repairs to such vehicles. The expense of a manufacturing business include labor, raw material, light, heat and power, selling cost, administration, and similar charges.

A professional man may claim as deductions the cost of supplies used by him in his practice expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues of a professional society, subscriptions to professional journals, office rent, the expense of fuel, light, water, and telephone used in his office, and the hire of assistants.

The farmer may deduct all amounts paid in the production and harvesting of his crops, including labor, cost of seed, and fertilizer used cost of minor repairs to farm buildings (but not the dwelling), fences, machinery, and small tools used up in the course of a year or two.

Traveling expenses, when the trip is solely on business, including the entire cost of meals and lodgings while away from home, are deductible.

Deduction for business expenses must have certain qualities to be allowed. They must relate to a business trade, profession, or vocation in which the taxpayer has invested time or money for the purpose of livelihood or profit. A business may be carried on by a taxpayer, even if all its activities are conducted by employes. A taxpayer may conduct more than one trade or business and claim a deduction for the business expenses of each provided he devotes sufficient time and attention to each.

Mr. Palmer was born in Missouri, 61 years ago and was appointed to the Naval Academy from that state in 1882. During the Spanish-American war, with the rank of ensign, he served on board the U. S. S. POETRY

The Solitary Singer.

Behold her, single in the field,
Yon solitary Highland lass!
Reaping and singing by herself;
Stop here, or gently pass!
Alone she cuts and binds the grain
And sings a melancholy strain;
O listen! for the vale profound
Is overflowing with the sound.

No nightingale did ever chaunt
More welcome notes to weary bands
Of travellers in some shady haunt,
Among Arabian sands;
A voice so thrilling ne'er was heard
In springtime from the cuckoo bird,
Breaking the silence of the seas
Among the farthest Hebrides.

Will no one tell me what she sings?
Perhaps the plaintive numbers flow
For old, unhappy, far-off things,
And battles long ago:
Or is it some more humble lay,
Familiar matter of to-day?
Some natural sorrow, loss or pain,
That has been, and may be again!

Whate'er the theme, the maiden sings
As if her song could have no ending;
I saw her singing at her work,
And o'er the sickle bending;
I listened, motionless and still;
And, as I mounted up the hill,
The music in my heart I bore
Long after it was heard no more.

Goldy Gray
(For the Transcript)

In autumn, when the trees are bare,
How spectre-like is every pair
That touches you with chilly fingers
And vanishes you know not where!

Some hope you had personified,
Made rosy-cheeked and many-eyed,
Could not beyond the summer linger—
When autumn came it paled and died.

You buried it, and as it where
So much is laid that once was fair;
And, touching you with chilly anger,
Its spectre now is in the air.

Albeit what has passed away
Was radiant in its living day
What of it has survived to linger,
With ghostly touch, is coldly gray.

"Won't you be thankful," asked a kind lady who was visiting a convict in prison, "when your sentence is over?"

"I dun'no," answered the convict gloomily.

"What!" asked the lady. "You don't know?"

"I'm in for life," was the answer.—London Mail.

A rather awkward-looking individual went into an ice cream parlor the other day and bought an ice cream cone. He went out on the sidewalk to eat it. Presently he reappeared with the cone emptied of the cream, and, handing it to the astonished clerk, said: "Thank you for the vase."—Kansas City Star.

Two farmers had been enjoying a festive evening. They had a drive of five miles before them and it was a very dark night, but the horse knew the way. Side by side they sat and went along at a spanking pace. At length they swung around a sharp turn in a most alarming manner, missing an obstruction by an inch or two.

"Gently, George; gently round the corner, old man," murmured Bill.

"What! Haven't you got the reins either?" he said.—Exchange.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Present methods of killing whales threaten extinction of the great sea-mammals in southern waters. They have nearly disappeared from the waters of the north.

The Cross of the Legion of Honor has been bestowed on Sister Frances Xavier, a venerable French nun who has spent seventy-five of her ninety-three years in the service of the sick and poor.

The only woman officer of a Hoe Hoe club is Mrs. George P. Sheehan, wife of a St. Louis lumberman, who has been elected honorary vice-president of the St. Louis local of the well known fraternal organization.

One of the strangest pranks recorded of lightning was furnished by a case where a woman who had raised her arm to close a window was struck just as she did so. She was uninjured, but her gold bracelet absolutely disappeared—it had been melted away.

The "empire of the Pacific northwest," comprising the states of Washington, Idaho and Oregon, produces $500,000,000 new wealth from farm products annually and more than $400 000,000 worth of lumber a year from forests containing nearly one-half of the standing timber of the United States.

The heavy gray moss which grows on trees in the Douglas fir regions of the northwest is being used by United States forest service experts to indicate the danger of an outbreak of forest fires. The amount of moisture in this moss promptly changes with the slightest change in the amount of moisture in the air. By placing a quantity of the moss on a balance with a pen arm attached, changes in relative humidity are recorded satisfactorily. By close observations in this way, the approach of such exceptional dryness and possible fire losses can be detected.

Femininity has its own way of posting a simple, everyday letter, according to one keen observer. For instance, out of thirty women who were watched at a street letter box in the residential section of a large city, twenty-one withdrew the letter before quite letting go of it, to scan both sides of the envelope, to be certain the letter was securely sealed, properly addressed, stamped and to make sure nobody could look through the envelope to read the contents.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

PERCY GRAINGER CHARMS NORWICH MUSIC LOVERS

An audience of Norwich music lovers that filled Slater hall Friday evening was captivated by the wizardry of Percy Grainger, the Australian pianist, who appeared in the second number of the Slater hall musical course. Pianists of note have delighted Norwich audiences at Slater hall many times in the past, but none ever met the expectations of his hearers more satisfactorily than did Mr. Grainger in his brilliantly rendered program, and the opportunity of hearing his masterly playing will be set down as a distinctive privilege by those who were present.

In addition to his assigned program Mr. Grainger rendered several encores which contributed charming numbers for the enjoyment of his audience. These included Shepherd's Hey in his own setting and the lovely Grahms Cradle Song, given after his second and third groups, and two encores at the close of the concert, when the audience lingered in their seats, reluctant that the evening was over. These final encores were Juba Dance (Southern Negro Dance) by Jett and Grieg's To the Springtime.

Mr. Grainger's programme was as follows:

I.

Sonata in B Minor, op 58 — Chopin

FORMER NORWICH WOMAN PLAYS HEROINE ROLE

Heroic action on the part of Miss Mary Chapman, formerly of this city, and daughter of Mrs. Nellie Chapman, of No. 451 Main street, this city, saved Fred LaPlante, 39 of Worcester, from being burned to death in a Worcester street last week. The Worcester Telegram has the following to say of the incident:

Fred LaPlante, 39, of 214 Cambridge street, is in a critical condition at City hospital from burns received following an explosion at the garage of Earl Smith of No. 4 Laconia road. With clothes ablaze LaPlante ran in frenzy nearly 20 yards on Laconia street before Miss Mary Chapman of No. 3 Nottingham road, assisted by a laborer in a nearby building rolled him in the snow and succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

The heroic action of Miss Mary Chapman, physicians believe, saved the man from being burned to death in the street. Although little hope was extended for his recovery by hospital doctors they were unanimous that if he lived he would owe his life to the young woman.

BOOK REVIEW GIVEN AT MISSIONARY MEETING

The missions department of the Federation of Park church, held the regular monthly meeting at the Osgood Memorial on Friday afternoon.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. S. H. Howe and the secretary's report was read. Then Miss Alice Cogswell gave an outline of the book for study on foreign missions, 'Creative Forces in Japan, by Galen M. Fisher.

The book was written at the request of those who had known Mr. Fisher's years' work for the Y. M. C. A. in Japan.

He begins by saying that the Japanese are not super-men, are in many ways like other nations, yet their mental ability is of a high order. Formerly they learned everything by rote, but all that has been changed. Two characteristics stand out, their absolute passion for education and their great natural aptitude for government. Nearly every Japanese can read and write and there are more applications for admission to the schools, both day and night schools, than can be accommodated. The western systems of education have been rapidly adopted. The school enrollment is over 98 per cent of both boys and girls. Beside the great love for education is their love of beauty in nature and in art. Over half of [illegible] lieved in the faith that had been handed down from one generation to another. Yet as late as 1869 seventy-three Christians were persecuted and tortured. With the opening of the 20th century the whole Christian movement seemed to turn a sharp corner and enter a pathway of steady growth.

Many obstacles remain to be overcome. A closer union of denominations is needed and a greater development of Christian council. And a larger representation [illegible] ese leaders.

After the very able review of Mr. Fisher's book by Miss Cogswell, Mrs James Bidwell sang, "My Task," by Ashford, and the president, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn, closed the meeting with prayer. Before closing, Mrs. Vaughn referred with much feeling to the late Mrs. H. T. SEVERAL IMPORTANT HEAVYWEIGHT ENCOUNTERS SLATED FOR THIS YEAR

New York, Jan. 11.—Enlivened by Tex Rickard's announcement that he had practically closed negotiations for a return heavyweight championship match between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons, speculation was aroused today over other features in prospect for the 1924 heavyweight program.

Rickard revealed no further details of his plans for the Dempsey-Gibbons match, terms for which were accepted yesterday by Eddie Kane, the St. Paul challenger's manager, with the understanding that the battle will be held "somewhere in the metropolitan area," either late in May or early in June.

Jack Kearns, the champion's business mentor, has tentatively agreed to the match, but has postponed discussion of final details until his return from a trip to Hot Springs, Ark. Kearns left for the resort this afternoon.

Neither manager has as yet signed articles but Rickard indicated he had satisfied both as to terms and that only minor details remained to be worked out. In some quarters it was reported Gibbons had been guaranteed $100,000 for his end of the proposed sequel to the bout at Shelby, Mont., last July, when Gibbons, after staying the 15-round limit with Dempsey, barely obtained expenses because of the financial failure of the contest.

Challenges for fights from two other rivals came to Kane and Gibbons today. The first was from Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, on whose behalf Simon Flaherty, Queensboro A. C. promoter, offered Gibbons $50,000 for a 15-round match here during the outdoor season. Flaherty, who claims to have Wills signed for the proposed contest, plans to confer with Kane tomorrow. The other challenge was from Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, whose manager, Billy Gibson, offered to sign with Gibbons for either an indoor or outdoor bout.

Two prospective matches for Tunney have fallen into the discard lately for various reasons. Legal obstacles and a break with his manager resulted in the withdrawal of Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight titleholder, from a match with Tunney, while Erminio Spalla, European heavyweight champion, sailed for South America to box Luis Firpo after Spalla's American representatives had signed for him to oppose Tunney here.

Word that Firpo is eagerly awaiting his return campaign in this country was brought back today from the Argentine by Juan Homs, representative of Rickard. Firpo's plans are somewhat indefinite, according to Homs, but he is anxious to have one or two stiff bouts before engaging Dempsey again in a fight which probably will come as the climax to the outdoor season in September.

Harry Wills and Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight, are two likely opponents for the "wild bull," who also expects to go on a barnstorming tour of Canada and this country during the summer.

Rickard also is endeavoring to arrange one or two bouts in which Georges Carpentier will stage an American come-back. The Frenchman has issued a sweeping challenge to American light heavyweight talent and possibilities of bouts with Tunney, McTigue or Gibbons, all under con-

INDOOR BASEBALL MEETING ON MONDAY EVENING

As the indoor baseball league, which has been in progress during the past nine weeks came to a close on Thursday evening there has been a request that another league be formed to continue through the remainder of the winter. There was a world of interest in the games played during the past few weeks as the games have been fairly close and full of excitement.

It has been suggested that instead of a four-team league it be made one of six teams which would give three games each week, one game to be played on a night other than a drill night. The Riverview club of the state hospital wishes to enter a team and there have been several other teams in various parts of the city that wish to come into the league.

A meeting to formulate plans for such a league will be held at the state armory on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. All managers wishing to enter teams should be present or have a representative at the meeting.

FABER'S RIVERVIEW TEAM PLAYS BATTERY B MONDAY

Joe Faber's Riverview indoor baseball team will play the Battery B team, champions of the indoor league, at the state armory on Monday evening. Faber's team will be comprised of the pick of the hospital ball players and will include Joe Faber, Art Coullard, Jack Sank, Al Shaffrick, Harry Mills, Tony West and others who have played ball for the local institution.

In this combination the battery will be up against the toughest team they have yet met this season and will have to travel in order to keep their reputation spotless.

KI-MOIDS

AMERICA MAY HAVE ONLY ONE SKIIER AT OLYMPICS

New York, Jan. 11.—Unless the French Olympic committee waives the rule closing the date for receiving entries for the Olympic winter sports events, and accepts the entries of three American skiiers yet to be selected, this country will have but one contestant in the Olympic skiing championships.

A cablegram, asking the privilege of entering three American skiiers, was sent to the French Olympic committee today by Secretary Frederick Rubien of the American Olympic committee.

The latter's action followed the receipt of a French message, which caused the dropping of Anders Haugen, Edward Haugen and Karl Omtvedt from the list of skiiers eligible to represent America.

Several years ago, according to the American Olympic officials, Hanson, Haugen and Omtvedt, violated the international amateur laws in competing for money prizes. They were reinstated to amateur standing by the National Ski association last year, but the international rules provide that two years must elapse after reinstatement before the contestant is eligible for international competition.

Sigurd Overby of St. Paul now is the only member of the recently appointed American skiing team who is eligible.

KILLINGLY HIGH SCHOOL BEATS CHAPMAN TECH

In a fast and well played game Friday evening at New London, the Killingly High basketball team defeated the Chapman Tech five 27 to 26, winning out in the five minute overtime period that was played. At the end of the regular playing periods the score stood 25 to 25, after one of the hardest fought games yet played by either high school.

In the overtime period Vadas of the Killingly five caged two baskets from the foul while Chapman caged one, leaving the final score at 27 to 26.

AMERICAN PHOTOGRAPHERS TO BE ALLOWED AT OLYMPICS

Paris, Jan. 11.—Photographers representing American newspapers will be allowed to work at the Chamonix and Colombes games, the French Olympic committee decided this evening after receiving a flood of protests against its recent announcement that it would supply all the pictures required by the press.

Representatives of French and American publications will take turns, at least two and probably three of the Americans being included in the crew working under the auspices of the Olympic committee.

FRISCH SIGNS GIANT CONTRACT AT SALARY INCREASE

New York, Jan. 11.—Frank Frisch, the Fordham flash, star second baseman of the New York National league club, today signed a contract for the 1924 season at a salary reported to be greater than any ever paid a Giant.

It was authoritatively reported Frisch next season would captain the Giants, succeeding Dave Bancroft, who recently was traded to Boston.

PLAYER DEAL ON BETWEEN PIRATES AND PHILLIES

New York, Jan. 11.—Barney Dreyfuss and William F. Baker, respective presidents of the Pittsburgh and the Philadelphia National league clubs, conferred here today over a deal involving several players of each team.

Dreyfuss, it is understood, is trying to get Jimmie Ring, leading pitcher of the Philadelphia club, and was said to have offered Walter Maranville, shortstop, and several lesser players in exchange for him.

CALIFORNIA WINS NATIONAL RIFLE SHOOTING TITLE

New York, Jan. 11.—The National Rifle association today announced that national civilian rifle shooting championship honors for 1923 had been awarded to the California team. Through an error, Illinois previously had been announced as the winner of the title shoot held at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Columbia Wins.

New York, Jan. 11.—Columbia defeated Pennsylvania, 26 to 19, tonight in the opening intercollegiate basketball league game.

The Pennsylvania team, with the exception of Kneass, who scored four of their five field goals, could not penetrate Columbia's careful guarding. Neither side scored a single basket during the first ten minutes of play.

Moody Wins.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 11.—Frank Moody, Welsh middleweight, knocked out Pierre Nickolas of France in the first round of a 10-round bout here tonight.

SPORT NOTES

Boxing was one of the leading sports among the athletes of ancient Greece and Rome.

The first recorded bowling match was played in 1340 on the Knickerbocker alleys in New York city.

After making quite a reputation in the west, Ted Jamieson, the Milwaukee heavyweight, has arrived in New York seeking bouts, with some of the big fellows.

Idaho, Colorado, Montana, Utah and Wyoming are expected to be represented in an all-western ski tournament to be held late in January on Genesee mountain, in Colorado.

Because of a conflicting date in New Orleans, Champion Joe Lynch has been obliged to pass up the offer of a match with Ernie Goozeman of Milwaukee at East Chicago on January 16.

Manager Lee Fohl thinks he has landed a good one for his Boston Red Sox in the person of Pitcher Borphett, who was last year with the celebrated Tellings amateurs of Cleveland.

Jack Kotzelnick, the veteran southpaw who made an excellent record last season with the Decatur team of the Three-I league, will probably be given a trial by the Chicago White Sox this spring.

West Virginia may have a new class C baseball league the coming season. Wheeling, Morgantown, Charleston, Huntington and Bluefield are mentioned as possible members of the proposed circuit.

University of Toronto, three-time winner of the Canadian intercollegiate hockey championship, has started the present season with good prospects of adding a fourth to its string of titles.

The Michigan-Ontario league may find some difficulty in picking a good baseball town to take the place of Grand Rapids, in case the Michigan city should adhere to its intention to drop out of the Mint circuit.

The [illegible] league in the southeastern section may mean a ball club for Savannah. At present Savannah is one of the few cities of its size in the entire country without professional baseball.

The Montreal proposal having been cast into the discard by the International league moguls, Providence is now mentioned as the best available city for a club in the event that Syracuse is eliminated from the circuit.

If he keeps all of his present engagements, Harry Wills, the negro heavyweight, will be a busy boxer during the month of January. Within the next few weeks he is scheduled to exchange wallops with Buddy Jackson, Jack Taylor and Bartley Madden.

Denver fight fans think they have good cause for grievance in the fact that their city, the capital and metropolis of the state, is virtually the only city of prominence in the state in which boxing bouts are prohibited.

Birds as Watchdogs.

The trumpeter crane of Venezuela, a long-legged, powerful bird, is trained by the natives to guard sheep. All day it keeps an eye on its charges, and at night brings them back safe to the fold.

King Cupid Is Prince's Only Monarch

For love, Prince Viggo, fourth son of Prince Valdemar, uncle of King Christian of Denmark, has given up his title and relinquished all possible claims of succession to the throne. His engagement to Miss Eleanor Margaret Green, daughter of J. O. Green, of New York City, was officially announced, and from now on he will be known as Prince Viggo, Count of Rosenborg. The Prince and Miss Green met last year in Copenhagen and it was a case of love at first sight. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Abram S. Hewitt and a great granddaughter of Peter Cooper, founder of Cooper Union. The Prince celebrated his thirtieth birthday on Christmas Day.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT By DAVID CORY

Encountering A Giant

Over the hill came a friendly neigh,
And quick as a flash came Dapple Gray.
"I thought you were lost," said the bunny boy,
Hopping about like a kid with a toy.
"I've missed you so much from day to day, Dearest me! I am happy to hear you neigh!"

"Well, hop on my back," answered the kind little pony, and by and by, after a while, they came to a bridge

"I am a Salamander and I've never been hot"

guarded by a queer little dwarf dressed in a pointed cap, a pair of pointed shoes and a green doublet, a kind of vest, you know.

Pulling in Dapple Gray, the little rabbit slipped his paw into his pocket for a carrot cent.

"Three pennies for toll. One penny for you and two for your steed. Be careful when you reach the other side," warned the little toll keeper, "for I hear a wicked giant is roaming about."

"Thank you," said Little Jack Rabbit politely, and he rode right over the bridge, for he wasn't afraid of giants. Oh, my no! He had met so many in his travels that he was quite used to these big men.

By and by the woodland grew dark, and all of a sudden a great noise like thunder shook the earth and the next minute a tremendous giant came tearing through the woods. At every leap he knocked down a tree or kicked over a big rock.

"Ha, ha, ho ho, he, he, hum, hum! I see a bunny as big as my thumb. On a little horse as large as my cat, I'll put them both in my big straw hat."

"No you won't," shouted Little Jack Rabbit at the top of his voice, for the giant's head was even higher than the treetops. "You won't put me in your old straw hat."

"Who are you?" asked the giant, sitting down on a fallen tree and crossing his right leg over his left knee. Then, taking from his vest pocket a cigar as long as a cane, he lighted it with a match as big as a clothespin.

"I'm Little Jack Rabbit," answered the bunny boy.

"If you'll do me a favor," said the giant, "I'll be your friend for life and maybe longer."

"Tell me first what it is. Mother says not to make a promise unless you can keep it," answered the little rabbit.

The giant looked cautiously about. Then peeped into an old magpie's nest to see if that mischievous bird were there. Finding that he was alone with the little bunny and Dapple Gray, he leaned way down and whispered something which you must wait to hear in the next story for I have no more room in this to write another word.

MANDALL, WITH BROKEN HAND, FIGHTS FIFTEEN-ROUND DRAW WITH BERNSTEIN

New York, Jan. 11.—Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., and Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, former holder of the junior lightweight title, fought fifteen rounds to a draw in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Mandell broke his left hand in the fifth round but fought bravely throughout the contest and many spectators believed he should have received the decision. Both boxers weighed 129 1-2 pounds.

Bernstein, in his usual whirlwind fashion, carried most of the early rounds but Mandel had the advantage in the last five. Bernstein's left hooks and infighting saved him from defeat for Sammy found his opponent's chin time and again with wicked rights and left uppercuts. The former champion's ruggedness offset the cleverness of his young adversary.

Mandel's manager announced he would seek an early engagement with Johnny Dundee for the junior lightweight title and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., who won a thrilling knock out victory over Frankie Jerome in the twelfth and last round of their semi-final match, declared he expected to meet Joe Lynch.

Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., knocked out Frankie Jerome of New York in the twelfth and last round of their match in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Both men fought fiercely throughout the contest, paying no attention to the gong at the end of the rounds, until parted by the referee. Jerome held his own until the eleventh when a right slash to the jaw sent him to the floor for the count of eight. The bell saved [illegible] knockout in that round.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fearing that the dummy steam engine in use on the old horse railroad in this city was endangering the lives of the citizens, the court of common council at a meeting fifty years ago this week adopted a resolution ordering the withdrawal of the dummy engine from use within the city limits. The same week James W. Andrews was installed as noble grand of Uncas lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., and M. A. Fanning was elected foreman of the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company. Following are interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of January, 1874:

Monday, Jan. 5, 1874: At the annual meeting of the Wauregan Hook and Ladder company held Friday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: M. A. Fanning, foreman; W. H. Webb, first assistant; James P. Worthington, second assistant; Joseph B. Corey, secretary; John Steiner, treasurer.

Wednesday, Jan. 7, 1874: At the meeting of the city government held last evening the special committee on the dummy reported as follows:

The committee to whom was referred the petition of I. M. Buckingham and 66 others in regard to using the dummy steam engine on the horse railroad within the limits of the city, will respectfully report that they have made inquiries in regard to the matter and are of the opinion that the dummy cannot be run without endangering the lives of citizens, and recommend that the permission that was given to John H. Gale on the first of September last to use the dummy, or improved motor power, on the horse railroad, be withdrawn, and that John H. Gale be at once instructed to discontinue its use within the limits of the city.

The committee recommend the adoption of the accompanying resolutions,

Signed,
JAMES S. CAREW,
N. S. GILBERT,
ASA NASH.

Norwich, Dec. 23, 1873.

Resolved, That the permission given John H. Gale on the first of September last to use an improved motor on the horse railroad, be, and the same is hereby revoked; and that Mr. Gale is instructed to at once discontinue the use of the dummy within the limits of the city.

Resolved, That the city sheriff be instructed to leave a copy of the above resolution with John H. Gale.

The report was accepted and a verbal vote taken on the resolutions which resulted in eleven "ayes" and one "nay" from Jno. W. Hooker.

It will be located near the southerly shore of the "Neck," and extend southerly 1,125 feet. It will be 150 feet wide with protecting wings at each side of the head. The Greeneville census Tuesday gave a population of 3,114 of which 844 are between the ages of 4 and 16.

Friday, Jan. 9, 1874: A Taftville painter came to Norwich yesterday morning in pursuit of work. Not being successful he wandered about the streets until afternoon, drinking in the meantime at several saloons but not sufficient to become intoxicated. About 3 o'clock he went to the wharf of the Transportation Co. with a friend. While returning up Market street he told his friend he was going back to drown himself. The friend endeavored to hold him but he broke away and threw himself in the river. He was rescued when nearly exhausted and taken to the house of William Hartley. The cause of the act is described as due to disappointment in a love affair.

The reduction made by the appropriation committee takes off $40,000 from the Fort Trumbull appropriation and takes the Fort Griswold appropriation entirely away. The amount for the Thames river at this city was reduced from $25,000 to $15,000.

The overflow of water on the Derby flats was in some places four feet deep. In Westport a portion of the bridge over the Naugatuck was carried away. SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
On the Tamiami Trail

Oh the Tamiami Trail
Where the cars pass by full load
And they treat you like a grandee of old Spain.

What you ask them, is it hot?
They will sell you such a lot
And tie to clear your pockets of their gain.

Oh the Tamiami trail
Upon wide their angels wail
You'll not believe the wealth of words they say

But you'll wish to buy their stock
From fair Canada to New York
And they'll put you on the back to move you're slain.

Oh the Tamiami trail
Where bright sunshine fills the dale
And the tinkle of clear fountains cool the breeze

Come ye men and women brave
You'll lose all that ye can save
But you'll not regret the deal, remember that.

Oh the Tamiami trail
"Coral Gables" crowns the tale
Where you leave dull care and sadness all behind

Why sing rudely to your pelf
When you each can help yourself
And choose fair Miami's suburb for your home.

The Radio Bug

Since Brother bought a radio
Things are on the blink.
The dishes pile up mountain high
Out in the kitchen sink.
For Mother doesn't give a hoot
As long as she can hear
The talks and music comin in
From stations far and near.

And oh! the meals she serves us,
That used to be so good,
Now she does not care a bit
As long as it's just food.
For when she puts before us
Some sicky, half-baked pie,
She yells "Now hurry up, I want
To listen in to WOT."

It's two o'clock each morning
When she staggers into bed
Then takes aspirin for breakfast
To ease her aching head.

She went to telephone a friend,
Just the other day,
And asked the startled operator
For number KDKA.

Yes, since Brother bought a radio
Things are on the blink;
It's good we have prohibition,
Or poor Pa would take to drink.

The Summer Land of Song.

Breaking through the clouds that gather
O'er the Christian's Natal skies,
Distant beams like floods of glory
Fill the soul with glad surprise.
And we almost hear the echo
Of the pure and holy throng
In the bright, the bright forever,
In the summer land of song.

CHORUS.
On the banks beyond the river,
We shall meet no more to sever,
In the bright, the bright forever,
In the summer's land of song.

Oh, the bliss of life eternal,
Oh, the long unbroken rest,
In the golden fields of pleasure,
In the regions of the blest.
But to see our dear Redeemer
And before His throne to fall,
There to hear His gracious welcome
Will be sweeter for them all.

Yet a little while we linger,
Ere we reach our journey's end;
Yet a little while to labor
Ere the evening shades descend;
Then we lay us down to slumber,
But the night will soon be o'er,
In the bright, the bright forever,
We shall wake to sleep no more.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS

Jan. 16. — Club No. 8 meets in Chapel of Lebanon Baptist Church.

WHERE ARE THE LOVERS OF PLANTS?

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Well look who is here! First, I want to wish you all a happy and prosperous new year. May you everyone find joy in your sorrow, relief from your pain, renewed faith and happiness in all your undertakings.

I have not seen anything in the letters lately about plants. As that is my chief 'flaire', I wish some would tell about their plant children. Mine are doing quite well this winter, although I have lost many blooms. I have 17 different kinds of begonias, some large some small. One little one is white and green foliaged. Pure white leaves edged streaked and mottled. But it is a tender little thing and every morning I go peep under and make a look at it, expecting to see its little white leaves folded in death.

Sad True: Almost all the slips you gave me, that day you called lived. My poor little Boys has 15 small leaves on it, having taken over three years to grow that much. The keynote of a flower grower's life must be patience. I think with a large dose.

Neighbor Everready: I have found out who you are. Congratulations. Do you know who I am? I know you quite well at one time. We roomed together once. Write to me.

This is not much of a letter, but I hope to write a better one before long. I do not seem to feel in the mood to write, but I told Primroses I'd try so here it is. I think the lettuce lately have been perfectly splendid. I think the Corner has gained quite a bit in tone the past year. I know quite well this one has none, but it is really only a New Year wish from

A FLOWER LOVER.

SEVERAL DEATHS AMONG CORNER MEMBERS.

Dear Corner Writers: I want to thank a Social Corner Member, through these columns, for a beautiful calendar I have received. It seems as if he (or she) knew the things I was most fond of as on that calendar was the prettiest marine scene, which I love to look at, and in another corner a bouquet of pretty flowers with bluebirds flying around. I hope the calendars will be a continual reminder for us to write to the Corner frequently.

We are sorry to know of the loss of some of our writers with the passing of the old year and opening of the new. At our last club gathering a letter of thanks was read for flowers sent to the funeral of our sister Biscuit and since then we record the death of Hettie Marie, whose home was in Lebanon and she was one of our very oldest writers, being nearly 83 years old. Another writer we have heard Whirlwind speak of—Old Timer —has very lately passed away. As far as I know we have lost five members by death during 1923. I wish someone would mention the death of any of the writers as Calla Lily and I would like to record it.

One of the happy events of the year, which I believe has never been recorded on our page before, was the marriage of one of our sisters which occurred just before Christmas, although I can bring to mind the marriage of a few other writers and the golden wedding celebration of three which Coral Gables in suburb Crimson Rambler: I am glad to see you starting the new year right and setting a good example for the others to follow, and I am sure the editor will commend you for it. Your plan is very enticing and I hope it can be carried out.

A Good Fighter: I thank you for the pretty Christmas card.

I thank all those that sent me cards. It was such a delightful surprise to have a card from one you'd least expect.

Best wishes to all for a happy and prosperous New Year.

I want to add another word and say our January meeting of Club No. 1 of Willimantic was a very complete one from the social side and a most excellent dinner served by the members from Scotland was not lacking in its usual variety of chicken pie, cold meat, mashed potato, beans, macaroni in all forms, pickles, pie and cake enough for all, and then some more.

There was a black jersey sweater left at the hall and the owner can find it at 33 North street, with Edna Jane. The central figure was the bride. She was so smiling and happy we were glad she could meet with us. And we all had a treat as she gave each some of the wedding cake.

THEODA.

CLUB No. 1 WILL ENTERTAIN JANUARY 16.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: First, I want to wish you one and all a happy and prosperous New Year, and hope all the sick ones are on the road to recovery.

Many thanks to a Social Corner Member for the lovely little calendar. I have it hanging over my desk where I look every day at its pretty picture and friendly verse.

New Year's resolutions are soon broken, but let's one and all make one and keep it and that is to write at least four letters a year to the Social Corner. Then there would never be such a small number of letters as in last Saturday's paper.

After enjoying the hospitality of the other clubs at other places Club No. 1 thinks it time they held a meeting, so have decided to meet at the chapel of the Lebanon Baptist church on Jan. 16 and we hope for a large attendance from Clubs 1, 2 and 7 and bring your friends. As this is not a very busy time of year for the men folks, unless it is colder than it has been and the business begins, we would like to have the sisters bring their husbands. We will hope for a nice day. Bring plate, cup, knife, fork and spoon and something good to eat as usual. The hostesses will be H. M. L., Aunt Sarah, Neighbor, Club, Malvina and

HULDY LOCATED IN LAKELAND, FLA.

Dear Corner Friends: We are now settled at 615 N. Vermont avenue, Lakeland, Fla. We had a pleasant and very interesting trip from Pinehurst, but a very strenuous one, as the roads were very bad in many places. I will describe it all to you as soon as I can, but just now I am very busy and very sad.

My brother was operated upon for appendicitis on New Year's day and is in the hospital here. He is quite ill and I spend the most of my time with him.

I extend my sympathy to all who are sick or in sorrow and a New Year's greeting to all.

BEDQUILT PATTERNS WANTED

Dear Social Corner Members: I thought I would write a few lines again to help keep the Corner full. When I read the letter that some sister wrote about not finding the page to locate me think of myself. I looked the paper over several times before I found it—a very few letters. Thought it had gone. I was real disappointed to think that we were not to have the Corner page any more so let's write often, if not a long letter, and be as cheerful as we can. Let us begin the New Year by living one day at a time and try to help some one with a kind word or a deed. If we all would try each day it would brighten the world up which we live, and would help to drive the blues away. Have not you seen people that thought it was a sin almost to laugh, but I believe if you laugh the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone. To be sure life isn't all sunshine, for into each life some rain must fall, some days must be dark and dreary, but look for the silver lining and soon it will begin to brighten up.

Here are a few helps:

When eggs get frozen don't thaw them out too quick. If you do the yolks will be hard. I put them away in the pantry for a day or two and then when I want to use them they are as good as ever. Try this and see for yourself.

Before setting a kettle that is black on the bottom in the sink, put in a newspaper and see how much it saves your sink.

If rubbers get wet inside, put a newspaper in over night and they will be dry in the morning.

I heard one sister say "I would write oftener but I can't think of anything to write." I think a good idea is to think what to write when you are about your work. That is the way I do. We can work and think what to write at the same time.

As I am to make some bedquilts soon I wish that some of the sisters would send patterns for some. I would return the favor in some way.

I want to thank the sister who sent me the very pretty calendar. I have it hung up where I can see it often. Give me a clue and I will try to think who is who.

I wasn't able to attend the January meeting but am in hopes to be able to attend the February meeting.

Hoping this letter is not too long, will close by wishing good luck to the Corner.

RURAL AUNTY.

WARM HOLIDAYS IN THE SOUTH

To the Editor and Sisters of the Corner: I am so glad over the prize money I received this morning, that I hardly know how to begin this letter. Thanks over so much and I will tell you what I will do with it. I will deposit it in the bank as a start on my Christmas fund for 1924. So it may start me on a prosperous new year. Who knows?

I cannot say that I do not see the Social Corner any more, for a friend from Montrup has arrived and gives me her's as it comes in. So I will try to keep up with the latest in it from now on.

As for the weather here it is ideal. Warm days and cool nights. Christmas and New Year's day were lovely. To see the folks here as they dress, the men folks in Palm Beach suits with straw, cloth and white helmets makes me think of the movies I used to see up home. The children —young ladies as well as older ladies—dress as they please. Some in crepe de chine, others silk, others linens, white middies and silk skirts, with sleeveless sweaters and home-spun capes. Of course there are exceptions to these, but I'm writing of the majority. The young folks wear no hats as a rule. Never wear a hat here except on long auto rides to keep my hair from my face.

New Year's afternoon there were races at Daytona beach and the autos going in that direction were one solid line from all around.

I wish the sisters could see the lovely Coral Gable busses for sightseeing from Daytona to Miami, of which Coral Gables is a suburb. There are nine of them. You have to make reservations for them ahead. And when you do, they call for you at your own door. They are coral color with black lettering on sides and hold about 30 or more passengers. An enclosing a piece that was written after a trip in said busses on their first trip down this season. Nothing can be written in rhyme to describe the beauties of the trip. The owners are northern business men.

Will close for this letter by thanking our editor ones more.

Best wishes for 1924 to one and all in the Corner.

E. M. R. C. P. (May 7).

GREETINGS FROM VIOLA.

Dear Social Corner: Well, here I am again to let some of you know that I still live and am going to help towards filling up the Social Corner page.

I don't always see every Saturday's paper, but this last week I did and thought it looked rather meagre, but after reading all the good letters and New Year's thoughts, I decided if I memorized parts of each it would be enough for my feeble brain to digest.

Bachelor Maid: Thank you for the pretty birthday card. Intended to have sent you one, but became so absorbed in getting Christmas presents ready "clean forgot you" with a card, but not in mind. Never mind, another year's coming—and you know we are not as old as Methuselah (wonder if I've spelled that right?) yet.

Don't Worry: Received the birthday card and thank you for it. You certainly have got my guessing. I wonder if your birthday isn't September and your mother's sometime this month?

Wish we had some more good recipes sent in. I always cut out and save those of Ma of Greene Gables, Twice Twenty and others that I know only by penname.

Don't know when I will ever see them unless I get married and go to housekeeping. I've been advised not to leap this year.

What's the Social Corner's opinion?

Happy and prosperous year to you all.

VIOLA.

FACING THE NEW YEARS.

Dear Social Corner Pals: A happy and healthy New Year to you all. As 1923, with its joys and sorrows, has passed we must face the year and years ahead, with courage and strength only attained by past experience. For all our joys we are truly grateful; and the shadows and grief? We are grateful, also, if we really have learned the lesson which was meant for us in our seeming trials. If we have become more thoughtful and kind, more trusting, a deeper faith in the unseen Power, then has our lesson not been in vain. No one should ask to be free from sorrow or pain, while only the moment's loss often proves a lifetime's gain.

May all those who are ill or in great sorrow feel uplifted and sustained by the strong bond of friendship which the Social Corner aims to attain and extends to you. We miss you and think of you, although we all do not always write a letter as often as we really should.

I wish to thank A Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar just received. It will serve as a cheerful reminder all the year, also any who go kindly remembered me with cards during the long seige of serious illness in my family, and the New Year cards.

HOPE COBWEB.

AGREES WITH RURAL AUNTY

Dear Corner Folks: How are you all after the holidays? We have had many weeks of nice weather in which to do all kinds of work that we like to do in winter time.

I agree with you, Rural Aunty, in thinking that people can take pleasure in their work and make it their amusement. You wrote of making rugs. I have never made any, but like the little ones very much.

Now I wish to thank the Social Corner member who sent a calendar to me. It was a very pleasant surprise and much appreciated.

Best wishes to all.

HEPATICA

BIRTHDAY CARD PLEASED

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: I wish to thank E. L. M. for my birthday card, which gave me much pleasure.

ROSE OF SHARON

CALL HEARD FOR MORE RECIPES.

Dear Corner Editor and Friends: It causes a feeling of happiness to be remembered by so many of you and I want to thank one and all for the nice cards and letters received, also for the dainty calendars from a Social Corner Member and True Blue.

Especially will I mention one card sent by a reader of the Corner and signal—no I think I will not tell you that part now for maybe she will write soon for the Corner and take that for her pennname. She wants me to guess who is who, says she knows who I am and also Rural Delivery and enjoys reading our letters.

Now R. D., here is a guessing contest for you and me and I have the first guess, which is that the first and last letters of the first name are B—t and of the last name C—d, and that the wild Honeysuckle grows not far from your door. Now of course you must let me know if that is right for if not I want another guess.

I have received the sad news that on New Year's day Old Timer passed on to the Great Beyond. She was a dear aunt of mine and I wish to thank all the sisters who did so much to make her last days pleasant. She was a great sufferer and all those remembrances helped to brighten many a weary hour for her.

I enjoy reading all the letters but just now those from Florida are especially interesting. I always enjoy those of Maine Lover and North Dakota and like to read of the personal experiences of sisters in the different states. Have heard several say they wished our sister who formerly lived in South Dakota would write us about it.

Neighbor Everready: Understand now how it was you were so very busy shopping the day we were in Willimantic. You certainly have my best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Scottie: That ten dollar joke of yours was all right and now I want to tell you one on that husband of mine. No ten dollars for him though but I fear a pound of fat for myself.

When I set the table for supper just as it was getting dark I put on what I supposed was the butter. After we sat down he spread his bread then covered it with jelly and ate it, started to spread the second slice, moved the butter dish near him, looked at it and says: "What is that darned stuff, anyway?" I looked up and says, "Why, butter, I suppose." Had some cream of wheat left from breakfast and that is what hubby had been eating for butter. Said he thought there was not much color or taste to it.

Rural Auntie: I went to Brooklyn fair, hoping to get acquainted with you there, looked at everyone for the Corner color, but nary a one did see, and of course I could not pick out your fancy work either.

Have not had any of Saturday Eve's nice letters for a long time, and Judge K. I think I keep track of you even if you do change your name about every time you write.

One who is interested in the Corner said to me the other day, there are hardly any recipes now; what is the reason? I am sending in a good one and hope she will give us all a good one in return through the Corner page.

Light Fruit Cake: One cup sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup of milk, two cups flour, one-half teaspoon baking powder, yolks of three eggs, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup chopped citron, one-half cup chopped nuts, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup cocoanut. Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Dredge the fruit with some of the flour. Cream butter and sugar, add flour and milk, stir in the fruit, then add the beaten whites of eggs. Bake in a moderate oven for about one-half hour.

Fear I am taking more space than my share, so will stop.

TWICE TWENTY.

ANOTHER CALL FOR RECIPES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I have always read the Social Corner letters and find them all so beneficial and interesting to the housekeeper. I always look for the good recipes and advice that are always found on the page.

Will some of the sisters send in their molasses cookies and cake recipes?

I think it would be very nice if the sisters would send in one recipe each time they write. You may say I have no new ones, but there are some new readers every year and for the benefit and pleasure to the new bride of 1924 please send in the good old recipes from which they can all profit, and then the new cook will have the meal prepared for her husband at his arrival. So to one and all please help the new cook. I will try to do my little bit to start.

Escalloped Vegetables: Put in your roaster one pound or two of pork chops, or other pork trimmings, season to taste and fry or bake a while, then add two pecks onions, sliced, carrots, and potatoes, and repeat and last of all put in a can of tomatoes that you canned last summer. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Do not add too much water. Prepare early in the morning and put in the oven and your dinner is ready. When I serve this dish my people like to have green tomatoes, sweet pickles, also from last summer's tomato crop, cream or custard pie and you have an inexpensive meal. If some of the sister try it please let me know if you care for it. My husband does not care for too many carrots in it. With other people it's onions.

Kitty Lou: Your letters are interesting.

If I didn't write too much for the first time please add my name to your list.

CAMP LAFAYETTE, (Feb. 24)

CHRISTMAS EXPERIENCES.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Greetings, and good wishes for a happy and prosperous year this 1924.

As letters describing visits and excursions seem interesting reading, I will give some of my own this last Christmas. They may be somewhat different from some others.

I left home December 23. The weather had been ideal all that week and seemed likely to continue, but before I arrived at my destination—East Hampton, Conn.—it began to rain and rained all that day and through that night. My granddaughter was expected home from Yonkers, N. Y., and her father was to meet her in Middletown at 9.30 that evening. As they had some shopping to do we left the house about 7.30 p. m. The evening was rainy and a dense fog filled the air so that it was necessary to drive slowly and we were nearly one hour getting ten miles as it was difficult to see the road and avoid collisions with the many autos we met on the road. So it was 8.15 when we arrived. They did their shopping and as the stores close at 9 they were just in time to get through.

Then we went to the station to meet Doris. We waited for the train from Berlin which was somewhat late, but no Doris on that as the New York train was 40 minutes late and they did not wait for it. The next train was due at a little past midnight, as the station closes at 10 p. m., we went to a hotel and waited till then and then we went to the station. Again we waited till past midnight and then waited some more, sitting in the car and when the train finally arrived it was 1.30 a. m. Then we had ten miles to go to get back to East Hampton.

I told my friend we would probably not meet many cars so he would have the road to himself but we did meet a number on the way home and it was as rainy and foggy as it had been when we came in.

We arrived home soon after 2 a. m. and got to bed at 3, tired and sleepy. We awoke about 10 that morning and had breakfast and dinner together. We remained at home that day and rested.

Monday it snowed and we trimmed the Christmas tree and got ready for the next day. In the evening we went to a neighbor's where there were children and they had a tree well loaded. After the fruit of that was distributed we had refreshments of cake and coffee. After that we went home where we arrived at 10 o'clock. Our tree was very prolific with many varieties of fruit and when it was duly delivered and inspected it was Christmas morning.

Christmas day we had a turkey, with fixings, for dinner, and in the afternoon five ladies—went to the movies to see The Old Homestead presented and in the evening we took an auto ride and called on a neighbor who is a shut-in. I remained until the next Friday and came home in the afternoon, having had a very pleasant time for all the inclement weather.

I am interested in the letters and in sympathy with most, but I will add a motto:

"Do with your might what your hand finds to do, if it is yours to do, but don't presume to do the other's job. Give him a chance to do his own.

Thanks for a lovely calendar from a Corner member.

"EACH HEART KNOWETH ITS OWN BITTERNESS."

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Someone of the large family of the Social Corner sent me a pretty calendar for which I want to say Thank you, and, not knowing Who is Who, I will say it on the Social Corner page. Also last fall White Clover sent me a comfort postcard when I was sick, for which I was also thankful.

Once more we have passed several holidays, which have seemed like having three Sundays in one week, one before and one after each holiday. In many of our homes we have had happy family reunions, but we venture to say in many of these some were absent who can never meet with us again. From my own home a son and a daughter in middle life passed away about five years ago within a few months of each other and even just such a longing to see them comes over me. I feel that I wish they could come back. Of course that cannot be and it is not best to spoil our lives and make others miserable by constant mourning. Someone once asked a lady who had buried a lovely daughter how she could be so cheerful and look so happy. She replied, "I do feel the loss of my daughter, but I don't want to spoil the lives of my other children by my mourning."

And we should realize that others have lost friends. Not long ago two of my acquaintances met. Each had lost one of their two children. As they met and clasped hands tears of sympathy flowed and words of consolation were spoken. I looked at them and wondered how they would feel if they had lost both their children.

It is not always the saddest heart that mourns the loudest or sheds the most tears, but "each heart knoweth its own bitterness." I am sending in a gospel song which has been a comfort to me.

Happy New Year to the editor and all the Corner sisters.

LITTLE SISTER.

AN ORANGE A LEMON AND SOME SUGAR

Dear Sisters: One day while looking over my pantry shelves, I found I was entirely out of sweets—and as we are fond of marmalades for the breakfast biscuits and muffins I began foraging for some fruit. I thought I had a few apples, but instead I found an orange and a lemon in the basket. I decided I would try my luck with these and the result was so satisfactory I have given friends the benefit of my experience to the advantage of not only their fruit cellars but their purses.

Orange marmalade is one of the simplest preserves to make. It never refuses to jell, its color and quality are always almost uniform, and there's no need to put it through a ling. The ordinary calls for oranges, lemons, sugar and water. One orange one lemon and the necessary water and sugar may be used with perfect success.

Quartered each fruit. To each fruit of shreded fruit allow three measures of water. Place in a granite preserving kettle and set away in a cool place until the same hour the next day. Then set the kettle upon the stove, let boil hard ten minutes. Again set it in a cool place until the same hour the following day. Measure the mixture and to every cup of pulp allow the same amount of cane sugar, and at last, add one extra measure in place on the stove, and cook until the ordinary taste shows it is jelled.

I want to thank a corner member for my calendar. It is so dainty with those pink flowers, and the green is so pretty with it. I really think I must have the prettiest one in the bunch. What do you think Cady? Perhaps you all think the same about yours. That shows we are all satisfied.

DEATH OF CORNER MEMBER OLD TIMER.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a short letter this time, as I do not know what to write about. First, I want to thank all the sisters who so kindly sent me cards.

Yesterday (Thursday, Jan. 3) we laid our dear one, Old Timer (Mary J. Allen) away to rest. She just went to sleep, the sleep from which there is no awakening. We, who knew her, will miss her cheery way and sweet smile. With her, no matter what happened, it was always for our own good if we but knew. Were she here she would want to thank the sisters who so kindly sent her cards, so I will do it for her. The calendar some thoughtful sister sent her, came just before the funeral, so she did not know about it. I thank her for it, also for mine. They are very pretty.

Some day the silver cord will break
And I no more, as now, shall sing,
But, oh, the joy when I shall wake
Within the palace of the King.

WHIRLWIND.

WAS AT CENTENNIAL TEA PARTY

To the Social Corner Sisters: It was a great disappointment to me in not being able to attend the January meeting held at the Buckingham, but on account of the grippe and a badly bruised face was not presentable to the public. However, hope to be able to attend the February meeting, if my face heels in that time. I want to thank the sisters for the sunshine gift they sent me. It certainly was a surprise.

Joan: You wanted to know if any of the sisters were at the Centennial tea party held in Bread hall in December 1876. I was there and met several people who became life-long friends.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

GOOD LITERATURE AND POETRY FOR THE YOUNGSTERS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Most children love poetry and my own little one is never happier than when I read a poem for her, and many a time I hear, "Read it again mother".

I'll tell you what I have been doing for quite some time and that is cutting good poetry out of the papers and magazines to make a book for her by pasting them in.

Of course I do not read these to her now that she will not understand, but save them for some future day, but I find plenty of them in our own "Norwich Bulletin" especially for children in the Wide Awake Circle.

I think that all children should be taught to memorize good poetry, for it cultivates a taste in youngsters for good literature.

Good literature is absolutely necessary for children and if they are kept supplied with plenty of story books to suit their ages, they are not so apt to get hold of some of the vile books and papers which we see some of our young folks carrying around or reading in street cars.

Always have plenty of good clean poetry and stories for the "story hour" that all children love, and you will never be sorry but feel well repaid when you see the happy faces when you have finished reading.

I remember a few years ago, when a certain new novel was first published, of hearing a young grammar school girl not more than ten years of age, say "any how I would like to read that book, but they only had two at the library and they were both out. I've read about all the others so I would like to read that."

I admit I was shocked to hear one so young speak like that and I really wondered if her mother knew the kind of books her little daughter was reading or if she just didn't mind as long as she was reading something.

We mothers have a lot to answer for, so let us all try to give our children the best we can in the line of reading.

We all know the old saying "As the twig is bent, so the tree is inclined," and some of the little five or six year olds have brains of wonderful conception; so we parents and especially mothers must begin early to train our children in good poetry and literature.

BLACK EYED SUSIE

MAKING CAKE

Social Cornerites: First of all I want to thank our editor for the prize I received in December. Was surprised and pleased to learn I had won a prize and I spent it for something, which I had wanted for a long time.

I must thank a Social Corner member for my pretty calendar. It is very kind and thoughtful of "Somebody" to send so many calendars each year and I do appreciate it.

One of my friends has "dared" me to write, the Social Corners Sisters about some cake I made a few days ago. My friend, Mrs. A—— came in one morning when I was making cake. After I had placed it in the oven, we sat talking and after ten minutes had passed I looked in at my cake and found it had raised nicely also had run over a bit. I carefully shut the oven door and told Mrs. A—— what had happened to the cake. She said "Now that's too bad, and about that time we discovered a golden streak oozing out under the oven door and it continued to flow until it had decorated the hearth under the oven door, also the base of the range. It certainly made a nice sticky mess to clean up and the cake left in the tin baked O. K. and was light too. But it was a thin loaf. Why wouldn't it be when half had run all over the place. Well Mrs. A—— laughed until the tears came, at the sight of what came out of the oven, after seeing what went in. She suggested that I write and tell the Social Corner Sisters "how to make cake that could run." How about it, have you enjoyed reading it?

That experience reminded me of one I had years ago where I had just learned to make cake. I was about thirteen years of age. One day my mother who was going to spend the day with a friend, left me to keep house. Told me I could make a loaf of cake, also. I made one, which baked but didn't rise. Then I remembered I didn't put hte baking powder in. I made another, and put baking powder in, an dbaked it, and as I had a few tearing hot fire—the cake baked quicker than I had ever had one bake before. I did not remember that one should test a cake before taking it out. This one was baked beautifully and a lovely brown. So I took it out, feeling very proud of my nice looking cake. I even tipped it out of the pan and onto a plate and it looked good. In the afternoon a friend came in and I was so proud of my good cake I brought it out to show it. Also to cut it for as my friend wanted to taste it. I plunged the knife into it and lo and behold! the top and sides caved in and a stream of batter ran out onto the table. It certainly was good cake all right, "Good for nothing."

MRS. SUZE

STARTING THE NEW YEAR RIGHT.

Dear Corner Sisters: I have not written in a long time and I am very much ashamed that I haven't, but I always think I will leave more space for those who write interesting letters. But we must all do our bit, I suppose, so I must begin the New Year by writing more often.

I wish to thank a sister for a very pretty calendar.

We have been having a wonderful winter so far, haven't we? But it begins to feel colder now. We have only had two snows yet and it always rains after and takes it away. Also we have heavy fogs that also cuts it quickly. I think it must be because we are so near the water.

I was pleased to see Double Fuchsia's name last week as I always look for it. I do hope I shall be able to get to a meeting some time, but it has never happened so I could yet.

Will wish the sisters all a happy New Year.

DEW KIST.

MAKE THE BEST OF IT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: What ever it is make the best of it. If you surroundings are not pleasant or congenial just remember that there must be a change after a while. Nothing last long in this world. The cloud that hangs so low and looks so dark today will pass away in the morning. Perhaps it may obscure all the brightness for a while but the sun is still shining somewhere. If the cares and burdens seem too heavy to bear just give them into God's keeping. He is willing and able to relieve you of them all and all He requires of you is to be content and wait. Some where there is a sweet surprise in store for you if you will daily do your best. God does not forget to reward the faithful. Smile away your cares, take things as they come and if circumstances are all against you don't be discouraged. The only happy people in the world are those who by the help of God can rise above vexation and worries and mounting to the heights of His love learn the sweet lesson of being truly content.

A dear old lady once said, "I have nothing to wish for and everything to be thankful for and can say I am perfectly content" and yet she was old deaf and a paralytic! What was the secret of it? She was getting the best out of life, trusting in God and leaving the future in God's hands. Now she has "entered into rest" and has received her reward. Let us like her have a contented mind which is we are told, a continual feast.

Inclination or duty! Why should we have to choose between them? How easy to follow the one, how hard to obey the other! Must we? What are our minds but to reason out these things? What are our souls for but to follow God's command. What are our bodies for but to be under subjection to our wills. Oh duty may be a hard task master but there is a peace that follows true obedience of his laws which inclination cannot bestow. Pleasure to away us or duty to weigh us—which pleasure is unsatisfying and disappointing but duty brings an calm assurance of well-doing and a happiness that will not wear off with the glare of tomorrow's sun. Colors seen by candle-light are not same by day. The beautiful colors woven by duty to children bear close inspection.

GREETINGS FROM FREE AIR.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Maybe you think I've passed out, but I haven't. Anyone with an much fresh air and hot air as I've got will pull through, I guess. I see it's quite the style to suggest names for Bud, so here's my contribution. Let's call her "Arky," that's short for architect. Her talent runs in that direction you know.

I want to thank the Social Corner member that sent me the nice calendar; it is very pretty.

One sister wrote of a sanatorium in Florida. I wish she would send me the address as I have a friend in Florida that I think would be benefitted by going there. Please, let me know as soon as possible.

Well, as you have all been without free air so long I shall have to begin gradually so as not to cause a reaction. I hope the next time I write I shall be able to give you a larger dose of FREE AIR.

DEEPLY INTERESTED IN CORNER.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Greetings to all for this new year. I think we all have made new resolutions to start the new year with. One of mine was to write to the Social Corner page as it is a long time since I did my part to fill the page we all look forward to for Saturday. I am thinking of the many friends and acquaintances I have made through the Corner gatherings and picnics which I have enjoyed and am still enjoying—ladies I have become acquainted with that I never would have met except in this way—so, you see, how pleased I am to be a Social Corner member today. I think we all feel the same in the good old Corner all our own. Wish I had some good ideas to pass along as I have received so many from you.

I think Mayfare's idea of having a sale of fancy things (that so many of us like to make) at one of our moathly meetings to help swell our treasury fund is a good one as it goes to cheer many a sick member and these who mourn a lost one. Just a little of our time would be needed in making an apron or something that would not cost much, something pretty or useful that we all would be glad to buy. I hear our treasury needs filling up a little. What do you say, sisters, to this idea? We all want the good work to go on in Club No. 1 as in our other clubs. Again wishing you all a prosperous and happy year I am

SISTER ANNETTE.

MONEY SAVING HINTS

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: These little helps will save you about three dollars.

When the faucets in the bathroom or kitchen leak, or do not allow the water to flow freely, they need a new washer, and the washers cost five cents each.

To put on a new washer, turn off the water, the shut off is usually under the sink in the basement, and unscrew the top of the faucet; take off the worn-out packing and slip on a new one and turn the water on again and presto the work is done and no repair bill to pay.

If the electric bell refuses to ring hunt up the batteries, which are usually in the cellar and armed with five or ten cents worth of salammoniac from the drug shop drop the contents of the package into the battery glass. Then look at the push button. Often times I find that the buttons are worn from much pushing or that they get loose or turned and do not strike properly. A new button at ten cents will remedy the trouble. My brother bought new batteries this week as the others are so completely worn out—but usually the salammoniac will do the work if they are wet batteries.

When glass is broken a few cents worth of putty and you can set a new pane, smoothing the putty down with a putty knife. I have set them in bedrooms or basement. Of course large front windws I did not attempt to reset.

When the gas light gives a weak light try unscrewing the burner and cleaning it out. If this does not help, it means the trouble is higher up in the pipes. Remove the burner again and rap sharply on the long pipe that leads up to the ceiling. This will remove any rust particles that lodge in the pipe and increase the flow of gas. If after this I don't seem to have any better results, I call in the gas man.

If the pipe springs a leak try and find it and apply a home made preparation of boiled linseed oil and white lead mixed to the consistancy of a cement to the crack.

NEWSPAPERS FOR MUD TIME

Dear Social Corner Friends: First let me thank a Corner member who sent me a very pretty calendar for my desk which will remind me of the Corner page for twelve months to come. I was greatly surprised to see how few letters there were on the Corner page of the new year.

The advertiser got there and at the left hand cornet of the page not only is the add but a large black skunk. To the Corner family we say it will take more than one skunk to drive the writers from the Corner page.

Was sorry to learn of the illness of the Photographer. Hope she is much improved and will soon be able to take a snap shot at Who is Who in the Corner family.

Keziah Doolittle: In your recent letter in the Corner page you said, I was soon to have a birthday. I think you must have forgotten that I was no spring chicken as my birthday always comes on time on November 8th.

There has been much said in the Corner about the use of old newspapers. We have found them the most valuable in mud time on the road. When we see cars stuck fast in the mud and people carrying boards, stones and bushes to put in front of the wheel, we use a few old newspapers at each wheel, put on the gas and out you go to the surprise of the other fellow who is still fast in the mud.

It is just as essential to carry old newspapers in the car in mud time as it is to have chains for slippery roads.

Airplanes often go over here and always go towards Norwich. Perhaps they are looking for the home of the Social Corner. The new year is at hand. May it be the best one ever seen by the faithful editor and the whole Corner family is the wish of

RURAL DELIVERY

TAKES NO CHANCE OF BEING DROPPED.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Think I should write before my name is taken from the list. I think every week I will write but it seems I just don't get around to do it. Wish I could write nice long letters like so many of the sisters.

Neighbor Everready surely did surprise some of us. Double Fuchsia was more than surprised when I called her on the phone to ask her if she had heard the news. I think her Sister Everready should have given some of us a tip.

Dew Kist: I think you had better write. You have kept silent a long time. Hope you are feeling better now.

Haven't seen Jill's name among the letters for a long time.

I certainly enjoy reading all of the letters, also attending the meetings. I have only been to two meetings but enjoyed them very much.

Best wishes to the Corner.

GOOD TO BE REMEMBERED

NICE GRAPE MARMALADE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I wish you all a happy New Year and may it be better than ever. I want to say "Thank you" to whoever sent me the dainty calendar.

Keziah: If Twice Twenty doesn't succeed in breaking her neck the next time she takes her gymnastic exercises I think we will come to Buckingham some day.

We are sorry to hear of the passing of "Old Timer," but still we can't wish her back, as she must have been a great sufferer.

Twice Twenty: I think I can go you one better. I made my grape-juice this fall by putting the grapes and sugar in a cup and filling with hot water. When I opened a jar I took the grapes and added water to nearly cover and cooked a little, mitted, and added sugar and had a marmalade we thought better than when made from fresh grapes. So you see I had nothing left for the chickens.

Miss G. De Young Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"Pimples broke out on my face and began to itch and burn. The pimples were hard, small and red, and were in blotches. I lost my rest at night because of the irritation, and the trouble lasted about two months.

"I tried a lot of remedies without any benefit. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss G. De Young, 371 Walden St., Cambridge, Mass., July 20, 1923.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap and occasional touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soothe and heal. They are ideal for the toilet, as is also Cuticura Talcum.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE

New York, Jan. 11.—Encouraged by the decision of the house republicans to take early action of the tax reduction bill, professional operators renewed their campaign for higher prices in today's stock market, the fifth consecutive million share session. Industrials regained leadership of the upward movement. Heavy profit-taking took place in the railroad shares, particularly the low priced issues, on the circulation of reports that Senator Smith, newly elected chairman of the senate committee on interstate commerce, favored prompt action to lower freight rates, particularly on agriculture.

An abundance of cheap money, which resulted in call funds falling below 4 per cent. for the first time since last September, also aided operations for the rise. Time money and commercial paper were quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent.

Food, chemical, merchandising, oil, motor and motor accessory issues gave the best demonstrations of group strength. Some of the outstanding strong spots were Atlantic Refining, Tidewater Oil, Marland, Stewart-Warner speedometer, Stromberg Carburetor, American General Asphalt, Willys-Overland preferred, Otis Elevator and Sears-Roebuck, the net gains ranging from 2 1-4 to 5 points.

Steel shares moved within narrow and irregular limits. U. S. Steel common again crossed par but fell back later to 99 3-4 where it was up 1-8 on the day. Considerable interest was aroused by the report that the floating supply of this stock in broker's hands on December 31 and 1,048,518 shares or 10.63 per cent, a new low record. At the end of 1922 the total stock held by brokers was 1,338,864 shares or 26.28 per cent. of the amount outstanding.

A temporary burst of strength in the equipment group sent Baldwin up to 137 5-8 but it slipped back later to 136 3-4 for a small fractional gain on the day.

General Electric duplicated its record price of 306 1-2 closing slightly below that figure for a net gain of 2 3-8. Oil shares continued to reflect the improvement in that industry, as indicated by a steady reduction in crude output and higher commodity prices.

Sporadic attempts were made during the day by the short interests to unsettle the list by offering stocks freely on the theory that the condition of the market warranted at least a technical reaction, but they failed to make much headway except in a few issues like American Woolen, Tobacco Products, Iron Products and American Sumatra Tobacco, all of which declined a point or so.

Net losses in the railroad group were as a rule, limited to fractions.

Establishment of another new low record by French francs at 4.77 cents, was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling eased about 1-3 a cent to $4.37 1-2. Sharp recessions took place in the far eastern rates in reflection of the further drop in silver prices in the local and London market.

BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 11.—Stimulated by the drop in the call money rate to 3 3-4 per cent. and the continued flow of reinvestment funds into the market, bond prices moved forward over a broad list in today's trading on the New York stock exchange.

Investment houses reported a big demand for all classes of bonds, both from individuals and institutions, the day's sales totalling above $17,000,000 as compared with about $12,000,000 yesterday. The jump in the turnover of American government liberties was more than double yesterday's sales. Approximately $5,500,00 in those bonds changed hands today at substantial advances. Traders reported also a big demand for three and four months U. S. treasury notes to take care of excess loan funds.

Trading again was more active in the railroad group, more than a score of those issues moving up as much as a point. Generally industrial liens also were higher, but most of the sales in that group were influenced by the better stock prices.

Public utility company bonds also were in big demand today, largely from individual investors.

Bankers said that new bond issues aggregating above $100,000,000 are now under active negotiation but that none of them is yet ready for public offering. There was some talk also of another offering of farm loan credit notes at an early date.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan 11.—Strength in foreign markets gave wheat a substantial impetus upward here at the outset today, but selling on the advance took the edge off the demand, closing prices were steady at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-8c higher. May 106-7-8 as 108 7-8 a 109 and July 107 3-8, corn closed unchanged to 1-4 c lower, oats varying from a shade decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions at 12 a 15c, off 5c gain.

With Liverpool wheat quotations sharply higher today, the fact was emphasized that the Liverpool market had gained at a rapid rate on the Chicago market since the beginning of the new year, about 3c a bushel and that the value of United States wheat was close to a world parity. Besides, wheat receipts in this country were so small as to arouse comment that more or less melting away of the domestic visible supply total would be shown on Monday, whereas world exports for the week promised to be fully 1,000,000 bushels in excess of the previous week, however, the action of the corn market, although at first a source of strength to wheat, later became a bearish influence, profit taking on the part of holders of wheat ensued, and almost wiped out the early gains.

Corn averaged lower in price after a firm start. Better weather conditions led to some speculative selling, and tended to slow down demand as compared with preceding days. It also was said that country offerings, though still restricted, were a litle more liberal than of late, on the other hand, it was disclosed that 50000 bushels have been taken for shipment from gulf ports to northern Europe. Oats were upheld by improved shipping demand.

Notwithstanding higher prices on hogs, provisions were easier in sympathy with corn.

STEWARD LAWNE, HELD AT NEW LONDON, SHOWING UP AS A BAD ACTOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 11.—Steward Lawne of Providence, who was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson, at Norwich, late yesterday afternoon, charged with violation of the Mann act and who was held for trial at the next term of the United States district court, may have many years to serve in confinement before he manages to extricate himself from the clutches of the law. It has developed that the accused has many charges to face other than that for which he was arrested in New London a week ago. When arrested here Lawne was living with Evelyn Foster, 16, also of Providence and besides occupying a room with the girl at a Pearl street house, Lawne, it is alleged, provided male company for her. He brought the girl to New London from Providence and it is claimed there by relatives of the Foster girl, that he was sheltered by them in Providence and as a reward they suffered losses either by theft or by loaning Lawne money. Lawne, it is claimed, was loaned $5 by a sister of the Foster girl before the couple left for New London and when the couple were taken into custody, Lawne had a fur coat belonging to the girl's brother-in-law, and two revolvers and a suit-case which he stole, it is claimed. He is wanted for bigamy, for it is claimed that he has thrice been married and has not obtained divorces and he is also wanted by the Providence police as a hold-up man. He also has a criminal record, for he has served terms in prison in Portsmouth, N. H., and at Portland, Me.

Dr. A. Paolila, a practicing physician at 59 Truman street, who claims to be a naturopath, who yesterday was summoned before the grand jury at Hartford to relate how he obtained his diplomas and medical education, did not testify before the grand jury because of the large number of "physicians" who explained their medical training. Paolila, however, was before the grand jury this afternoon.

James Bowser, who, according to the statement of his attorney in the police court today, has been a chef at the Pease house, where he was charged with selling white mule and other varieties of booze prohibited by law, will have an opportunity to demonstrate his ability as a cook at the county jail, for he was fined $200 and didn't have the wherewith to settle. Sheriff Brown can always make use of a good cook at the jail. He has another cook there in Charlie Fear, also colored, and there may develop a rivalry between these knights of the dough and the doughnut.

Mrs. Mary Barry Burke and James C. Lee, colored, had a wild time last evening at the Burke home on Jefferson avenue. As a result they were arrested. Then James charged the fair Desdemona with having placed her serpentine hand in his pocket and abstracted $36. A taxi was called, and the negroes with a white bargeman who was a caller at the house, were given a ride to the police station where they passed the night sleeping on the boards. The bunch was probed by the prosecutor today when it was obvious that the case was the development of a drunken party. Mary paid the bill for the taxi and Jimmie and she were mighty glad to get out of a scrape at that cost.

Konomoc Hose company had last evening what many of its members term the most successful banquet it has had during the fifty years the company has been in existence. The Konomocs provided a novel situation in inviting Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth to address the diners. He accepted and he pleased the party so well that he kept them in laughter and applause throughout the fifteen minutes or more that he was talking. Mayor Scott, City Manager Holt and State Senator Rogers were other speakers, all uttering words of wit and wisdom. Rev. Mr. Danforth received a basket of roses presented by the company to Mrs. Danforth as a recompense for depriving her of the companionship of her husband during an evening that afforded them so much pleasure. Men and women entertainers from Hartford provided a program that kept the party applauding all through their acts.

Mrs. Henry Boiles of Westerly, Edward Silva of Main street and Mrs Almeida of Bristol street, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Burial took place this morning in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Henrietta Brockhaus, widow of August Brockhaus, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 5 Konomoc street. The services were conducted by Rev. Philip M. Herridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

L. Allen Hook and Ladder company, of which organization, Mr. McCarthy had been a member many years. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John J. McGrath. The bearers were Alexander McDonald, Edward O'Connor and Fabian McDonald, representing the fire company and William Nonan, Harold Quinn and James Kennedy, members of the plumbers' union. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The defective chimney was reported to the police and to the inspector of buildings.

Announcement is made of the marriage at Groton, Jan. 8th of Charles E. Epps and Mrs. Jennie V. Morgan, by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church.

Miss Elizabeth Coyle, daughter of Mrs. S. M. Coyle of Center street, whose marriage with J. T. McCarthy of Bridgeport is to take place the latter part of the month, was tendered a miscellaneous shower this week, by Miss Maisie Hayes at the Hayes residence on Connecticut avenue. The affair was attended by a number of members of the local telephone exchange, where the bride-elect has been instructor for several years.

Thieves visited an automobile owned by Louis Kaplan, a Bank street merchant, parked on Meridian street, near the Y. M. C. A. this evening and stole a 35x4 1-2 tire and tube that was in a holder on the running board of the machine. The theft was not discovered until some time after Mr. Kaplan drove his car away and was reported to the police.

Four youths visited the synagogue on Federal street this evening and while several Hebrews were in the place, showered the structure with stones, smashing the windows. The noise of the crashing glass aroused the neighborhood and a telephone message was sent to the police station. Patrolmen Carlos Sienkiesky and Braxton Hill were dispatched to the synagogue, but the bows had made their escape.

It is believed that William Gunn will be the man selected by the city council as a member of the board of relief, to fill a vacancy, at the meeting of the council Monday evening. Mr. Gunn was a candidate at the meeting last Monday but he was not chosen, for Louis B. Lincoln was then elected. Mr. Lincoln has declined to qualify as he is to go to New Jersey next Monday. He came here from Willimantic about six years ago.

The coal dealers of the city are complaining because they cannot get the coal they need in their business except they buy from independent dealers, and the latter boost the price when there is a demand for what they have. The dealers hint that the independents get their supply from regular companies, but that the latter will not supply the dealers.

Some surprise is manifested that the city planning board does not get busy and organize that attention may be given to matters that are urgent. The planning board is to restrict the construction of any old building in the residential sections of the city and regulate building lines so that there may be something like architectural harmony in the structures erected. In many of the streets there have been no building lines and the owners of land have not been particular as to what sort of building they have erected if they could get a satisfactory rental from the structure.

TAFTVILLE

The annual meeting of the members of the church and congregation of the Taftville Congregational Church, Inc., was held Thursday evening in the vestry of the church, with the pastor, Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis presiding. Following the reading and approval of the minutes of the last meeting by the clerk, Allan Bogle, the various societies connected with the church made their reports. Mrs. Walter Drew read the report of the Ladies Benevolent Society, showing increased activity in that organization for the past year. The society has pledged a substantial amount to the organ fund which is being raised for the purchase of the new pipe organ to be installed this month. Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis reported for the Ocawasha Camp Fire Girls and the O. J. B. Society. The former organization donated $25 for the organ fund. Fred Knowles, superintendent of the church school, reported of the progress made in that branch of the church work, and Miss Elizabeth Houston, the treasurer of the church school, gave her report, showing a pledge of $50 for the organ fund. The report of Victor H. Davis, scoutmaster of Troop 3, Boy Scouts, was read by Earle M. Wood, a member of the troop committee. This showed the troop in prosperous shape. George N. Beardow, treasurer of the church, presented his report showing the church in fine financial condition.

Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, in his report, mentioned the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which has been organized the past year at the church. Collections for missionary purposes were very liberal for the past year, and the treasurer was directed to send checks to the various missionary societies.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Members of the standing committee, John W. Brierley, George J. Meyer and Everett M. Pingree; members of the music committee, Thomas Grimshaw, William Bailey and Arthur E. Atkins; clerk, Allan Bogle; treasurer, George N. Beardow; deacon, Allan Bogle; collector, Miss Elsie F. Heap.

NORWICH TOWN

Miss Bessie M. Grant was the hostess Wednesday evening, when the annual business meeting of Ever Ready circle of King's Daughters, was held at her home on Scotland Road. The circle has a membership of 32 willing workers. During 1923, twenty-one meetings were held at the homes of its various members, when sewing for the Near East, also for a Polish family, occupied several evenings. Cards were sent to shut-ins at Easter, and twenty May baskets were distributed.

Through the efforts of this circle services have been held at the Alms House once each month, when circle leaders of other circles on churches have had charge. Ever Ready circle held special services on Palm Sunday, June 24, and December 23. On the last mentioned date the circle provided Christmas cheer for the inmates; also remembered the children at the Crescent Beach sanatorium at Christmas. A fair and food sale during October, brought over $80 into the treasury.

The following officers were elected: Leader, Mrs. Charles P. Learned; vice leader, Miss Sadie J. Dawson; secretary, Miss Jennie G. Bonney; treasurer, Miss Mary Wattles, the last two being re-elected.

Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue, spent Thursday in Colchester at the home of her sisters, Miss Annie Smith and Miss Rose Smith.

Crosby Peck spent several days in Colchester as the guest of his aunts, during the Christmas vacation.

Recent visitors at the Peck home included Mrs. Edward Peck and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Raymond and family, all of Westchester.

NORWICH SPORTSMEN ENTERTAIN STATE FISH AND GAME CLUB

Officers were elected and annual reports given at the annual meeting of the Connecticut Association of Fish and Game clubs held Friday afternoon at the Wauregan house, following a luncheon at 1 o'clock which was given by the Norwich Fish and Game association, which entertained state body.

The following were elected:

President Robert B. Chappell, New London; vice president, Dr. J. J. Conran, Torrington; secretary and treasurer A. J. Williamson, Bridgeport; legislative committee, W. W. Ives, Norwich; O. L. Dossin, Meriden; E. W. House, Glastonbury; Karl Kulle, Suffield; Edward Bailey, Danbury.

There was an attendance of 30 at the tables, which were appropriately arranged in a closed square to suggest a pond with a fringe of green for the decorations and two champion fish caught in Maine by E. Lewis Young of this city displayed on a round table in the center. The fish were a 4 pound 9 ounce trout and a 5 pound 8 ounce salmon.

After grace had been said by Judge A. F. Libby, the banquet was served at the conclusion of which President Robert B. Chappell of New London conducted the business meeting.

The following were in attendance: R. B. Chappell, New London; A. J. Williamson, Bridgeport; A. L. Stebbins, Jewett City; George S. Brown, Jewett City; A. Chester Brown, Arthur E. Story, W. W. Ives, Lee Roy Robbins, Norwich; Cyrus Lee, Stonington; Fred W. Harvey, Stonington; Orrin H. Sanford, Mystic; H. H. Robinson, Stonington; James McGarvie, Stonington; Henry E. Palmer, Stonington; Karl E. Kulley, Suffield; Herbert W. Gorham, Norwalk; C. R. Disbrow, Bridgeport; R. D. Banigan, Danielson; H. B. Atwood, Danielson; L. S. Ingalls, Danielson; E. Lewis Young, Norwich; W. W. Church, Norwich; Louis Ortman, Norwich; James J. Conran, Torrington; F. P. Bull, East Hampton; Edgar T. Thomas, New London; Seeley L. Benedict, South Norwalk; Oscar L. Dossin, Meriden; George K. Howe, Meriden.

Superintendent John W. Titcomb of the state fish and game commission, who had been expected to attend, was unable to do so, but sent a report in a letter which was referred to in the meeting, but the reading of the letter was omitted to save time and copies of the Bulletin in which the letter had appeared were distributed in the meeting.

President Arthur E. Story of the Norwich Fish and Game club extended a welcome to the city and offered the hospitality of the Arcanum club rooms to those who were to remain in the city for the afternoon or evening.

Souvenirs of Norwich

Later Mr. Story presented the visitors a souvenir of Norwich, which was a patent nickel plated inkwell for each one, these having been generously donated by general manager Charles F. Wells of the United Metal Mfg. Co., of Thamesville.

President Chappell responded to the words of welcome to Norwich and the annual reports were presented by secretary and treasurer A. J. Williamson of Bridgeport.

The treasurer's report showed $97.68 balance on hand at the beginning of the year, receipts of $120, expenditures of $101.63, and balance of $106.05.

In his annual report, Secretary Williamson made suggestions for the new year, that locals increase their membership, that new associations be formed, intersectional visits be encouraged, results of the game law codification be studied and that the directors meet quarterly.

A rising vote of thanks to the efficient secretary was passed on motion of Mr. Story.

Officers Elected

The nominating committee was named by the president and a recess was declared while they retired to prepare their report which was unanimously accepted and the officers elected as already named.

Dr. J. J. Conran extended an invitation to the association to hold its next annual meeting in Torrington, which was accepted.

Commission Member Speaks

Karl Kulley of Suffield, a member of state commission, spoke interestingly of some of the things that had been accomplished in the past year in fish and game lines. He called the re-codification of the game laws the best thing that had ever been done for the sportsmen of the state, and he expressed appreciation of the governor and the senate and house chairmen for the help they had given. The Hammonassett hatchery, he said, is to be abandoned this year, but the Windsor Locks hatchery is bringing good results as also the Burlington and the Waterbury field stations. The commission expects to distribute millions of perch this year. Experience with the study of shad shows that protection is needed at the spawning periods. As to pheasants, he said there had been fair results in raising them in incubators and the reports are that pheasants are coming back everywhere.

W. W. Ives reported for the legislative committee, reviewing the difficulties that sportsmen's interests had experienced in legislature in former years and expressing the work of superintendent Titcomb and the help that had been given in the last legislative session by the governor, lieutenant governor and Fred Walker of the state commission.

On his motion the meeting voted unanimous endorsement of the work of the state commission.

Reports From Clubs

President Chappell called on club representatives for reports of work during the year. Responses were made by H. B. Atwood, Danielson, W. W. Ives, Norwich, Dr. J. J. Conran, Torrington, F. P. Buell, East Hampton, E. T. Thomas, New London, O. L. Dossin, Meriden. S. L. Benedict, South Norwalk, C. R. Disbrow, Bridgeport, H. M. Robinson, Stonington.

In his report, Mr. Ives spoke of the generosity of the Robert Gair Co., of Montville, which had, at its own expense put in a screen at Ozoboxo pond, which will greatly improve the bass fishing there.

Mr. Thomas of New London spoke against having the quail law taken off at the end of two years, and Mr. Dossin of Meriden told of the influence which their club of 1,364 members had in getting the surplus fish taken from their reservoir. The haul included ten tons of suckers.

On motion of Mr. Disbrow of Bridgeport, the association voted approval of the federal migratory fish bill and the federal migratory game refuge bill and voted to send telegrams to the Connecticut senators and representatives.

Mr. Robinson of Stonington did not agree with the New London man that the law on quail should not be taken off in two years.

Mr. Sanford of Mystic started interesting discussion, when he spoke of the need of wiping out vermin that destroy game and it was voted that local clubs appoint days for a drive on vermine. L. S. Ingalls of Danielson, turned the discussion especially upon the gray fox and it was agreed that this class of game destroyers presented a difficult problem and the gray foxes were fast increasing and nobody wants to hunt them.

George S. Brown of Jewett City spoke on the distribution of game, saying that he thought trout ought to be put into the designated brooks and pheasants ought to be distributed as widely as possible instead of in one's own backyard. He advised the sportsmen to keep on the right side of the land owner.

Judge Arthur F. Libby was the concluding speaker, briefly treating on law enforcement that public opinion means law enforcement.

RICHARD McCLOUD SOLD LINCOLN A BULLETIN, IN 1860

In the department headed "Inside Stuff About New York," by William Johnston, in the big issue of the Denver Post of Sunday, Dec. 30th, appears the following of Norwich interest:

Letter About Lincoln

Ed Howe's story, published in this column about Lincoln's famous Cooper Union speech having been first given in Atchison, Kansas, has brought me this interesting letter from Richard McCloud, an attorney in Durango, Colorado.

"Lincoln delivered the famous Cooper Union speech at Breed Hall, in Norwich, Conn., immediately after he delivered it in Cooper Union. I heard it and it was reported in the Norwich Morning Bulletin by the city editor, Henry T. Goddard. I was a newsboy and route owner of three hundred copies and sold Lincoln a copy in March, 1860, the day of the night he delivered the speech. City Editor Goddard became a major in the Civil war and some years after the close of the war had a story in Harper's Weekly on this meeting in Norwich, Conn."

About a month earlier, Mr. McCloud noticed the story of Lincoln, by Ed Howe, and he promptly contradicted it. Writing to a Norwich friend, Mr. McCloud says: I remember Lincoln in the lobby of The Wauregan Hotel on the day of the night he made this speech, and when he bought The Bulletin from me, and he was entertaining his callers with Lincoln stories.

I had a copy of the Harper's Weekly that had Goddard's write-up and gave it to William P. Vaile, cashier of the First National Bank, of Durango, Col., G. A. R. veteran, who each year read the Gettysburg address of Lincoln on Memorial Day. Vaile was brother of Vaile the lawyer, a partner of Edward O. Wolcott, of the law firm of Wolcott & Vaile, of Denver. Wolcott and I were at Norwich Free Academy at the same time. I was graduated in 1865 one year ahead of Wolcott and in 1864 I took the Newton Perkins' Medal for Declamation and Wolcott was one of the contestants that year. The next year he took that medal.

Vaile, the Durango banker, is dead and buried in the Durango Cemetery, that is why I have not that copy of Harper's Weekly with the Norwich Lincoln meeting story. It was very interesting and had several Lincoln anecdotes—one where Wheeler of Stonington, is mentioned.

I was informed that Henry Goddard went to Baltimore in the insurance business. He lived in Sachem street, and was a relative of a famous writer of books who had lived in the same house.

Mr. McCloud has in his possession a copy of his own New Year's address of Jan. 1861, when he was a kiddie. This address was written by the late James B. Colt, who afterwards was General Colt and Judge Colt. In the last column of the address which is in verse—there is a reference to "Mr. Pike's wonderful Peak". Mr. Colt had returned from there only a few days before he volunteered to write this New Year's address for the boy, Richard McCloud. Mr. Colt who was father of Archa W. Colt, was digging for gold near Denver in 1860.

Either Jan. 1st, 1862 or 1863, Mr. McCloud recollects that he had an address written for him by a printer on The Courier or Bulletin or Aurora, who wrote many articles at that time for the Norwich papers under a pen name. He says it may have been Homer Bliss. But Mr. McCloud preserved no copy of this second address.

The opening stanza of the Newsboy's Address of Jan. 1st, 1861 was—

Introduction

Go to the door quickly; have never a fear.
Tis Richard, to bid thee a Happy New Year.
Right cordially greet him, 'twill add to thy joy,
To speak a kind word to the Carrier boy.
The Carrier boy, who doth ever remain
Most faithful to duty, thro' sunshine or rain.
Never forgetting thy wants to remember
From first of the year till close of December.
While striving to banish each dull care away,
And all the year round make thee happy and gay,
By promptly providing the news of the day.
Pull out the weasel fur, loosen its strings;
Pour from its contents the best of good things.
Just as much as you please, but in no instance less.
For a copy or two of his New Year's address.
Since this is the day to be happy and proud
To make happy the newsboy—Richard McCloud.

Mr. McCloud is a well known attorney at law, with offices in the Burns National Bank building, Durango, Col. He is brother of Miss Ellen G. McCloud, teacher in the senior room of Broadway school, Norwich and of Miss Mary McCloud, who has served as a government nurse through three wars. Another sister was the late Mrs. Cassidy, wife of Dr. Patrick Cassidy, of Washington street. Mr. McCloud married Miss McQuirk of Norwich and they have one daughter. He retains the keenest interest in Norwich and its affairs and finds much to remind him of the progress of the years in the annual New Year issue of The Bulletin, which paper it gave him as much pleasure and honor to sell to Lincoln back in 1860.

Lions in Greenwich Jungle

About a dozen Lions of this city penetrated the jungles of Greenwich Friday afternoon and remained during the evening to participate in the ladies time of the club of that place, it being charter night for the Greenwich club.

A message was received by President George A. Finn of the Norwich Lions club Friday, informing him that the time would be held at the Pickwick Arms, and among the distinguished guests would be James H. Readio, Jr., of Providence, governor of the New England District.

Local Lions who made the trip were President George A. Finn, Vice President Lou Fontaine, Secretary Edward Carpenter, Tail Twister Frank Rinella, Lion Tamer Tyler Rogers and Lions J. B. Corey, Harlow Bogue and David Disco.

Twelfth Birthday Party.

Miss Louise Higgins, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Higgins of Fairmount street, entertained twelve friends at her home Friday afternoon in honor of her twelfth birthday. Games were played, prizes being awarded the winners and dainty refreshments were served.

It doesn't pay to hurry. Take your time—and don't take other people's.

ELECTED COSTELLO LIPPITT SUPERINTENDENT EMERITUS

Reports brought into the annual meeting of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church last Thursday night revealed a year of many successful activities and enterprises, carried to completion by the various church departments.

The most interesting feature of the meeting was the action of the Board at the urgent request of Costello Lippitt, that he be allowed to resign the office of Superintendent of the Sunday School of the church. After consideration a resolution was presented which expressed the admiration and affection of the members of the board for Mr. Lippitt as a Christian gentleman, and as a faithful and successful leader in the work of the School.

The resolution also called for the creation of the office of Superintendent Emeritus and the election of Mr. Lippitt to the office for life. The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

Mr. Lippitt has served the school in the office of superintendent for more than forty years and has always had the interest of the Sunday School at heart. It is with deep appreciation that the members elected him to the office he now holds. The officers of the school elected for the year of 1924 are as follows: Superintendent, John B. Stanton; first assistant superintendent, Dr. Ernest J. Jones; missionary superintendent, Miss Charlotte Barbour; Temperance superintendent, E. M. Newbury; secretary, Robert Gray; assistant secretary, Alfred Blake; treasurer, Miss Lena Haglund; orchestra leader, Miss May Guile; pianist, Miss Gladys Newbury; librarian, A. A. Guile; primary department superintendent, Miss Mary Gray; cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. E. M. Newbury; home department superintendent, Mrs. A. D. Lewis; supper committee, Mrs. George W. Greenlaw and Mrs. Vincent Welsh.

WOMEN'S GUILD OFFICERS ELECTED AT ST. ANDREW'S

The Women's Guild of St. Andrew's Episcopal church held its annual meeting Thursday afternoon with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. F. A. Dolbeare, presided at the meeting. Reports were read by the secretary and treasurer and the chairmen of the different committees. These reports showed a good state of activity in the guild, excellent results achieved during the year and a balance in the treasury. At the election of officers the following were elected: President, Mrs. F. A. Dolbeare; vice president, Mrs. Howard Gordon; secretary, Mrs. W. H. Taft; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Erwin. The following members were appointed to serve on the different committees: Sick, Mrs. Everett Risley, chairman, Mrs. William Mabrey, Mrs. William Telford, Mrs. John McKinley; work, Mrs. Frank Prodell, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. Charles Evans, Mrs. Alec Finlayson; supper, Mrs. William Shaw, Mrs. William Banfield, Mrs. John Hueden, Mrs. Fred Fitch, Mrs. A. Bernard, Mrs. Alice Baker, Mrs. William Winterbottom.

A total of 143 subordinate granges and ten Pomona granges in Connecticut was reported by Ard Welton of Plymouth, secretary of the Connecticut state grange, at the Tuesday afternoon session of the annual meeting at Footguard hall, Hartford. No new granges were organized in 1923. Hope grange, No. 20, of Torrington, a leader for nearly half a century, which maintained its existence through the "low tide" of the grange organization in this state several years ago, now seriously in need of assistance, the state secretary said and added. "I trust that this soon will be forthcoming and that this grand old grange may be rejuvenated and again become a live one in a community where it is much needed."

There were 1,052 new members received in 1923 and returns to come in later will increase that number considerably. The present membership is a little more than 16,000. The receipts of the secretary's office were $9,094.88.

The committee, he said, gave more attention to this bill than to any other. He reported that a bill prohibiting displaying anything but standard time on a public clock was passed. The milk board revision was made in a way satisfactory to the legislative committee. Satisfactory conferences were held with the tax commissioner and the motor vehicle commissioner in regard to existing laws and to proposed laws, said Mr. Sikes.

NATION-WIDE EFFORT TO HAVE THE VOLSTEAD ACT MODIFIED

Labor, Law and Capital Have Joined in Concerted Movement—The American Federation of Labor, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, and the Moderation League in Combine—Will Ask For Hearings Before the Resolutions Committees of Both Republican and Democratic National Conventions — Districts Throughout the Country Are to Be Organized and Public Pressure Brought to Bear by Constituents.

New York, Jan. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Labor, law and capital have joined in a nation-wide concerted effort for the modification of the Volstead act, it was announced tonight by Austin G. Fox, chairman of the board of moderation league.

The American federation of labor, the constitutional liberty league, the association against the prohibition amendment and the moderation league have combined forces for the campaign, he said. The legislative committee of the combined organizations will ask for hearings before the resolutions committees of both the republican and democratic national conventions to urge their request for a national expression on the subject.

The legislative committee members are James Duncan, chairman, first vice president of the American federation of labor; Mr. Fox, representing the moderation league; Colonel Julian Codman, Boston attorney, treasurer of the constitutional liberty league; Captain W. H. Stayton, president of the Baltimore Steamship Co., and head of the association against the prohibition amendment, and James Obergfell, and Albert J. Kugler, both of the American federation of labor.

Plans now under way cal for united effort on the part of the combined forces, not only in legislative campaigns but in crystallizing the sentiment of the voters. At its recent conventions, the American federation of labor passed resolutions calling for beer and light wines. This organization now will keep its branches constantly informed on all actions pending or in prospect toward this end, and the votes of individual congressmen on the subject. Districts throughout the country are to be organized and public pressure brought to bear by constituents, acording to Mr. Fox.

"Had anyone asserted a year ago that within a few months the Mullan-Gage act in New York state, would be repealed he would have been laughed at" Mr. Fox said. "What the voters may have to say on the prohibition measures nationally will perhaps be equally surprising."

Among the directors of the constitutional liberty league are: Charles S. Rackemann, president; Irving Mc. Garfield, son of the late President Garfield; Lester Leland, vice-president of the United States Rubber company; former Mayor Nathan Matthews of Boston; Dr. John Warren, of the Harvard Medical school; Louis A. Coolidge, former assistant director of the treasury; Ralph Hornblower, New York banker; Clarence W. Barron, publisher of the Wall street Journal, and Dr. Frederick Shattuck former dean of the Harvard Medical school.

Directors of the moderation league include: Henry Lacombe, former senior judge of the United States circuit court of appeals; Almet F. Jenks, a former justice of the appellant division; James Speyer, New York banker; William N. Dykman, president of the New York Bar association; W. L. Saunders, president of the Ingersoll-Rand Co.; George Zabriskie, E. N. Brown, president of the St. Louis San Francisco railroad; William C. Redfield, secretary of commerce in the Wilson administration; James R. Sheffield, a former president of the national republican club; Henry S. Pritchett, head of the Carnegie foundation and former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, James A. Burden, New York steel man; Arthur Leham, New York banker, and Kermit Roosevelt.

CENSUS ON WEALTH, DEBT AND TAXATION

Washington, Jan. 13.—The public debt of the entire country aggregated $32,786,715,000 at the close of 1922 and was more than four and three-quarters times what it was in 1912. Announcement of this figure was made today by the census bureau in a preliminary summary of the decennial census of wealth, debt, and taxation.

The gross public debt is equivalent to $301.86 for each person of the country's population, while in 1912 it was $70.20. As an offset to the gross debt there are sinking funds and other assets held for the retirement of the debt amounting to $1,934,892,000, making the net debt $30,851,816,000, or $283.76 per capita.

Annual interest charges on this huge sum representing the outstanding gross debt amount to $1,311,468,000 computed at four per cent., or $12.06 per capita. Computed at 4 1-2 per cent and 1 per cent sinking fund the total charges would be $1,803,-169,335, or $16.58 per each person of the country's population.

The national government's gross debt showed the largest increase in the ten years, largely on account of the war, its total at the end of 1922 was $22,525,775,000, an increase of 673 per cent over 1912. The indebtedness of other countries to the United States on November 16, 1923 was $11,800,010,246, of which $4,600,000 represents the debt against Great Britain, which has been funded.

The indebtedness of state governments totaled $1,162,648,000, an increase of 175 per cent over 1912.

The counties of the country had a total indebtedness of $1,366,636,000, an increase of 268 per cent over 19121.

Cities and all other civil divisions had a gross debt of $7,731,658,000, an increase of 149 per cent over 1912.

The gross debt reported represents all public indebtedness, including funded, and fixed debt (long term and serial bonds), which amounted to $25,267,275,000; special assessments bonds which amounted to $754,832,000; temporary loans, outstanding warrants, and other debts of every character, amounting to $6,814,955,000.

Of the total public debt the national government represented 68.7 per cent, the state governments, 3.5 per cent, the counties 4.2 per cent, and the cities and all other civil divisions 23.6 per cent.

THREE REBEL GUNBOATS CRUISING OFF TAMPICO

Tampico, Jan. 13.—(By the A. P.)—Three rebel gunboats are cruising off Tampico. They are the gunboat Agua Prieta and the transports Coahuila and G-3. Both the latter are armed. The vessels were identified by the chief pilot of the port of Tampico, who was sent out to discover their identity. An airplane was sent from Tampico today to observe and report on the activities of the rebel craft.

It is said the rebel vessels off the port are awaiting the arrival of the Mexican steamer Montezuma, which has on board a cargo of arms and ammunition for the Mexican government, bought in New Orleans from the United States government.

KILLED HIS WIFE AFTER SHE HAD SHOT HER BROTHER

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 13.—Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer-horticulturist and distant relative of Abraham Lincoln, whose disappearance from his home here last April caused police to believe he had been murdered, today confessed killing his wife after she had shot and killed her brother, Byron Shoup, according to the police.

According to Lincoln's confession, his wife shot her brother three times during a violent quarrel and he, fearing she would turn on him, struck her down with a stove poker and then hacked their bodies to pieces, burning them in the greenhouse furnace nearby.

PINCHOT TALKS TO STUDENTS ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

Philadelphia, Jan. 13. — Declaring that the "boodleg attack" was far more dangerous than the man who came on the university campus to crippla its athletic teams in order to make money, Governor Pinchot, in an address today before a student conference on law enforcement at the University of Pennsylvania, urged the co-operation of the college men in his fight to enforce the prohibition law.

"You young men," he said, "who volunteer without question if the United States were threatened with invasion. I am here to ask your help not to prevent, for it is too late for that, but to drive out a body of invaders who are far more dangerous to our national life than any foreign enemy, because they are undermining our faith in our own institutions."

Representatives from sixteen eastern universities and colleges at the conference loudly applauded the governor and adopted a set of resolutions setting forth their plans for carrying out his suggestions.

"First," said the resolutions, "we will make an effort to get out respective faculties to punish all violating the Volstead act and to have these violations and punishments published.

"Second, we will ask the faculties to avoid cynical allusions to the matter.

"Third, we will put on an extensive campaign of publicity, featuring the statements of leading athletes, in the college papers and elsewhere, posters, questionnaires and the consensus of public opinion.

"Fourth, we will ask fraternities to be responsible for the action of returned alumni.

"Fifth, we pledge our unanimous support to his program."

Among the institutions represented was Yale.

REV. PERCY STICKNEY GRANT AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

New York, Jan. 13.—Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's church, who invited Bishop William T. Manning to try him for heresy a month ago when the citation for alleged heresy of the Rev. Lee W. Heaton of Ft. Worth, Tex., became public, today defended the fundamentalist position and characterized the modernist movement as a "disease."

Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant explained at the Church of the Ascension that he did not think that because he was in the minority in his modernist advocacy that he should leave the church and said the demand for his ejection was a "joke". Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie defended the Greek dancing at festivals of St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie, recently criticized by Bishop Manning, as necessary to get people interested in religion.

Dr. Parks recently opened the doctrinal controversy in the Protestant Episcopal church by going before his congregation as a doctor of theology to denounce the proposed trial of Rev. Mr. Heaton, and to protest against the pastoral letter adopted by the house of bishops at its Dallas, Tex., meeting, demanding adherence to the doctrine of the virgin birth. Later, Dr. Parks was one of the group who tried to bring about conferences to settle quietly the church differences.

Meeting of Communists of Hamburg

Berlin, Jan. 13.—A meeting of the organized communists of Hamburg was held today to honor the memory of Dr. Karl Liebknecht, the Spartacan leader, who was assassinated in 1919. His arrest led to rioting on the part of the communists and his police resorted to the use of firearms, killing one person and wounding two others.

British Politics

London, Jan. 13—(By the A. P.)—In the short period now intervening before the expected battle in the red house of commons, the most notable feature of the situation observable is the persistence of the agitation to prevent labor from forming a new government, or, failing that, to make sure that such a government, once it is formed, shall have the shortest possible life.

REPARATIONS EXPERTS TO MEET IN PARIS TODAY

Paris, Jan. 13—(By the A. P.)—The experts committee invited by the reparation commission to investigate German resources with the object of finding a means to balance the German budget and stabilize Germany's currency will meet here at eleven o'clock tomorrow morning, and an optimistic feeling prevails in official French, allied and associated reparation circles.

The first gathering will be presided over by Louis Barthou, who will welcome the American, British, French, Italian and Belgian delegates. The representatives of these countries assemble in the realization that the situation has reached the extreme limit of procrastination and stubborn adherence to each country's national viewpoint, and that the way must be found out of the muddle with out great delay in a spirit of conciliation and mutual concessions.

America's participation, which Washington has designated as strictly unofficial, is regarded here on all sides as America's re-entrance into European affairs

Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes and Owen D. Young, spent many hours in the offices of the American unofficial observer. Colonel James A. Logan putting the finishing touches on their preparations. General Dawes has been making ready for the opening address which he will deliver in reply to M. Barthou's speech of welcome.

This address will outline the attitude of the American experts and give their idea of how the work of the committee should proceed, with constructive advice as to how the questions should be approached. General Dawes will read his address to both the chief delegates of the reparation commission and the committee of experts, after the conclusion of which the reparation delegates will withdraw and the committee will immediately get down to business and draw up its agenda.

The Italian members of the committee, designated by the Italian government, arrived in Paris shortly before three o'clock this afternoon. The Belgians reached Paris at six o'clock this evening.

TO UTILIZE FOR CREDIT SEIZED ALIEN FUNDS

Washington, Jan. 13.—Creation of a federal agency to utilize in productive enterprize the enemy funds on deposit in the treasury to the credit of the alien property custodian was proposed in the annual report of Colonel Thomas W. Miller, the custodian, made public today.

Col. Miller suggested that two ends would be served by returning the funds to active enterprise—revival of business and commercial relations with the former enemy countries, and the reaping of profits by the federal corporation.

"There is approximately $180 000,000 of cash on deposit in the United States treasury to the credit of the alien property custodian which sum will increase as the liquidation policy is carried out," Col. Miller said. "It is suggested that a plan be considered whereby that portion of the remaining alien property represented by cash in the treasury may be utilized in reviving trade and the commercial relations which formerly existed between this country and the former enemy powers.

"There are a number of enemy corporations whose assets were seized and liquidated by this office which would be encouraged to resume business in this country, and it might be that such a plan should be limited to those corporations or individuals whose capital has ben sequestrated by the custodian and whose consent should be obtained before their capital it utilized in such a scheme. This plan would not only benefit the citizens of this bountry but would aid in the resumption of busines and commercial relations with Europe which were terminated by the war and which will some day have to be resumed, if a return to the normal friendly relations existing before the war is to be brought about."

"DAY BY DAY" TREATMENT THROUGH PHONOGRAPH

New York, Jan. 13.—If users of the "day by day" formula are too indolent to repeat it to themselves consistently, they may talk the words into a phonograph and thereafter get their daily treatment through that medium, Emile Coue, leading exponent of conscious auto-suggestion, declared on his arrival on the steamship Paris today.

It was his only message, he declared smilingly, it made no difference, he explained, how the formula was applied, "It's the subconscious mind that's to be reached, and any method will do." He was the same grey little man, soft spoken and unassuming. In spite of his daily contact with admiring crawds he still was shyly diffident.

M. Coue came again to lecture under the auspices of the Coue National Institute, the proceeds to be devoted to the upkeep of the Coue institutes in New York, London and Paris and Brussels. He will speak in New York Tuesday and later will appear in Chicago, Milwaukee, Louisville, St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo., Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Oakland, Calif., Los Angeles, San Diego, Houston, Tex., Fort Worth and Dallas, Tex., and New Orleans.

J. W. Benner, insular treasurer of Porto Rico, was found dead at his desk in San Juan, Porto Rico.

Hearings Today on The Mellon Tax Bill

A Majority of Republicans in the House Ways and Means Committee Believe a Compromise is Necessary.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The house ways and means committee will get down to cases tomorrow on the Mellon tax bill.

While the hearings are in progress republicans on the committee, will continue their efforts to reach an agreement as to what modifications, if any, should be made in the bill. A majority of the republicans believe a compromise is necessary, particularly on the surtax rates, in order to avoid a long fight in the house.

Repeal of the exise tax on automobiles and accessories, jewelry, stock sales, theatre admissions, and the other so-called nuisance taxes will be urged by representatives of the industries affected.

Whether Secretary Mellon will appear remains to be determined but the committee has decided to call several tax experts from the treasury department to explain the results of the revisions proposed.

Representative Watson, Pensylvania republican member of the ways and means committee, endorsed the Mellon bill in a formal statement issued tonight. He estimated that the enactment of the measure would result in a saving of more than $32,000,000 in income tax payments by the residents of Pennsylvania, alone.

REPRESENTATIVE CAUSTIC ABOUT MELLON TAX PLAN

Washington, Jan. 13—The involved mental state in which some members of congress find themselves after several weeks struggles with the ins and outs of the new tax bill, was described today by Representative Carew, of New York, a democratic member of the ways and means committee, in a circular letter sent to constituents who had addressed to him an identic appeal for approval of the Mellon plan.

"I certainly was glad," said the letter, "to receive this identic letter from you and a number of others, all mailed at the same time and place and many miles away from your home and to learn that you were all devoting yourselves to the solution of these intricate, abstruse and perplexing problems of taxation that congress is trying to rationalize, and I was also delighted to find all great minds running in the same channel, and that you were all in identical phrase expressing approval of the Mellon plan and bill which had not at that time been given out to the public.

"It was with special and great confidence that I told my colleagues on the ways and means committee, who were then all dizzy trying to understand sections 1, 2 and 3 of Secretary Mellon's bill, which you of course, know deferentiates liquidating partial and liquidating total incremental dividends and both of these again from primitive and accumulative capital assets distributions, applying to the first the rule in Taylor's theorem, to the second the integral and to the last the differential, and to all as a prime factory the logarithmic abolssa with normal exponents into the parabolic function—I told my colleagues, all in a complete state of hypertrophic mental coma and paralaxis, that we need work no more as I was sure you would come right down to Washington and elucidate the whole problem P. D. Q., et Q. E. D.

"Thanking you for all the help you have given us in your letter which somiraculously came from so many different parts of the United States at once, we all look forward to soon hearing from you all again on any subject you know less about, such as the bonus."

"Taxistically yours,
"John F. Carew.

"P. S.—The foregoing is not intended for you, but for the subcellar propagandist who bunoped you into signing the letter. Please send it to him."

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN ABANDONED CISTERN

Bluffton, Ohio, Jan. 13.—The body of Mrs. Katherine Mohler, 770, who disappeared seven weeks ago, was found in an abandoned cistern at her home. The head, legs and arms had been severed and were found buried with the torso.

William Mohler, 78, husband of the dead woman, was arrested and taken to Lima to be questioned by the county authorities.

The body was found by searching parties which, spurred on by an offer of $500, made by Mohler last Tuesday, for information leading to the location of his wife, have scoured the Mohler farm and the countryside for miles around.

The cistern in which the body was found is located in a shed. It was partially filled with refuse, on top of which was a layer of ashes covered with corn fodder.

NEW YORK POLICE FORCE ACTIVE SINCE SHAKEUP

New York, Jan. 13.—Police Commissioner Enright's drastic shakeup of the police force for alleged failure of high officials to enforce the federal prohibition law, brought immediate results last night and today when a total of 312 arrests were made in a series of raids on cabarets, saloons, dance halls and "speak easies." MR. AND MRS. COOLIDGE VISIT NEGRO VALET

Washington, Jan. 13—Negro residents of the northwest section of Washington got the thrill that comes only once in a lifetime today when President and Mrs. Coolidge went calling in their midst. The call was made on Arthur Brooks, negro valet to presidents since the Taft administration, who has been confined to his home for several weeks by illness.

Stepping into his automobile after attending church services, Mr. Coolidge asked to be driven to Brooks home. Great excitement prevailed in the vicinity of Brooks home when a big car bearing the White House coat of arms drew up at one of the modest red brick homes there, and the word was flashed up and down the block that the president and his wife were visiting one of their number.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge spent about fifteen minutes with Brooks, expressing their hopes for his recovery, and receiving Brooks thanks for the flowers which have been sent him from the white house conservatories during his illness.

RULES COMMITTEE REPORTS TO REACH HOUSE TODAY

Washington, Jan. 13.—The rules fight in the house, forced by the republican insurgents as a condition to the re-election of Speaker Gillett, will break tomorrow. It will center on the report of the rules committee which is unsatisfactory to both the insurgents and the democrats.

The main points at isue are the recommendation of the committee that petitions for the discharge of committees from the consideration of legislation must bear 150 signatures and its refusal to repeal the Underwood rule which restricts amendments from the floor to tariff and revenue bills.

Amendment to the rules will be offered by both the democrats and the insurgents. HOMER S. CUMMINGS FOR NOMINATION OF M'ADOO

Washington, Jan. 13—Democratic leaders here to choose a convention city and to discuss other business matters at the national committee meeting Tuesday found themselves tonight entangled in a maze of political discussion centering around the choice of a presidential nominee.

Friends of William G. McAdoo, were especially active and promised a demonstration for the party chieftains before the meeting is over. Supporters of Senator Underwood, of Alabama, were busy presenting his cause.

The New York delegation, which will present the name of Governor Al Smith, will arrive tomorrow. William J. Bryan, who today announced the name of Dr. A. A. Murphee, of Gainesville, Fla., for consideration, is also to be here as an interested observer."

The McAdoo forces are expected to try to advance his cause in the choice by the committee of a convention city, and other swings.

Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, former national chairman brought Mr. McAdoo's name before the party chieftains tonight in a formal statement declaring choice of the former secretary of the treasury, was the "logical, desirable and inevitable."

"The issues of the coming campaign are rapidly crystallizing around the two candidates—Mr. Coolidge, representing the reactionary influences, and Mr. McAdoo, representing the progressive sentiment of the country," said Mr. Cummings. "It is a natural alignment and as these two men more clearly and perfectly embody these two conflicting schools of thought, than any others now before the public, it is logical that both be nominated.

"The Democratic party has a program that is the direct antithesis of this policy of reaction and hopeless floundering. More than any other man, Mr. McAdoo represents the great body of opinion of the democratic party."

VIGOROUS REINVESTMENT DEMAND FOR SECURITIES

New York, Jan. 13 (By the A. P.)—Pronounced ease in money and a vigorous reinvestment demand for securities were the chief points of interest in business and financial circles during the past week. The developments were the more prominent because trade was in the period of post-holiday quietness and industrial news was inconclusive.

Relaxation in the money market brought the call rate of the New York stock exchange down to 3 3-4 per cent. and resulted in time money and commercial paper lending as low as 4 3-4 per cent. at that center. These rates were not firmly established but loans were made at this figure, and borrowers refused to pay more. Call money was cheaper than at any time since September 24, and the time and commercial paper rates were lower than at any time since the early weeks of last year.

While the immediate cause of the decline in the price of money is the passing of the special demands which arise from holiday trade and year-end settlements, it is clear that two other fundamental factors have been at work. One is the gradual slackening in business activity which has taken place since last spring.

The other is the heavy and continued influx of foreign gold. A reflection of these changes is found in current statements of the Federal Reserve banks.

DYNAMITED SAFE IN GEORGETOWN POSTOFFICE

Georgetown, Conn., Jan. 13.—Safe-blowers late last night dynamited the safe in the local post office and made off with approximately $1,000 in stamps, and cash. Entrance to the place was gained through a rear window.

Shortly after the railroad station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was entered but nothing was taken.

It is believed that the robbers were the same as those who Friday night broke into two stations of the New Haven road at Moosup and Wauregan, a restaurant in Moosup and the post office in Central Village. The men were probably traveling in an automobile as about 75 miles separates the scenes of their activities in Friday and Saturday nights.

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1052

After a lapse of almost a year another break was made into the H. C. Murray Co. Boston store either late Friday night or more likely in the early hours of Saturday morning. Entrance was made in about the same manner and through the window as on the previous occasions but there are grounds for the belief that it was effected by another thief or thieves. A small window in the rear of the building between the Murray block and the Chevalier building was broken through and two iron bars had been pried apart after the catch had been released and the window raised. The burglar had to climb over a six foot boarding to get into the alleyway. After forcing himself through the window the instrument then dropped quite a distance onto the main floor of the building. It has not yet been stated whether or not any money or merchandise had been taken. On the ground within a few feet of the broken window was found a steam fitter's pipe-cutting wrench, capable of cutting a pipe four inches in diameter. A piece of cloth was wound around the wrench which was taken by the police for identification. It is believed to have been stolen from a construction job in the city.

Janitor Bert Magrin discovered the break shortly before 7 o'clock Saturday morning and after notifying James B. Bish, of the company, Chief MacArthur and Lieutenant McLean of the police department started an investigation.

This is the third or fourth time that the Murray store has been broken into within two years. The last break was made January 6, 1932, when burglars rifled a dozen or more cash registers and secured about $200.

NEW LONDON COUNCIL MEETING WILL PROVE FULL OF FIREWORKS TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 16.—The meeting of the city council Monday evening should be of interest. The members of the planning board are waiting for an expenditure of that newly formed cabinet to the city's executive branch of service, that the board may get to work and do what circumstances have shown it is their duty to do. The board of relief is still a subject one member said that place kept by filed. As usual there are many objections to the assessments levied against property by Assessor Burrows and the board of relief is to listen to the accounts the real estate owners will make gainst the judgment of the assessor and the board members. One of his planning Commissioner William Crowe was a candidate for the place at the last meeting of the council but he was defeated because certain members had promised Louis B. Lassola, at his solicitation, that they would vote for him.

Now Mr. Lassola has obtained employment out of town and he has cast his attention to the board of relief to the winds. So there is still a vacancy. Whether Mr. Crowe will accept an election now it is learned by him, in view of the treachery of one or more members of the council, is not known, but his friends say the place will be offered to him. The project of erecting a junior high school building is apt to be a matter of serious contention at the meeting.

If more district schools are needed Mr. Fog and other members of the council are ready to vote to provide them, but they claim that the junior high school is not a necessity or anything like a monopoly. One of their number is quoted as having said that the grammar school now in existence was provided to make a place for a favorite of members of the common council, when that school was established and that that was the beginning of the plan to get away from the graduation of pupils from the district to the high schools. It is pointed out that a greater number of pupils then went to the colleges from the high schools than now get there without post-graduate instruction. It is also held that too much attention is devoted to sports and too little to studies in the higher schools of New London, and that the provision of a junior high school is a perpetuation of the sport system.

It would appear from the gallery that the board of school visitors was willing to take most any sort of a building if they would get the council to give them the money and the right to erect it, and that there is no agreed plan and capacity of a building in contemplation.

A considerable number of Italian residents of this city went to Hartford this afternoon to attend the presentation of the opera of Aida in Italian. The singers are all Italians.

A thief gained entrance to the Young Women's Christian association Saturday night, and it is believed the work was in the building when the break was discovered. About 10:45 o'clock the housekeeper discovered that the place had been entered, when one of the windows of the kitchen was found broken. A telephone message was sent to the police station and Patrolman William Babcock discovered that the thief had smashed the window close to the lock and thrusting in his hand, unfastened the window permitting him to enter. A search of the place did not reveal any plunder being obtained and it is believed that the crook was scared away. The housekeeper informed the officer that just before the latter arrived she heard the back entrance being unfastened and it is believed that it was the crook departing by that means of egress.

Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Following the accident the boy was under treatment at Lawrence hospital, remaining at that institution until two weeks ago, when he was transferred to the Hartford institution.

Mrs. Alice Hunt of Niantic, who received the appointment of policewoman eight months ago and who recently rendered her resignation, relinquished her duties Saturday. The council will, it is expected, appoint a police matron in conformity with the state statute, at a meeting of that body soon.

Miss Margaret Heath, of Groton, Charles Kair of Waterford and Mrs. Latham Packer of West Mystic, were patients discharged at Home Memorial hospital Saturday.

Nathan Niles, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Niles of 519 Bank street, sustained painful burns Saturday noon when he attempted to subdue a blaze that threatened serious damage to the Niles' home. A gasoline stove was being used for heating purposes when the tank became ablaze, a quantity of the liquid reaching the room. Niles attempted to subdue the fire by smothering it with blankets and got the burns on his hands and arms. Pedestrians were attracted to the house and an alarm was rung in from Box 42, corner of Bank and Howard streets. The firemen made a quick run, but bystanders extinguished the blaze and before damage of consequence had resulted.

Wiersch was taken into custody by Traffic Officer John Clifford, on duty corner of Bank and Howard streets, when Wiersch failed to obey a signal. Wiersch explained his failing to have an operator's license as due to having lost his wallet containing the license and $35 since leaving his home earlier in the day.

Madar Nahas of Main street will be in the police court Monday morning, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of Charles Robinson, 10 a colored youth, residing at 14 Federal street.

Patrolman George McCaskey reported a dangerous condition of the sidewalk in front of the Union Bank & Trust company, State street, today, caused by the falling away of a section of a hatchway.

He was locked up in default of a surety on his bond for appearance in the police court tomorrow. Complaint was made to the police and Sergeant Charles Hammond and Patrolman Patrick Sheehan placed Arionchuk under arrest.

JEWETT CITY

The current number of the National Geographic Magazine, has a strange story about Reelfoot lake in Tennessee, with official photographs by the U. S. Army Air Service, that becomes of local interest. This lake is of volcanic origin and connected with the cause for its appearance is a beautiful Indian legend, which the Geographic narrates in full.

Later scientific investigation with the possible solution of the mystery in view, brought to light a letter written by Elizabeth Bryan, at New Madrid, to her pastor, Rev. Lorenzo Dow, telling of the strange occurrence as recorded by witness in December 1811. Henry B. Stanton tells in his book about Lorenzo Dow. No older resident of this town recalls old folklor etales heard at his mother's knee, that did not incude something about this distinguished preacher. Mr. Stanton says he was one of the strangest and most widely known Methodist clergyman that this section ever knew, for his home was near Griswold. His was a quaint and stately dignity, and when engaged in the full power of his sermons, his manners overstepped all bounds. When in a church he stood sometimes on the altar stairs to soon advance part way down the aisle, the better to urge his message home. He travelled widely according to local records, and filled every requirement of the then itinerant preacher. In Tennessee as in Griswod, according to the Geographic, people in all walks of life made no hesitation in confiding both troubles and secrets to Lorenzo Dow. In the first Congregational church in Pachaug he predicted over one hundred years ago, that the church would become Baptist and that the steeple would some time be immersed in the Pachaug river which runs by the door. A narrative is recalled which many here have heard without suspecting the identity of its author. Reverend Dow was not adverse on certain occasions to taking a little nip as a fortification for his strenuous ministerial duties. One hot summer day, before going to preach at a special meeting somewhere in the south part of the town, he dropped in a moment to see his old friend and councilor Captain Charles Fanning. Before the parting, so the story goes, the Captain asked him if he would take a little drop? His answer was given in his characteristic way. Said he: "I am not dry nor hungery, I have not need of eating, but fill the cup I'll drink it up, to fit me for the meeting."

E. E. Burleson remembers a story told him by his grandmother.

Preceding one of his memorable sermons, a one time Griswold resident, having suffered the loss of a valuable axe by the theft, called Mr. Dow out behind the horse sheds near the place where he was to deliver his discourse, and telling him of his loss, implored his aid in locating the guilty party. The Reverend upon entering the pulpit, is said to have taken a stone the size of an egg, from his coat pocket, and laid it on the pulpit beside his well worn bible. In the middle of his sermon he stopped short: "A man in this audience has stolen an axe," he said, "And I know who it is." And picking up the heavy missile he shouted: "I am going to hit him with this stone." When he drew back his arm a man sitting away back near the stove hurriedly ducked behind the seat. "There he is" said the preacher, as he proceded with his sermon.

The "pro" and "con" arguments as to whether or not the Jewett City fire company shall answer outside the borough calls for help, get an other "con" jolt, Saturday night. Chief Wakely was called from his bed at 11:30 Saturday evening by the ringing of his emergency telephone. Hurrying to answer he heard that an automobile was afire near the Bigood blacksmith shop, in Pachaug, three miles away and far from connection with exting...isher service. The chief, believing it a call to duty, hurriedly rustled out a coupe at the garage, secured three extinguishers and drove the three miles to Pachaug hitting high points only. Arriving at the place indicated, everything was dark and normal, with a dance in the grange hall proceeding with its accustomed harmony. Chief Wakely always ready when help is needed, said he gave breathed a few cuss word.

The chief was told that an automobile driver had procured a quantity of gasoline in an 8-gallon can in trying to hit the narrow tank opening in the dark, the gasoline went all over the ground as well as part of the machine. A match was lighted then thrown down. The back of the automobile and the saturated earth blazed up some. The machine, still blazing, beat it down the line. No body knows its owner.

Chief Wakely, declares here was no need of the call when a few shovels full of sand would put out the blaze.

Chief Wakely has received no end of praise and commendation for the efficient assistance of his company after given outside the borough limits.

Ocean-Going Log Rafts.

To compete successfully with the high-priced timber of the southwest, a resourceful log importer of San Diego has, it is reported, adopted an ingenious method of shipping lumber from Oregon to southern California. Gigantic rafts are made of the logs and they are towed down the Pacific coast behind small steamers.

The rafts are cigar-shaped and average 700 feet in length, 30 feet in depth and 70 feet across. Two-thirds of the raft is under water. The chains on a single raft weigh 115 tons and cost $10,000.

The first sea-going log boom made its 1,000-mile trip twelve years ago, and since then more than sixty of the huge rafts have followed that course.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Incident to reading his annual report at the masses St. James' church Sunday, Rev. John Roux, M. S., announced that he was closing his pastorate here. This came as a very great surprise to the congregations. There had been no intimation that Father Roux was to be transferred. It is likely that he will leave today for Bloomfield, where the novitiate of Lesalette Order of Missionaries, of which he is a member, is located.

Father Roux's going away is a source of deep regret to his parishioners here. He has been identified with St. James' parish at three different times during the period of his priesthood. His first assignment here was in May, 1902, shortly after his ordination, and he remained until August, 1904. He was returned in July, 1905, and remained until August, 1909. During both of these assignments he was a curate.

Seven years ago, Father Roux again was assigned to Danielson, again as a curate under Rev. M. J. Gingt, M. S., whom he succeeded as pastor, three years ago. During all of his six years of service in Danielson Father Roux has come to know the parish and its missions and its people thoroughly and has won an abiding place for himself in the hearts of the people. He has carried on with signal success the constructive work of the pastors that preceded him, and it was his satisfaction Sunday in the reading of the annual parish report to announce that the receipts for 1923 was just short of $90,000, and the largest in the history of the parish, a history of which goes back more than half a century.

Outstanding in all the good work that Father Roux has accomplished here, both as a curate and as pastor, is the acquiring during the past year at a cost of approximately $10,000, of three dwellings, adjoining the church property and the inauguration fo a program and the establishment of a fund for the erection of a new parochial school. The fund for this school, on which construction may be undertaken in 1924, has been steadily growing during the past year as the result of generous giving of the parishioners at monthly collections. When completed the school will be a monument to Father Roux's zeal in his life work, in which Danielson has shared so importantly and he will ever be remembered here for all his earnest effort.

Father Roux was particularly pleased over the generosity of the people during the year that has just closed and spoke feelingly to his congregations of this and their other evidences of good will while making his farewell announcement as pastor.

No announcement was made Sunday as to the priest who is to come here as pastor to succeed Father Roux.

Mrs. Mary Adline Shumway, 67, widow of Judge Milton A. Shumway, a former justice of the supreme court of errors of Connecticut, died just before 9 o'clock Saturday morning at the Day Kimball hospital, Putnam, where she had been a patient about two weeks and where she had undergone a surgical operation. The body was removed to Danielson by Undertaker A. F. Wood Saturday forenoon and is now at the Shumway home on North Main street.

Mrs. Shumway's condition had been critical for several days prior to her death and hope for her recovery was practically abandoned Friday. Her death such a short time after that of her husband, who passed away unexpectedly October 20, was a great shock to her friends and removes from the circles in which she was active, a woman who was generally loved.

Mrs. Shumway was born in Canterbury, a daughter of Sylvanus M. and Hannah Lucas Woodward and would have been 68 February 19. Her entire life had been spent here and hereabouts, her marriage to Judge Shumway taking place March 7, 1876. Their devotion to each other was very marked and the death of the husband seemed to depress Mrs. Shumway very deeply. There are no children. Mrs. Frederick Brooks of Dedham is a sister of Mrs. Shumway and Lee Woodward of Hartford is a brother.

Many organizations in which Mrs. Shumway was interested will deeply regret her passing. She was untiring and succesful in her efforts to promote worthy enterprises to further cultural organizations and their aims.

PUTNAM

Paul J. Geroux, of Webster, drove a party to Putnam Saturday afternoon to take the New York express. The car was parked at the railroad station and while the owner was absent someone drove against the machine breaking a mudguard. Geroux tried to learn what car caused the damage but being unable to do so notified Captain of Police William Jarvis.

Main street was thrown somewhat off its equilibrium, Saturday, because some time during Friday night the clock in the steeple of the Congregational church came to a stop. All day, Saturday the hands failed to move, standing at twenty minutes to one. Even though Putnam prides itself on being a bustling little city it still maintains a bit of the early past when there were no paved streets, no automobiles and when the fire apparatus was drawn by hand, in the "town clock." So it is called and so it is still known, and when the clock refuses to function the city is off balance until it begins to tick again.

It has been noted that for some weeks the old clock has very slowly tolled the strokes of the hours. Whether it has worked out a part with age, or whether it has just run down the public is not informed, but until it once more tells the time of day a part of the life of the business section will be missing and pocket timepieces will receive harder usage than when the clock is relied upon.

State's Attorney Charles E. Searls delivered an address on What Constitutes a Good Citizen before an audience in the Bradley theatre, Sunday afternoon. The meeting was held at 2.45 o'clock, under the auspices of the Citizens' Alliance. There was a programme of vocal and instrumental music. Lewis F. Batley, principal of the evening school, presided. The meeting was for the purpose of instruction, entertainment and in spreading the doctrine of good citizenship.

Mr. Searls, a forceful speaker, emphasized as some of the attributes of good citizenship, respect for authority, respect for the laws, respect for the rights of others and respect for oneself.

A letter written to Dr. William Sharpe, who died some years ago, was received in Putnam, Friday. The letter was opened by Dr. Sharpe's son, the younger Dr. Sharpe, and proved to be from Daniel Sharpe, who had not been heard from in the past quarter of a century or more. Daniel Sharpe was a brother of the late Dr. Sharpe and apparently had not learned of his brother's death. In the letter, just received, Mr. Sharpe, who is 88, and lives in Winthrop with his daughter, states that he is able to get about and to go to the city and likes to attend the movies. He is also a brother of Dr. O. C. Sharpe of Danielson.

Lawyers in Putnam, members of the State Bar Association, have received notices that the annual meeting of the association will be held in the supreme court room, Bridgeport, January 21st. State's Attorney C. E. Searls, a past president of the association, is a member of the nominating committee. The president will deliver his annual address and the speakers will include, Dean Harlan F. Stone of Columbia University Law School. The annual dinner will be held at the University club at 7 p. m. Hon. Robert E. Lee Saner, of Dallas, Texas, president of the American Bar Association, and Judge Arthur F. Ellis of Waterbury, will be the speakers at the dinner.

Sheriff Osborne of Webster and the Worcester county jailer were in Putnam, Friday, looking up Arthur Randolph, recently committed to the Windham county jail at Brooklyn for his participation in the burglary at the home of Miss Dorothy Bees, of Thompson, when a quantity of wines and liquors were stolen.

The Massachusetts officer alleges that Randolph is wanted in Worcester county to serve thirteen months of an unexpired sentence at the county jail for larceny. The young man formerly lived in Webster but since his discharge from the army has made his home in Putnam where he married a Putnam girl. If Randolph proves to be the man wanted an effort will be made to have him returned to Massachusetts. Whether the man made his escape from the Worcester county institution or whether he was paroled, the officers did not say. The sheriff and jailer visited Brooklyn jail, late Friday afternoon to see Randolph.

When the final whistle blew in the basketball game betwene Plainfield High and Putnam High, Friday night, the visitors from down the river had rolled up two points to Putnam's one. The score stood, Plainfield High 28, Putnam High 14.

While Putnam fought hard all the way the most ardent Putnam fan had to concede that their favorites were outclassed and the visiting quintette won on its merits. The game was clean throughout and at no time was Putnam dangerous. The outcome was a foregone conclusion and there was nothing to cause thrills for the spectators on the sidelines. However, the best of spirit prevailed and there was the best of feeling after Putnam had taken a well deserved trimming at the hands of a faster and heavier team.

Sidney W. Bard, lay reader of St. Alban's church, Danielson, conducted the Sunday morning service at St. Philip's church, this city. The motor of the organ having been repaired the instrument was in use again. The parish meeting of the church will be held Friday evening, next, preceded by a turkey supper.

H. H. Davenport of Pomfret and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Rogers of this city will leave Tuesday by automobile for St. Petersburg, Fla. Mrs. Davenport will join the party in the Peninsular State city, having already left for the south. The party plan to spend two weeks on the trip south.

Mary Adeline Woodward, 67, widow of Justice Milton A. Shumway, died at the Day Kimball hospital late Friday night, following an operation some days before for appendicitis.

Mrs. Shumway was born in Canterbury in February, 1856, and would have been 68 years old had she lived until next month. She was the daughter of Sylvinus N. and Hannah Lucas Woodward. Most of her life had been spent in Danielson where she married Mr. Shumway, then a practicing attorney, March 7, 1876. Mr. Shumway became a judge of the superior court and later a justice of the Connecticut supreme court of errors. He was retired a few years ago, having reached the age limit of 70. Mr. Shumway died last fall and his death had a depressing effect upon Mrs. Shumway who expressed herself as indifferent as to whether she recovered from her operation or not.

A motorist coming along the state highway near Pomfret station at 4 o'clock Sunday morning saw flames shooting out of the roof of the Johnson place about a mile distant. He made a fast run to the burning house and awakened Edwin K. P. Jones and the members of his family, all escaping in their night clothes and barely in time to save their lives. The house was destroyed. The members of the Jones family were taken to the home of William Hanley.

Sunday evening, the automobile of Charles Parker, of Brooklyn was in collision with a pole on Grove street. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Basset and their daughter, Winifred, about 16 months old, were passengers in the car and Mrs. Bassett and the child were somewhat injured. They were given treatment at the Day Kimball hospital and later returned to their home.

STONINGTON

Motor fire apparatus for Stonington borough was assured Saturday by action of the committee of citizens, appointed to study this matter, when two triple combination pumpers and a hook and ladder were decided upon. These will cost about $22,000.

WESTERLY

Rev. Arthur E. Tarbell, assistant superintendent of the Rhode Island Anti-Saloon League, addressed the Sunday morning congregation at Calvary Baptist church on The Washington Conference. Rev. Mr. Tarbell said that two places in Rhode Island had favorably impressed him—Newport and Westerly, but with the presidential regime at the mayor of Newport, his opinion had to be changed. Since last Wednesday he had met with church delegates from every state in the Union at Washington, who were opposed to the organized liquor traffic. He said that he had no fear of the outcome in the work of eliminating intoxicating beverages and that he brought a message of optimism and cheer. Right here in Rhode Island, the smallest, richest state, and with the most shifting population with the largest percentage of nationalities, there was some obligation and something to do. Rhode Island, he said, was now where most states were ten years ago. At a banquet recently at which the chairman of the congressional ways and means committee, a strong republican, in company with a minority democrat, was present the question was asked what the chance would be for the reporting of a bill for a modification of the Volstead act to supply revenue for the payment of a bonus. the democrat replied, "As much chance as the czar or president of Russia had to become president of the United States." "Them's my sentiments!" said the chairman.

Major Haines, federal enforcement official, said that 1924 would be a critical year in the Volstead act enforcement. A cheering example was shown in a Chicago judge for many years, who stated that if elected mayor he would clean up the city. He was elected and today Chicago is one of the cleanest cities. Brigadier-General Butler of the safety commission to "clean up" Philadelphia, had electrified the world in the last four days. Rev. Mr. Tarbell said that the duty of a good citizen, after braying for the overthrow of the selfish, debauching, vile organized liquor traffic, on getting up from his knees was the doubling up of his fists and getting busy. Secure the best we can get locally, although Rhode Island is so small geographically nothing it can do will change the national aspect. There is a crowd in Rhode Island whose salaries are paid by the liquor interests and now that whiskey is gone and there are no legalized saloons, a modification is sought for light wines and beers of two per cent or perhaps four per cent alcohol, with the idea that a way may be made and the door opened a crack for the introduction of whiskey. Day before yesterday, lawyers were present on Capitol hill, Providence, and they will be there day after tomorrow for the purpose of securing the repeal of the Sherwood act, the Rhode Island state enforcement act. A Matthewson street saloon keeper deliberately sought the downfall of the reformed liquor user and there are men today who deliberately procure the arrests of men whom they have gotten intoxicated, for the purpose of padding the intoxication arrests. The federal enforcement act makes it the duty of the federal officials to see that the law is obeyed. Under this act there are supplied in Rhode Island Director Sheldon and his assistant, Mr. Sewall, with five field men and two others, to care for drug stores and doctors. Section 3 of the Volstead Act furnishes authority to other police officials, so that besides the nine federal men there are from twelve to fourteen hundred policemen in the state, with four hundred and ninety in Providence. "We should prefer to sweep our own kitchens with our own brooms," said Mr. Tarbell, although Rhode Island has never ratified the eighteenth amendment.

With the cleaning up of Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, without a strong enforcement of the law, Rhode Island will become the dumping ground for liquors, vice, crime and criminals. A duty of the citizen is to prevent passage of legislation to repeal the Sherwood Act. The league plans the introduction of a bill which will make it a crime to own, possess or use a still. Ohio has strong enforcement laws and is ten or fifteen years ahead of Rhode Island. "If the liquor interests win, then the church of Jesus Christ stands licked" said Superintendent Tarbell. Fight for local officers who will do a right kind of a job and support such a man as Representative Davis rather than the other fellow who has no business to represent good people of Westerly, for he is sent there by another class. Get in touch with Senator Datson and Representative Davis and let them know you want the bill passed to put in jail a man who owns, uses or possesses a still. Let Representative Turano know that your eyes are turned towards him and so work in caucus.

The organized liquor traffic is afraid of two things, the organized church of Jesus Christ and organized womanhood. Do you want Watch Hill to have the same reputation as Block Island? You're getting it! is not necessary. If the bootlegger is not stopped, get an official who does the job, or cut his head off.

Before a big crowd, the South Manchester basketball team defeated the Battery E five of the 243d Field Artillery in their armory on Dixon street, Saturday night, 36-32. Several minutes of the first period had elapsed before a goal was caged, but the time was filled with clever pass work, covering and blocking of opponents by the players of each team. Right Forward Mullins of the Manchester aggregation was the brilliant player of the period having six goals to his credit. The visiting team was accurate in their goal shooting and many times successfully blocked the Battery players goal shoots. The Manchester boys gained the jump on their adversaries in the first period, maintaining their point lead to the finish of the game. The first period ended South Manchester 23, Battery E 14. Just previous to the start of the game Coach Rogers appealed to the sportsmanship of the spectators, urging them to refrain from handling the ball during the play.

In the second period the Battery E men moved up on their opponents, both teams playing at top speed until they were within one goal of the Connecticut players. The score at the time was 28 to 30. In this half Dion was substituted for Spencer and Mullins played center for the visitors. The playing of both teams was free from unnecessary roughness and Referee Rogers called but few fouls during the play. The Manchester players had loyal rooters among some Stonington fans who witnessed the game. The final score stood: South Manchester 36, Battery E 32.

The Submarine basketball team from the New London base will be the opponents of Battery E here next Saturday evening.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Little Friendly

Little Friendly isn't her name,
But it fits her just the same,
If you don't believe it, look
In some dictionary book.
There you'll see the name defined
As somebody good and kind.
That's what Little Friendly is—
Else my soul's got rheumatism!

Tell you what's a fact—she'd go
Miles to bind a kitten's toe.
Then declare the pay for her
Was its grateful little purr.
Dogs, if they could talk, would say:
"Friendly come the other day
Took a thistle from my knee,
Then set there a-petting me."

Little things she does is what
Warms your heart right on the spot
Shuts a open cistern lid,
Keeps the green persimmons hid;
Wipes a baby's nose and makes
Fair divides of ginger cakes;
Stingy younguns, afters while,
Learn from her to give and smile.

If some mother's sick she'll do
Things nobody told her to;
Slip in through the kitchen door,
Wash the dishes up before
Anybody knows she's there—
Like some angel, unaware.
Little Friendly—mother-wife—
Won't she 'sweeten some one's life?

Seven Times One

There's no dew left on the daisies and clover,
There's no rain left in Heaven.
I've said my "seven times" over and over—
Seven times one are seven.

I am old—so old I can write a letter,
My birthday lessons are done.
The lambs play always—they know no better;
They are only one times one.

O Moon! In the night I have seen you sailing
And shining so round and low.
You are bright—ah, bright—but your light is failing;
You are nothing now but a bow.

You Moon! Have you done something wrong in Heaven,
That God has hidden your face?
I hope, if that you have, you will soon be forgiven,
And shine again in your place.

O velvet bee! You're a dusty fellow—
You've powdered your legs with gold.
O brave marsh Mary-buds, rich and yellow,
Give me your money to hold!

O Columbine! Open your folded wrapper,
Where two twin turtle-doves dwell!
O Cuckoopint! Toll me the purple clapper
That hangs in your clean green bell!

And show me your nest, with the young ones in it—
I will not steal them away;
I am old. You may trust me, linnet, linnet!
I am seven times one today.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDEAWAKES

From Africa, the continent which always has more or less fascination for the boy or girl as a land of wonders, comes a story of cloth made from the bark of trees. The "tree cloth" is made from the bark of a tree that grows in the tropical part of Africa, and it is used for a variety of purposes. For many years the dusky natives of that far away country have used this peculiar kind of cloth and with them it takes the place of our cotton cloth.

The natives have an interesting way of making this bark cloth. They strip the bark from the trees in long strips. The inner part of the bark is used to make the cloth. With a heavy mallet they beat the bark to a thickness of heavy brown paper. Then they lay the beaten bark out in the hot sun to dry and in drying it takes on a terra-cotta shade. Whenever there are holes or bad places, flaws they are called, in the cloth, they are patched up, the natives using fine strips of fibre as thread. The cloth is then made into sheets about eight feet long and eight feet wide and is ready for use.

One of the many uses to which this cloth is put is in making sifter baskets. The bark is also used to make door hinges, rope, cord, thread, drinking vessels, grain containers, beehives, cradles, nets, game traps, fishing lines cradles and blankets. The natives, by long practice, show considerable skill in making bark cloth and considering the fact that they have little to work with except their hands their achievements in the cloth manufacturing business, is quite remarkable.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDEAWAKES

Our Flag

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wideawakes and I hope they will enjoy my story.

I know that all the Wideawakes love the American flag. I know, too, that when you become men and women, you will be willing to die for the flag.

Every inch of our dear flag, every star and every stripe, stands for liberty and freedom. It is the flag of the free and the brave. It is the flag your forefathers died to save. It is the flag that protects every American today.

I know you understand all this but I will tell you how it was made. When George Washington was fighting to make our country free, he went one day to Philadelphia and asked Mrs. Ross to make a flag for him. She said that she did not know how. Washington showed her how to do it. Then Mrs. Ross set to work. In about three days the flag was finished. She made the stripes red and white, and one corner of the flag blue. In this corner, she put thirteen stars.

When George Washington saw the flag, which Mrs. Ross had made, he was well pleased with it. And ever since then, it has been our flag—the flag of the free and the brave.

A Christmas Gift

Dear Uncle Jed: Christmas morning when I awoke, I went into the living room. There were many packages. The first one I opened was a manicure set. It was just what I wanted.

ELLA ANDERSON, Age 9
Danielson.

My Christmas Presents.

Dear Uncle Jed: I will write and tell you a few things about how I fared at Christmas.

I had two packages, that is to say, our family had two packages arrive here before Christmas so we opened them. I had a calendar and a box of writing paper in one and some handkerchiefs and a box of writing paper in the other. I also had a box of writing paper and a handkerchief on the tree at school.

We had our Christmas tree at home on Sunday night and I got a pink dress and a lovely bag to match. I had a game of Pollyanna and two books in the Girl Scouts series.

Then I went down to the schoolhouse where I was in a play. After the play we had another Christmas tree on which I got a box of candy and a handkerchief. After this the people of the Sunday school distributed a small box of Christmas candy and a nickel to all of the children. I took my baby brother and got him some too.

Then the next day we went up to my grandfather's where we had goose for dinner. After dinner we had a Christmas tree up there on which I got a number of nice things.

I think I fared pretty well and hope the rest of the Wide-Awakes did, too.

My Pet Cats.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would tell you about my pet cats. I have a gray one and a yellow one. They can do many tricks. If I walk across the room the gray cat takes hold of my ankles. The gray cat fights all the dogs around here.

ROY BUGBEE, Age 9.
Jewett City.

In School

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter I have written to you and hope you will like my story. I am in the fifth grade. My teacher's name is Mrs. Soule. I like her very much. Once we had a spelling match and I won the spelling match. I think my teacher likes me. She gave me a Christmas game. I was very glad.

Saw Santa Claus

Dear Uncle: Perhaps you would like to hear about Santa Claus. One day I went to Norwich. As I was walking along the street, I heard a noise which sounded like the beating of drums. I looked and saw old Santa Claus coming. He was riding in an automobile. It was decorated in red, green and white. Santa was all bundled up in a warm coat, trimmed with fur. He was going to Porteous & Mitchell's to meet the boys and girls. When he reached the store he found many girls and boys waiting for him. After he went into the store I did not see him for a long time. We waited awhile and then we saw him with all his toys.

A Sad Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as Arthur Long laid down under an elm tree he began to think of Charlie Jones. He said, "Oh, if only wish that I was Charlie Jones, because he had a pony and a lot of money." Meanwhile he fell asleep and began dreaming that he was Charlie. So after a while he heard a strange voice call, "Come Charlie, get up." He saw that he was in a strange room. He got up out of bed and saw the clothes on the side of the bed. He dressed and then went to the dining room and saw a very old lady, very cross sitting at the table. She was scolding him so he could not eat his breakfast. After breakfast he had to study some very hard lessons to recite to Mr. Smith, who was a very particular old man. After his lessons he went to ride his pony but still was not satisfied. After this Arthur Long did not wish to become anybody else.

MURIEL LONG, Age 15.

The Cork Tree.

Dear Uncle Jed: The cork tree grows in Italy, Spain and other countries. It is an evergreen, and about the size of our apple tree. Its bark is stripped in order to obtain the cork, which is soaked and then dried. The moment the bark is peeled off, it begins to grow another cork-skin, and each new one is better than the last, so the older it is the better the cork is.

The cork tree is stripped about every eight years. They often live to the age of 200 years.

Its chief use is stoppers for bottles, buoys which float, in making life preservers to save people from drowning, soles for boots, fancy rockwork, largely for life boats.

After the bark is stripped off, it is trimmed, dried and flattened out, and shipped to all parts of the world.

Fluffy's Shower Bath

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a hot summer's night and Fluffy stole quietly out of the house. I ran after him but did not catch him because he ran under the piazza. I was thinking how to get him out when I thought of the hose. I played the hose on the piazza and the cat came running out and went into the house. When I want to get anything out of the piazza again I shall take the hose.

Webster and the Old Woman

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope all the Wide-Awakes will be interested in reading this story.

When Daniel Webster was a young lawyer he was going home one night. There was snow on the ground and it was very cold. It was late and there was nobody to be seen. But after a while he saw a poor woman. She was walking ahead of him and he wondered what brought her out on such a cold night. Webster kept out of her sight. But he watched her. After looking around she turned down the street on which Webster lived.

She looked around and listened. There was loose boards in front of his house to walk on from the gate to the door. After standing still a minute she picked up a board and walked off quickly. Webster followed her, but kept out of her sight. She went to a distant part of the town and went into a poor house. Daniel went home without saying a word. He knew she had stolen the board for firewood. The next day she got a present of a nice load of wood from Daniel Webster.

VIRGINIA VARS, Age 9.

Frederick Barbarossa

Dear Uncle Jed: Many years ago Germany had a great and just emperor called Frederick Barbarossa. The name Barbarossa was given to him because of his long red beard.

When he was an old man he undertook a journey to the Holy Land, taking with him 160,000 of his soldiers. On day this great army had to cross a broad river. The emperor without waiting to dismount from his horse plunged into the stream and was drowned. The broken-hearted soldiers carried the body back to Germany and placed it in a deep vault on a mountainside.

About Citizenship

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter I have written to you. I will write a short account of naturalisation. Naturalisation is a process by which a person born in a foreign country may become a citizen of the United States. The United States law requires that a person who wishes to become a citizen must have lived in the United States for five years and he must declare his intention to become a citizen at least two years before he may be naturalised. This is done before a United States or a state court. The applicant is then given his first papers, showing that he has applied for naturalization.

Two years or more after receiving these first papers he must again go before the court and swear that he gives up his citizenship in his own country, and accepts citizenship in the United States. He then is given a certificate showing that he is a citizen of the United States and has the privileges of a citizen.

PAULINE NAWROCKI, Age 12.

My Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: My cat's name is Buster. He is three years and a half old and is pure white. I like to play with him. He will walk on his hind feet for a piece of meat. I like to see him jump and catch mice. Sometimes he will watch over an hour at a place where he knows there is a mouse.

A Story About Gypsies

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my father told me that there were some gypsies in the woods. I had never seen any gypsies and asked my mother what gypsies looked like. One day my father took us to the tent. There was a crowd of people there. They tell fortunes for 50 cents.

WOMAN CUTS HER THROAT—FOUND IN CEMETERY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Fannie Moriarty, 55, suicided Sunday morning by cutting her throat with a razor. It was believed that her act was due to despondency. The Moriarty place is on Killingly avenue, close by the old North Killingly cemetery. Sunday morning Mrs. Moriarty was about as usual, giving her attention to the customary duties about the place. When she did not return from feeding the chickens a search was made for her and her body was found in the cemetery. The wound in her throat made by the razor was so deep that death was almost instantaneous. Mrs. Moriarty was born in Hampton, but had lived in Putnam practically all her life. She was the widow of George Moriarty who died 16 years ago. She leaves three sons, Otis, Harold and Frederick and a daughter Edna.

PLAINFIELD

At the opening service in the newly renovated auditorium at the Congregational church, Sunday morning, the church was filled, a number being present from out of town. A simple service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. William C. Prentiss, followed by the celebration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. A short sermon was preached on "The Gate Beautiful," in which reference was made to the former edifices of 1702, 1726, 1784 and the present one, erected in 1876, stressing the association with the past. The present auditorium, with the new oak floor, new oak pews and redecorated walls and new Colonial windows is admired by all.

The new Lawton memorial organ, gift of Mrs. Georgiana Lawton, was played for the first time in public service by Mrs. Henry Leach. The tones of the organ have a wide range and are remarkable in quality, well adapted to the service of worship. All who were present felt the inspiration and uplift which such an instrument affords. A large choir in charge of Chorister James Royle assisted in the service, rendering the anthem, Sing, O Heaven, by Ashford. James Royle and Christopher Krauss singing a duet which was a feature of the service. Plans are being made for a formal dedication of the organ, and rededication of the church in the spring, when all is completed and the grounds graded.

John Oddy, a student at Tufts Medical college, Boston, and Miss Dorothy Flagg, of Littleton, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Flagg over the week end. Miss Flagg is a sister of Mr. Flagg.

The Lincoln club is holding a regular meeting tonight (Monday) in the Congregational vestry. A roast beef supper is to be served for members at 6.30 by the committee in charge of Clarence Winsor. The guest and speaker of the evening will be Rev. Thomas M. Melrose of Wilds of the Northwest. The music will be in charge of James Royle.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church of Plainfield was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Carl Mathewson. Reports were given showing not only unusual activity but consequent success, which was a source of satisfaction to all. The officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. Carl N. Mathewson; first vice, president, Miss Annie L. Tullinghast; second vice president, Mrs. W. F. Wilson; secretary and treasurer, Miss Ruth A. Hall.

The various committees are to be appointed later by the president. The next meeting is to be with Mrs. Edward Hall.

Mr. and Mrs Lawrence Dresser were in town over Sunday, guests of Mrs. Dressers parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stubbs.

The stockholders of the Lawton Mills Corporation held their annual meeting last week in the Community house. Following the meeting, dinner was served at Lawton inn.

The Girls Friendly society gathered last week for the annual meeting at the home of Misses Alice and Clara Sykes. The rector, Rev. Thomas M. Melrose, opened the meeting with prayer. Reports of an excellent year were rad and accepted. The following officers were selected: Branch secretary, Miss Doris Baxter; recording secretary, Miss Ralph Crocker; treasurer, Miss Alice Sykes. A short address was given by the rector. Refreshments were served and games and tapsie were en[illegible]

Monday morning January 7th at St. John's church, Miss Dorilla Variaut and Henry P. Beausolie were united in marriage by Rev. Richard P. Morisey. These well known young people left on a wedding trip, on their return will reside in Plainfield.

The ladies' gym class is meeting each week at the Community House.

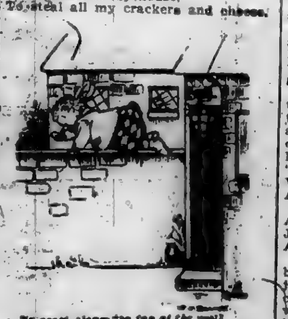
LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Hunting The Gray Mouse

Now, let me see. I promised to tell you in the last story what the Giant whispered in Little Jack Rabbit's ear, after he had looked all around to make sure nobody was near.

"There's a little gray mouse
That comes to my house,
To steal all my crackers and cheese.



He crept along the top of the wall and looked.

She never can find.
But my old cat is blind
This naughty, bad, mouse, if you please."

"Oh, that's not a hard task," laughed the bunny boy. "Lead the way and I'll follow on Dapple Gray."

By and by, after a while, they came to an immense castle on the top of a high hill.

"Here's where I live," said the giant, opening the door. "And there's my old cat asleep by the fire," he added, pointing to a great big cat almost as large as a cow. "But she's so old she's almost blind and when she runs, she stumbles."

"Where does the little mouse live?" asked the bunny boy. But when the giant pointed to a hole in the floor almost as large as the bottom of a milk can, the little rabbit began to look serious.

"Ha, ha," laughed the giant, "are you afraid?"

"Give me time, my dear giant," answered Little Jack Rabbit. "You must leave me alone in the room. Your voice is so loud it frightens even a giant mouse."

As soon as the giant left the room, the little bunny scratched his bar, and tried to think of some way to catch a mouse that was larger than a small dog. And, while he was pondering, a little canary in a cage began to sing:

"If you would catch the giant mouse,
Who lives within the giant's house,
And steals away his crackers and his cheese,
And hides away the pantry keys.
Just climb the top of the castle wall
And wait till you hear an old owl call."

Softly hopping up stairs, the bunny boy at last came to the turret. Then, jumping up on the window-sill, he crept along the top of the wall and waited. But, oh dear me! It was so long a wait, that after a while he thought, "Oh, little canary must have been joking. As the sun went down the puzzled bunny boy said to himself, "If the owl doesn't come now, pretty soon, right away, I'll hop down and give that canary bird a dreadful scolding."

Just then, with a low hoot, an old owl, wearing a silk hat and a pair of spectacles fluttered up to the wall.

"Mr. Owl," said the frightened little bunny boy, "the canary said you would help me catch the great big mouse that steals the cheese in the giant's house. And in the next story you shall hear what that wise old owl said.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

FIGHTING DIVORCE EVIL.

Many movements are inaugurated toward which there is more or less sympathy manifested, but when it comes to the matter of taking action for the curbing of the divorce evil there seems to be reason for general and widespread support.

From time to time there has been advocated the importance of uniform laws dealing with this subject among states of different sections of the country. This was intended to overcome the tendency which now exists of going across state boundary lines for the purpose of escaping the limitations on divorce that might prevail in the state where the people reside. If the same uniformity that has been urged in regard to marriage laws.

With all states bound by the same laws concerning divorce there would be overcome the laxity that now prevails in many states as compared with others. In recognition of that efforts are now being made before the senate judiciary committee at Washington in behalf of a federal divorce law as the means of checking the epidemic that is serious and growing worse.

With a divorce granted in 1923 for every 7.6 marriages as against one for every 9.4 marriages in 1916, it is apparent that good ground exists for the appeal that is made for federal legislation. That would do away with those laws that invite hundreds to Reno for the purpose of divorce which could not be obtained elsewhere. It would not undertake to set up a law against divorce entirely but would be drawn upon lines that are at present recognized in many states, and where the divorce record is considerably below the average for the country.

Uniformity of this character has long been urged without success. There is no certainty that it will get favorable action at this session. The adherence of the states to their rights to make their own laws is always brought to attention even though it is responsible for much of the divorce court business. It is, however, only by persistent effort that success along such lines is obtained.

WATSON'S DECISION.

When Senator James Watson made the announcement that he was not a candidate for the presidential nomination by the republican convention he created no nationwide surprise. The putting forth of his possibility was at all times been looked upon solely as a favorite son movement. It had not been discerned that there was any call from the four corners of the land for him as the party nominee.

In Indiana there have, however, been factional disturbances of one kind and another. Because of them there was a democratic governor of the state and it would be a most unfortunate situation for such a flare-up to develop during a presidential year. That Senator Watson has a large following in the Hoosier state cannot be denied, and the same holds true in regard to other leaders, whose activities would depend to a large degree on whether there was a candidate from the state to create opposition or whether all might get back of someone outside.

By the announcement from Senator Watson he has taken a step that should consolidate the state's effort behind President Coolidge. Factional jealousies are sidetracked and a chance opened to work in a common cause.

The manner in which the country at large is expressing itself for the continuance of Coolidge has no doubt had its influence in this as well as in other instances. Senator Watson has never taken the same kind of attitude that Senator Hiram Johnson has. From the first it has been indicated that he would do as he has done, once it became established that the president was a candidate for reelection and such a candidacy gave evidence of taking. Senator Watson even adds strength to such a candidacy by the course he has taken. He recognizes the demand that has come from all sections of the country, some being from where it was least expected, and he refrains from entering a contest that seems to be about over except the mere formality and the shouting. Senator Watson's action means that Indiana is to be solidly back of the president at Cleveland and thereafter.

PREMIER VENIZELOS.

Those in Greece who sought the return of Venizelos to Greece and to power have succeeded beyond indications. It didn't take long to persuade Venizelos to go back home to help straighten out the political situation and to reestablish the government on new lines. He was sought because he was the one man who could command the greatest support, but he had had experience, and he was anxious to avoid the burdens of leadership. He was nevertheless willing to aid and to give the government and Greece the benefit of his knowledge of Greek affairs. His ill health seemed to argue not such an outcome.

But Greece isn't filled with men that command the same confidence that he does. When the attempt to have another organize the government failed it was natural that appeals should be directed to Venizelos, and even though he was desirous of escaping the premiership he was too much of a Greek and too deeply concerned in its welfare to refuse when the situation was disclosed to him.

Venizelos comes to no new office. He knows its difficulties and he can be relied upon to appreciate the problems before him. He is not going to underestimate the political situation and he is aware of the struggle between those desiring a republic for Greece and those who cling to a monarchy. He likewise appreciates the importance of keeping the Greek government in good repute among the others.

In the former premier Greece has a leader that commands respect, both at home and abroad. It is indeed fortunate in having been able to convince him that he should undertake the responsibilities instead of serving as the adviser of the one that might be chosen to that important office. It means the taking up of the reins which he formally held but under different conditions, and possibly Greece will realize this time that the longer he is given the needed support the better it will be for that country.

NEW YORK'S HARBOR.

Getting business away from the port of New York is not a new undertaking. It hasn't succeeded to any noticeable degree, though there have been grounds for the efforts that have been made.

It is not to be expected that any greater progress would be made at this time, but an opportunity is presented in the statements which have been made by the captains of the Leviathan and the Majestic that the channel into New York harbor is too narrow and that there is not the proper regulation of traffic to safeguard the small as well as the big when it comes to guiding large steamships into the piers of New York.

There is the chance for other cities to point out that they do not experience any such handicap, if they can. It will open the way for them to bid for such business as New York is able to accept only with difficulty and danger, but there is no assurance that it would do any good. There is no reason to believe that such business could be pried away from that city, regardless of its handicaps.

The situation arises from the Leviathan going onto a mudbank in trying to get up the channel at New York. Because of that situation several remedies which are needed, in the opinion of the masters of two big ships are pointed out. Few will say that they are overdrawn, but instead of forcing the big ships to go elsewhere it will either mean that they will continue to make the best of the conditions that exist if New York will get busy and improve the complained of handicaps and dangers. There might be more danger of steamship lines abandoning New York if it were not the center that it is.

TACKLING A HARD JOB.

According to information given out by the department of motor vehicles the Automobile Club of New York is making plans for a nationwide campaign against dangerous grade crossings and the building up of an organization for the education of the motorist and the general public that they may protect themselves.

It is not only a commendable, but a needed move. The large number of grade crossing accidents show conclusively that protection at such points depends largely upon the highway users in that there are repeated instances, where warnings and signals are disregarded and where safety is entirely a matter of displaying adequate respect for a recognized danger.

The thousands killed each year at such points ought to be education enough, but they are too often disregarded under the feeling that "such a thing couldn't happen with me." If it were known there is no doubt but what many of those who have figured in crossing fatalities took the same attitude. They were so confident that they were ready to take chances, or to disregard the necessity of being careful.

Just what any organization can do, that has not already been done, in the way of emphasizing crossing dangers is not outlined, but where there is confidence that further steps will result in the saving of lives it is certainly entitled to all the encouragement possible. The chance to materially reduce the great number of needless deaths each year is a big one and there can be nothing but best wishes for the greatest success in the undertaking.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

When Europe "sees America in league," Europe should be tested for new glasses.

The man on the corner says: It is useless to expect spring before the winter flannels.

After that dinosaur egg is sold for $5,000 someone may try to cook it and find it's a geode.

This country may gain in self-respect through decreased lynchings, but there's no telling how long it will last.

New York has no need to fear an influx of crooks from Philadelphia if it is not running an open house for them.

If the Mexican rebels want to get arms from this country they must take them away from the Obregon forces.

There's not so much probability of a packed jury on the peace award as there is of a packed ballot box on the referendum.

Williamson county, Ill., doesn't appear to be any more of a law-abiding locality than was indicated at the time of the Herrin massacre.

The action in banning certain films in a number of the states shows the attitude of the public toward those stars who put themselves in position to gain undesirable notoriety.

Even though the decision of the Bok jury has been rendered it seems too bad that some of the other ideas were not disclosed. Out of such a large number of plans there ought to have been something rational other than the league of nations.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Before cooking raw fish wash it in a little vinegar.

Keep your brass candlesticks clean by rubbing occasionally with salt and vinegar.

Clean your gilt picture frames with the white of egg applied with a soft paint brush.

When your overshoes look dingy and dull wipe them off with a cloth wrung out of ammonia water.

All biscuits, rusks and cookies will keep perfectly crisp if kept in a closed tin.

When you are making a milk pudding remember that it should be cooked in a very slow oven.

Keep a lump of sugar in the teapot when it is not in use. This will prevent it from becoming musty.

Clean copper kettles by rubbing with a lemon dipped in salt. Then rinse with clear water and polish with a soft cloth.

When the furnace is being shaken cover the registers with damp cloths. This will keep the dust from flying all over the room and from disfiguring the wall paper.

Keep your preserves in a cool, dark place. Always have them labelled, the same kinds grouped together, and you will not have too spend much time hunting for what you want.

The telephone, although a necessity, is never very ornamental, and to keep it out of sight one may tuck it away in a charming little cabinet of walnut on a graceful stand.

In buying kitchenware remember that enamel is easy to clean, but the saucepans should have lids to match, not tin. Tin lids rust and need constant polishing.

TO COOK A STEW.

In cooking a stew use only as much water or stock as is required to prevent burning and too fast cooking. The juice of both meat and vegetables adds to the gravy. Keep the pot covered to retain the steam and the flavors which are dissipated by it. Shake the pan constantly to prevent anything from burning and sticking to the bottom.

TO MIX BY HAND.

To cream sugar and butter together by hand, bend the tips of fingers on the right hand down, putting thumb nail against the index finger so as to protect the nail. Use fingers between first and second joint for kneading.

You will find it is easily done while the hands are left comparatively clean.

REMOVES MUD STAINS.

If you get mud on your silk underskirt don't use a brush to it. Wrap a piece of velvet or velveteen around your finger and rub off the dried mud and to remove the mud stain rub it with a cloth dipped in ammonia and water. Brushing spoils the silk and makes the dirt go in deeper.

CREAMY PUDDINGS.

All puddings that should be smooth and creamy when baked such as custard, bread, rice and tapioca, should bake or steam slowly.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

One idea is to take lemon juice and pulp and add almond milk and a little glycerine. Such a combination is excellent for tanned and slightly dry skins. The proportions are not important—as much milk as juice—and one-third that amount of glycerine. But you can vary this. More milk is better for very dry complexions.

Don't ever, if you can help it, wave your hair with a hot iron. It dries the hair and eventually cracks it, and though it may be used in emergencies, it should never be made a general practice. If you must wave your hair frequently roll it on kid or rag curlers. These take more time than the iron, but they do not hurt the locks and they produce a soft natural-looking wave.

Many people believe that soaking the feet and ankles in hot water, to which a quantity of epsom salts has been added, will take off flesh. One of the easiest and most effective treatments is to wear high shoes laced as snugly as is comfortable, but not tight enough to stop circulation of the blood. The pressure and rubbing of the shoe top literally wears away this flesh.

The older we grow, the more strain upon our energies is any prolonged exertion and the more time we must take to rest and to allow the body to recuperate. If only the nervous woman would realize this, she would not find herself growing old before her time. If only the woman well into her thirties would heed this advice, she would not be overtaken by middle age when youth has only reached its best stage.

BOUDOIR DECORATIONS

Glassware seems to possess all the necessary qualifications for decorative articles to be placed in bedrooms: it is simple, beautiful and suggests utility.

For instance, tall, graceful candlesticks at either end of the dressing table with a decorated glass bowl in the center to complete the set would be pleasing. Sometimes these bowls hide the handles of their covers in the most remarkable nodding flowers made of glass with warm realistic coloring.

The general effect of delicate glassware is a lightness and an airy daintiness which is especially desirable in the bedroom.

Beside the boudoir chaise longue on a convenient table one might place a glass bonbonniere or a prettily colored luster vase or basket.

On a table near the window a flower bowl or glass or artistic pottery would be suitable. If possible one might be selected that has, for instance, little sculptured nymphs on the lug. Rising from the center of the bouquet these small statuettes contribute the refreshing effect of a sculptured fountain in a miniature flower garden.

A little shelf in the corner of the room might harbor a portrait sculpture in glazed pottery.

MOTTOES FOR DECORATION.

Mottoes are coming back with the fervor of the sampler stitch era, but many of the legends are written in ancient script. Others are in a piquant and highly sophisticated French. These naive little phrases flaunt themselves around the borders of scarfs and are scribbled on pocket flaps, ties and belts. One of the charming new straight frocks in powder-blue wool places a well-founded trust in a one-inch moire ribbon sash for its adornment. Mandarin orange with a brief phrase in monosyllabic Chinese stitched in black across the front.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Borders of ostrich feathers a few shades darker than the frock are featured on chiffon dance frocks.

Sashes that tie directly in front are seen in the new gowns of satin and soft crepe.

An evening cape of black satin is lined with white satin profusely embroidered in black silk. The collar is of white fur.

The newest ornament for the formal gown, whether meant for afternoon or evening, is a knot of feathers on one hip. The feathers seem to be of any kind that are soft and they should be in contrasting colors.

Black suede slippers are extremely popular at present. A pair seen recently had the added attraction of flat tongues embroidered in steel beads.

Tiered skirts are shown this year with short jackets to form a tailleur less strictly tailored than is customary.

A straightline costume of brown velvet has a collar and cuffs of Benetian lace dyed a deep ochre color.

Soutache and cire braids today are being used with discretion on tailored costumes. Upon a smart tailleur of brown drappelia these braids take the place of fur.

Lacquer red is back again today as a favorite color, used only in touches. It is often combined with that peculiar tone of grayish sand newly named "sphinx."

Silver lame in exquisite shades of yellow is among the favorite evening materials at present. It is particularly effective when decorated with shoulder straps and buckles of jet and crystal or brilliants.

A bloused back effect on winter capes is catching the eyes of many women these days. The front with apron flare is also in favor. Lustrous bolivias and brytonias, with plain or fur collars, are favorites.

The little puff sleeves sometimes seen on evening frocks and the wide, swirly skirts are reminiscent of the 1830's. The effect is heightened by the cameo on a black velvet ribbon, worn at the throat or wrist.

SCHOOL GIRL'S BELT.

Those smart new ribbon belts that carry a pencil fitted through a slot at the dashing angle of Robin Hood's cap feather are much admired by the young daughters of the family. Spark red moire ribbon is a favorite in these belts, since it is worn so successfully with any dark school dress. A lovely one snaps beneath a circular cocarde, which is made of the pleated ribbon on a small buckram disk, and the pencil slot is in the center of the cocarde.

PANEL OF EMBROIDERY.

A great deal can be achieved by one panel of embroidery, as the makers of fashionable cloaks are proving today.

A blue panel of Chinese figures or a circular panel near the hem of the skirt and going only part way around are features of some of the new outer garments.

SIX-TIER COLLAR.

A smart white collar in six tiers, terraced back two at a time and each one bound with black moire ribbon, is justly valued as the principal asset possessed by a simple black silk crepe dress.

GOOD CLEANING HINTS.

Salt or tea leaves sprinkled on the carpet will collect the dirt quickly and prevent dust from flying all over everything.

Before sweeping a rug or carpet take an old round tin, pierce holes in the bottom and fill with common salt. Sprinkle this over the carpet. It prevents the dust from rising, brightens the colors and wards off moths.

Hot, sharp vinegar will readily remove mortar and paint from window glass.

Paint on window panes may be removed by washing it with vinegar.

To keep glassware bright, wipe directly from the hot suds. Tumblers used for milk should first be rinsed in cold water, as hot water seems to drive the milk into the glass.

Scrubbing brushes should always be hung up when not in use. Then the water will drain from them, the glue which holds the bristles in place will have a chance to dry and the bristles themselves will keep nice and stiff.

LADY JANE TIE.

The self-sufficient, plain blue wool school dress, when it does permit itself to be adorned, has a way of choosing extremely effective and smart accompaniments, especially when in the hands of a certain young American designer who devotes herself to exclusive clothes for girls. Her newest favorite model has a plaid ribbon. "Lady Jane tie," strung under loops from the left shoulder, across the back and down the front at the right side, opening to the hem, ending in a self-fringe. The ribbon is four inches wide, and the loops quite short, so that the tie has to be gathered into a fold each time it passes under a loop, and this gives graceful irregularity to the line.

KEEPS IT BRIGHT.

In order to keep silver that is not in constant use in a good condition, fill a paper with alternate layers of forks, spoons and other objects and common flour that is perfectly dry. If the silver is bright and dry when you put it away it may be used at any time without being cleaned for a year or two. After this time the flour needs drying again. This plan saves a great deal of cleaning.

FOR THE BATH TUB.

To make a bath tub that has been neglected look like new soak a flannel in kerosene and rub well over the bath. In a few minutes the crust of dirt that has been left on from time to time will disappear. This method is specially good where the water is hard. If this is done each time after the bath has been used it will always have a bright new appearance, and the enamel or paint will not suffer.

TO BRIGHTEN SUITS.

Fur-trimmed suits find a particular advantage in a little touch of gaiety at the collar for special occasions. One such sprightly ornament observed slanting smartly over a graceful left shoulder is made of handsome ribbon bishop purple velvet with a center panel of silver metal brocade, with a gardenia at the fastened ends.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Factory girls in Russia earn from 300,000,000 to 400,000,000 rubles a month.

One of the most successful bond sellers in the country is a woman, Mrs. Ora M. Ferguson, of Louisville, Ky.

Management of dairies and small country estates offers new and inviting occupation for Swedish women.

A number of prominent women in Wuchow, China are taking steps to organize a women's daily newspaper.

Mrs. Cornelius B. Stone, aged 94 years, of Texas, is probably the oldest daughter of the Confederacy in the United States.

Miss M. C. Woodbury holds an old business job. She is president of the Great Falls Iron Works, of Great Falls, Mont.

TASSELED RIBBON LOOPS.

A smart black silk crepe frock has for its only trimming two fat tassels on narrow grosgrain ribbon hanging in a loop from the right shoulder to the waist, laced through three bakelite rings.

FOR A COLONIAL BED.

A quilt that will cover a colonial bed with both glory and warmth is a patch-work covering of bright pink and white, with a diamond-shaped pattern worked in.

RECIPES.

Cranberry Frappe—Boil one quart of cranberries with one pint of water ten minutes and strain through a fine sieve; add the juice of two lemons and two cups of sugar. Freeze to a mush. Serve with or after roast turkey. Arrange the frappe in a deep glass dish and surround with six stemmed shallow glasses, on a large tray. Place the tray before the hostess with the proper spoon and knife with which the serve the frappe.

Baked Apples—Wash and core apples and place in a baking dish. Fill the cavities with sugar mixed with cinnamon, using about one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon and one tablespoon sugar for each apple. Pour boiling water into the baking dish to the depth of one-half inch. Bake in a moderate oven until the apples are soft, but not until the skin bursts. About thirty or forty minutes are required, depending upon the size of the apples. The apples may be basted occasionally with the sirup in the dish. Serve with a bit of whipped cream or jelly on the top of each apple, or with sirup from the dish.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

The deduction allowed an employer for salaries or wages of employes is defined by the revenue act as "a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for services actually rendered." Such claims to be allowed must conform closely to the wording of the statute.

The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable, and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services. Reasonable compensation is held by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to the amount that would ordinarily be paid for like services by like enterprises in like circumstances.

A person who claims a deduction for wages or salary paid himself should report the amount as income, just as any other wages or salary received. Salaries or wages paid by a parent or minor child who has not been emancipated—allowed control of his earnings—whether in consideration services or otherwise are not allowable deductions.

Bonuses paid employees may be deducted by the employer when such payments are made in good faith as compensation for services actually rendered, provided that when added to the stipulated salary they do not exceed a reasonable compensation. Such bonuses may be included in the returns of the recipients. Gifts to employes which do not have in them the element of compensation may not be deducted by the employer and need not be included in the return of the recipient.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Professor James McKenn Cattell, the new president of the American Association for the advancement of Science, is a noted American educator who has specialized largely in the department of psychology. He is the son of a Presbyterian clergyman, who was president of Lafayette College. Professor Cattell has studied and lived much in Germany, while fitting himself for his work. Paris and Geneva also have contributed to his education, and he taught awhile in Cambridge University, in England. For three years he was in charge of a department at the University of Pennsylvania, and in 1891 joined the faculty of Columbia University. His influence, of late years, has been more through his activities as a journalist than as a teacher or writer on technical topics. Through various publications he has been able, as editor or contributor, to make a marked impression on the constituences supporting these journals and not the least of his efforts has been the discussion of the rights of faculty minorities as opposed to the decrees of college trustees, regents, or presidents.

Stories That Recall Others

Sometimes We Fail That Way

It was Fred's first vaudeville show. He watched the acrobats with all the interest of a five year old boy and applauded with the rest of the audience when it applauded.

Then came the comedian. He told several jokes and kept up some chatter with his female partner. And then his act was over. The audience applauded some. And then Fred's shrill voice piped out: "Is that all he is going to do, mother?"

Selling by Weight

A salesman in a sporting good store was busily engaged in inflating basketballs, lacing them up and then putting them on the scales to see whether they came within the regulation weight of from 21 to 23 ounces.

A woman customer stood by for a moment, watching the process. Finally she remarked with considerable animation: "Well, that's the first time I knew that you sold basketballs by weight."

In arrears with their rent 65,000 New York families were served with eviction notices during the first nine months of 1923.

CALL

POETRY

The Everlasting Word.

Let critics call to all the world
Of vast research and knowledge wide;
God's word shall never pass away,
In this my soul is satisfied!

If to this word some error clings,
Thank God for that discernment rare,
And for the spirit which insists,
It must not, shall not linger there.

Unaided brain may not discern
Twixt worthless chaff and finest wheat
But hungering soul of man has tastes
No art of enemy can cheat.

Let critics dig for hidden truth,
And loud proclaim the facts they know,
The Bible holds its regal sway,
The Lord of Truth ordained it so!

Blown Sails

The clouds before the norther scud
Across the wintry sky.
Like sails in ribbons blown away
From all the ships goneby—
The ships that labored in the wind
And wallowed in the foam,
And sometimes never saw again
The harbor lights of home.

Brown sails of barks from tropic parts
Below the stormy apes
With cargoes of mahogany
And perokets and apes—
Gray sails of schooner colorous
Of fish and briny sea,
White sails of clippers sweet with scents
Of cinnamon and tea.

The snowy cloths that towered aloft
On frigates proud and tall,
Patched canvas lost from dingy sloops
In hurricane or squall,
Topgallants, royals, flying jibs
Ballooning in the blast,
Ripped from their stays and swept away
To black abysses vast.

Borne on the tempest's thrashing wings
Between the sky and spume
They rode the elemental strife
And vanished in the gloom—
The clouds before the norther fly,
Unquiet ghosts of sails
Blown long ago from sapless ships
That foundered in the gales.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John H. Keep.

Mrs. Isabella H. Keep, who died in Brooklyn, Thursday, Jan. 10, in her 83d year, was the widow of John Haskell Keep, a resident of Norwich from 1873 until his death in 1895. During their residence in this city the Keep family lived at 174 Broadway, now the home of Mrs. Priscilla G. Adams. Mr. Keep was an expert accountant and connected for a time with the old Norwich bank. He held the offices of city auditor and city tax collector and was a staunch republican in party affiliations. He was for years clerk of the vestry of Trinity church and it was the wish of Mrs. Keep, frequently expressed, that Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity officiate at her funeral. This he has graciously consented to Monday afternoon in Brooklyn, where Mrs. Keep passed away.

She was the youngest and last surviving daughter of the late Rev. Dr Baxter Dickinson, an eminent Presbyterian clergyman and theological professor, author of the celebrated Auburn declaration and moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly.

Mrs. Keep was a woman of great personal sweetness and charm and in her early days possessed an exquisite singing voice of natural sweetness, cultivation and range. Until she fractured her hip, two months ago, she had been in good health and in the full enjoyment of her faculties and wide range of interests. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Annie B. Keep, who resided with her mother, and six sons, Hamilton, John, Wallace, William, Austin and Clifford, who are somewhat widely scattered.

Mrs. Keep left Norwich in 1898, and since then none of the family has lived here. The late Dr. Robert P. Keep, former principal of the Norwich Free Academy, was a first cousin of Mr. Keep. She was the last of her own immediate family, and of her husband's there survives only one sister, Mrs. George Glover Crocker, of 343 Commonwealth avenue Boston. The burial will be in Forest Hills, Boston.

STEAMER SHINNECOCK WILL REPLACE THE WYANDOTTE

The Long Island railroad management has made announcement that preparations are now being made for a substantial improvement in the road's 1924 water line service between Sag Harbor, Greenport and New London.

The steamer Wyandotte, which was used on this route for a number of years, has been withdrawn from this service, and in its place the steamer Shinnecock, of New York-Block Island fame, is being re-conditioned and will be put in operation beginning Wednesday, May 14th.

The railroad management is making this change because of the popular demand for a boat capable of carrying a much larger number of automobiles. The Wyandotte could handle only about sixteen utos on a trip. The headroom on the deck was limited, so that many of the larger sized cars could not be accommodated.

This water line route between Connecticut and Long Island has been advertised so extensively by the Sunrise Trail movement, that the railroad is thus meeting the situation by retiring the Wyandotte, and substituting the Shinnecock, which latter vessel will carry sixty pleasure automobiles, regardless of their length, breadth or height.

The usual service will be performed with the hinnecock, that is to say, from May 14th to about June 15th, there will be one round-trip a day, between Sag Harbor and New London, each way.

Beginning June 15th, two round trips a day will be made by the Shinnecock, continuing to about Oct. 15, when the line is closed for the winter.

This improvement in the water line service is expected to prove a great boom to the hotels and all business interests on the east end of Long Island, as well as to New London and other Connecticut points, because of the constantly increasing interchange of automobile traffic between the two states.

In addition to being better equipped to handle a larger complement of automobiles, the Shinnecock will have other advantages over the Wyandotte, such as greater deck accommodations for passenger traffic, including a limited number of staterooms. In all respects, the service will be first-class.

The railroad company will continue its popular one-day low-fare excursions between certain Long Island points and New London during 1924.

The Shinnecock has been owned by the Montauk Steamboat company, a subsidiary of the Long Island Railroad company, for many years, and prior to the war was operated on a route between New York city and Block Island, Sag Harbor and Greenport. This route was discontinued some time ago, and the Shinnecock has been used since that time in excursion business, and during the war was utilized by the government as a hospital ship.

POND ST. MAN SUFFERS PROBABLE BROKEN RIB WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Joseph Poparella, 56, of 15 Pond street, was struck in Pond street, Sunday night, while walking towards his home by an automobile driven by George J. Bedard of Central Village. He was knocked down by the mudguard of the machine and probably had one or more ribs broken. The full extent of his injuries will be determined by the X-ray after pictures have been taken today (Monday) at the Backus hospital to which he was taken after the accident.

Poparella, with his daughter, wife and son, were returning home from visiting friends in Franklin street and were walking in the highway on Pond street when the machine came up behind them. According to the report made to the police by Bedard, with which a statement by Poparella's son substantially agreed, the party was walking on the right of the highway and as the machine came up from Franklin street, the women and the boy turned farther to the right, but Poparella jumped to the left to reach the sidewalk which is on that side of the street. The mudguard struck him and knocked him down. Bedard brought his car to a stop almost immediately, and when he got out and found that the man was injured, offered to take him to the hospital in the machine, but the other people would not agree. Bedard then said he would go for a doctor and drove off to the home of Dr. Louis Cassiuy in Union street, but did not find him home. By the time he had come back to Pond street, the man had been taken to the hospital, and Bedard then reported at the police station.

Joseph P. Sullivan, who was on his way up Franklin street to his home at 166 Broad street, heard the noise of the blow when Poparella was hit by the machine and telephoned to police headquarters as soon as he found that the man seemed to be badly hurt. Sergt. Thomas Murphy at once summoned the Backus hospital ambulance and sent Officer Peter Driscoll to Pond street, where the policeman helped put Poparella into the ambulance and questioned the people who had been with him when he was hurt.

Bedard, who walks with a crutch, as he has lost his right leg, stated that he had been operating an automobile for several years past and has never struck anyone before. His drives a public service car.

CONNECTICUT REPORT PLAN REDUCES CROSSING ACCIDENTS

Connecticut is one of only eight states in the Union which requires persons involved in motor vehicle accidents to make complete reports of the same to the state, according to an address by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture before the American Association of Highway Official at New Orleans. The other seven are Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, Virginia and Wisconsin.

The effect of this requirement has been to reduce the proportion of grade crossing accidents in those states to the total number of motor vehicles registered.

Accident prevention at grade crossings is a subject which demands the close attention of all officials having to do with traffic regulation said Chief MacDonald. That technical legislation will never succeed as a remedy is the contention of President Fred H. Caley, president of the Ohio State Automobile Association, who has also made a careful study of the subject. In his judgment the law in many states requiring a driver to come to a stop at a grade crossing, has been found to have accomplished little more than to increase the opportunities for local authorities to line motorists.

The Automobile Club of New York which is now engaged in plans for a nation-wide campaign against dangerous grade crossings, is investigating the accident reporting system in the eight states mentioned by Chief MacDonald. A survey of the legal situation in the different states is under way and an organization is being built up for the purpose of educating the motorist and general public to help to protect themselves.

"EXTREME UNCTION" THE TOPIC OF FR. GUERRIERO'S SERMON

That one of the seven sacraments of the Roman Catholic church, Extreme Unction, which enables men to die in grace, with courage and resignation and in favor with God, was the theme of the brief sermon which Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero, assistant pastor, preached at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, to a congregation overflowing the seating accommodations of the great edifice. Father Guerriero stated the three conditions under which this sacrament can be received—the patient must be a Catholic, must have reached the age of reason and must be in imminent danger of death. How the Catholic church, which daily teaches mon how to live, also teaches them how to die with a fortitude worthy of their faith, was then explained; also the manner in which those in the household of, or about the bedside of the person who is sick should make ready for the visit of the priest bringing the holy eucharist, to be administered to the patient. The department of those in the sick room and the prayers they should recite, after the patient has made his last confession to the priest, and is about to be anointed, formed a portion of the practical instruction. The mistake of friends, who, with the motive of cheering the sick, often predict recovery and try to defer the visit of the priest for this final preparation of the sick for death, was censured.

Following the confessions of Saturday afternoon and evening, so many in the congregation went to the altar for holy communion that Father Guerriero required the assistance of Rev. Myles P. Galvin, senior assistant, in administering the sacrament.

It was the first Sunday after Epiphany, the epistle read in all the masses being St. Paul to the Romans, 12, 1-5 and the gospel, Luke 2, 42-52.

COLLEGE PROFESSOR SPEAKS ON BOK PEACE PLAN

At the Sunday evening service at the Central Baptist church Professor Hannah G. Roach, Ph. D., of Connecticut college, gave a talk on the Edward Bok prize plan. Dr. Roach, who is a professor of international law, was introduced to the large congregation by Rev. Dr. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church. In presenting the speaker, Rev. Dr. Pitt spoke briefly of the peace plan contest originating with the $100,000 offer made by Edward Bok. He told of the selection of one of the contest papers as the prize winner, the offer stipulating that one-half of the $100,000 be paid immediately and the other $50,000 paid when the plan is endorsed by the people of the country.

Dr. Roach explained in considerable detail the provisions of the plan accepted as the prize winner. She said of cooperation open to the country in order to secure world peace. One is The Hague tribunal, another, the court of international justice and the third the league of nations. The speaker said there are 62 civilized states in the world and that 54 of these states are now in the league of nations. The league celebrated its fourth birthday January 10th. It seems reasonable, she said, to cooperate through the league of nations. The author of the prize plan thinks we should cooperate with the league. The plan is that the United States, without becoming a member of the league, extend its cooperation with the league.

Another provision of the plan is that Articles 10 and 16 of the league covenant be either dropped altogether or amended so as to eliminate any suggestion of superpower or any coercion for obtaining conformity to its pledges.

At the close of her talk Dr. Roach announced that she would endeavor to answer any questions. One question asked was what result the vote of the people would have on the plan. Dr. Roach said that a favorable vote would influence the members of congress on its adoption by the body.

FLASHING BEACONS WIN IN TRIALS OF STRENGTH

Two of the new flashing beacons that have been placed in Norwich for traffic guides came out winners Saturday in tests of strength with automobiles that crashed into them. Both machines were dragged from the field of battle in a crippled condition, while the beacons kept on doing duty as before.

Harry J. Schatz, a painter and paper hanged, with a stage on Main street, hit the beacon at Shannon's corner about 8 o'clock Saturday morning in avoiding a collision with another machine. The beacon was moved a few inches from its position but the Chevrolet car driven by Schatz had two wheels and an axle broken and the body twisted. It had to be towed away. A little work with a crowbar put the beacon back where it belonged, and its flashing was undisturbed.

A little after midnight Thomas McCarthy of Niantic, superintendent of a mill in that place, crashed into the beacon near the Chelsea bank corner with force enough to carry it along 25 feet until it rested across one rail of the trolley track. The heavy concrete base of the beacon, weighing nearly half a ton, kept it from toppling over and it was standing upright when it came to a stop.

Officer Michael Carroll placed Mr. McCarthy under arrest for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The excused man was examined by a doctor who was called to police headquarters and later in the night friends gave bail in the sum of $300 for Mr. McCarthy for his appearance in court.

The bumper on the front of the Essex touring car driven by Mr. McCarthy was broken, the left front spring twisted and bent back, the axle bent and a leak started in the radiator, the car had to be towed away for repairs.

Officer P. Murphy used the motor patrol wagon to pull the beacon back into place hitching a rope to it and loading the patrol with about a dozen men to give it traction power. The beacon never missed a flash throughout the performance.

WEDDING

Sanders—Densmore

A very pretty wedding took place Saturday evening at 7.30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders of No. 11 Arnold street, when Miss Mattie Emma Densmore, daughter of Charles A. Densmore of Hanover, N. H., became the bride of George H. Sanders, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George K. Sanders.

The wedding took place in the living room of the house beneath an archway of hemlock, ferns and palms, the single ring Episcopal service being used by Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church. The bridal party entered the room to Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Fred Thumm, an intimate friend of the couple, and the bride was given in marriage by Daniel J. McNeil, at whose home she has been staying as guest of his daughter, Miss Ruth McNeil. The couple was attended by Mrs. Florence Starr Brown, as matron of honor, and by William Sanders, brother of the groom, as best man. Master Kenneth Sanders, nephew of the groom was ring bearer. The ushers were Austin Lathrop, Albert and Grant Denison.

The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin, with white satin rosebuds and pearl trimming, and here coronet veil was caught up with sweet peas and pearls. Her shower bouquet was of pink rosebuds.

The matron of honor was gowned in orchid colored canton crepe, with trimmings of pink rosebuds and Spanish lace. Her shower bouquet was of pink rosebuds.

The little ring bearers was dressed in a black satin suit with white satin trimmings and carried a basket of sweet peas, ferns and rosebuds, in the midst of which rested the satin pillow for the wedding ring.

Following the wedding a reception was held relatives and friends from Brooklyn, N. Y., New London, Hartford and other places to the number of 65 being present. A buffet lunch was served by the Misses Edith Budzeck, Agnes Lathrop and Lucile Spaulding, who were gowned in white silk with corsage bouquets of rosebuds. During the reception a delightful musical program was rendered by Thumm's orchestra, Fred Thumm, director.

The large wedding cake which was placed in the center of the table decorated with cut flowers was cut by the bride during the luncheon. The color scheme in decorations throughout the house was in pink, white and green, and was tastefully selected by Hawkins, the florist.

The gift of the groom to the bride was a necklace, the setting of which was the birth stone of the bride. To the best man he gave an Odd Fellows' charm, to the ushers, silver pencils, and to the ring bearer and his brother, sets of table silver. The gift of the bride to the groom was a Masonic ring set with a diamond. To the matron of honor she gave an Eastern Star bar pin set with pearls, to the girls who served, gold clasp pins and to Mr. McNeil a gold pencil.

The groom was born in New London, but has lived in Norwich for some time. He attended a local public school and later the Norwich Free Academy. He is now employed by N. S. Gilbert & Sons Co. The bride is a native of Hanover, N. H., and has been a student nurse.

The bride received many beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass, china, linen, electrical appliances and household articles.

After a wedding trip to New York city, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders will be at home after February 1st to their many friends at their newly furnished home at No. 3 Boswell avenue.

LEGHORNS LOSE LEAD TO WYANDOTTES AND REDS

Storrs, Conn., Jan. 10—Wyandottes and Reds have at least temporarily relegated the Leghorns to second place. The light weight layers got away to a good start and for the first eight weeks other breeds scarcely had a look in. For the last fortnight, however, there has been a touch of real winter at Storrs and in consequence the heavy weight breeds promptly stepped into the gap when the Leghorns let up a little. D. O. Wiltmer's pen of White Wyandottes from Joplin, Mo., was the high scoring pen for the week with a production of 53 eggs. Fernside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., was second best pen with a score of 52 eggs. F. M. Johnson's pen of White Leghorns from Waldoboro, Maine, came in for third place with a mark of 49 eggs. Another pen of Leghorns owned by C. T. Darby of North Branch, N. J., made fourth place with a total of 48 eggs.

The total production for all pens in the tenth week was 3615 eggs or a yield of a little over forty-three per cent. This is a gain of 303 eggs over the corresponding week last year but is 316 eggs less than they laid last week. The leading pens in the Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red classes maintained their same relative position but in the Wyandotte group Albert W. Buckbee of Wisner, N. Y., passed Clemens J. Diemand of New Britain who has been holding down third place. In the Leghorn class F. M. Johnson who was tied for fourth place last week now holds third position with Hanson's Poultry Farm from Corvallis, Ore., trailing by only eight eggs.

The four leading pens in each of the principal breeds are as follows:

WORLD'S GREATEST IRRIGATION STRUCTURES

News from India that the world's greatest barrage is to be laid down in the Indus Valley does not mean that a new World War is in progress with an inferno of bursting shells, but that Great Britain's engineers are going about the peaceful business of taming a great river and adding millions of acres to the earth's tillable area.

What a barrage is, and how this latest of great reclamation projects compares with the leading irrigation works of the United States and the rest of the world, is told in the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"Unlike the famous Assuan Dam across the Nile and such a well-known structure as the Elephant Butte, Roosevelt and Pathfinder Dams the heart of the Indus irrigation system is to be a barrage, not a dam. Both barrages and dams work toward the same ends; to help get river water on the land; but they go about it in somewhat different ways.

"The barrage is a low dam, over or through which the water continues to flow. Its function is to raise and keep the water at a certain height so that part of it will run off into canals on the river banks. The remainder goes tumbling over the barrage and on down the river bed. The barrage is, in a word, a colossal elder brother to the diversion weirs that turn water from main canals into minor channels.

"The dam, on the other hand, is primarily a storage structure that creates a great reservoir in which the entire river flow for much of the year is held captive until the dry season when it is needed in the valleys below. Then the stored water is fed out through sluices.

"The physical geography of the United States is such that practically all its irrigation development has been based on the use of dam-made reservoirs rather than on barrages. Only one big barrage is a part of the many irrigation systems developed by the United State Reclamation Service, the so-called Laguna Dam across the Colorado River a few miles above, Arizona. This structure merely makes a sort of a huge 'permanent wave' in the Colorado, but it is sufficient to divert hundreds of thousands of gallons of water into great canals which flow off along both the Arizona and the California shores.

"The Indus Barrage, which will be built near Sukkur in the Sind, will be the greatest barrage in the world, both in length and amount of water diverted. Seven canals will flow out on the level created by the new structure and will furnish water estimated to be enough to irrigate six million acres of land now barren. This is a region greater than the entire area of Massachusetts.

"Two of the canals on the right bank of the river will be wider than the Suez Canal, and one of the waterways on the left bank will be nearly half as broad again. The remaining channels will be narrowers, but will carry mighty streams themselves.

"Among existing irrigation structures, the Assuan Dam across the Nile is often pointed to as the greatest. In point of length is probably is, since it is 1 1-4 miles from abutment to abutment. Its 146 feet of height, however, is overtopped by at least five American irrigation dams—Arrowrock, Idaho, 349 feet; Shoshone, Wyoming, 328; Elephant Butte, New Mexico, 306; Roosevelt, Arizona, 280; and the Pathfinder, Wyoming 218. In the matter of the amount of water impounded, world honors among artificial reservoirs should probably go to the Elephant Butte Dam, across the Rio Grande River in New Mexico. Such measurements are best made in the number of acres the water would cover one foot deep. The capacity of the Elephant Butte reservoir is more than 356,000 acre feet greater than that created by the Assuan Dam." MISC

Some persons call the great blue heron a "squawk bird," because of its peculiar call, which is a squawk. Others call it a "crane."

It is more water bird than crane, however, and feeds largely on fish, says the Huntington Advertiser.

In the spots from which he has not yet been driven by man and his various noises and methods of destruction, the heron is an industrious and patient hunter. He stalks silently about or stands rigidly for long periods at a time watching his chances to make a swift and sure lunge with his beak for a frog, fish, a reptile, or even an occasional mouse.

FRANKIE JEROME DIES IN NEW YORK AS RESULT OF INJURIES IN BOUT FRIDAY

New York, Jan. 13.—Frank Doherty, known in the boxing ring as Frankie Jerome, died tonight in Bellevue hospital from a compound fracture of the skull, believed to have been suffered in his last bout Friday night with Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind., in which Jerome received a terrific beating.

The boxer had partially recovered from an operation and surgeons believed he had a fighting chance to live but complications set in and his death came suddenly. He is survived by his wife and mother who lived with him in the Bronx.
